FASCIST ITALY FACES GRAVE PROBLEMS

The shake-up of commands in the Italian forces is the latest development in the crisis which has come upon the Italian nation with remarkable suddenness as the Greeks with irresistible force drive forward through Albania. To the outsider there appears a swing against the manner in which the Italian situation has been left to politicians who were responsible for the forcing of war upon Greece, Marshal Badoglio, chief of staff, has given up his post probably in protest against the whole situation which has been forced upon the military chiefs in Italy by the puny Fascist politicians. Now the Dodecanese governor has been relieved at his own reguest, as a Roman official communique states. The naval chief has quit. Mussolini like the meddler he has been in international politics for years has allowed this meddling in the army and has been himself the chief offender, there is no doubt. That is one of the views held of this situation and as proof of this it is pointed out that Mussolini, true to form, appoints the Blackshirt leader, General Count Ugo Cavallero, to be chief of the general staff of the Italian army succeeding Badoglio.

The Italian situation is enough to cause the Fascists real concern and these Italians who have knowledge of the trend of events, must be alarmed.

The Fascists of Italy like the Nazis in Germany have played the vilest politics and picked out choice spots for themselves. As in Germany a small group of sycophants stand about the dictator and do his bidding. But apparently Fascism has never penetrated successfully and very deeply into the nation as there is said to be real ground for belief that the heart of the people is not greatly in the war in which Italy is fighting Britain, her ally in the last war.

British Home Secretary Herbert Morrison has just said "it becomes possible to hope that the Italian Fascist Empire may be a dummy—all canvas and camouflage." These words may explain the weaknesses which have been revealed by the British and Greek victories. If this is so, Mussolini and his group can bear the blame for opening up to the Allies, Britain and Greece, the glorious opportunity of showing up the weak points in the Fascist end of the Axis.

There is no doubt that the dictator in Berlin is irritated by what is going on in the Mediterranean. What will he do? Cash in on the Italian situation by an attempt to mediate the Greek-Italian war to try and rescue some of the prestige of the Fascists? That itself might be dangerous for him as a sign of the weakness of the Axis and then besides Britain and the Greeks have something to say. These Allies know the duplicity, the utter faithlessness of the German Fuehrer and his companion Mussolini and would not trust them.

As events are unfolding rapidly, great changes no doubt are impending in the Italian outlook day by day with the Greeks going forward steadily to their goal.

Italy has been recognized as the weak member of the Axis and there must be many Italians who fear for the future as the war goes on. Fascists at war have been a sorry sight for the Italian eyes and a disgust to the Germans. As has been said, the Fascist Empire may be shown to be "all canvass and camouflage." In the early days of the war Italy was watched very closely for signs of a trend. It was felt by many that Italy's airplanes were a mighty force, that Italy's fleet was a power to be reckoned with and that the millions of men Mussolini had boasted of were something to be considered. But it is to be noted that at no time did Britain falter. Those in authority evidently had appraised the Fascist regime at its proper value.

There are signs of very grave disorders in the Fascist situation, one weakness showing up another, perhaps "all canvas and camouflage."

SOME ANCIENT HISTORY

Greece of Thermopylae, Marathon and Salamis is having its revenge. Ancient Greece colonized a large part of southern Italy which formed a part known in the days of the Romans as Magna Graecia. Much of the glory of ancient Rome was reflected glory of Greece.

The world now can realize not only from history but also from the action of the Greeks today how it was that the Greeks of twenty-five centuries or more ago formed the leading civilized state in the world, because it was founded on democratic principles and because the Greeks, natives of a land none too wealthy, and a country requiring hard work to develop them a living, were taught to be industrious and by the very nature of their terrain and their coast to become great adventurers and pioneers as well as an alert and cultured race. They contacted the Isles of Greece in the Aegean Sea and in the Grecian Archipelago. The Greeks were the heroes of romance nearly three thousand years ago. The Greeks today showed the same spirit as their faraway ancestors. The proof is in the vitality of their democracy today which exists because of the character of the people.

Across from Albania is that part of Italy where the Greeks exercised their influence before the time of Christ. The Greeks were adventurous pioneers and brought a rich civilization to the south of Italy and were acquainted with the island of Sicily.

Italian Rout May Prove Crucial Event

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Dec. 9—(AP)—Historians delving for explanations of dramatic events of the war, such as the swift defeat of France and Italy's disastrous invasion of Greece, have a rich field to cull.

A special French tribunal set up to fix responsibility for the fall of the Third Republic promises revelations as to what and who led France to her unhappy fate. In the light of subsequent events in Greece and Albania, the pattern of which is still evolving, it now seems that Mussolini himself has given a key to what underlay that first big war disaster for the Nazi-Fascist Axis mates.

The consequences of that Italian repulse by the valiant but outnumbered and ill-equipped Greeks are beyond calculation. The defeat may prove the crucial event of the war. The why of it may prove to have been indicated in Mussolini's speech in Rome, Nov. 18.

That was the anniversary of the application to Italy of League of Nations' economic sanctions intended to curb her aggression against Ethiopia. Mussolini said it was a "decisive date" in Europe, a "day of victory for Fascist Italy."

Italian reverses in Greece were then beginning. Il Duce admitted it by blustering that Italy would "break Greece's back, whether in two months or twelve, it little matters."

Truth Limited in Italy

Yet he found it expedient to stress for Italian home consumption the claim that Britain alone, except for "a supine France," was responsible for the ills the war had brought or might bring to Italy. He prepared the Italian people for more bad news by saying:

"A strong people like the Italians do not fear the truth. That is why our war bulletins are documentations of truth."

Rome bulletins on the Greek war do that in a limited sense. They admit an Italian offensive was turned quickly into a defensive, but boast that Fascist forces are "even counter-attacking" in some sectors. They have not yet told the Italian people that only Fascist dead, wounded and prisoners remain on Greek soil.

There seems small doubt that it was reverses against Greece which shook Italy's foremost soldier, Marshal Pietro Badoglio, out of Italian military chieftainship. Whether he stepped out as a scapegoat to save Mussolini's face at home or gave way to a younger man to direct the major military operation matters little.

Gives Glimpse of Morale

His resignation, followed by other major changes in the military command, heavily underscores the increasing gravity of the situation for both Hitler and Mussolini. It does not help explain the Italian disaster.

Mussolini did explain—to some extent. He told his Rome audience:

"The Greeks hate Italy as no other people. It is a hatred which at first glance appears inexplicable but, in general, is deep-seated and incurable in all branches, in the cities and the villages, high and low, everywhere."

That helps explain the Greeks, but not the miserable showing of the Italian army of attack. For that Il Duce gave this glimpse of Italian war morale:

"English aid cannot . . . save the Hellenes from catastrophe. . . . To think or suspect something otherwise means not to know me. Once a beginning is made, I do not soften. I have already shown that, and, whatever has happened, is happening or may happen, I will show it again."

This all adds up to open recognition of a condition of war apathy in Italy strikingly reflected in the army in Albania. It is the war highlight stimulating Balkan-Turkish resistance to Axis will.

Soliloquy on Price of Scotch

By Robert M. Yoder in the Chicago Daily News

As was pointed out here the other day, there are no more loyal Scots anywhere than the American dealers in Scotch whisky. Many of these men are no more Scottish than pastrami or gefulltefish, but their sympathy for Scotland, in its war agony, is terrific. When Scotland suffers, they suffer. When Scotland doesn't suffer, they suffer anyway. And in either case, whenever they get to worrying about Scotland's fate, as they have in the last few weeks, they up the wholesale price on Scotch whisky again.

There would be no use telling these fellows that some of the Scotch whisky was made a long time ago. They regard every bottle as having been made under intensive bombardment by a hero worthy of Scotland's highest decoration. Made by a hero's hands, it is then brought across the sea under running fire from a German raider. This is how the dealers understand it, at least, when they make out the price. There isn't much they can do about it, but they do their bit. They charge a hero's price and make a hero's profit.

Sooner or later, if they keep this up, there will be complaints of profiteering. They are getting into the habit of charging for each bottle of Scotch as if it were the last bottle to come from a Scotland later laid waste and in ruins. When the customers find out that this is an exaggerated view, they are likely to beef.

In defence of the liquor dealers, however, it might be said that their problem is not an easy one. Even in ordinary times, they have trouble with prices. Taxes are the prime example of this; the liquor dealers never understand taxes. Everyone in the liquor business religiously adds the total taxes, federal state and local, to any price he is making. It has been argued many times that they are overdoing this, but it has never made any impact on the liquor-men

So it's highly improbable that they'll be able to figure out the new problem of where to add the cost of a major war. If the British bomb Taranto, as they did the other day all the liquor dealer knows, in his innocence, is that this costs money, lots of money. Adding this to the ordinary expenses of whisky making plus what it must have cost the Italians, who lost a pretty penny making repairs, you run into real money. It's true that it wasn't the liquor dealer's money, but they are broad-shouldered fellows on this subject of costs. No matter who spends what, the liquor dealers add it to the price of booze.

What Glory In Fascism?

It is not news that an Italian Futurist poet, Major Filippo Tommaso Marinetti, defended "the esthetics and beauty of war" in an address delivered this week before a Roman audience. It is news, and good news, that a part of the audience audibly signified before the lecture was over that enough was enough. Such an incident could hardly occur in Berlin, where war is taken seriously as Hitler's great gift to mankind. In Italy there seems to be some survival of the sense of irony.

The sense of irony may reveal to many Italians that Mussolini's warlike activities since last June, however beautiful in conception, have brought small rewards to his country. They had little enough to eat in May, they have less now. They had lost sons, brothers and husbands in the Ethiopian and Spanish adventurers; they are losing more now in Greece and Egypt. They have helped to bomb Britain, but many of their planes did not return. Coffee, butter, peace and honor have been bartered for glory, and there isn't as yet any glory.

Mussolini taught Hitler how to dictate, with some help from the uncommunicative Stalin. Now if any dictating is to be done in Europe, Hitler does it. The beauty of war is tanks in the mud. Greeks coming on at the point of the ignoble, bayonet, civilians blown to bits in Corfu, and, at home, dismay, forebodings and telegrams to the next of kin.

No wonder Signor Marinetti's audience grew restive. The wonder is that they threw off the Fascist hypnotism long enough to show it. Perhaps behind the brutal fantasy something of the lovely, lazy humorous, creative old Italy survives.—New York Times.

Old Folks at Home

Sociologist Lawrence Frank's idea for building little cities in the South where elderly people could retire and live their last years free from worry and in congenial company sounds so inviting that it may reverse Ponce de Leon and make the young wish to be old. There are comforts here proposed that grandfather never knew when he was a boy.

The towns would have small, sturdily built houses or multiple-family dwellings heated by central plants or electricity regulated by button in the home. Food would be cooked centrally and delivered from house to house in thermos kits. Golf links, movies and libraries would be supplied in quantity. The residents would be over 65, except for the physicians, nurses, cooks and other personnel who did the hard work about town. There would would be just enough children around to play with; these could be shooed away when they began to get bumptious and frazzle the nerves. The old folks could even entertain their grandchildren — if they wanted to. The towns would be self-supporting, their building financed perhaps by large insurance companies, and their upkeep provided for out of the life savings and social security pensions of the residents.

Women who have kept house all their lives have as much right to retirement from this occupation as to their husbands from business, according to Mr. Frank, who is a member of the advisory committee on problems of old age of the National Institute of Health. As far as we can see, these are going to be towns where nobody, male or female, does much if any work; where there are no ashes to carry up from the cellar; few or no pots and pans to wash; where golf is played all morning, bridge in the afternoon and the latest product of Hollywood inspected at night. Here a man reads himself to sleep with a good book, and, if the fancy strikes him, wakes from untroubled slumber to breakfast continentally in bed.

Here the youngster of 70 can gloat not too charitably over the neighbor of 65 whose arteries make him feel 75. Here the wordy raconteur who returns too often and too heroically to San Juan Hill can bore, and be bored by his contemporaries. Here, in short, the balmy peaceful afternoon of life will pass softly into a quiet evening—at home. Those of middle age who feel a little tired already will be hoping that Mr. Frank soon gets his Southern villages under way.—New York Times.

Italy's Debt to Greece

The National Herald, a Greek daily newspaper published in New York has been running a series of articles, based on a book by the Greek historian, K. Kerofylas, which shows how the Greeks befriended those Italian patriots who strove so valiantly to free their country from Austrian domination, but were compelled to seek a temporary refuge from the oppressors. These articles have now been translated into English and published in pamphlet form. Among those given shelter in this way appear such distinguished names as Count Giacomo Mamini, ex-minister of finance of the republic of Rome; Luigi Mannini, president of the democratic government of Venice; Nicolo Tomasso, General Guglielmo Pepe, Colonel Zambeccari, Dr. Mattiroli and many others.

According to the Concordia, published in Turin, there were in 1849 two thousand refugees in Greece, a number, it is claimed, "considerably increased a little later." Not only were these patriots enthusiastically received, but funds were raised for their support and homes offered them. One Italian weekly whote of this period: "While in the Occident all doors are closed to the defenders of Milan and Rome, Greece keeps its gates open to all the heroic remnants of peoples who at these times seek a friendly haven. The inhabitants of Athens and of Piraeus are competing with each other in the matter of doing more for the refugees, while Greek shipping men place their boats at the disposal of those who do not know where to go."

It is not to be wondered at that this friendly conduct on the part of the Greeks was remembered with gratitude by Italians. "O Greece, though you are still weak from your long-lasting and strenuous struggles," cried Concordia, "you have opened cheerfully and generously the gates of your cities to this exiled people and you have invited them to partake of your hospitality with a brotherly love. May your gesture and your mercy be blessed!" Francesco Crispi, onetime prime minister of Italy, writes in his diary of Greece: "The sea, the sky, and soil of Greece have something divine in them. We Italians have many bonds with Greece and many mutual ties. Once in Greece it is these ties which make us feel so much at home." And in a letter to his friend Giuseppe Martini, he speaks of Greece's enthusiasm for the Italian cause. Owing to tradition and to the mutual ties between Greeks and Italians, he adds, the Greeks believe that Italy "shall be their protectress, once our country shall come to occupy its proper place as a free state among the European powers." Such sentiments, declared the statesman, "were like balsam to my heart."

But we know how Italy has spurned all such obligations. The "protectress" has become the ravisher. In the words of the National Herald, "Italian Fascism repays with ingratitude Italy's debt to civilized modern Greece." It is interesting to note, too, what Mazzini had to say about Albania, which he describes as a country "whose mother tongue is a Greek dialect and whose bonds with Greek life date back to Alexander the Great." So recently in 1916, the semi-official Italian Foreign Policy admitted that Italian interests in Albania "must be concentrated in Avlona and in a hinterland of a size sufficient for the military occupation of its port." "Greece has never advanced any claims on Avlona," proceeds this statement, "beyond this hinterland we must recognize the Greek claims up to Goritza."

Hugh Walpole Missed A Great Chance

By Sir Hugh Walpole, in John O'Londen's Weekly

Adolf Hitler. Did I ever know him? Oddly enough I think I did better than I know some of my real friends. It was in the early 'twenties during two successive Summers at Bayreuth. I stayed there for more than two months, Summer after Summer with Lauritz Melchior, who was at that time singing the leading tenor roles in the Wagner operas. I was also a friend of Winnie Wagner, wife of Siegfried Wagner's only son. Many strange stories there are about that odd adventurer, but the only thing that matters here is that Adolf Hitler, fresh from his Munich prison, passed some time at Bayreuth.

He was and is a great friend of Frau Wagner, and he had and he has a passion for Wagner's music. I sat in a box with him on the occasion when Melchior made his debut in Parsifal. I have never since heard him sing as he did that day. The tears poured down Hitler's cheeks.

During the second of these Summers I was with Hitler on many occasions talked, walked and ate with him. I think he rather liked me. I liked him and despised him, both emotions which time has proved I was wrong to indulge. I liked him because he seemed to me a poor fish quite certain to be shortly killed. He was shabby, unkempt, very feminine, very excitable. He resembled, I thought then, mediums I had seen at Conan Doyle's flat. There was something pathetic about him, I felt. I felt rather maternal to him! He spoke a great deal about his admiration of England and the need of her alliance with Germany.

I thought him fearfully ill-educated and quite tenth-rate. When Winnie Wagner said he would be the saviour of the world I just laughed. I was wrong about one thing his evil. I didn't detect it then. I thought him silly, brave and shabby—rather like a necromantic stump orator. I didn't realize at all his one supreme gift—the gift that has brought him and his country where they are today — his gift for knowing instinctively the "spot" in any man's character to attack — the weak spot, the spot that is ungenerous, greedy, mean, traitorous lecherous and above all cowardly.

Oh, yes, he is a remarkable man all right! He is among the evil, slinking, betraying Bagmen of history. Why didn't I put poison into his coffee in Wahnfried?

Older Germans Gloomy

It is a result of Nazi teaching that the younger Germans are enthusiastic about the war, while the older people in the Reich are gloomy. Hitler caught the youths when they were young and he drilled into them the thought that their lives were to be dedicated to the one cause of fighting a war to conquer the world for Germany.

Hon. Cyril H. Cane, O.B.E., British Consul in Detroit, explains the difference in feeling toward the war. The older people would like it to end quickly, but the younger folk still have sufficient faith in the Fuehrer to want to go on with the battle.

The Nazis knew that they could not do much with the elderly Germans. They had tasted defeat in one war by which Germany hoped to gain world supremacy. They had gone through the gradual collapse until there was revolution. They knew the hunger and privation that war brought in its wake.

But, the Nazis caught the younger people in the flood tide of youthful enthusiasm. They knew nothing of the war hunger and the war disaster. They were nurtured in the dreams of power and reared on the imaginations of conquest. They were educated in the school of death or glory. They were ready to fight when Hitler said the word.

It will still take some doing to knock the stuffing out of these young Nazis. But, results are already being obtained. Young Germans no longer volunteer to be aviators; they are pressed into the flying service. They know the chances of returning to the Reich are not so good. That is a start. Once they begin to realize they are not invincible, even the most enthusiastic young Nazis will begin to lose their enthusiasm.—Windsor Star.

TREASURY GETS

On the Congressional front, meanwhile, Senator Alva Adams (Dem-Colorado) told newsmen that Britain should have at least 60 per cent of American aircraft production, instead of the prevailing 50 per cent.

"We have a considerable number of defence planes now," Adams asserted. "We have enough to protect us against any immediate attack.

"As long as England has planes Hitler is not going to try to attack the United States."

Senator Gerald Nye (Rep-North Dakota) reported that an increased allotment of aircraft to Great Britain "would jeopardize our defence."

May Give All the Planes

"I was afraid," said Nye, "that when the 50-50 allotment was agreed upon we ultimately would be increasing Great Britain's share, even to giving them all our new planes."

Nye, a leader of the group which opposes further British aid, said he anticipated an effort in the new Congress to wipe out entirely the existing Neutrality Act, which forbids the transportation of goods to belligerents in American ships and stipulates a "cash-and-carry" policy for purchases in this country.

Expressing the view that "the billions already loaned to Britain are already gone," Nye added that the talks between Morgenthau and Sir Frederick, which opened Friday were "the first step" toward a British loan.

In the opposite camp, however, Senator William King (Dem-Utah) said he believed that "the Government should extend to Great Britain any credits that may be imperatively needed" and added that planes, ships and other war equipment should be supplied her in the greatest possible amounts.

"It would be a terrible catastrophe if Britain should be defeated," he asserted. "The world under the rule of Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini and Japan would be an enslaved world, a dark and tragic world."

King's belief was "If Great Britain is defeated then we will be drawn in."

MISTAKE CELEBRATION FOR ALARM

Salonika, Greece, Dec. 9 (AP)—A lot of Greeks were late last night for the celebration which followed the announcement of the fall of Argirocastro. Salonika had had a taste of air raids last month, and so when the whistles and bells got going hundreds of Greeks mistook the sounds for an alarm and dashed into cellars.

Three young men—unofficial wardens of a South London Council—working by the light of gun flashes, moved a 250 pound bomb to a church yard and dumped it under a tree where it was exploded.

SCALE OF LIVING MUST COME DOWN DURING WINTER

'No General Shortage' Says J. B. Priestly 'But Temporary Shortage of Particular Kinds in Some Areas'

SPEAKS TO U. S.

London, Dec. 9—(CP) — Britons will have to cut down their scale of living during the coming "difficult" winter, J. B. Priestley, noted English author, said last night on the British Broadcasting Corporation's "Britain Speaks" feature.

"There is no general shortage of essential foodstuffs," Priestley said, "but there is a temporary shortage of a few particular kinds in some areas.

"Our imports of food from the United States are necessarily restricted because the convoy duty of the navy has been enlarged and extended in spite of our recent naval successes in the Mediterranean. "We need more destroyers."

Speaking to citizens of the United States, Priestley said "A cash-and-carry rule should not be allowed to hamper the war effort of a nation which is fighting the world's battles."

The British Food Ministry was doing a "good job," but it was forced to "challenge the settled and conservative food habits of the British people."

"Because of these conservative habits and the lack of originality in preparing and eating meals, we have never taken kindly to the system of communal feeding," Priestley said.

Communal Feeding Urged

"We undoubtedly would be better off if communal feeding were established all over the country within the next few months. We need an enormous extension of the scheme, backed by public support."

In communal kitchens, wastage would be reduced to an absolute minimum and people would be ensured of a balanced diet.

Setting up of this communal plan as an emergency in bombed areas had shown its worth, he said.

The British people would have to get used to the idea of changing their life and habits to meet the war situation, which was "wildly and terribly abnormal."

"Our slogan should be 'Nothing as Usual' — not 'Everything as Usual.'"

The idea of keeping things as they were in peacetime was one of "the mistakes of the Chamberlain Government" early in the war. At that time, there was grumbling that no demands were being made on the people.

"Out of this change in our living habits, however, may come something that will add to the amenities of our urban life," he said. "We will show more originality in our food and we may dine out a little oftener."

We were eating supper, being liver and onions in pop's honor, and Nora brought in the dizzert, and I said, Aw heck, rice pudding without raisins, you cant call that dizzert.

Now look here, young man, ma said. There are thousands of poor people who would be only too glad to be eating this, and only too happy to call it dizzert, she said, and I said, Well G wizzickers, we're not poor people, so we ought to be glad not to even have to give a imitation of them. Good night I dont want any, I'm going out and see if any of the fellows are out, I said.

Oh no you're not, pop said. You're going to sit right there and watch a comparatively wealthy family enjoy a dish of rice pudding without raisins and thereby prove that they haven't lost the common touch, he said, and I said, Aw G, pop, gosh, G. roozalem.

That just about expresses the situation, pop said.

And he started to eat his rice pudding saying, Perfectly delicious poor fokes must lead a marvellous life if this is the sort of fare they eat all the time, and ma saying I never tasted anything more tasty, my how I envy the destitute.

And they each took a 2nd helping, making enjoyable sounds with their mouths, and I said, Oh well, I dont mind trying just a little so long as I'm here.

Nonsense, I wouldn't think of letting you abandon your principals, pop said. The world needs a few economic royalists and plutocratic snobs if only for variety. Just one more spoonfull for me, mother, I feel as though I were clothed in velvety rags and glittering shreds of tattered joolry, he said.

Already according to the Ontario Forestry Branch there has been a total fall of more than three feet. Traffic was completely disrupted. Canadian Trade Commission Confers In Kingston, Jamaica

Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 9—(CP Cable)—Members of the Canadian trade mission to the West Indies and South America conferred Saturday with Governor Sir Arthur Richards and high government officials and later said general understanding had been reached on the problems discussed.

The delegation, headed by the Trade Minister, Hon. J. A. MacKinnon, has been here since Thursday. It will sail Monday for Colombia, 400 miles away.

The minister, addressing a luncheon of the Jamaica Imperial Association and the Chamber of Commerce at which the Canadians were guests said Saturday many "interesting" talks had been held with deputations representing various interests on this island. He believed the visit, combining business and goodwill, would have happy results.

Sir Arthur Farquharson, President of the Imperial Association, formally welcomed the delegation. He said there had been little hope of reciprocal trade between the two countries years ago, but the expansion of Canada's population and development of her resources had opened Jamaica's eyes to the great possibilities of the Dominion.

Sir Arthur complimented Canada on her war effort, which he termed "magnificent." The Dominion was envied by Jamaica in this respect, he said.

Foxboro

Foxboro — The program of the W. M. S. meeting for December was in charge of the Mission Band under the leadership of Mrs. Harold Stewart and Mrs. Harry Kilpatrick.

After singing a hymn five Mission Band members gave scripture texts containing the Christmas story, Mrs. J. G. Sills led in prayer and a duet was given by Bernice McCaughan and Betty Elder. A piano solo by Ann Marie McCullough and the Mission Band members sang a Christmas hymn. Dorothy Reid gave a reading "Pilgrim's Journey" and the offering was taken and dedicated by Phyllis Dafoe. "Hark the Herald Angels Sing" was heartily sugn and this interesting program closed by the Mizpah Benediction.

Red Cross Society Hears Reports of Work of Past Month

At the regular executive meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society held on December 5, in the Y.M.C.A. it was noted with gratitude that the recent Kiwanis Salvage collection had netted the Red Cross Society $77.13, which is fifty percent of the total proceeds of the undertaking.

Mrs. Lazier reported work done for the month as follows:

Report—Women's War Work Committee, Belleville branch.

Mr. President, Members of the Executive:

In the report of November 1940, your attention is drawn to the fact that our work has been directed to clothing and knitted goods for the comfort of those English people who have suffered from the bombing of the enemy. Consequently while in numbers, the articles sent from this branch are not as great, it must be remembered that the manufacture of all kinds of clothing and knitted articles take more material and more time than the making of hospital supplies and smaller knitted comforts. Our original quota of over 1900 garments is almost finished. There are still 50 14 years old coats, and 60 women's capes to be made and we beg the assistance of all the groups and any other sewers for the next month, regardless of Christmas festivities.

We have sent to headquarters 594 articles of clothing and knitted garments, 376 knitted comforts for all services, 126 articles for hospitals.

The making of leather jerkins for trawler's seamen continues and 18 of these have been shipped. To the R.C.A.F. Hospital, Trenton Station, this branch contributed 55 yards factory cotton for T bdgs., 40 yards heavy cotton for surgeon's gowns, 60 yards Curity Cheesecloth for dressings, these to be made by the Hospital Women's Auxiliary at the Station.

Respectfully submitted,
Florence M. Lazier,
Convener.

THAT LONG LOOK is an integral part of the present silhouette. It is achieved by a long shirred midriff section in a frock of violet silk jersey made with deep square neck, short puffed sleeves and an accordion-pleated skirt.

ALREADY ARRIVED are delightful little prints for colorful undercoat wear. A nice little afternoon frock is done in silk crepe in a small red, gray and white butterfly design. The peplumed apron front has self ruffles.

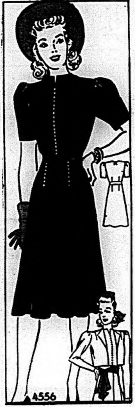
TREAT YOURSELF to one dramatic hat for occasions when you want to impress or make a dramatic entry. Such a model is a bonnet type of black sueded felt, the brim flung upward and coming to a point at the top in almost triangular shape. Against the expanse of brim is posed a "flight" of tiny pink feather birds. Sheer black mesh veil ties under the chin.

WHY NOT white for town dresses in winter? Not summer white, but a deep cream off-white. Lovely with brown furs. This rich off-white is used for a daytime frock in rabbit's hair and wool that fastens down the front with simulated shell and amber buttons.

A Versatile Bolero-Ensemble



"How CAN you afford so many smart costumes?" people will remark each time you wear Pattern 4556. For a change of accessories on this clever Anne Adams mode will give you the effect of several outfits. The frock itself makes a perfect accessory background with its high-cut neckline and simple, well-cut lines. Use a tailored belt for everyday wear; a soft, bright sash for dress-up. The button trim is unusual, and extra style is given the front skirt by two becoming panels. Now, for a complete ensemble look and for welcome under-coat warmth, stitch up the well-cut bolero that, like the dress, may have long or short sleeves. Send for this pattern without delay!

Pattern 4556 is available in misses' and women's sies 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16, dress, takes 2 3-4 yards 39 inch fabric and sash, 2 3-4 yards ribbon.

Send TWENTY CENTS (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

TALL GIRLS

Over a period of some weeks in these columns, I have discussed various phases of the subject of stature and how to improve it. In my approach to the subject, I adopted the attitude that virtually everybody wants to be tall. Letters I have received show me I was wrong. Apparently many tall girls, or at least some of them, wish they were petit, rather than statuesque.

One letter came from a young girl of 19 who is six feet tall, which fact she says is the ordeal of her life. She is not only taller than her girl friends, but taller than most of the boys she knows. Of course, this makes her feel very conspicuous, and she thinks that boys shorter than she, won't ask her to go out because they don't like to be seen out with a girl who towers over them.

A mother wrote me that her daughter, who is a shade over six feet, has developed very bad posture trying to mask her height. Her shoulders are rounded, her head thrust forward, and she too is shy of boys of average height.

I certainly don't think six feet, or a few inches over, for that matter, is too tall for a girl to be and I am sure I speak for many men. Artists declare that shortness is the commonest defect in women's figures. In drawing them, as you will note on the covers and illustrations in the magazines, they nearly always elongate them and give them much longer legs than the average. Tall models are chosen to display clothes usually because the tall woman looks better in her clothes than the short ones. Have you noticed that high heels never go out of fashion? That's because they add a couple of inches to the girl's height and make her look more graceful. One New York show producer won't have a girl in his employ who is under six feet. The reason, of course, is that he has found persons like to see tall girls.

These are the things I like to tell girls who worry about their height. A great many of them need to be told to stop scrunching down. God gave them stature, and they should use it to the best advantage.

One girl who came from near my home town was about six feet, and very conscious of it. Every time I saw her, I told her to straighten her shoulders up and walk right. The advice didn't have much effect until at twenty, she went down to the city and got a job there. There she became convinced that her height was really an asset. She went to a dancing school, and learned proper carriage — the right way to walk. When she came home for a visit after a year or so, she was the most gorgeous-looking young woman the town had ever seen. All the tall girls straightened up in emulation.

The best effect was that her whole mental attitude had changed too. Standing up straight, and looking the world in the eye instead of worrying because she was conspicuous, had given her a new outlook. She came home to tell the folks of the wonderful man she was going to marry. I'm pretty sure that if she hadn't perked up and taken hold of herself, she never would have got such a desirable husband.

The point is that if you have an overly-tall child, you can do a great deal to condition them mentally so that this stature becomes an asset to them.

A Flaring Temper is A Handicap

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Now and then when I conduct forums with youths, some boy or girl will ask, seriously: "How may I control my temper?"

Always then I first compliment the questioner on realizing that an uncontrolled temper is costly. By it one may lose friends. On [illegible] account many a youth and adult denies himself success at school or at work. Many a job is lost in a temper.

Some years ago a high school lad came to me about his personal problems. He was having trouble at school. Upon investigation I found that he had ability to do school work well and possessed many valuable traits. But he would lose his temper.

The lad explained some of the situations under which his temper was aroused. He did seem to have something on his side and apparently was misunderstood, to some degree at least. Nevertheless, I tried to show him, and seemed to have some success, that in any such trying situation it was always foolish to lose one's temper.

Be Wise

Nearly every one of us has faced experiences when we were sure we were unjustly treated by a "boss." But when wise we have also learned to hold our tongues. We must learn "to take it on the chin." Let us always count the cost first, and not let our passion get the better of us. Hundreds of young people at work who read this column know very well what I am talking about.

Many a child or whole family must endure grave hardships because the father-breadwinner, in a fit of temper, lost his job. A certain young father of two little children who drove a milk wagon, desired one day to see a baseball game. He drove his wagon outside a drug store, telephoned his boss but was denied permission to go that day. In violent rage he rammed the receiver into the hook, left the horse and wagon standing there and went to the game. It was a long time before he found another job.

Lack of Control

Some months earlier a certain mechanic I knew, who with his two sons and daughter had held good jobs for years, in a fit of rage at his boss one day, threw down his tools, went home and made his children go along with him. During the several years since then not one of the four has found regular employment nearly so profitable as his former job.

We parents need first to control our own temper, then [illegible] up our children to control theirs, too.

You are wondering about my answer to the enquiring youth wishing to control his temper. Here it is, in substance: "Resolve while you are not at all angry to manage yourself and hold your hands and tongue next time you are upset. When you see a vexing situation rising keep saying to yourself, "I must watch myself.' After the trying time is past, take stock. If you find you have made even a little improvement, be happy. Then keep striving in this direction and you will enjoy gradual improvement."

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, December 10
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

JUDGING by the prevailing lunar aspects this day may prove that the wisest course to pursue is "on your own," since any sort of cooperation or teamwork seems to be under adverse and unpromising planetary influence. All sorts of group action, political, fraternal or social had best be deferred, and even those in places of influence and authority may be difficult to convince of merit.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year in which their own efficiency, force of character, determination and independence may be factors for success rather than the trusting to others for support or cooperation. There may be discouragement from political, organization, fraternal or any sort of group affiliation.

A child born on this day although having much deepseated ability and hidden sources of inspiration and effort, yet may be thwarted by want of endorsement or approbation from superiors, elders or influential groups. It should be trained to work alone on its individual resources.

DETROIT SPLITS

Canadiens Defeat Red Wings But Detroit Takes Rangers in New York

By JACK MITCHELL

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

One quarter of the National Hockey League schedule has slipped by, leaving as its outstanding development the brilliant performance of Toronto Maple Leafs to dispute the freely-given pre-season predictions of a balanced race.

With 12 of their 48 games played, the Leafs have won 10 of them and lost only two. They have beaten every team in the league while being beaten by New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks and at their present rate would finish with 40 victories—10 more than Boston Bruins won with last season.

The prophets who foresaw the balanced campaign can point to the lower standings brackets for support, however, Although Detroit has opened up a clear margin in second place, the next five clubs are fairly well grouped, with only five points separating the third-place Black Hawks from the cellar-dwelling New York Americans.

Toronto continued its phenomenal pace with a 3-2 victory over Boston Bruins during the week-end but the other results served to tighten the race a little.

Detroit broke even in two games, losing to the sixth-place Canadiens in Montreal Saturday, but rebounding to defeat the Rangers 3-1 in New York last night. Boston failed to bounce after their defeat in Toronto Saturday and followed it by a 3-2 loss in overtime to the Black Hawks in Chicago.

Goldup Scores Winner

At Toronto, the Leafs were saved from overtime when Hank Goldup scored with only 69 seconds remaining and the count tied at 2-2 in their game with Boston. Leading goal scorer in the N.H.L., Goldup counted his eighth tally of the season by taking a pass from Pete Langelle and skating through the entire Boston team to beat Goalie Frankie Brimsek.

The game was a see-saw battle throughout, with the Bruins jumping into a 2-1 lead after Toronto had scored a first-period goal and Gordie Drillon getting the tying counter midway through the final period on passes from Syl Apps and Bingo Kampman. Sweeney Schriner opened the scoring for Toronto, while Bobby Bauer and Jack Shewchuk scored for Boston in the second period.

Detroit kept four points behind the Leafs with one more game played when they defeated the Rangers before 13,061 fans in New York. Alex Motter, veteran defenceman, scored two goals for the Red Wings, his first breaking a 1-1 tie and the second putting the game on ice late in the last period.

Red Wings Get Split

The victory gave the Red Wings a split in two week-end games after they had lost in Montreal when the Canadiens staged a brilliant uphill battle before 6,023 fans. Detroit jumped into a 2-0 lead within six minutes of the opening whistle but Canadiens came back to score the winning tally late in the final period.

A crowd of 16,412 at Chicago saw 10 minutes overtime when Des Smith scored a third-period goal for Boston that tied the score at 2-2. The Black Hawks regained the victory, however, with Jack Chad and Joe Cooper setting up Cully Dahlstrom for a goal after seven minutes of extra play.

Harmon Voted Outstanding Male Athlete of 1940

By GAYLE TALBOT,
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 9—(AP)—Football's mounting popularity in the United States is reflected in the overwhelming margin by which Tommy Harmon, Michigan's great back, has been voted the outstanding male athlete of 1940 by sports experts participating in the annual Associated Press poll.

Thirty of the 71 experts who sent in their ballots named Harmon as their No. 1 choice for his personal exploits in leading his team to a once-defeated season and for breaking Red Grange's record for scoring over a three-year period.

Hank Greenberg, Detroit's slugging outfielder, ran a weak second with 11 first-place votes and a total of 57 points to Harmon's 141. Points are counted on a basis of three for a first choice two for second choice and one for third.

Bucky Walters Cincinnati pitcher placed third with 36 points, including six firsts, while Bobby Feller, Cleveland fireballer, gained fourth with 31 points and seven firsts. In all, 38 sports figures got their names in the balloting, and 15 of them had at least one admirer who thought they were tops.

This is the second straight year that a football hero has grabbed the brass ring. Last year it was Nile Kinnick of Iowa, but he had a close brush with Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees, winning by a bare eight points.

Don Budge, who won out both in 1937 and 1938 when he was the toast of tennis, came in for one third-place vote in this election.

Heavyweight champion Joe Louis who was the third choice a year ago, dropped to seventh this time. He didn't receive a single No. 1 vote, whereas Jimmy Wilson, Cincinnati's veteran catcher and world series hero, got four.

N.H.L. Stars

Murph Chamberlain, Canadiens, who scored two goals in a battling display that paced the Canadiens to a 3-2 victory over Detroit Saturday night.

Alex Motter, Detroit, whose pair of tallies helped the Red Wings rebound to a 3-1 triumph over New York Rangers last night after losing in Montreal.

Hank Goldup, Toronto, whose last-moment counter gave the Maple Leafs victory over Boston Bruins in Toronto Saturday night.

Cully Dahlstrom, Chicago, who scored his second goal of the game in overtime as the black Hawks defeated the Bruins 3-2 last night.

Woody Dumart, Boston, who picked up a goal and an assist although the Bruins lost both their week-end games in Toronto and Chicago.

BARONS' MARGIN DOWN TO A POINT IN WEST SECTION

Springfield in Other Section of A.H.L. Increase Lead During Weekend

GARNER THREE POINTS

Cleveland Barons had their margin at the top of the American Hockey League's Western Section narrowed to one point today while the other early pace-setter, Springfield Indians, continued to widen their lead in the Eastern Division.

The Barons gained only one point in two weekend games to remain in front of the Pittsburgh Hornets, a single point behind in second place. Springfield won one and tied the other of their two games, however, to climb six points in front of the second-place New Haven Eagles in their section.

In Sunday night's games, Springfield turned in a 3-0 shutout victory over Indianapolis Capitols; Providence Reds defeated Philadelphia Ramblers, 2-1; Hershey Bears beat Buffalo Bisons, 7-1, and New Haven defeated Cleveland, 3-1.

Springfield's shutout victory gave them three of a possible four points in the weekend battles as they played a 2-2 tie with Cleveland Saturday night. Other Saturday matches saw Providence beat Philadelphia, 4-3; Hershey defeated Indiapapolis, and Pittsburgh come through with a 5-1 triumph over Buffalo.

Playing at Indianapolis, Eddie Shore's Indians handed the Capitols their fifth straight league defeat last night. Glen Brydson scored the opening goal for Springfield early in the second period, with Fred Hunt adding another in the same period and assisting Fred Thurier make it 3-0 in the final frame.

Providence Out of Cellar

Providence moved out of the Eastern Division's cellar with a 2-1 victory over Philadelphia at home—their second win over the Ramblers in two nights. A goal by George Johnston in the second period and another by Crossley Sherwood early in the third gave the Reds their margin over the Ramblers, who averted a shutout when Lude Wareing tallied in the second frame.

At Buffalo menawhile Hershey Bears amassed a 5-0 lead before the Bisons were able to score and went on to outscore Buffalo 2-1 in the final period. Howie Mackie bagged a brace of tallies for the Bears with the others going to Pat McCreavy, Gordie Bruce, Bobby Kirk, Gordie Pettinger, and Harry Frost. In the final period, Bob Gracie bagged Buffalo's only tally.

In a rugged tilt at New Haven, the Eagles defeated the league-leading Cleveland Cleveland Barons of the Western Section with a pair of goals in the final period. Polly Drouin had opened the scoring for New Haven in the first frame but Les Cunningham tied it up in the second. Both Jack Cain and Tony Graboski tallied in the final period to give the Eagles the victory.

A half-dozen battles on the ice, particularly in the second period, sent players of the two teams to the penalty boxes for a total of more than 60 minutes. Two 10-minute misconduct penalties also were called.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Syd Howe of Detroit Red Wings picked up a goal in two Detroit games the week-end to move into second place alone in the National Hockey League's Big Seven, one point behind Bill Cowley of Boston, who failed to break into the scoring in two Bruin matches. The third-place Bryan Hextall and the fourth-place Phil Watson, both of New York Rangers, also were held pointless. Three Toronto players—Gordie Drillon, Syl Apps and Hank Goldup— are tied with Roy Conacher of Boston for the next berths, each earning one point during the week-end.

OTTAWA RIDERS DEFEAT BEACHES TO CAPTURE TITLE

Score 12-5 Victory in Ottawa and 20-7 Count on the Two-Game Round

TOO MUCH POWER

Rough Riders Displayed a Fine Offensive With Powerful Krieker

(By Sydney Gruson)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 9. — (CP)—Give Ottawa Rough Riders an opportunity and they'll capitalize on it so quickly there's hardly any pain to the victims.

Back this asset with the best kicker in the game, Sammy Sward, and a lineup bursting with power from end to end and it adds up to a description of the new Canadian Rugby Union champions, who won the title in Lansdowne Park Saturday by beating Toronto Balmy Beach 12-5 and 20-7 on the two-game round.

Riders operate with the precision and sureness of a surgeon. They got one real opportunity for a major score and they smashed it over in one play—a skirt around left end by Tommy Daley for a converted touchdown that sealed hopes Beaches held high of tying the round.

Touchdown Clinches Victory

Riders' Touchdown clinches the victory. It gave them a 16-7 lead on the round, 8-5 on the game, and the tremendous booting of Sward who produced three more singles was needed only to throttle Balmy's exciting, but ineffective, last-quarter offensive without calling on the Ottawa shock troops.

Bob Porter's fumble on his two-yard line led to Ottawa's score but Beaches, too, had received a similar break half-way through the first period to push over their major. Murray Griffin fumbled at his 30 and Gord Shields recovered for Balmy. Porter passed for 12 yards to Don Crowe, a roughing penalty gave Beaches nine more, Frank Seymour hit for six and Porter went through the middle and over the line.

Didn't Bother Riders

The suddenness of this attack, and the brilliant manner in which it was executed on the snow-covered gridiron, left 4,000 fans excited at the thought of an upset, but it didn't bother Riders a bit. From Coach Ross Trimble down they had been certain they could take Balmy, and they went to work after the reverse to justify their confidence.

In their dressing room after the game, Riders were happy but quiet, not at all the shouting, cheering gang one expected to find.

"We've been hearing a lot about what Beaches would do if they got a dry field", Trimble said after it was all over. "Well, I wish we had got it for them. We'd have run away from them".

For Dave Sprague, the big Rider lineman and plunging star, it was probably the last game of a long and brilliant career. Sprague said he was through, definitely, and Bunny Wadsworth added: "I've retired every year and I might as well this time".

Ab Box, the Beach Club's president, summed it up for the Ontario Union champions. "They were a little too good and a little too heavy for us. But we gave them a good fight and we certainly were not disgraced. That Sward—he played a great game".

Tommy Spiegel, Uniontown, Pa., lightweight, RIGHT, will meet Dave Castilloux, Canadian lightweight champ, LEFT, in a ten-round non-title bout in Toronto tonight. Crippled in one leg by infantile paralysis, Spiegel, although fighting under a great handicap, has an imposing ring record. In four years of fighting he has lost only ten bouts in seventy-five. He has earned two victories over Sammy Angott, recognized by the N.B.A. as lightweight champion.

After an absence of 14 years the Grey Cup, emblematic of the Canadian Rugby Football Association championship, returned to Ottawa on Saturday when the Capital City "Rough Riders" rallied in the last half to beat the Toronto Balmy Beach squad 12 to 5. The Bammies threw a scare into their heavier Ottawa opponents and were leading 5-1 at the halfway mark. However, the big burly Ottawa machine steam-rollered over the lighter Beaches to win on a field that was more suitable for a ski meet or snow-shoe race.

In turning back Balmy Beach the Rough Riders not only won the Eastern Canadian but C.R.U. championship, as the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, conquerors of Ottawa in 1939, relinquished their right to defend the Grey Cup and the Dominion championship by playing rules other than those laid down by the C.R.U. In 1926 Ottawa beat Balmy Beach for the Eastern title and went on to win the C.R.U. championship. This year's championship would appear to be a rather hollow victory, as the Blue Bombers will always consider themselves the uncrowned titleholders.

Regarding that little hockey argument the boys had at the Vets on Saturday night—"The Sudbury "Tigers" eliminated Port Colborne and went on to win the Allan Cup in 1937."

The Belleville Juniors signed Francis McCaw to a junior O.H.A. certificate over the week-end. McCaw, who tended goal for the Barry's Bay seniors last year, is but 17 years of age and is now residing in Belleville where he is attending the Ontario Business College.

Commenting upon the hockey set-up in group No 1 of the Senior "B" O.H.A. grouping, Peterboro' Sport Columnist Fred Craig says—

"That senior section should prove a real argument. The Kingston Hockey Club can be counted upon to turn up with a strong club. Belleville with Hastie, Gow and Donihue added to the squad, will be much more formidable than last season. They have new backing this winter and there will probably be a different spirit in the outfit than there has been for several seasons. Little news has come out from Trenton but Tommy Laurence is again at the head of things at the Airport and that means that the Flyers will probably trot out a smooth-working, well-balanced and fighting squad that will provide plenty of opposition for all and sundry. As for Whitby they won the intermediate B honors last season and there is no doubt that they will not find the step up to Senior B too big. They will be able to use Oshawa players who do not make the Senior A grade and that means they will have a lot of material.

Do you remember when Winnipeg Blue Bombers took advantage of a last-minute fumble to break a tie and gain an 8-7 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders for the Canadian Football Championship a year ago today.

Toe Blake, one of the great left wings of the National Hockey League, has scored a goal in the Canadiens' first game in the last three years. He did not fail this year, scoring the only goal for his team against Boston on the opening night in Montreal. That goal meant a draw for the Canadiens.

Under normal conditions the local senior puck squads will practice at the Hume Arena tomorrow night. The Reliance sextette need a good workout before meeting the Vimy Signals on Wednesday, while the Air Force management has to construct a whole new team. Squadron Leader Carling-Kelly is back at the Airport and will manage the "Flyers" this winter. A call for the registration of hockey players at the R.C.A.F. recently resulted in over 40 indicating their intentions of trying out with the Airmen's senior squad.

Alex Simpson, veteran playing-coach of the Corby A.C. softball nine, bid fond adieu to his friends and diamond contemporaries over the week-end Alex has been moved by his employers, the Imperial Oil Company, to Pembroke, where he will take over the duties of his company's depot there. Alex takes the good wishes of many friends he has made in Belleville, all of whom wish him success in his new endeavours in the business world.

It's getting to be a habit with "Hankus Pankus" Goldup. Every Saturday night Kingston's gift to the N.H.L. puts on a little show of his own. A week ago he scored four goals, while on Saturday night it was Goldup's last-minute goal that gave the Maple Leafs a belated 3-2 win over the Boston Bruins. Actually it was a drastic week-end for Dit Clapper and his Bruins, as they lost again last night in Chicago by the same score. Jack Adams' Red Wings split two games winning over the Rangers and losing to Les Canadiens.

Sport slants—Tonight is registration night for the juvenile puck loop . . . Earl Cook, former Lemonville, Ont., diamond star, is slated to training with the Detroit Tigers next spring—that is if the military draft "south of the border" does not catch up with him beforehand . . . Bowmanville High School won their senior C.O.S.S.A. rugby football championship winning 11 to 3 over Port Colborne on Saturday . . . Yes, it was a foregone conclusion—the winners of the eastern section were virtually senior Interscholastic champs, or "chumps" as the case turned out to be here . . . The Chicago Bears won the "world series" of pro football by beating the Washington Redskins 73 to 0, the worst beating ever registered in pro football finals . . . Just two weeks ago the Redskins had scalped the Bears 7-3, so you never can tell . . . C. F. Adams, owner of the Boston Bees, will sell his club to A. H. Powell, New Haven coal dealer, today . . .

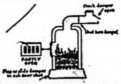
HEATING HINTS by James Stewart

ALTHOUGH banking the fire is a very simple operation, many people have trouble with it. Let me explain the method that I have found the most satisfactory.

First (and only if it is necessary to make room for fresh coal), gently shake the fire until you see the first red glow in the ashpit. Then with a shovel or hoe pull the live coals toward the front of the furnace, so that the fire bed slopes downward towards the back. Shovel the fresh coal carefully into the hollow thus formed. And, as in refueling, be sure to leave an exposed spot of live coals right in front of the fire door. This "hot spot" will act as a pilot light to ignite the gases given off by the fresh coal, preventing them from escaping into the house.



When banking the fire for the night, the Ashpit Damper should be closed and the Check Damper open. The Turn Damper should be left as nearly closed as possible. And remember, it should never be necessary to leave the fire door open when the fire is banked. If you follow this procedure, your fire will stay in for the night and will deliver ample heat when you open the drafts in the morning.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Hired Wife"

Fast moving comedy of the type which depends on situations rather than gags for laughs is the keynote of Universal's "Hired Wife," one of the year's most hilarious pictures, which opened Sunday midnight at the Capitol Theatre.

Co-starring Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne and Virginia Bruce, "Hired Wife" is a story of a girl whose heart is broken when she marries the man she loves for business rather than romantic reasons.

Miss Russell, who gives the outstanding performance of her entire career, plays the title role. She is Aherne's secretary, and also is very much in love with him. Aherne, at the same time, is enamored over Miss Bruce, a beautiful model. For business reasons he is forced to get married in a hurry. Because of Rosalind's trickery, he can't reach Virginia and has to marry the secretary.

Fun Begins

Then the fun starts. As the intrigue grows more intense, the comedy becomes funnier.

All three stars are perfectly cast and turn in superb performances, making their characters appear real rather than mere schadows prancing across the screen. And they are given some excellent support by Robert Benchley and John Carroll. Funny-man Benchley, believe it or not, is an attorney. And what an attorney! Carroll is a Latin Romeo who tries to help Rosalind by attempting to woo Virginia away from Brian. How he can woo! As a certain comedian might say, woo-woo!

Credit to Director

Much of the credit for the fast pace maintained throughout the picture must be given producer-director William Seiter. In his first assignment since directing Deanna Durbin in "It's A Date," he has come through with a real winner.

George Beck's highly diverting original story has been adroitly adapted into the screenplay by Richard Connell and Gladys Lehman. The swift action never sags and each reel is punctuated with pungent dialogue lines which registered with hilarious emphasis.

The added select short subjects features "Teeming Treasures" in natural colours showing the great Canadian fishing industry from coast to coast.

TEN LOSE LIVES IN ONTARIO OVER THE WEEKEND

Variety of Accidents Responsible for High Toll of Fatalities

3 AIRMEN MISSING

(By The Canadian Press)

Ten persons were killed and three missing, believed dead, in a variety of accidents in Ontario during the week-end.

Three died in a level crossing accident, three drowned, one was killed in an airplane crash, a baby strangled in his crib, a child was killed in an automobile collision and a farmer died from rifle wounds believed accidentally self-inflicted.

The three-man crew of a Fairey Battle bombing plane was believed dead after the bomber disappeared during a training flight Sunday over Lake Erie. An extensive search revealed no trace of the missing bomber, which was attached to the No. 4 Bombing and Gunnery School near Fingal, Ont.

All members of a West Zorra Township family were killed Saturday when a Canadian Pacific Railway train struck an automobile at a level crossing near Thamesford. The three—Mr. and Mrs. Harvey W. Tackaberry and their only child Esther, 18, were killed instantly and their automobile carried more than 400 yards along the track after the impact.

Two British airmen drowned in Lake Huron near Port Albert, Saturday, one while trying to save his friend. They were Second Class Aircraftmen Bert Aiden George of Cheltenham, Eng., and John Spencer Debenham of Farnham, Surrey, Eng. Both were stationed at the British Commonwealth Air Navigation School at Port Albert.

Brave Effort Futile

Debenham was said to have fallen through the honey-combed ice along the shores of Lake Huron while trying to take a picture of ice formations. George tried to rescue his friend but both were swept under the ice by an undertow. The bodies had not been recovered by Sunday night.

George Fox of Beachville, was the other drowning victim. He fell through Thames River ice Saturday while attending his trap line.

Lac. Stuart Tresilan Ogilvy, 21, of Moose Jaw, Sask., died instantly Saturday when his R.C.A.F. training plane crashed in an open field near Schomberg, 20 miles north of Toronto. He was on an authorized solo training flight.

In Toronto early Saturday 11-months-old Donald J. Currie was found dead in his crib, believed to have strangled when he became entangled in his bed-clothes. His mother, Mrs. John Currie, discovered the death.

Three-year-old Louis Comartin of Stoney Point, died Sunday from an automobile crash Saturday near Windsor. Six adults were injured in the head-on collision, including the child's parents.

William A. Edwards, Wardsville district farmer, died from rifle wounds Saturday a short time after he was found near his barn by his son. He had intended to go hunting and was believed to have shot himself accidentally.

AT THE BELLE

"A Dispatch from Reuters"

The new film season at the Belle Theatre, which has gotten off to such a splendid start with pictures such as "Knute Rockne," "All American" and "City For Conquest" continues with the showing of "A Dispatch from Reuter's," starring Edward G. Robinson. The new Warner Bros. picture which is scheduled to open as the next feature attraction at the Belle Theatre.

Telling the thrilling life story of Julius Reuter, founder and originator of the first world - wide news gathering and news disseminating system, "A Dispatch from Reuter's" is one of the most important Hollywood offerings of the year. Warner Bros. have given it a lavish production befitting its magnitude of scope. Robinson, whose portrayal in "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," won him nation-wide acclaim, is cast as Reuter, and the roster of supporting players include such notables as Edna Best, Eddie Albert, Albert Basserman, Gene Lockhart, Otto Kruger, Nigel Bruce, Montagu Love and James Stephenson. William Dieterle, who directed "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," as well as such other film masterpieces as "Zola" and "Pasteur," directed "A Dispatch from Reuter's."

"Haunted Honeymoon," Gripping

The Thin Man! Sherlock Holmes! Nick Carter! Now adventure with a brand new detective, who roars out of retirement when his bride finds a dead man in the cellar of their honeymoon cottage! The detective is Robert Montgomery, the bride is Constance Cummings, and the picture "Haunted Honeymoon," the companion feature attraction and announced as 1940's lustiest love and laugh thriller.

Made in England as the first picture to be filmed there since the outbreak of war, "Haunted Honeymoon" follows upon such earlier M-G-M British-made successes as "A Yank at Oxford," "The Citadel" and "Goodbye Mr. Chips." Based on a best-seller novel by Dorothy L. Sayers, the picture gives versatile Robert Montgomery a role in striking departure from the gangster-nobleman of his last success, "The Earl of Chicago." As Lord Peter Wimsey of "Haunted Honeymoon," he doesn't use a gun, nor does he talk out of the corner of his mouth. Instead, he is a suave, sophisticated top - hat and tails man-about-town. But this slick society sleuth brings you a brand new kind of thriller in a brand new and exciting characterization.

The popular Belle News of the day will be exhibited on the same program.

LOST SUNRISE

by KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 4.

"You like the city, don't you, Dick?" Gwen asked, hearing her own voice like a stranger's voice.

"Oh, sure," Dick said. "But they keep us too busy to care much about where we are. Last year I was on night duty; I never slept through a night." He laughed cheerfully now.

"But you had time to sleep daytime?"

"Oh sure, if you can. Except when you're on obstetrics. Then you're on day and night."

"Thrilling?"

"Oh, yes. I'm on a new service Monday, and it's going to be the stiffest yet."

"And you'll be glad of it, won't you, Dick?" She spoke gently, with sympathy and understanding, and saw the immediate response in his eyes.

"Yep," he said. "It'll help me get over it. I'll be working hard, and maybe going somewhere else after I graduate—one of the fellows is going to Hawaii, and he said he thought he could get his uncle to ask for me there. Wilson's going to London."

"That sounds so exciting!" the girl said wistfully.

"What do you do, Gwen?" he asked suddenly.

"I've an office job. Keane and King, insurance."

"Like it?"

"Not very. But dad isn't working at all now, you know, and without Sheila we'll not have any too much, as it is. I'd want to work at something, anyway," said Gwen. "But of course you always hope it'll be what you like to do."

"And what would you like to do?' he asked, so seriously and with such concern that she laughed, and felt tears prick her eyes.

"I'd like to exhort," she said, after a moment.

"To what?" Dick asked, so puzzled that she laughed again.

"To make speeches. To be in some cause. There was a woman who came here talking for world peace—she gives her life to it. We had her here for dinner, and she couldn't talk of anything else."

"Well, it's something like that in a profession," he said.

"I suppose so. I mean to be absorbed, and excited about your work, and getting tired and discouraged all the time, and going about staying in cheap little hotels, and meeting commissions—I'd love that."

"You're a crusader. But the worst of it is," he said, "that most of the people you'd meet would be stuffed shirts. You'd be in earnest, all right but they wouldn't be! Now, a fellow and I went to a meeting the other night—"

"Hello, Dick, I've not seen you for thousands of years," Peter junior said, coming into the kitchen from the yard.

"Hello, Pete."

"Nope. Gwen's just been telling me about it." He seemed quite composed now, Gwen thought, and surprisingly at ease.

"I thought you and some of them were going to supper somewhere, Peter," she said, wondering if she showed anything.

"We were all too sunk. But if you and Dick want to go downtown—"

"Oh, heavens, I'm dead! And Dick has to make the six o'clock." It sounded brusquely, unsympathetic.

Peter glanced at the kitchen clock.

"I'll run you over to the train," he said. "Did you know we dug old Uncle Elmer out of the basement about four o'clock?" he asked his sister with a grin.

"The old boy was having a swell time among the drinkables. Tryrena went down there to put some bottles away or something and there he was. She gave a yell; she thought he was a tramp."

"He is a tramp," Gwen said laughing.

"Yes. He married dad's sister, my Aunt Gwendolyn, who died. He has a pension of about thirty-six dollars a month, and he works—sometimes. He's a hot sketch," Peter said lazily. "He thinks the only one of us who amounts to anything is Gwen."

"He's right. I have the highest respect for his judgment," Gwen said. "He gave me two darling old onyx-and-pearl bracelets that belonged to his mother.

"You wouldn't think he was so swell if you had to go along River Lane looking in all the saloons for him," Peter observed. "They had him at Agnew for a while," he told the guest. "He was absolutely coocoo. They discharged him as cured. But darned if the old man hasn't still got delusions of grandeur. He brought Gwen a lot of old papers one day, remember, Gwen? Deeds and documents, he said they were What became of them all?"

"Oh, they were all burned, I think. I don't know. Every little while he asks me if I've got them safe. Hadn't you boys better be moving It's a quarter to six."

"I'll bring the car round to the gate." Peter departed and Gwen walked down to the garden gate with Dick.

"I feel a hundred times better, Gwen, just talking to you and Pete," Dick said suddenly and awkwardly "I'm sorry if I worried you, on a day when you were all tired out anyway. Forget it!"

"I must be simple and friendly," thought Gwen. "Well, you helped me forget something that was worrying me," she said aloud. "And that means that after a while I can forget it completely."

"Thanks a lot," he said. He went around the front of the car and got in the front seat beside Pete, and they drove away. Gwen lingered on, watching the car out of sight, thinking what a strange power was Sheila's to win men to whom she had hardly spoken. Certainly there had never been any personal feelings between Dick and her; he knew her only as the gracious and beautiful young clerk in the library. Yet that had been enough to change his life, wreck his happiness, embitter his soul. And Sheila had never dreamed it!

Gwen presently roused herself, reflecting that probably her father would like something to eat, and her mother enjoy a tray of tea and toast. She worked away busily for an hour or two, as they discussed the events of the day tirelessly. And through it all Gwen moved like a person asleep.

"Dick Latimer came in, did he, Gwen?" Mrs. Washburton said.

"He was here an hour. I fed him. He'd skipped his lunch."

"Wouldn't you know that big clumsy boy would be late?"

"He's not so bad." She wouldn't say more than that. She wouldn't tell any one what he had told her of his feeling for Sheila. It didn't seem quite fair to him. "Peter took him to the train," she said.

Her father came into the dining-room and opened the evening paper. Gwen lingered on, not very anxious to return to the room that was so insistently stressing the absence of Sheila.

"Oh, and Tryrena found the fleur-de-lis napkins," she reminded her mother, as she went to one of the deep pantry drawers, still left partly open, and knelt down to close it. "They'd worked their way to the back of the drawer and fallen down into the lower one."

The lower drawer was still half full of papers. Gwen, sitting back on her heels, began to sort and arrange them. "Uncle Elmer's stuff," she said, coming upon a sheaf of papers enclosed in a set of sodden, limp, old brown paper envelopes. "'Deeds and documents!' 'Last will and testament.' I didn't know this was in here. I suppose he's leaving someone his alarm clock and his other pair of socks. 'To my brother, Peter Washburton of this town, I bequeath . . .'"

Gwen was silent now, reading. Uncle Elmer had always been ridiculous, but somehow a last will and testament never was quite absurd. She must have known, at one time or another, that this document was in existence, but it had probably seemed merely a joke to her younger years. Just crackbrained Uncle Elmer, who was always embarrassing and shaming his relatives with his intemperance and his harmless delusions of importance. Suddenly she became interested in the papers in her hands.

"Dad, here's a regular last will and testament, witnessed and everything."

"Elmer's?" asked her father, with a little indulgent laugh.

"Well, anyhow, it leaves everything of which he dies possessed to Gwendolyn Ashe Washburton," Gwen said. "This especially to include his interest in the Hamilton Wall property hereinafter described and designated . . ."

Her voice died away. Nobody was listening. She continued to read to herself.

"Dad, did you ever hear of "Wallbestos?" she asked suddenly.

"Yes, I did," her father answered, looking vague, and frowning in an effort of memory. "Elmer used to talk to me about it quite a lot, years ago; it was some invention of his father's, old Ham Wall. He used to think it ought to be kept a secret, and I don't know that he ever did anything about it. But someone told me—maybe he did—that it was protected by a government copyright or patent or something. Why, is there a lot about it there?"

"Papers, dozens of them. And the designs of a hopper or mill called 'The Wallbestos Refiner'. What did it do? Was it a machine?"

"It was a scheme to get more asbestos or different asbestos out of mines, I believe. I never quite got it through my head what old Ham Wall did claim of it."

"Well, I was a very busy man at that time. I was managing the dairy interests for the whole county, and I never had time for old Ham's pipe dreams. He was always going to make a fortune out of something, and always, like Elmer, borrowing two dollars. I swan, Fanny," Peter Washburton said mildly, "I do wish that felled would sometimes borrow either more or less than two dollars. No, sir, it's two dollars a day, and it's been two dollars for years and—"

"Dad, would it be any use to have Link look at these papers?"

"No, it wouldn't," Peter Washburton said decisively. "Just as soon as you got someone interested, and the whole thing started, and your patent rights renewed — because I suppose those have run out—Elmer Wall would get some crackbrained notion that he wanted to improve the machine, or he wouldn't take five thousand for it, he'd stick out for fifteen, or he'd imagine someone was cheating him and get two of three lawyers as looney as he is on the case and you'd just be wasting your time!"

This was quite a speech for her quiet father, and Gwen looked up, impressed.

"I've watched Elmer all his life, and I've had my run-ins with the law and the patent people, too," the man said, "and my advice to you is to wait until Elmer Wall does—"

Peter junior came in with rather an odd expression on his young face. He sat down next to his mother and took her hand. "Now don't get excited and blow up, mom," he said. "Uncle Elmer got mixed up with a truck about an hour ago, and died on the way to the hospital.

"Well, well, well," the elder Peter said heavily, shaking his head. The women exchanged glances; looking slowly from face to face.

"Uncle Elmer!" Gwen said in an awed whisper. Death surely couldn't come as quickly and simply as that!

"Well, I'm an heiress, Pete," she said whimsically to her brother, when her mother had extracted from him every detail of the recent catastrophe nad had hurried around the corner to tell Aunt Sis all about it. "Here is Uncle Elmer's last will leaving everyhing to me."

"Gosh, did the old fellow really leave a will?"

"Isn't it funny, Pete, we were just talking about it, and dad said he advised me to wait until Uncle Elmer was dead. Yes, it's all willed to me. Look, there's a diagram of some sort of washer or mill or whatever it is! Look, the Wallbestos,' and here, look, here's a letter I was just reading from a firm in some place called North Valley, in Dakota, offering him thirty-five hundred for the patent rights. I wonder what he did with the thirty-five hundred, dad?"

French Airplanes Drop Bombs on Siamese Town of Lakhon

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Dec. 9 (AP)—French airplanes were reported today to have dropped 22 bombs on the Thai (Siamese) town of Lakhon early today in "retaliation" for an alleged bombing of the Indo-China border town of Vientiane by Thai planes yesterday.

French authorities announced officially that hostilities in the border dispute had flared to serious proportions and involved considerable bombing.

The official attitude here was described as changing from a passive attitude to active retaliation against alleged Thai attacks.

A three-hour machine-gun duel was reported along the Mekong River near Vientiane yesterday but there were no casualties. Thai planes were said to have dropped 10 bombs on the city.

Meanwhile officials here denied having received any new Japanese demands upon Indo-China which Chinese sources said had been made last week. The Chinese reports said the Japanese demanded a place in all government departments and a voice for the Japanese army in the Indo-China police.

U. S. DEFENCE

Advocate 24-hour Schedule

A number of high administration officials, likewise, are advocating 24-hour days and six-day weeks in all industrial plants concentrating on defence orders as urgently required since "material aid must be given Britain quickly to be effective".

Although the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce has reported that the American Aviation industry will have doubled its productive floor space by January 1, and will double it again by next June under present plans, one high administration official declared that was still not sufficient.

"Planes are not coming off the production benches fast enough to meet the demand", he declared. "In addition to the army and navy requirements Great Britain has placed orders here for 12,000 planes, urgently needed to defend England and to achieve air supremacy in Egypt and elsewhere along the Empire's lifeline.

"China, still battling bravely against tremendous odds, especially in the air, wants planes

"And now comes Greece with a request for planes to aid her in fighting off invasion by Italy, six times as big.

"Where will the planes come from if we don't step on it and produce them faster?"

Another ranking administration official emphasized the need to speed up the building of both war and cargo ships especially cargo vessels for Britain which is losing ship after ship in German submarine and sea-raider attacks.

The slogan of the "speed up" drive, officials said, was Secretary Knox's warning: "It's later than you think".

GIVEN 20 YEARS FOR DEATH

Watkins Glen, N.Y., Dec. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Robert H. Dryburgh, 23 pleaded guilty today to a charge of second degree murder in the death of her three-year-old son, Robert Jr., and was sentenced to from 20 years to life imprisonment.

The child was found dead in bed and subsequent examination revealed traces of poison in the child's body and on its nursing bottle.

Herbert Hall, age 60 years, residence R.R. 1, Belleville, died in the Belleville General Hospital, early this Monday afternoon, after a brief illness.

ITALIAN NAVY

In the midst of the series of changes—which placed two army leaders, Marshal Pietro Badoglio and General Cesare Maria De Vecchi Count Di Val Cismon, and a naval leader on the retired list in three days, all of their "own request"—Il Duce lost two of his generals in an airplane crash in Northern Italy Saturday.

One was Gen. Aldo Pellegrini, 52, his chief of Civil Aviation, the other Gen. Pietro Pintor, 60, head of the Armistice Commission dealing with France.

Changes in the political ranks of Mussolini's Fascist Government were expected in some circles to be in the offing to complete the current replacements of keymen.

Foreign quarters expressed belief that the overhauling of the Italian war machine was due as much to political as to military necessity.

Air Command Remains Intact

With maintenance of the people's morale as essential as that of the fighting forces in times which are difficult militarily, economically and politically, Il Duce moved on three successive days do supplant his commanders with trusted lieutenants expected to carry out his orders vigorously.

Only the air command, headed by Gen. Francisco Pricolo, which has borne the brunt of the war in the Mediterranean, has remained intact.

What began with the announced resignation of Badoglio for his own reasons, presumably having to do with the unsatisfactory turn taken by the Greek campaign, quickly turned into a thorough shake-up, as Gen. Ettore Bastico replaced De Vecchi as commander of the Dodecanese Islands and Admiral Cavagnari stepped down.

(British naval circles expressed belief that Jachino's appointment as commander of the sea fleet might foreshadow a greater spirit of offence on Fascist naval forces and said that Cavagnari might have been made the scapegoat for Britain's Armistice day raid on the Taranto naval base.

(Military circles in London, on the other hand, said they felt the army and navy shake-ups in Italy constituted "another sign" that Mussolini was on the toughest spot of his career. Sime officers asserted Il Duce was losing his grip and said they placed credence in reports of unrest and disorders in Italy.)

MANY NAZI BASES

A bulletin amplifying the communique said Bordeaux was "heavily attacked" by planes of the coastal command and the raids on Brest and Lorient were the second within 24 hours.

Distributed Stick of Bombs

"At Lorient," the News Service said, "sticks of bombs were distributed across docks and storehouses and one bomb burst threw up a shower of crimson sparks.

"A great blue flash was seen, too, after a salvo of bombs hit drydocks.

"Brest was lit up soon after the raid began by the flare of a burning dockside building. The roof fell in while the attack still was in progress and pilots overhead could see the flames reflected in the water."

Other bombs, the Air Ministry said, struck around the military port, the naval barracks and drydocks.

The night before, British bombers attacked Lorient, Antwerp, Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne, and pounded fiercely at Duesseldorf.

The biggest fire British fliers have seen during the war was started in Saturday night's bombing of Duesseldorf, described by a communique as having been as destructive as the all-night attack on the same city last Wednesday.

U. S. COASTGUARD

Towing "Drogue"

Wing Commander W. D. Van Vliet recently appointed officer commanding the school after serving with the R.C.A.F. overseas, said the plane took off shortly after 10 a.m. to tow a "drogue" or aerial gunnery target over a routine course. A second plane manned by air gunners followed the bomber for practice shooting.

Van Vliet said he personally had observed the course earlier and had assured himself that visibility was good before orders for the day were given.

The range took the two planes along the north shore of Lake Erie to a point at which they were to turn for a return run. The safety officer of the last observing post saw the bomber turn in towards shore and then disappear in a bank of clouds.

Following Routine Orders

The second plane followed routine orders and swung to the other side of the clouds and circled back on the course with the expectation that the bomber would appear from the cloud for the return run. The bomber was not seen again.

Van Vliet said the second plane made four complete runs of the course looking for the bomber and then returned to the school to report.

FO. Hood is one of a number of American pilots stationed at the school and had wide experience in commercial aviation before entering the R.C.A.F. The aircraftmen were drogue operators, trained to release the target so that trainee gunners in a pursuing plane could test their marksmanship.

It was estimated the bomber was flying at an altitude of 1,000 to 1,500 feet.

BRITISH CRUISER

(In Washington, however, the United States Navy Department said the crew of the Idarwald attempted to scuttle her and set her afire when the cruiser approached, but added that British tars boarded her, put down the flames, hauled down the Swastika flag and ran up their own.)

The fate of the crew was not known and the Cuban Navy Department said it had no reports from the south coast to indicate that the men had reached safety. The Cuban molasses tanker Mambi, south of the Isle of Pines, said she was en route to help, if possible.

May Come Into Jamaica

Well-informed nautical circles here expressed belief that if the Idarwald was in British hands, she would be run into Jamaica.

The cruiser intercepted the freighter about 75 miles from the south coast Port of Cienfuegos, between the Isle of Pines and Grand Cayman Island, officials of the Cuban Department of Communications Radio Bureau said. This is well within the American neutrality belt.

The distress signal from the Idarwald, picked up by Jose Arcali, a radio operator in Oriente Province, said: "being attacked by English warship off coast of Cuba . . . ship sinking south of Cuba . . . No time now . . . leaving ship".

There was no word from the 6,031-ton German freighter Rhein, which accompanied the Idarwald in the dash from Tampico. She once reported she was being followed by warships but nothing further has been heard from her.

(In Montevideo, Uruguay, meanwhile, the 20,122-ton British Auxiliary cruiser Carnarvon Castle was getting new plates to close shell holes inflicted by a German raider in a battle last Thursday. Two British warships were reported pursuing the raider, which the crew of the Carnarvon Castle said had been damaged badly.)

POLICE DISCLOSE

As voters flocked into polling booths, they were warned in a statement from City Clerk Etienne Gauthier that false registration cards were in circulation, and the penalty for carrying such a card was three years imprisonment under a section of the War Measures Act.

Returning Officers Warned

At the same time all returning officers and their assistants were warned to be on the watch for bogus cards, distinguishable from genuine certificates by minor printing variations. Last week, city police announced that officers would be stationed outside the polling booths and that voters might be called upon to produce their National Registration cards

The arrests were made following an R.C.M.P. raid on a printing plant in nearby Verdun, where police said they found 3,000 completed fake cards, and 4,000 cards printed on one side only. An additional 5,000 cards were found at the home of one of those arrested.

Arrested in Office

The men taken into custody at the printing plant were Edouard Leduc, owner of the press, J. O. Lemire and Germain Cayer. Later, J. Oscar Lefebvre and Lionel Rioux were arrested after they had been taken from Raynault's committee-room for questioning.

Police said that Lemire and Cayer drove up in a car and asked for delivery of the cards as R.C.M.P. officers were arresting Leduc. Statements made by the three men led to the hunt for Lefebvre and Rioux. About 20,000 bogus cards had been ordered, leaving several thousand unaccounted for.

The rather quiet campaign for the office left vacant by Camillien Houde, now in an internment camp for opposing national registration, was overshadowed by the last-minute development. Candidates for the office, in addition to Raynault, are Ald. Oscar Belisle, Charlemagne Landry, Joseph Mercure, J. J. Penverne, Ald. Dave Rochon, Leon Trepanier, Leonard Trepanier, and Raoul Trepanier. The Trepaniers are not related.

CSAKY TO VISIT BELGRADE TUESDAY

Budapest, Dec. 9.—(AP)— Foreign Minister Stephen Csaky will leave for Belgrade tomorrow night to negotiate a friendship pact with Yugoslavia, informed quarters announced today. The agreement will be purely political, informants said, without any military ties.

NETHERLANDS SUB LOST

London, Dec. 9 (CP)—The loss of a submarine of the Netherlands Navy "in war operations" was announced officially here today. Netherlands warships are co-operating with the British navy.

GREEKS FIGHT WAY

Part of the city had been burned by the Italians before they fled, but the amount of captured war material was said to be enormous and to include 12 full batteries of abandoned artillery.

After six weeks of fighting, the Greeks have driven the Italian invaders completely from their soil and pushed their own counter-invasion across about 20 per cent of Albania's Italian-held territory.

Rate of Advance Increases

The exact position of the Greek vanguards is a military secret, but officials say the rate of the Greek advance is increasing week by week.

So far, two of Albania's six towns with normal populations of more than 10,000—Koritza, the country's third largest, and Argirocastro, the fifth—have been taken. Each of them has two airdromes. The Greeks also hold Porto Edda, one of Albania's four seaports.

One estimate several days ago placed the cash value of captured war materials at about $10,000,000. This does not include the booty taken at Argirocastro.

In the drive toward Tepeleni, 15 miles north of Argirocastro, Greek cavalry and machine-gun and bomb attacks from airplanes were said to be spurring the Italian retreat.

Another Fascist force was said to have dug in at Klisura Pass, just east of Tepeleni, in a fierce fight with Greeks trying to smash through along the road from captured Premet. The Pass is midway along the road that runs 20 miles through the mountains from Premet to Tepeleni.

Fifteen miles west of Argirocastro another Greek column was reported pursuing Italians up the coastal road to Chimara, 25 miles north of Porto Edda which the Greeks took last week.

Vast Seizures Made

Dispatches from the front reported the capture of uncounted additional prisoners and the seizure of vast quantities of supplies which the Italians were said to have abandoned because of the spread of the Greek advances.

Royal Air Force reports said North Italian troop movements were impeded by thousands of refugees streaming toward Tirana, the capital.

At home, Greeks hailed the news yesterday of the capture of ancient Argirocastro with wild enthusiasm.

Shouting, singing thousands jammed the streets of Athens and many in the crowd chorused "On to Rome" when Premier General John Metaxas waved from an open window of the General Staff Headquarters.

Argirocastro, important southern Albanian communications centre of 10,000 population, had been the principal base for Italy's short-lived thrust in Epirus.

Italians Admit Withdrawals

Rome, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Italian high command said today that Italy's 11th Army had withdrawn to a new defence line north of Arigirocastro, southern Albania.

(The Greeks announced occupation of Argirocastro yesterday.)

"The 11th Army," the high command's daily war bulletin asserted, "completed its orderly withdrawal without loss of men or material on a line north of Argirocastro and minor surrounding localities."

In the 9th Army sector, it claimed, "repeated enemy attacks were repulsed by our troops, which had launched numerous victorious counter attacks."

Verdict of Murder Returned at Inquest Over Instructress

Brighton, England, Dec. 9.—(CP Cable)—A verdict of murder was returned at the inquest today into the death of Mrs. Florence Buckley, 47 dance instructress whose bruised body was found outside a window of her club Nov. 2 shortly after she had dined with two Canadian army officers.

After a pathologist had expressed the opinion that some of the bruises were possibly caused by the wheel of a vehicle, the coroner said it seemed the body had been placed outside the window after death in an attempt to suggest she died in a fall.

The Canadian officers were not named at the inquest but Lance-Corporal Leo Robert Evans of the Canadian army told of driving them with Mrs. Buckley and another woman from a restaurant to the dance club.

A detective reported that examination of cars in the vicinity of the studio the night of the murder did not produce incriminating evidence.

HEAVY NAZI AIR

The Nazis varied their tactics, flying sometimes singly, sometimes in groups of three and four. Some waves flew from the south and the north. Two raiders were shot down by A. A. fire.

At times so many bombers were over the capital that the drone of the engines could be heard over the constant roar of the barrage.

Incendiary Bombs Dropped

Some hours after the start of the raid hundreds of incendiary bombs were showered by a steady stream of planes over one-half of London. High explosives followed, then more incendiaries.

Fires which broke out formed a half moon. But the capital's highly-organized fire-fighters sped to the outbreaks and quickly controlled fires which lit up a number of areas.

Later the raiders attempted the same fire-raising tactics without similar success. The intensity of the attack dwindled as the night wore on, with the all clear sounding shortly before dawn.

As detailed reports of the damage filtered in through the morning it was learned that nine hospitals in all were hit. In one of them there were many casualties among the staff and patients when the building received a direct hit.

Another hospital with nearly 700 beds was badly damaged by explosive and incendairy bombs. A high explosive bomb completely demolished two blocks which comprise about a third of the hospital. Incendiary bombs seriously damaged the administrative offices and casualty department. The number of deaths was not expected to exceed five as most patients were evacuated some weeks ago.

Many People Buried

Four men of the staff of one hospital buried under debris were believed killed. High explosive and fire bombs hit the structure and the nurses home was fired and badly damaged.

Two hundred and fifty persons sheltering in the crypt of a church were safely removed after bombs fired the roof over them. Adjoining buildings were destroyed.

An oil bomb which fell on a school used as a rest centre compelled 23 people there from previously bombed homes to go to nearby shelters.

Nine persons were buried when high explosives demolished two houses in a southeast area. Two bodies were recovered and digging was proceeding for the others.

Two big storage depots in one district were burned out. Blocks of flats in several places were hit. Nine bombs dropped on an outskirts region of London damaged houses extensively.

A number of elderly patients died of shock in a London area hospital where bombs fell in the grounds.

A heavy calibre bomb in one borough wrecked many houses, trapped an unknown number of people and damaged 40 other houses

A Thames estuary district town was bombarded with incendiaries, causing an extensive fire which took some hours to control.

BRITISH ARMY

Had Mussolini struck at the time of the French collapse he might have had easier going, in their view. But now, they say, his holding back has enabled Britain to increase her strength greatly.

70 Mile Strip

Occupation of the 70-Mile strip into Egypt has been Italy's main achievement in North Africa so far. They are said to have moved six divisions into the area and built roads, a water supply system and supply bases.

These bases have been under almost continuous attack by the Royal Air Force and the Royal Navy, which shells them from the sea.

(In London, the Air Ministry news service reported an R.A.F. bombardment of a large number of Italian warplanes on Benina airdrome in the western desert and said it believed many were damaged. One hangar was completely burned out and fires were started in three others, it said.

(Extensive damage also was reported in a Saturday raid on Castel Benito, near the Libyan port of Tripoli, and other British aircraft were said to have struck widely in Italian East Africa.)

"In the western desert advanced elements of our forces now are in contact with the enemy on a broad front. In an engagement south of Sidi Barrani we captured 500 prisoners.

"Sudan: Last night our patrols continued extensive activities in the Gallabat area while our artillery again successfully engaged enemy targets.

"Other fronts: Nothing to report."

SPLIT BETWEEN

Mussolini's purge of the Italian High Command, which turned in a new direction today with the retirement of Admiral Cavagnari, Chief of Naval Staff, is being interpreted here as direct evidence that Italy may soon reach the position where anything might happen.

Day by Day More Serious

Day by day Mussolini's plight is becoming more serious, with his Albanian army in full retreat before the Greeks, his Libyan forces bogged down on the edge of the sterile desert stretching into faraway Egypt, and his Ethiopian garrison cut off from all outside contact and supplies.

I talked with a man during the week-end who has had long experience of Italian domestic conditions and has a full realization of the military factors confronting Mussolini. He expressed the opinion that Italy would be either out of the war on a German vassal State within three months.

Of these two possibilities he suggested the first is more likely.

It is being suggested here the reason behind Mussolini's purge of senior officers is the necessity to find men willing to carry out his political and military policies, and the growing split between the Fascists and the Italian Army.

There is no doubt here that Marshal Badoglio, who resigned last week as Chief of the Army Staff, opposed the Greek campaign which turned out to be a political as well as a military blunder. Politicians had made a false estimate of the resistance to be countered with the result that military preparations were inadequate.

What part Hitler played in the purge is unknown, but it is becoming abundantly clear that the German diplomatic offensive has been started to persuade the Greeks to accept peace. Pressure is being directed against the Greeks to accept German mediation with veiled threats in the background of German intervention unless the Greeks "listen to reason." In Ankara it is believed the German Ambassador, Von Papen, suggested joint Turkish-German mediation.

There is no evidence the Greeks are listening to this attempt by the Germans to restore peace to the Balkans, which, from Hitler's view is highly desirable. Likewise, the Turks seem to be turning deaf ears to all suggestions they act as intermediaries.

Whether the Germans will intervene in the war either on their own initiative or on Mussolini's plea remains to be seen. But Germany could give Italy assistance by land only by marching through Bulgaria or Yugoslavia, or by crossing the Brenner Pass into Italy. There is no doubt here that if Bulgaria or Yugoslavia were used as a corridor, Turkey would jump into the war, turning the whole Balkans into a blaze.

Problems For Benito

It is possible the Germans might select the Brenner route, and this would raise serious domestic considerations for Mussolini. It would raise such questions as these:

1 Would the Italian Army fight under German direction?

2. Would the Italian people, who have never liked the Germans, cooperate with them?

3. Would Hitler attempt to treat Italy as he treated Rumania, turning it into a vassal State?

4. Would Italians, who sooner or later must realize their position is hopeless, take the long-range view and elect to get rid of Mussolini and get out of the war rather than accept German occupation of their country?

Those are questions that cannot be answered yet but they are regarded here as inevitable problems which sooner or later must be confronted by the Italian people.

Couple Overcome In Car by Gas

Sudbury, Ont., Dec. 9.—(CP) — Romeo Roy, 30, of Sudbury, died and a companion, Miss W. Derouin, 24, of Cobalt, was taken to a hospital in a critical condition early today after they were overcome by carbon--monoxide gas as they sat in Roy's automobile in a ditch near here awaiting help.

F. Gervais, brother-in-law of Miss Derouin and a passenger in the car, said the machine skidded on the icy road and plunged into the ditch. He said the motor was left running while he went for help.

ROBBERS STEAL $100 FROM VAULT AT COLLEGIATE

Drill Through 15-Inch Brick Wall After Entering by Rear Window

SAFE DAMAGED

Duplicating in practically every detail the manner in which it was perpetrated some four years ago, robbers drilled through a 15-inch brick wall and gained entrance into the vault at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School from where $50.00 in cash and some $50.00 worth of War Savings Stamps were stolen over the week-end. The robbery was discovered by janitors as they opened the school early Monday morning.

Fresh footprints in the snow outside of the building indicated that entrance had been gained through a cellar window, which led into a basement dressing room from which the robbers made their way through the lower passages of the building to the main floor, where entrance was gained into Principal P. C. MacLaurin's office from which the hole was dug through a brick wall into the school vault. The $100.00 was the only valuables in the vault.

Safe is Damaged

Efforts to open a large 1,000-pound safe, in which most of the finances of the school is secured, proved futile as the robbers hammered off the combination dial which was found lying on the floor. After the dial was broken off it was impossible to force open the large steel safe and the robbers then turned their attention to the vault, drilling from the west wall of the vault, which faces Church Street.

"Every indication leads me to believe the same party who entered the vault some four years ago is responsible, as every movement and detail is identical with that of the previous vault-breaking," Principal P. C. MacLaurin told the Ontario-Intelligencer today.

Pick Up Steel Bars

After breaking a cellar window and gaining entrance to the basement, the robbers proceeded to the ol room of the Vocational Department of the school, where they obtained steel bars, suitable for use as pinch bars and a small sledge hammer. A new two-inch thick oak door blocked their advance leading out of the basement, but the robbers merely pried the hinges off the door and removed it in this manner. The door leading from the main corridor into Mr. MacLaurin's outer office was doubly locked, but the robbers managed to jimmy this door open, which indicated such strength had been employed as the jamb of the door was smithered and shattered beyond repair.

Foiled at First

First the robbers tried to drill through the north wall of the vault from a wash room leading off the Principal's office, but the tile walling proved too strong and this method was abandoned. Eventually the robbers drilled through the 15-inch thick west wall. only a matter of four inches from where the same method of robbery had successfully been perpetrated four years ago.

"It would appear as though the robbers did not try to drill through the portion of wall where they were successful before, no doubt being of the opinion a steel plate had been placed within the thickness of that wall," observed Mr MacLaurin.

Debris of bricks and plaster filled the Principal's room.

Footprints in Snow

Detective Fred Izard investigated and found that the robbers left large footprints in the snow leading from the Church Street side of the building to the window leading into the basement. "The robbers retraced their identical steps through the snow going in and coming out, thus making any effort to measure such footprints almost impossible," observed Detective Isard as he finally obtained some incriminating fingerprints on the door-sill and office safe in Mr. MacLaurin's office today.

There is no doubt in my mind the robbery was completed Saturday night, as it would take many hours to not only drill through the brick wall but they had to remove that large door which blocked their progress in the basement and no doubt the robbers experienced considerable difficulty in forcing the door leading into the general office, which had a double lock on it," added Mr. MacLaurin as he added he was firmly convinced the robbery had been perpetrated by some person who was well acquainted with the activities of the school and knew the lay-out of the entire building.

90-Yr.-Old Bridegroom Gets Absent-Minded

West Bloomfield, N.Y., Dec. 9 (AP) — Ninety-year-old Adam Weitz, plucking nervously at his walrus moustache, laid aside his corncob pipe just long enough to become a bridegroom in his 125-year-old farm house Saturday night.

The 56-year-old bride, the former Mrs. Nellie May Surline, stole a glance at the old-fashioned cookstove on which she was preparing chicken for their wedding dinner and then faced the minister.

The nonagenarian was so nervous die out in the kitchen stove an hour die out in the kitchenstove an hour of so before the ceremony.

He also forgot to kiss the bride.

"Great Destruction" At Duesseldorf Seen Say R. A. F. Pilots

London, Dec. 9—(CP)—Royal Air Force bomber pilots returned from the raid on Duesseldorf last night and said a "concentrated attack" was made on the German city and "great destruction" observed.

The Air Ministry News Service quoted one flier as saying "We clouted Duesseldorf good and hard."

The crew of one plane from several thousand feet up "actually was able to see flames streaming from the windows" or blast furnaces and steel work known to manufacture railroad and shipping equipment, the Ministry said.

It pictured three large fires and many small ones as following the first bomb bursts and continued: "Our aircraft then crowded in, dropping their heavy bombs accurately on the steel works and pelting the entire area with hundreds of incendiaries.

"Flames blazed up in one factory long after our aircraft had gone away. Two minutes after one aircraft had discharged its load of incendiaries, three violent explosions were observed among fires started.

"Pilots stated that from 30 and 40 miles away it was plain that many of the fires had taken firm hold."

One British plane, after bombing the steel works, dive-bombed a supply train and machine-gunned it from a height of 50 feet.

Life Aboard British Sub Chaser Graphically Told to Rotarians

Rotarian E. M. Bassingthwaite Addresses Belleville Rotary Club on Interesting Subject

PREDICTS VICTORY

A colorful story of life aboard one of His Majesty's submarine chasers which operated along the coasts of Britain during the last Great War, was unfolded by E. M. Bassingthwaite, of the Stewart-Warner Alemite Corporation here, before the Belleville Rotary Club on Monday.

Rotarian Bassingthwaite told the clubmen how he managed to join the Royal Canadian Volunteer Reserve as a sub-lieutenant after serving as a staff sergeant with the Canadian army, and of his appointment to his ship, which operated off Lowestoft on the east coast of England.

"Imagine my feelings," he said, "when my commanding officer decided to take a week-end leave a day or so after I reported for duty. He had been ordered to take off an Admiralty Captain from a trawler some 80 miles down the coast and received the shock of his life when his bo'sun informed him he had taken the ship through a channel which was four feet deep instead of four fathoms as he had supposed.

Received 40 Pounds

"We had one submarine to our credit," he said, explaining that the Merchant Marine Association paid one thousand pounds to the ship's crew that sank one of the underseas boats. "However, in this case some six or seven ships took part in sub's destruction so my share was something like forty pounds."

The speaker told of an incident that occurred after a wireless message had been received from a bombed ship in the North Sea. "When we arrived we saw a plane floating in the water, and learned it was a German craft. The gunner on the ship had taken a last wild shot, which resulted in the crippling of the German. After we had taken the plane's crew which consisted of a sergeant-pilot and an officer, aboard our vessel, I was told that a terrific fight was going on in the prisoners' quarters. Investigation revealed that the sergeant pilot had taken advantage of the opportunity to 'get even' with his superior and had given him a merciless beating."

Two Filled Galley

His ship was 80 feet long and carried a crew of ten. The cook was extremely fat and he and the gasoline stove filled the galley completely. Depth charges would cause the stove to explode, the cook would catch fire and rush out on deck, his pants and shirt ablaze and filling the air with good Devonshire cuss words. "We had to warn him when we were dropping depth charges, or else......" he said.

"Minesweeping was a dangerous task," Mr. Bassingthwaite said, "and all commerce lanes in the North Sea from Dover to Scapa Flow were 'swept' daily before a merchantman was allowed to leave. He had taken his ship up the Zuyder Zee after the Armistice had been signed to take some officials to visit the Crown Prince of Germany, who was interned on an Island there. The bottom of the Zee was a thick mixture of silt and water and so affected the speed of the boat that the visit was called off. "It was the first time the White Ensign had flown in the Zee since the Dutch navy was defeated by the British some 300 years previously," he said.

After the Germans had surrendered their navy and scuttled it in Scapa Flow, Mr. Bassingthwaite's ship was one of those delegated to escort ninety surrendered German subs to England. To prevent scuttling of these ships, British crews replaced the Germans at a point thirty miles out to sea, and brought the subs into port.

Witnessed Zeppelin Raid

He had witnessed the last Zeppelin raid over England, and his ship had given warning of the approach of the "silver pencils" which suddenly appeared in the Northern skies. Previously he had seen Lieut. Roy Brown win a Victoria Cross, when he shot down one of the nocturnal raiders.

Just previous to the signing of the armistice when the Germans had folded up, he had seen their submarines sail into British ports flying the white flag. "That is what will happen in this war", he predicted. "When the Germans quit they will do so in a hurry. They will come over in great waves but the R.A.F. will meet them and beat them and it will be all over".

The unwritten laws of the British Navy are "hit 'em hard with all you've got; ram 'em if you can, and do everything possible to sink the enemy".

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Jack Deacon. President Percy McGuire was in the chair.

Canadian Gunners Dedicate Chapel As Place of Worship

(By Ross Munro)
(Canadian Press War Correspondent)

Somewhere in England, Dec. 9.—(CP)—On the front of a row of barracks and store houses in the lines of the 2nd Divisional Artillery stands Dunkerque chapel.

Canadian gunners created this little place of worship themselves, transforming an old blacksmith shop used by the camp armorer into a religious sanctuary.

Col. George A. Wells, principal Protestant chaplain of the Canadian Active Service force, dedicated the chapel—only Canadian one in the troop areas.

The chapel is an unpretentious brick building about twenty by fifteen feet, similar to dozens of storehouses nearby, but the gunners took plenty of care in decorating the interior.

The walls, once blackened by the blacksmith's forge, are tinted in soft colors. An altar stands across one end of the room and two stained-glass windows were obtained from the stores of an old British regiment.

Gnr. Chris. Pello of Ottawa, was largely responsible for decorating the chapel so effectively, while Gnr. Frank Curtis of Cobourg, Ont., painted the altar and woodwork. Both attended the dedication.

Two Forced Landings Made by Planes At Homesville, Dublin

Goderich, Ont., Dec. 9 — (CP)—Two forced landings were made by training planes from No. 12 Elementary Flying School at Stay Harbor yesterday, one near a school at Homesville, three miles from Clinton, and one at Dublin, 20 miles west. Both landings were made in a snowstorm without mishap. This morning R.C.A.F. airmen from Stay Harbor beat down the snow at Holmesville to make an improvised runway. The plane took off successfully and is again in training service. The plane at Dublin is being brought to its base here by motor transport, J. R. Douglas, manager of the airport said.

A bomber from Camp Borden which made a forced landing near Tiverton in last week's snowstorm, was dismantled, transported to Stay Harbor, reassembled and given a successful test flight today. An aviator is en route here from Camp Borden to fly it back.

WOMAN CLAIMS $2,000 DAMAGES

Louise Reynolds Says She Suffered Serious Injury on Bridge Owned by Counties Northumberland and Durham by Tripping Over Piece of Tin

Cobourg, Dec. 9—Judgment was reserved in the action brought by Louise Reynolds, Campbellford, against the counties of Northumberland and Durham, which was heard in County Court here before Judge Smoke. The claim was for $2,000 and costs.

The plaintiff said she fell on a bridge owned by the counties in Campbellford as a result of tripping over a piece of tin. She stated the tin had been used to repair some loose boards but had been jutting up in a position dangerous to pedestrians. A few days after her fall she went to a doctor and was sent to the hospital because of injuries to her spine, hip and left leg and was there five months, she said.

The defendant's engineers testified that the bridge was not dangerous to pedestrian traffic. Defence contended the plaintiff had not used reasonable care in walking on the bridge.

Carnarvon Castle Ready for Action Tuesday Night

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 9 (AP)—While other British warships were searching the south Atlantic today for the German raider whose shells punctured the Carnarvon Castle's steel hull, the damaged auxiliary cruiser prepared to get back into service by tomorrow night.

Some of the Carnarvon Castle's crew were sure other British ships already had caugh up with the Nazi raider but so far, at least, there were only unconfirmed reports of a new sea clash.

These apparently were based on assertions that the German ship came out of the 90-minute engagement Thursday more seriously damaged than the Carnarvon Castle and that the 7,080-ton cruiser Enterprise and another British warship nearby immediately took up the chase.

(But British sources there called it "fantastic" and the British Embassy, German Embassy and Argentine naval command all said they lacked any information.)

SAYS MANY FAIL TO LEARN TO FLY

Authority on Aviation Medicine Declares Airship to Travel to Moon Could be Built for $4,000,000

Toronto, Dec. 9.—(CP)—Dr. H. G. Armstrong, International authority on aviation medicine at present working in the Medical Research Department of the University of Toronto, said in an address to the Royal Canadian Institute Saturday night that of every 100 pilots killed in flight during the First Great War two were killed by the enemy, eight by airplane defects and 90 by defeats in the pilots themselves.

Dr. Armstrong, with two coworkers, recently developed an oxygen mask for altitude flying that won the Collier award for the greatest contribution to United States aviation in the past year.

"Today we find that of every 100 pilots we select as physically adapted to flying, as high as 60 per cent fail to learn to fly and must be dropped after several months' training", he said.

A rocket ship able to gain speed at the rate of 2,000 miles per hour every ten seconds and carry passengers to the moon at the rate of 25,000 m.p.h. could be built at a cost of $4,000,000 he said.

4-YEAR SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Lindsay, Ont., Dec. 9 (CP)—Robert N. Packard, 16, Maple Lake, was given four years suspended sentence today by Magistrate E. A. Gee on a charge of criminal negligence arising out of the fatal shooting of Alfred Wiggins while Packard was hunting deer near Maple Lake on Nov. 13. Magistrate Gee imposed the suspended term on condition that accused refrain from the use of firearms for the period of the term and upon payment of the costs of the court.

Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson told the court that there was negligence on the part of the boy but that he felt suspended sentence would meet the ends of justice rather than a jail or reformatory term.

Wiggins, it was revealed at an inquest last week, was shot while cutting wood in the bush.

The British Legation protested. The Polish Minister, Leon Orlowski, will remain privately in Budapest.

Sister of Nehru Sentenced Under Defence Of India Act

Bombay, Dec. 9. — (CP)—Mrs. Vijalakshmi Pandit, former Congress Party Minister in the United Provinces Government and sister of the imprisoned Jawaharlal Nehru was sentenced today to four months in jail under the Defence of India Act.

She was arrested at Allahabad after informing police authorities she intended to make an anti-war speech, the same offence, which brought about the arrest of Nehru, former president of the Congress party, who is serving a four-year sentence.

Nehru, among men chosen by Mohandas K. Gandhi to make antiwar speeches as part of a Nationalist plan of "limited civil disobedience", was sentenced November 5.

Britain's Desert Forces Ready For Any Italian Offensive in Egypt

Associated Press Staff Writer,

With the British Forces in Egypt, Dec. 9 (AP)—Military authorities declared today that if Mussolini's changes in the Italian high command lead to an offensive in Egypt in an effort to regain lost prestige, Britain's desert forces will be ready for it.

With Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell's re-inforced army expressing confidence of being able to hold Egypt against the Fascists, these informants said "nothing would delight our forces more than an Italian thrust at their strongly fortified lines running through the western desert."

Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's Italian forces have been virtually stationary since they occupied a 70-mile coastal strip along the Mediterranean in the Egyptian desert three months ago. Thus far the Italians apparently have been reluctant to take the risks of an offensive in the desert, where moving supplies, especially water, is a staggering problem.

The British forces now have a well-organized communication system, including a railway, to their front lines. The invaders have only limited road communications.

The three-month stalemate has resulted in eagerness for action among the assembled British, Australian, New Zealand, Polish and Free French soldiers. Greek victories in Albania have enhanced this spirit.

This is a typical comment of one of the Australians, generally considered to be the toughest of Britain's desert troops: "We came 7,000 miles to fight the Italians and here we are sitting around for months doing nothing in the middle of the desert."

If the deadlock continues through the winter there are fears the soldiers may "go stale."

As a means of providing an outlet for some of the restlessness evident among their troops, the British commanders have let some of their most bellicose soldiers enrol in special units for harassing raids deep into Italian Libya.

Some of them are motorized, some go on horseback and recently a camel unit has been formed, marking the first use of camels in this war.

Bomb Splinters From Battle of Britain

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Every time the sirens wail one London woman stays in her home but pulls well down on her head the German steel helmet her husband brought home from the last war. Helmet on head, she was ironing in the kitchen when the house received a direct hit. A piece of shrapnel crashed on her head but outside of a few bruises she was "in the pink."

A London bookseller keeps beside his cash register a jagged piece of shrapnel which fell outside the shop. He says it's handy for cutting string.

Down with influenza and shell shock, a soldier was sent to a country hospital. A violent explosion awakened him on his first night there and he saw a tombstone propped amid broken glass. The stone, blown there from a nearby cemetery, bore the text "Peace, Perfect Peace."

One company of pioneers helping clear up London's air raid debris has salvaged 200,000 bricks in three weeks. Sixty-thousand of the bricks have been used for A.R.P. shelters.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Italy's continued shake-up of high officers in the army and navy undoubtedly reflect Mussolini's growing anxiety at the poor showing of his forces which continue to run from the Greek advance.

Latest resignee was Admiral Domenico Cavagnari, Navy Chief of Staff and Under-Secretary to Mussolini who holds the naval portfolio in the Fascist cabinet himself. The extent to which the resignations reflected dissatisfaction among the Italian people or in the forces themselves was not apparent, but it was considered significant that the new appointees are good party men, likely to do Mussolini's bidding with a maximum of zeal and loyalty.

The unfortunate Italian people are faced with new hardships with a German demand that Italy send her more food. There is insufficient food in Italy to meet the needs of her own people, but the chances Germany would get what she wanted were considered good.

There is nothing to indicate that the collapse of Italy was imminent or that a revolution is likely in the immediate future—although reports of rioting have been heard in Britain. Nevertheless the effect on Italian morale of reverses which cannot be hushed up indefinitely undoubtedly will grow.

Face Bleak Prospect

What help Mussolini can expect from Hitler is not clear, although last night's furious Nazi air assault on London might have been the start of a German effort to divert British attention from the Mediterranean.

The Italians certainly face a bleak prospect. Their Libyan forces have been immobilized for weeks and apparently are getting neither supplies nor reinforcements. Their Dodecanese garrisons have been isolated since the start of Greek war seven weeks ago and in addition the Royal Air Force is making it increasingly difficult for them to supply their men in Albania.

A wholesale rout of the Italians would be very handy for Britain, not only as a removal of threats to the Suez Canal and the Mediterranean lifeline, but as offering a possible way of attacking Germany through Austria.

That might require the downfall of Mussolini before a new government could be established in Italy which would consent to such peace terms, but that is not beyond the bounds of possibility. The Italians do not like the Germans and undoubtedly would resent, if not resist, any attempt of Germany to go forcibly to their assistance.

They have seen their association with Germany bring them nothing but grief. They have seen Mussolini decline from the position of the world's chief Fascist to one where he must play second fiddle to a German master.

Took Over Four Days To Bring the Saguenay into British Port After Tilt With U-Boat

By D. E. BURRITT

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 10 (CP Cable)—A saga of the sea was disclosed today as Canadian naval men described how their broken destroyer Saguenay ploughed its way unassisted into a British port after a tilt with an enemy submarine.

The Saguenay was brought into port under the guidance of Cmdr. George Miles, a man the crew described as a "model skipper", and whose scraggly beard gave evidence of his long vigil on the bridge where he directed a skeleton crew.

For 4½ days the Saguenay, which was en route to Britain when attacked by a submarine lying idle on the surface, pushed her way several hundreds of miles through battering seas, her bow so far under water that the prow could not be seen from the bridge.

Most of the 21 missing men were last seen on the forward mess decks where the blaze and acrid smoke made it almost impossible to continue fire fighting and the order was given to prepare to abandon ship.

Relentlessly the sailors closed in on the flames fed by exploding paints as stokers in the engine

J. Adehamer Raynault Mayor of Montreal

Montreal, Dec. 10 —(CP— J. Adhemar Raynault took over the office of mayor of Montreal for a second time today, after the closest election fight in the history of the city brought him victory last night following two years on the political sidelines.

Not until the votes from the last few polls of the city's 1,192 had been tabulated was Raynault's election over Leon Trepanier assured. Seven other contestants were far behind, and five of them lost their deposits for failing to collect 50 per cent of the votes of the winner.

With slightly more than ¼ of the city's 236,000 voters casting their ballots, Raynault was given 16,565 votes while Trepanier, who resigned as head of the Montreal Tercentenary Commission to contest the election, polled 15,591. It was as light a vote as could be recalled by city officials.

In the 1939 election, by way of comparison, Camillien Houde ran up 83,431 votes against 62,869 for his closest competitor. House spent the last four months of his two-year mayoralty term in an internment camp after issuing a statement opposing national registration.

It was Houde whom Raynault defeated when he first became mayor of Montreal in 1936, winning out by about 3,000 votes to establish a record for closeness that stood until last night. Raynault did not run in 1938.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Snow in the Antarctic! Since ordinarily the chief cause of precipitation is rising, damp air which is cooled to its dew-point to form clouds, why should snow fall in Antarctica? Why? Because it is thought to be covered with cold, dense air in which there are no rising currents. But there must be snowfall, as witness the ever-flowing glaciers moving outward from the interior. There are two theories: One, that the snow is condensed from air in contact with the surface; the other, that the winds force air to rise over masses of slowly moving surface air. In blizzards much of the snow is picked up from the surface. At present our information is too eager to form a satisfactory and complete explanation of Antarctic snowfall.

BREMEN PLANE FACTORY BOMBED

Nazi Naval Base at Lorient and Docks at Boulogne Attacked Also

London, Dec. 10—(CP)—A Bremen airplane factory, the Nazi naval base at Lorient, France and the docks of Boulogne were heavily bombed by the Royal Air Force last night, the Air Ministry announced today.

A British bomber shot down a German fighter plane, the Ministry said. One British plane is missing.

Fires, started by the Royal Air Force along the coast of France, could be seen from the Kent coast today still burning fiercely. The mid-channel haze and a drizzle passed by mid-morning and the sun breaking through the clouds revealed the fires, from which columns of black and white smoke were rising.

May Seek Permission for Warship To Stay Another Twenty-Four Hours

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 10 (AP)—A British legation spokesman said today that permission might be sought from the Uruguayan Government for the H.M.S. Carnarvon Castle to remain in this harbor another day to complete repairs.

A heavy storm which swept the coast this morning delayed some of the repairs on the British Auxiliary cruiser.

The spokesman added the legation had no word of the fate of the German raider which fought the cruiser off the Brazilian coast Dec. 5.

"The raider which the Carnarvon Castle met is not the only one of its kind in the Atlantic Ocean," one official said. "There may be as many as four or five of these well-equipped raiders out stalking merchantmen. It is going to take a special squadron like that which destroyed the German raiding cruisers in the last war to handle those fellows."

The Uruguayan Government had set 6.30 p.m. today (5.30 p.m. EDT) as the deadline for the vessel to leave.

The government, meanwhile, studied a note delivered by German Minister Otto Langmann protesting against a 24-hour extension of the 48-hour time limit originally set for repairs by Uruguay.

The Carnarvon Castle was damaged by German shells in a fight with a raider last Thursday. She put into Montevideo harbor Saturday for repairs

BRITONS PLEASED BUT PUZZLED OVER NEW LULL

Twenty-Four Hours Pass Without Air Raid Alarm or Report of Bombings in Britain

BOMBER SHOT DOWN

Lull May Have Been Caused by R.A.F.'s Blows at Germany and Nazi Air Bases

London, Dec. 10 (CP)—Britons were pleased but puzzled today by a new lull in the Nazi air siege as more than 24 hours passed without alarms or reports of bombings.

Throughout the night and through the early morning rush hour, rooftop spotters watched the sky over London for planes which failed to attempt any follow-up of the 12-hour pounding given London Sunday night.

MARCH OF DIMES HELPING FUND

Money Coming in to Finance Minister to Buy a Hurricane

Ottawa, Dec. 10 (CP)—Canada's dimes are on the march, moving from all corners of the Dominion to the office of Finance Minister Ilsley where they will go toward the purchase of a Hurricane fighting plane for the Royal Canadian Air Force. Already $560 has come in.

Postage is unnecessary to place a 10-cent piece in this "March of Dimes" which originated in Cornwall, Ont., and spread throughout the Dominion. An official of the Finance Ministry explained that all business letters addressed to a Minister of the Cabinet are delivered postage free.

Many people have not been content to send only a dime. One woman in Western Canada wrote that she was afraid her 10-cent piece would work its way out of the envelope. So she wrapped it up in a dollar bill.

First contributions came from a group of employees in a Cornwall mill. Next dimes trickled in from Fort William, Ont., then from Winnipeg and then from all over, even from the United States.

British Score Victory As They Open Initiative In Middle-East Campaign

British Cross 75 Miles of Desert to Reach Mediterranean Between Sidi Barrani and Buqbuq

CHURCHILL REPORTS

British Campaign Timed to Take Advantage of Mussolini's Difficulties Elsewhere — Free French Soldiers Co-operate With British

London, Dec. 10 (CP-Cable) — Success has capped the preliminary phases of the British offensive against Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's Italian forces on the Egyptian-Libyan border, Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today.

Detachments of British troops crossed 75 miles of desert to reach the blue Mediterranean between Sidi Barrani and Buqbuq, but the Prime Minister declined to say whether this meant the Italian base at Sidi Barrani had been cut off.

(Buqbuq is 35 miles west of Sidi Barrani, about half way between that town and the Libyan-Egyptian border.)

For the first time since the British expeditionary force marched north into Belgium and Holland to check the German invasion of the Low Countries, the British nation has had the opportunity to rejoice over land operations against the enemy.

They are making the most of the news from Egypt. The papers are full of it and everybody is elated at the knowledge that the initiative is finally being taken in the middle east.

Fuehrer Paints Self Champion of So-called 'Have Not' Nations

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Berlin, Dec. 10 (AP)—Hitler reasserted his confidence today that nothing in the world could defeat the Nazis.

In a speech of one hour and 31 minutes in a munitions factory, he declared, "Our capacity for work is our gold, our capital, and with it we will defeat the entire world"

Conflict in the world, he said, is conflict between "haves" and "have-notes."

He opened no new prospects as to the immediate future except that the fight would continue.

In the war, he said, "We stand fortified against every eventuality.

"England may do what she will—she will sustain harder hits with each weapon."

"Whatever happens, Germany will be victorious."

He accused "that great strategist Churchill" of deciding to launch "unrestricted air warfare" with an attack on Freiburg.

He said, "I didn't want to attack anything except military objectives" and added.—

Waited Months Says Hitler

"I waited one month for them to cease this sort of combat I waited two and three months. But now we are conducting war as they wanted it......

"The time for the final struggle is determined by us. I am always careful...... We can afford to wait. The German people will appreciate it more if I wait and thereby save lives......

"The world must recognize that there can be no defeat in Germany, either military or economic, due to long duration" of the war.

"I am not a man who, when once the fight is taken up, drops it.

"In my lexicon there is not the word capitulation

"I don't seek a fight, but once it is forced on me I will conduct it so long as there is a breath of life in me.

"I can conduct it today because I know the entire German people stand behind me."

NAZI FREIGHTER IDARWALD SUNK BY HER OWN CREW

45 TAKEN PRISONER

Freighter Attempted to Run Blockade From Tampico, Mexico

London, Dec. 10 (CP)—The 5,033-ton German freighter Idarwald sank after a prize crew placed aboard by the British cruiser Diomede failed in an effort to prevent her scuttling by her own crew, an official announcement said today.

The German crew of 45 now are prisoners aboard the Diomede, it was disclosed.

Naval circles, elaborating on the brief official statement pointed to United States reports that the Idarwald was set afire by the Germans and these quarters said it was presumed they also opened her seacocks.

First Official Report

It was the first official report on the incident since it was reported by Cuban and United States naval departments that the ship had fallen into British hands.

The Cuban report was that the Idarwald had been torpedoed. The United States version was that she had been boarded by a prize crew which foiled an attempt of the German crew to burn and scuttle her.

The 5033-ton Idarwald attempted to run the British blockade, leaving Tampico, Mexico, Nov. 29 headed for Spain.

(The British cruiser Diomede intercepted her off the south coast of Cuba Sunday. The incident happened about 75 miles from the south coast of Cienfuegos, between the Isle of Pines and Grand Cayman Island.)

No Trainmen Injured In Rear-End Collision At Bowmanville

Bowmanville, Ont., Dec. 10 (CP)—A rear-end train collision today caused damage to two freight trains but no injuries were reported.

An east-bound Canadian Pacific Railway train was standing to take on water at the Bowmanville tank when another train ran into its rear, demolishing the caboose. Two men in the caboose at the time jumped clear before the impact.

Three other cars on the standing freight were derailed and caught fire, but the blaze was kept under control by the Bowmanville fire brigade.

The engine and two cars of the second train were derailed and the track suffered considerable damage. A passenger train from Montreal to Toronto came up shortly afterwards and was detoured over Canadian National lines, reaching Toronto an hour and a half late.

Greeks Advance to Piqueras 15 Miles North of Porto Edda

London, Dec. 10 (CP) — Greek troops were reported to have made their greatest gains yesterday against the Italian right wing, driving to Piqueras, 15 miles north of Porto Edda on the coastal road.

In the central fighting front in Albania, military circles said, Italians left the town of Kelcyre on the road north from Premet to Berat.

In the northern sector, against the Italian left wing, heavy snows and "stiffening" Italian resistance were said to have slowed the Greek advance.

British Reported To Have Stormed 2 Strong Positions

4,000 Italian Prisoners Captured and Surprise Raid is Developing Toward Full-Fledged Offensive

London, Dec. 10—(CP)—British forces have taken 4,000 Italian prisoners in their drive in the western Egyptian desert, a communique of the African command announced today.

The communique said:

"Prisoners so far captured are reported to exceed 4,000. Also a number of medium tanks have been captured.

Two Camps Stormed by British

London, Dec. 10 (CP)—Desert-trained British troops were reported today to have stormed two strongly-defended Italian camps south of Sidi Barrani, and military observers declared the big surprise raid started yesterday seemed to be developing toward a full-fledged offensive.

These circles added, however, that so far the strategic position of the Italians has not been greatly altered by the operations," in which more than 1,000 Italians have been captured.

They said there could be no doubt that the British forces had met with "initial success" in the attack at the Italian advance posts in northwestern Egypt, but because of the great distances between scattered Italian positions the British forces could not be expected to register many similar gains immediately.

SIDE ROADS IN P. E. HAZARDOUS FOR CARS

Following the recent storm people living off the travelled paths were forced to go without their mail for at least three days. County officials are doing their best to alleviate the situation.

Then there is the story of the farmer-business man residing in a northern section of the county who carries a schedule of prices for the benefit of luckless motorists who desire the services of a team of horses to haul their cars from snow-filled ditches.

Pulling a stalled car from the ditch a few days ago, the farmer in question when asked by the car-owner as to the amount of the bill, countered with the query: "What are you, business man, traveller or tourist?" Being informed the motorist in question was a business man, the farmer stated his price was one dollar. The prices charged for other varieties of the travelling species were not revealed.

QUATERNION UNION HEARS ADDRESSES

In spite of bad roads and a cold night there was a good attendance at the Quarternion Y.P.U. last night at Front Road United Church. The President Bill Brennan and Secretary Miss Marion Daniels had charge. The devotions and program were directed by Miss Dorothy Poste. On the devotions Miss Helen Brown, Miss H. Jeffery and Miss G. McLaughlin assisted. The program consisted of five addresses on the life and work of Rev. James Evans among the Indians of Canada. These addresses were given by Messrs. Donald Harrison and Bill Brennan, and the Misses A. Williams, Helen Wedden and I. Delong. Rev. Mr. Harrison and Rev. Mr. McClintock contributed to the discussion.

The great contribution of James Evans was his invention of a syllabary, a system of learning the Indian languages. By this system Indians can learn to read their own language in a very short time. The first type was made of wood, then of lead made from bullets and lead paper. He used birch bark for paper. Soot from the chimney mixe with animal oil or grease made his printing ink. So successful was his work that Roman Catholics, Anglicans and all others doing work among the Indians use Evans' syllabary in translating the Bible, and other religious literature for the Indians. A similar method is now being used with almost incredible results in India and the Philipines, introduced by Dr. Frank Laubach. A little magazine called "Spiritual Light" printed in these Indian characters appears regularly for the use of the Indians. Evans died at the age of 45 and his monument is in the gratitude of the Indian people of Canada. The gathering closed with a half hour of games enjoyed by all. Mrs. R. J. Johnson was pianist for the meeting.

Route of Santa Claus Parade

The postponed Santa Claus Parade scheduled for Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock will follow the same route as laid out last week.

Sixty-nine figures comprising humorous make-ups, characters of comic-strips, pretty girls, clowns and what-not will form up with decorated floats of local business men and organizations prior to moving off.

The route taken will start at Foundry Street after participants have made themselves ready in St. Michael's Academy, thence to Front Street to Bridge Street. It will turn east at the Bridge front intersection to Pinnacle thence south to Dundas and westerly to Front, and along the main thoroughfare again to the starting point.

COLLEGIATE CAMPUS FREE FROM SNOW

The entire campus at the Belleville Collegiate has been scraped free from snow. The scraping of the snow was completed today by the city snow plough under the direction of the Department of Public Works. The removal of the snow at the B.C.I. & V.S. was made necessary in order to accommodate the cadet military training units of the school, which parade daily as part of the school curriculum. With increased numbers drilling with the school cadets it was impossible to conduct the training inside of the school, thus necessitating either the rolling of the snow or its removal. The latter process was deemed more advisable.

Police Blotter

A complete two-wheeled trailer disappeared in Belleville on Monday evening. Mr. Vaughan Adams, of Northumberland County, reported to police he had left a home-made two-wheeled trailer parked on the market square, but when he returned for the vehicle last evening, it had vanished.

Police investigated a complaint received from the owner of a boat-house, which is situated on the shores of the Belleville harbor, from where lumber has been missing at frequent intervals. An investigation conducted by P.C. Arnott revealed youthful miscreants were using the lumber to kindle bonfires around which they warmed themselves while skating on the ice.

Trenton police reported the theft of a 1937 model Chevrolet coupe last night. The vehicle is believed to have been stolen by a deserter from the army, the Trenton police revealed.

While nine transients slumbered peacefully in the men's cell block Monday night, a woman occupied the female cell after having been apprehended for intoxication. Her case will be heard in Friday's police court.

Picton and District

Picton, Dec. 10 — Fishermen at Indian Point Traverse, who have been cut off from outside points due to blocked roads, the past week are again able to use the roads, snow plows having completed their work Monday afternoon.

Use of a caterpillar tractor and a scraper attached has remedied the condition of the streets of the town which were nearly impassable on Saturday, being full of ruts and pitch holes. This outfit was secured from the King Paving Company at the Bombing and Gunnery School and easily swept snow and ice to the side of the streets. This is being carted away by trucks, with a gang of men engaged in shovelling. As the snow is frozen in great blocks, pick axes are used to smash it.

All roads in Prince Edward County are now open for motor traffic but some are quite rough. Fishermen at Indian Point who were marooned for a week and forced to come to town for food by boat on Saturday, are rejoicing that the road to that fishing colony is again passible.

Reeve Gerard Kavanagh of South Marysburgh Township was able to return to his home at Point Traverse after being marooned in the Village of Milford since December 2nd. He had come up for the election that day and was unable to return home. Residents of Point Traverse, who had voted almost solidly for his re-election, had not been able to learn the result of the election as a result of the blocked roads and lack of telephone service and though a week late, he was able to bring news of the result to them.

Tax collector Ernest Minaker of North Marysburgh township passed away in Prince Edward County hospital here on Sunday, following a heart attack suffered late Saturday evening. Mr. Minaker had been in town collecting taxes and on his return home the car stalled in the snow and while he was attempting to push it he suffered a heart attack. Mrs. Minaker was with him and brought him to the hospital. The funeral is being held in Cressy United Church Wednesday afternoon. He was 45 years old and a well-known farmer.

Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Tranter left for Toronto on Monday where Mr. Tranter has accepted a call to a Baptist Church there.

Jean Lloyd and Marjorie Carter entertained at a tea in honor of Beulah Jean Tranter at the former's home. Dinner was served at a long table gay with Christmas decorations. The guest of honor was the recipient of a pretty gift.

Lindley Calnan was in Toronto last week attending a convention of those interested in promoting tourist traffic in Ontario. Premier Hepburn was among the speakers and Mr. Calnan was also heard.

John Gentile and Sammy Gentile spent several days in Toronto last week.

Rev. Langford of Toronto, who was to have preached in Picton and Wellington United Churches on Sunday, was unable to come owing to condition of the highways.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cole at Prince Edward County Hospital on Sunday.

Pte. Tommy Thompson spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Thompson.

Ontario Merchants Jubilant Over Volume Yuletide Business

Survey Shows That Shopping Being Done Early and at Pre-depression Pace

OTTAWA VERY BUSY

(By the Canadian Press)

Christmas shopping in Canada has broken all the traditions and, in realization of the shopkeeper's dream, actually started early this year. The initial tempo has been maintained with buying at something of the old pre-depression pace and shoppers are placing a dual emphasis on their gift purchases — usefulness and Empire manufacture.

A survey by The Canadian Press of the nation's main shopping centres shows that shopping for Christmas started several weeks ago in preparation for the bundles of parcels that since have left for both active service and civilian giftees overseas.

Generally the reasons advanced for good Christmas business are related to the war, the industrial boom of war production, building, construction of training camps, more people working and more money in circulation.

The centre of the greatest shopping activity is the nation's capital. In Ottawa Christmas sales are reported up by one-third over the 1939 figure. Merchants say that people are spending freely but that there is no "wasteful extravagance." They found that buying for overseas was "not spectacular" on the whole but that Empire goods were getting a good, steady play.

Goods produced in Canada, Great Britain and other parts of the Empire generally are more popular this year than ever before. There is an element of loyalty and patriotism that many merchants have noticed.

In Ontario merchants say they have not noticed much drop in the demand for the higher priced luxury goods. Jewellers and specialty wholesalers in Toronto said they were finding it hard to keep up with the demand of less luxury gifts and their business is far better than it was last year.

Same in Other Cities

That is pretty much the story for other Ontario cities where there is lots of industrial activity and money is circulating freely. Here is the situation in detail:

Toronto—Business better in practically all lines; not much decrease in sales of higher-priced luxury goods; considerable business in gifts for overseas; general preference for empire goods.

Hamilton—Busiest Christmas season in many years; brisk business started early with purchases for overseas; considerable run on luxury foodstuffs; Christmas trade unaffected by new embargoes as shops well stocked before restrictions announced.

London—Christmas trade about 10 per cent better than in 1939 but merchants feel they could do better in view of money in circulation; no noticeable decrease in luxury buying; increased demand for English-made goods; big rush on silk stockings and electrical appliances.

Windsor—Every indication Christmas business will surpass anything since 1929; large departmental store doing better business than in 1929; buying for overseas not major factor; 1940 sales 40-80 per cent higher than in 1938 and 30-60 per cent higher than in 1939.

North Bay—Early snow pepped up Christmas buying; overseas gift buying started in mid-November; definite trend towards practical gifts; expect Christmas business on a par with last year; wide sale of empire products.

Cornwall—General increase of Christmas business; buying for overseas gave early start; luxury items holding own with decided increase in jewelry sales; "Buy British" policy general.

St. Thomas—Greater trade than in former years; presence of nearby Air Force training centres big factor; no noticeable decrease in luxury buying; decided increase in purchase of empire goods.

Peterborough—General trade increase of 25 per cent or more over last year; furniture sales up 51 per cent in one store; luxury buying not curtailed except for radios and refrigerators.

Brockville—No increased buying noted for overseas shipments; seasonal trade better than year ago; no change apparent in luxury buying; increased demand for empire products.

Niagara Falls—Christmas business up 50 per cent; heavy run on all goods to be affected by "baby budget"; some Christmas lines already depleted; radios, refrigerators, other electrical goods selling rapidly; sales of expensive articles much higher than last year.

CITY TO OBSERVE BOXING DAY AS HOLIDAY

Mayor to Proclaim Dec. 26th as Public Holiday at Request of Retail Merchants

OTHER BUSINESS

Belleville merchants and their employees will observe Boxing Day, December 26th., this year as Mayor G. E. Thompson was authorized by Council to proclaim that day a public holiday at the regular meeting of the City Council held on Monday evening. The session was the shortest one of the year, although the Council remained in committee for over two hours.

The Mayor was authorized to interview Chief Kidd, requesting that the night parking by-law be strictly enforced. The City Engineer explained to the Council that it was almost impossible to make a good job of the streets with the snow plow, when cars cluttered up the streets. The Mayor promised cooperation in this respect and from now on, anyone leaving a car on the city streets during the winter months will find a ticket on it when they get ready to move off in the morning.

Tenders will be called for leasing of the market according to a recommendation introduced by Ald. Butler. The tenders will be sent to the City Comptroller and the 1941 Council will deal with the matter. A committee of Aldermen Butler, Pringle, the City Solicitor, City Treasurer and the Comptroller, was appointed to investigate the Transients' Traders By-Law and report back to council. A service agreement at a cost of $65.60 a year for the repairing and maintenance of the City Hall typewriters and other machinery was signed with the Burroughs Adding Machine Company. Aldermen Clarke and Armstrong were appointed to interview Mrs. Stuart Lazier relative to a location in connection with Red Cross activities and report back to the Council.

The City Engineer and the Chairman of Public Works were authorized to utilize ashes, cinders collected as garbage for fill along the River roadway subject to the approval of the Board of Health. There were three by-laws introduced and passed through the various stages. An agreement for the removal of snow with Frank Sparks was renewed at $2.40 per hour plowing time, a deed of conveyance was given J. C. McCarthy and Len Fozard for property recently purchased from the city. Ald. Jeffery was in the chair in the committee of the whole.

Declines Statement Upon War Aims

London, Dec. 10 —(CP)— Prime Minister Churchill declined in the House of Commons today to give a statement of British war aims.

..William Gallacher, Communist, declared that "the Imperial Policy group . . . is proposing a new order in Europe which will be dominated by the pound sterling and the dollar."

"There are such a lot of new orders in Europe," Mr. Churchill replied, "that I really have to confine myself more directly to immediate business."

FUEHRER PAINTS

"I speak very seldom now," Hitler said, "first, because I have very little time.

"The struggle is one between two worlds.

"Here we find 85,000,000 Germans, 46,000,000 English, 45,000,000 Italians and 37,000,000 French.

"Forty-six million Englishmen control 40,000,000 square kilometres, the French only 10,000,000, the Italians 500,000, while 85,000,000 Germans have as foundation for living only 600,000 square kilometres.

Traces German History

Hitler then traced German history from the 30 years' war onward, stressing what he called dynastic selfishness and other factors which made necessary the bending of all energies toward internal affairs in Germany.

Meanwhile, he said, "Britain put together a tremendous empire by force."

Italy like Germany was torn within herself, he said.

"Rich regions yield better returns domestically than poor ones," he said. "Similarly, international possession of rich regions is important.

Individuals and Nations

"Just as within nations too great contrasts between rich and poor must be adjusted, if necessary by force, so also internationally it won't do for a few to have all the possessions while others are suppressed.

"We tried to solve the problem by appeals to common sense. We tried to bridge the chasm between those who had too much and those with too little.

"We preferred common sense to force. The right to live belongs to all nations. It won't do for one people to say 'We'll let you others take part in our life.' It isn't a question of charity. It is a question of obtaining one's rights.

"When we took over we demanded first national unity as this was necessary for giving us the necessary strength to satisfy our claims."

Hitler then traced domestic achievements of the Nazi regime. He said he tried to bring about national unity by an appeal to reason. But during 15 years he was scoffed at as he worked his way to the top, he said.

Claims Germany Swept Clean

During seven years after coming to power the Nazi regime has removed much, he said. Old conceptions were overthrown, state lines were removed and Germany, he maintained, was swept clean.

"My second demand," he said, "was the removal of foreign political oppression as exemplified in the Versailles treaty whereby, among other things, our colonies and possessions were taken from us.

"In other words, my second demand was to fight against Versailles. I said this even when I was still a soldier.

"The rest of the world didn't want our national unity, and it was determined to continue the Versailles system.

"American and English observers patently spoke of the haves and have nots. We English, we Americans, we French are haves, and whoever hasn't must remain satisfied with not having. To some, I was the representative of the have nots.

"Now again, I enter the fight as the representative of the have nots."

Hitler was interrupted here by applause.

Hitler Attacks Democracy

"It is interesting to observe, Hitler continued, "the mode of living of the rich. They had so-called democracy . . .

"It is said this means rule by the people. But when you look closer the people as such have not an opinion—it is placed before them. Now, who places this viewpoint before them? Why, it is capitalism!

"The slogan of liberty really means freedom of economy, namely for everybody to grab for himself without state control. Capital first makes the newspapers subservient. The lord of the so-called free press is the man who supplies the capital, this press moulds public opinion. The papers appear according to poltical parties, but in reality there is no difference between them.

Claims No Real Oposition in Democracy

"Now one might suppose that in hands of freedom and democracy everybody lived in plenty. The contrary is true. Nowhere is the standard of the masses lower."

Hitler spoke of India where, he claimed, the direst poverty reigns. There and elsewhere, the workers live in the worst hovels imaginable, he asserted, and the unemployment problem remains completely unsolved.

"Rich America has 12 to 13 million unemployed annually," he declared.

Says Few Capitalists Rule World

Only a few hundred capitalists rule the world, Hitler asserted.

He sought to poke fun at an "English opposition leader," whom he quoted as saying that after the war travel also must become available to the masses.

Declares English Leaders Fear German Ideas

"It's natural for the English leaders to say they don't want their world to go under," Hitler declared, "because they fear Germany's new ideas may spring over to England.

"They say: 'We don't like these methods.' What were those methods? I am proud that the revolution occurred in 1933 without a single window being smashed.

"They claim in England that we have terrorized liberty. Yes, that's true, namely when freedom was at the expense of the common weal. Certainly, we won't permit anybody freely to dispose of his earnings if, thereby, the common weal is interfered with."

Pokes Fun at Directors

Hitler poked fun at directors of big concerns who eat well, travel comfortably and draw large pay for this "difficult" activity. The workers greeted the passage with applause.

Germany, Hitler said, has done away with all these things. At the same time, he said, Naxism does not believe in every individual being equal.

"Two worlds are in conflict," he went on, "two philosophies of life. They say we should help keep up the gold standard—of course, for they have the gold and we haven't. In the course of 15 years all our gold has been taken away from us."

Now, Hitler said, Germany has "a different economic conception."

"We place our confidence," he declared, "in the ability of the German people and the intelligence of our technicians, chemists, inventors, organizers of inventors, etc.

"Should we go to pieces, I asked myself, because we have no gold?

Says Germans Will Defeat World

"Our capacity for work is our gold, our capital and with it we will defeat the entire world.

"I built up my entire economy on the conception of work. Those who had gold have failed completely. You can't get anybody to take British pounds even if you throw them after them. Our German mark without gold is worth more than gold.

"If I had said publicly eight or nine years ago that our problem would be where to get enough labor, people would have said I was crazy. But today we have one problem—where do we get workers? Work creates work."

Admits Some Hardships

Hitler then went into Germany's rationing system. He acknowledged that it had created some hardships, but he claimed that, because it was applied from the very beginning of the war, Germany is better off than the other warring countries.

He also said men from the humblest ranks now hold the highest positions in the country.

"We have generals today," he said, "who 22 or 23 years ago were privates or non-commissioned officers . . .

"Our ideal is that every position in the country shall be filled by a true son of the people.

"We want a state in which birth matters nothing and achievement means everything. For this we are ism. Contrasted with this is the working with tremendous fanatic idea of our enemies—a fight for egoism, for capital, for individual and family privileges.

"Our enemies know that if they succumb when they have bought all their gold in vain, then family dynasties will be removed and there will be a collapse."

"Hitler said "one of these two worlds must break asunder."

"The traffic signals," he said, "are now placed as follows: Gold versus labor."

Hitler said he had big plans for his people.

Wants to Make Country Beautiful

"I want to make our country beautiful," he declared. "I want the theatres to be for everybody. For all this I wanted our manpower available—not for armaments."

He traced what he described as his various offers to disarm, to ban air fights.

"But I am not a man who does things half way," he went on. "When once I have decided on my course I am filled with boundless fanaticism. When I realized that others didn't want to accept my proposals, I decided to act."

He described himself as "a little simple unknown soldier" and contrasted himself with Winston Churchill, the late Neville Chamberlain and other British leaders.

He rested his faith, he said, on Germany's common man.

"Germany cannot go under so long as she has such men as these simple souls who fought side by side with me. They say I have an inferiority complex toward the English. They're crazy. I never had that.

"I made offer after offer to the English, but there wasn't anything to be done—they wanted war. For seven years, Churchill said 'I want war.' Now he has it."

A slight car accident occurred Saturday evening on the main street in Bancroft in which a car driven by John Kerr and one driven by Sanford Woodcock sideswiped each other. According to police both drivers had ample space in which to pass each other. A charge of careless driving will be laid against both drivers.

Walking up the Hastings Road this week Pat Kelly a resident of that vicinity noticed a large bird floundering up the centre of the road in the fresh snow. On nearing the bird he discovered it to be a quite a sized loon. This to Mr. Kelly seemed quite a coincidence as the loon is entirely a water bird but had evidently been forced down by the sleet and rain, which was falling at the time. Mr. Kelly succeeded in catching the bird and brought it up to town and turned it over to the Provincial Police Officer S. W. Palmateer. He in turn immediately took the bird to the river where it replenished its thirst with several hearty gulps, taxied over the rivers surface out of sight apparently happy, that it had once again reached its natural haunts.

Mr. Ross Viscoff returned home Saturday evening from Sudbury where in the past he was an employee of the nickle mines at Coppercliff.

Mr. C. Stoughton motored to Belleville on Sunday.

Among those returning home from outlying points for the week end were Miss June Walker of Madoc, Mr. Reginald MacCormack of Marmora and Mr. Cecil Wiggins of Belleville.

Mrs. Andrew Frantz, of Wicklow Township underwent a major operation in the Red Cross Hospital at Bancroft Sunday evening, Dr. S. S. Lumb being the attending surgeon.

Dr. D. M. Rouse, local dentist motored to Kingston Sunday where he has been recently attached to the Military dental corps of that district, being accompanied by Mr. M. Burns of the village.

Most of the stores in the village have decorated their places of business for the Christmas season, having the Christmas stock displayed in the windows and on the counters.

Warden J. L. Churcher returned home Saturday afternoon from Belleville after attending the December session of the County Council.

S. W. Palmateer, Provincial Police, G. P. Wells, County Constable and Walter Scott of the Department of Highways, all of Bancroft, returned home the later end of the week after attending the Herrington-Kellaway trial.

Motorists Continue To Drive With Caution

Motorists continue to drive their vehicles with caution along city streets and district highways as is indicated in the minimum number of accidents which have occurred in and near Belleville during the current hazardous motoring conditions which followed the week-end mild spell.

A minor motor transport accident occurred two miles west of Deseronto early Tuesday morning when a large Motorways transport, driven by Kenneth Gilmour of Ottawa, collided with a parked transport, Motorcycle Patrolman C. E. Siple reported.

Two large transports were parked on either side of the highway exchanging drivers as Gilmour drove between them. The trailer of his transport skidded in an icy rut and the vehicle skidded into the side of the parked transport.

Within the city limits the service of garage tow trucks was at a premium as motor cars were seen to slither and skid into deep snow, piled along the city curbs as the result of the activities of the city snow plough. Ice-covered city parking lots proved quite dangerous for driving when glaring ice formed, making traction practically impossible. Drivers proceeded with care and caution, however, and no serious motor accidents resulted.

WILL ASSIST AUSTRALIA

Sydney, Dec. 9 (CP Cable) — Charles J. Burchall, Canadian High Commissioner in Australia, in a speech at Canberra today said Canada's new tariff changes are likely to be of assistance to Australia.

He pointed particularly to the prohibition of imports of canned and dried fruits and wines from non-sterling countries, giving Australia a chance to increase exports in these lines to Canada.

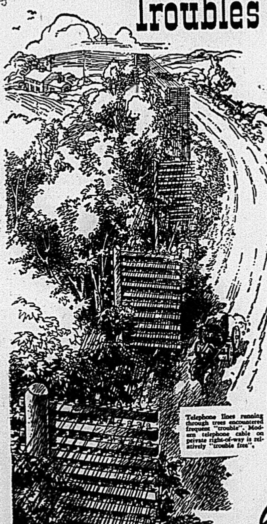
"Troubles" of days gone by...

MODERN telephone plant is built to offer maximum resistance to "trouble" of any sort. When trouble does occur, we aim to make repairs before your service is affected.

Sixty years of telephone research and operation add up to a great deal of specialized experience. Telephone engineers can now anticipate with greater accuracy the causes leading to trouble. They don't wait for wear and tear, or an emergency to announce itself; they attack it before it interferes! This activity is called "preventive maintenance" — and telephone people are very proud of it.

The cumulative effect of preventive maintenance, plus improved design, reduced troubles per telephone by 43 per cent in the period 1926 to 1929 and this improvement continues. Since then "trouble" once in 8 months per telephone has been reduced to an average of one trouble in 14 months! Performance at peak efficiency is demanded — and as far as is humanly possible, is delivered to every user of telephone service.



Telephone lines running through trees encountered frequent "trouble". Modern telephone cable on private rights-of-way is relatively "trouble free".

DUCE'S VANITY SUFFERS IRREPARABLY

Mussolini renamed a port in Albania (named for Forty Saints) after his daughter, the Countess Edda Ciano, when he and the Fascists drove King Zog from his throne and took the country in one of the most reprehensible thefts of territory in all history.

He did it to suit his own vanity as conqueror, to pay tribute to his daughter Edda who is credited with being a moving force in the family, even with dominating her father, and to honor Count Ciano, her husband.

The motive was that of a selfish man. Vanity is the weakness of that bombastic fellow who calls himself the Duce of Italy.

Today the world sees not only a terrific smash at Fascist Italy's prestige as a fighting force but also a blow to Mussolini's egoism. What fury this Italian Duce must be in after what the Greeks have done to his reputation! What an insult has he suffered—to have his army thrown bodily out of Greece which he had invaded and then to be forced to retreat and retreat and retreat out of Albania which he conquered only because he stole in by surprise on a Good Friday! Italy's Fascists thought Greece would yield. And Greece has given the Italian regime the most sensational setback any nation has ever had. Fascist Italy, boastful and claiming the Mediterranean as its own sea, looked down on the descendants of the men who fought at Thermopylae and Marathon and thought them no match for the Fascist regime that loved to name itself among the seven Great Powers. Greece has a conscience and a sense of right, and took the heroic resolve. That iron resolve stands. But the Fascists have shown no resolution. All the Fascist troops have been doing in the war's six weeks is yielding steadily to the Greeks until today a good share of Mussolini's ill-gotten spoil has been lost in Albania.

If retribution ever caught up with a man who boasted of what he had not—common sense — and who possessed vanity to a silly degree, it has done so in the case of Mussolini and the troupe of men who follow him. His armies are defeated and retreating, and some of his leaders are giving up their posts.

So far Mussolini has not had a single chance of a gain against the Greeks. The Greeks mean business, they will make the comic opera figure masquerading as a dictator of the world's destiny, continue his flight.

One may wonder what Mussolini thinks Julius Caesar would think of him for all the demagoguery of which Il Duce has been guilty, and for the sorry mess he has let the Italian nation in for.

Even Mussolini's title "Duce," which is Italian for leader, was stolen from Gabriel d'Annunzio, and Mussolini after taking it has not shown the slightest right to its use for he is not a leader in any sense but rather a misleader of his nation and of Europe.

Today the world is witnessing what a crime has been committed against civilization by the rise of this weak man to power and by the emergence of Hitler, who in anger and bitterness brought war upon the world and untold misery. When the world needed strong men, it found in Italy a boaster, and in Germany a violent figure, who came on the scene to seize what they could of nations weak after the First Great War.

But vengeance comes. The world sees through the torn "canvas and camouflage" which is the guise of the Fascists.

THE WORD 'WICKED'

Britain's Prime Minister has revived the use of the word "wicked." In a recent speech he referred to Adolf Hitler as "this wicked man."

The word has fallen into general disuse in the full meaning of the term. It is true it is used in the Biblical sense by the clergy in their sermons and is read in the services of the church but last century it tended to take on the significance of "roguishness" or "mischievousness" as one sometimes speaks of a "wicked" or "playful" horse, surely a weak meaning out of agreement with the original thought.

The word demands its old and sinister meaning. When Mr. Churchill used it, he called upon the one word in the noble English tongue that would fit the German Fuehrer. Mr. Churchill, head of the British Government, and master of his mother tongue, uses the word with all of its Biblical significance as meaning unrighteous, unholy, sinful and in the sense of guilt of wrongdoing. The Bible phrase "the wicked" has a very definite meaning and bears the deepest significance as it points to the state of those who are so named.

Most assuredly those men of Germany and Italy who brought this war upon the world out of vengeance and greed are in the fullest sense of the word "wicked" used in the significance of deceit, injustice, vileness, unholiness and sinfulness.

An officer of the United States Marine Corps lifted himself half out of his chair and fairly barked the words at those who sat around him:

Weird Accidents

Chicago, Dec. 10 (AP).—Fortune indulged in some dizzy antics in 1940.

That became apparent today when Paul Jones of the National Safety Council made public his selection of the oddest accidents of the year.

Among the rarest were these:

Joseph Callahan of Chicago had always enjoyed cordial relations with his false teeth. But one day he dozed and slipped from his chair. His plates landed, tooth-side up, on the floor. Mr. Callahan's head came down in the same spot. The result was a vicious bite in the forehead.

Bob Forde, strolling along in Marysville, Cal., wondered why two men approaching him were walking so far apart. He decided to go between them and . . . crash! He didn't know they were carrying a large sheet of window glass.

Eugene Ramsey, a carpenter of Bugaw, N.C., was fashioning a mouse trap—a better one, of course. And...zing!...the snapper banged shut on his finger. He hurled the contraption under the kitchen stove. It struck a mouse and killed it.

A dignified old gentleman was standing on a safety island in Chicago, waiting for a street car. Suddenly a passing cab swerved to avoid striking an automobile. The back door flew open. It scooped up the prospective trolley patron and deposited him on the floor of the taxi.

As Ralph Lyman of Clarinda, Iowa, hurried to answer the telephone he slipped and fell, but crawled painfully to the phone and heard the voice on the other end say:

"This is Doctor Burnett. Can you come right over and look at my furnace? It's broken."

New bathroom scales are hinged to a wall into which they fold when not in use and latches for bathroom doors have been invented that are operated only by knobs inside the doors.

Americans Lend Helping Hand

Quite apart from war supplies, in the humanitarian field the United States are stretching out a friendly and helping hand to the people of Great Britain. Famous doctors, nurses and social workers are already in England carrying out relief work. Other units are expected in England shortly.

Later it is hoped to establish American hospitals in Britain towards meeting the emergency needs of civilians, soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Behind the Allied Relief Fund of America, which is sponsoring many emergency medical units and special services, are many influential and wealthy people from all parts of the United States. The President of the Fund is Winthrop Aldrich, President of the Chase National Bank of New York. Where ever possible American units are staffed by voluntary helpers who have come from North or South America.

The American Red Cross, which has vast funds at its disposal, is working in Britain with the full approval of the Ministry of Health. It is bearing all expenses for the erection and maintenance of a hospital. The personnel of the hospital will be mainly American. They have either crossed the Atlantic specially for the work, or are Americans who have lived in Great Britain for a number of years. The doctors will be provided by the Harvard University Medical School. Twenty-five specially trained nurses have been selected from the Register of the American Red Cross organization, which has 45,000 names on its first reserve list. As other nurses are needed, so they will be dispatched from the States.

The hospital is for the treatment of communicable diseases and will have 100 beds. It will treat both civil and military patients. It is realized by the American Red Cross that a great deal of valuable research work can be carried out in such diseases, their causes and prevention, and apart from the immediate humane side, data may be obtained which can be used for the help of humanity at large.

The foundation work on the hospital site is being prepared by the Ministry of Health. They are also laying the cables for electricity; pipes for gas and for water. The building itself will be shipped from the United States and erected on the prepared site. It is of course, a temporary hospital and is to be built of durable, weatherproof ply wood.

The nursing unit is expected to arrive in Great Britain shortly and it is hoped to have the hospital in full working order within the next few months.

The Allied Relief Fund of America is sponsoring a number of special services, including the assistance of air raid victims. In London, headquarters of the organization have been established and thousands of pounds worth of surgical material, bandages, lint, instruments, clothing, shoes and wool are arriving. The goods are unpacked and then repacked for dispatch to the areas where they are most needed. The back of the building now resembles an enormous warehouse with a staff working double shifts to keep up a regular movement of supplies to any part of the British Isles. It is estimated that 60 miles of surgical dressing alone have already been sent out.

Recent arrivals in England are Dr. Phillip Wilson with a special medical units sponsored by the Allied Relief, and five X-ray instruments of the most up-to-date type, each costing £1,000. This special units consists of five famous American Orthopaedic surgeons, Drs. Richard Ferguson, Frederick Waknit, Donald Dial, Charles Bradford and Wilson. Dr. John Converse is the plastic surgeon, and Dr. Norman Egel the general surgeon.

Accompanying them are three operating theatre nurses, and two women medical secretaries. An interesting point about this unit is that Mrs. Converse, who was born in England, acts as plastic artist for her husband. The leader of the unit, Dr. Wilson, served with the Australians in the last war.

The personnel of the Medical Unit are now serving in different hospitals throoughout Great Britain "getting their hand in". When the need arises it is expected they will establish an American hospital for 1,000 patients which will be put up and maintained by American money.

Two hundred and sixty vehicles for use as ambulances, transport for surgical teams and motorized First Aid posts have been provided by American funds sponsored by the American Ambulance (Great Britain). These units work under the direction of the British Ministry of Health, and drivers are provided by the American Ambulance.

Fotry mobile canteens have been equipped and presented to the Young Men's Christian Association They are maintained by the U.S. funds.

Americans living in Great Britain have already subscribed something over £150,000 towards the upkeep of these services. The story of their decision to help in this way is interesting.

Last May the American Society in London met to discuss how to celebrate Independence Day on July 4. Mr. Gilbert Carr an executive of the Society suggested that it was inappropriate to talk of celebrations at such a time. He urged that the Society should commemorate the occasion in a manner that would benefit Great Britain. Following his suggestion. funds poured in from Americans all over the British Isles.—British Minister of Information.

Canada's Ski Troops

By John Hall

Coming like wraiths out of the swirling snow, white clad figures glided by without sound. They emerged briefly from a colorless background, and in the half light of a December morning merged back in their surroundings. These were Canada's Army ski instructors on the march. They came and went like ghosts, only the black stocks of the rifles slung across their shoulders and the mittened hands which guided their ski-poles breaking the formless figures as they moved and manoeuvred over hill and through the black trunks of the leafless trees.

Fourteen or so below zero, the snow thick but crisp and crystalline on the surface, were the conditions faced and found favorable by the future instructors of Canada's ski troops when they took their preliminary practical work on the slopes of the Experimental Farm at Ottawa. Equipped with their service uniforms, battle dress for all ranks, they were completely covered by white parka and mantle of light but wind-resistant material. They carried rifles slung, and after an hour's patrol from their headquarters prepared to put in a strenuous morning's work.

Three patrols have been organized among the 44 officers and other ranks making up this instructional school. Lieut. T. P. Gilday of the Grenadier Guards, Montreal, latterly of Sudbury, Ont., is the chief instructor, qualified by his long and practical experience in skiing and particularly famed for his cross-country work. There are others, famous as ski men with the three patrols of instructors, but what they are studying is not so much the finer and more spectacular points in the art of skiing, with which many of them are familiar, but the far grimmer task of movement as troops, scouts and patrols in war time.

This is why their syllabus contains such strange drills as the "Bear Walk" and that sort of manoeuvre familar to us as children where we reclined on skis and used them as a toboggan to coast down hill. When you observe a patrol Bear Walking, if you can observe them, you witness perfection in the art of silent movement and of camouflage.

All their three weeks of instruction will not, however, be taken up with this form of work. Since these students are to return to their units to become instructors their syllabus of training includes care of personnel in the open under the most rigorous weather conditions as well as the care of skis, harness and weapons. Woodcraft, the making of shelters, how to produce fire under the most unfavorable circumstances, concealment and camouflage; all have their place of importance in the instructional scheme. The fundamental drills also are carried out not with the ease of the infantryman but generally speaking along the same lines. Intervals between men and spaces between ranks are of course much greater for ski-equipped troops and they can, if necessary, move in fairly close order.

Their practical work also will include long cross country patrols, both walking and running and a night spent out in the field. Altogether, a complete course has been drafted for the school by the Training Directorate of the General Staff at National Defence Headquarters to be thoroughly studied before the school ends on December 21st.

After that, each participant returns to his unit to become an instructor. Selected units will be issued with skis for general use and as many will use them as can be instructed. Skis will not be issued to individuals as rifles are, but will be maintained for use in training all ranks and not any specially selected personnel. As an officer of the Directorate of Military Training explains, it is not expected to develop finished ski-troops nor is that the objective, but to teach troops to move on skis, so that they may be able to operate and not become immobilized by snow. Camps, where men are congregated in numbers, will be issued with a number of skis for use as a pool, from which they can be drawn for instruction as required. Instruction, therefore, will be carried on in the New Year in individual units, in camps, and in other centres where the G.O.C. of a command or other authority may require.

Assistance and cooperation have been offered by numerous ski-clubs and their instructors and it is intended to take full advantage of these offers. They will help to supplement the efforts of all the following, who are now undergoing training and instruction at the Ottawa School:

Democracy At It's Best

Democracy gave a truly thrilling exhibition in the British House of Commons recently. In the very heart of an empire that is battling for its survival, in a country whose leaders and people have vowed that they would die rather than surrender, three pacifist members of Parliament brought forward a motion calling for immediate peace "in a spirit of compromise." They were not beheaded for high treason. They were not flung into a concentration camp. They were able to argue their case freely and their speeches were reported in the newspapers because they were simply exercising their rights as the elected representatives of free men. The Deputy Prime Minister, Mr. Attlee, replied to them, and the House then voted by 341 to 4 against the motion. That was all. The four who wanted peace will be back in the House taking part in debates on the conduct of the war.

What now becomes of the fatuous idea that British democracy is dead or dying? Can any free country do better than this to prove that its freedom still lives? The British Parliament, it is true, has entrusted the government with immense wartime powers affecting the life and property of every British subject. Yet the immemorial liberties still remain: the freedom to speak, to criticize, to worship, to think. The British people are free to listen to German broadcasts and to read German communiques in the newspapers. The processes of law and order continue. If the Government seems guilty of arbitrary injustice, it is attacked from press and public platform. If the Government proposes a tax which seems unfair or a law which seems uncalled for, it can be forced to yield. And if Parliament could vote almost unanimously against a "peace" resolution, it would be perfectly free to vote in favor of peace, and compel a new Government to make peace, if Parliament chose to do so.

It is important for the world to be reminded that the British Parlaiment and people are resolved to continue their struggle until victory is won. There is no chance of peace, no serious talk of peace now, for the British people know perfectly well that any compromise with Hitler is equivalent to defeat and surrender. But it is just as important to know that a "peace" resolution, however it may outrage the most sacred convictions of the British people, can be discussed openly and freely in the midst of war. As Mr. Attlee truly said yesterday, the debate "would not be tolerated in any other country at war." "I believe," he said, "it will show our strength."

He was right. It will show again that democracy lives in the flesh and blood and soul of the British people. It will show that totalitarian ideas have no more chance of crumbling British resistance than a wind that blows against a towering mountainside.—New York Times.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

Spending the Latter Years of Age

I have spoken before of the man of seventy who was asked why it was that his brothers had all died in their fifties. He stated that he was the only one of the family who had a poor appetite and suffered with indigestion. His poor appetite and his indigestion had prevented him from overeating and he had had to be careful about the food eaten. It might be a real benefit if some men and women were to develop some ailment that would prevent them from being too active and eating too much as they grow older.

Research workers tell us that the average individual reaches the height of his physical strength and activity at the age of fifty, that his strength—heart, bloodvessels particularly—remain at this height until he is fifty-five and from fifty-five he begins to go gradually downhill as far as the strength of his heart and bloodvessels are concerned.

Dr. Frederick A. Willins, Mayo Clinic, in the Medical Clinics of North America says that man spends the first twenty-five years of his life preparing to be mature, to learn a trade, an occupation, or a profession that will actively engage him for the second twenty-five years. When this has been achieved successfully, his daily work of the second twenty-five years requires increasing application, activity and responsibility and the stress and strain required to carry on this daily work is increased.

Unfortunately during this second twenty-five years man doesn't plan how to live the third twenty-five years, that is the year when he is past his prime years of life. It is at this time, before he reaches the fifty to fifty-five years of age, that he should try to plan what to do during the third twenty-five years. Many men and women work straight ahead with never a thought except that they do not want to be dependent on others for their livelihood. Now, trying to be free of financial worries in the latter years is to be commended but Dr. Willins points out that over-ambition to achieve has often lured man to his own destruction as he carries on till some vital structure fails and he becomes an invalid. He should take things more easily and be thinking of how best to enjoy his declining years by having not one hobby in mind but more than one.

Thus should some infirmity — poor eyesight, poor hearing arthritis—develop, he will not be without some interest in life. In other words, he is at his best, as he reaches fifty, his judgments as to what to do when he is older, is also at its best.

Stewart Says—

With Eye on '44, How Can Willkie Make a Living?

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Canadian Columnist

The Congressional fight over the extension of more American aid to Britain in the latter's conflict with the Axis powers will not break out until the lawmakers convene in January for their next session. but it promises to be a good one when it does start.

Chas. P Stewart

The pro-aid element wants two things in particular:

1.—Modification of the U.S. neutrality law so as to permit Yankee ships to carry cargoes into the war zone.

2.—Repeal of the Johnson Act. by the U.S. to any of those in default on repayment of loans the U.S. made them in connection with the last world war.

So-called isolationists will contest both of these proposals to the last ounce of their energy, on the ground that their adoption inevitably shortly will involve the U.S. physically in the overseas struggle. The two plans advocates maintain that they'll do no such thing.

Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota was the author of the original neutrality law. Since Congress first passed it it has been qualified considerably. Even yet, however, it keeps U.S. merchant shipping out of belligerent waters. To let American craft begin venturing into them now, Nye argues, certainly will be followed soon by a series of sinkings, and after a few of them, doubtless attended by the loss of some American lives, the North Dakotan forecasts that public opinion will turn so rampageous that it will force the U.S into hostilities, even if the government prefers otherwise. And Nye hints pretty strongly that he doesn't believe the present administration is averse to participation in the disturbance.

Johnson's Law

Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, invented the anti-loan law bearing his name.

He put it through Congress just as the U.S. was trying to collect what was owing to America from the last war's financing. The Allied nations, not wanting to pay, were referring to America at that juncture as Uncle Shylock. This made the U.S. exceedingly sore, so Hiram had little trouble getting his bill passed right then.

Under today's conditions there's considerable sentiment in favor of letting John Bull buy from the U.S. on tick some more. It'll only be done over Hi's senatorial body, though. Hi's contention is that, if they allow the British to run up another huge bill, they'll have to fight for 'em to protect their investment, same as last time.

The isolationist bloc on Capitol Hill is largely Republican, it's to be noted. Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas is conspicuous in it, besides Senators Johnson and Nye—all G.O.P. solons.

Nevertheless, several anti-New Deal Democrats are sympathetic.

All told, there'll be enough at least to put up a stiff scrap against another pruning of the Nye neutrality and the Johnson anti-loan laws.

Still, there's a weakening of isolationistic feeling and it isn't confined to Congress. For instance, early in the last war (long before American entrance into it) Editor William Allen White of the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette ran an editorial in his newspaper movingly appealing to the U.S. to maintain the strictest neutrality, as guardians of "the sacred arc of civilization". Today he is head of America's outstanding "help Britain" organization.

The Roosevelt administration, it's to be remarked, isn't especially hollering for neutrality law modification or for anti-loan law repeal.

These changes are urged by intives, but not yet by the White House. Individual lawmakers, however, already are vociferous. But they're due to run into plenty of opposition in January from the isolationistic group.

Publisher Advocates Repeal of the U. S. Neutrality Act

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 10—(CP)—James G. Stahlman, publisher of The Nashville Banner and twice president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, yesterday called for repeal of the United States' Neutrality Act and declared "The time has come when America must furnish ships and convoys in order to supply England with her war needs." He also urged that the United States lend Great Britain money.

"Either we help England to the utmost, or we battle it alone," he wrote in his column which appeared on The Banner's front page.

"I've made my choice. I've debated it for days and weeks and months. I've argued every angle. Each time I come to the same conclusion: we'd better battle it out with England than battle it out alone.

"That's all there is to it. It may mean actual war. It may not."

Stahlman said the United States would be taking a step toward war by furnishing ships and convoys for Britain "but so was the abrogation of the arms embargo." He added: "Let's be honest with ourselves and repeal the Neutrality Act. Then we'll be out in the open."

Premature to Judge Action

The military correspondent for Reuters' News Agency said cautiously the Egyptian operations still are in a preliminary stage, and that it's premature to discuss ultimate possibilities.

He recalled, however guarded statements by War Secretary Anthony Eden upon his return from Egypt recently to the effect that when operations in Egypt started, they would resolve themselves into "a fierce struggle on a wide front." The correspondent suggested that "that fight has now begun."

The main British assault, which began at dawn yesterday and continued through the day and into the night, apparently was launched against the Italian right flank in the Sidi Barrani zone at a point about 30 miles from the Mediterranean Sea coast.

Approximately 500 Italians were captured there, advices from the front said, and an equal number was seized when British forces fell upon an Italian camp at Mabeya, a few miles from the coast.

R.A.F. Takes Part

The Royal Air Force and Royal Naval Units off the Egyptian coast were reported to have taken part in the operations. No indication of the number of troops involved in yesterday's fighting was given.

It has been estimated, however, the Italians have six divisions—72,000 to 90,000 men—available for fighting on the Northern Egyptian front.

The Italians have been inactive on the Egyptian front since they penetrated to Sidi Barrani last September. The British, meanwhile, have been busy strengthening their defences and improving communications lines.

STEWARDESS SUCCUMBS

Pretty Florence Little, ABOVE, was the stewardess aboard the ice-coated air liner from New York that missed the Chicago airport in a swirling snow, crashed into a vacant lot a block away and burned. Taken to hospital with a fractured skull, Miss Little died of her injuries. Six died in the crash and the other nine persons aboard were seriously hurt.

Prisoners of War Allowed Two Letters At Christmas Time

dxx--- 7E)..tl..

Ottawa, Dec. 10—(CP)—Prisoners of war—fighting men and civilians—in internment camps in Canada are going to be allowed to receive two letters at Christmas rather than the one letter and one postcard they usually are allowed during any one week.

It was learned authoritatively Monday that whatever other arrangements are made in the camps for the yule celebration will be made by such organizations as the Y.M.C.A. or by the prisoners themselves.

Officials would not be surprised if some good mock goose were developed out of the regular soldiers' ration supplied the camp cooks, themselves prisoners.

Any body of men that includes persons who can make a radio out of a typewriter, it is argued, ought to be able to make mock goose out of whatever is handy. Radios are not allowed in the camps and as a result of the prisoners' ingenuity at producing their own sets, typewriters now have been removed. But the method of turning them into radios remains a secret of inventors and officials.

Feels Like Different Woman Since Syntona Built Her Up

Suffered with Stomach Gas and Acidity, Headaches, Nervousness and Sleeplessness. Was Underweight, Weakened and Rundown.

The great popularity of Syntona is not surprising, for this medicine actually does give grand results, as vouched for by the many grateful men and women who have used it. Compounded from no less than 12 of Nature's Finest Medicinal Herbs, and not one harmful drug, it aids in assimilation of food and elimination of excess acids and irritating waste matter. Syntona is pleasant to take and many who have used it say that, even after the first few days, the whole system takes on a new feeling of energy and vigor. Read here, the experience of Mrs. May Hughes, 326 St. George St., London, as reported recently.

"After a serious illness I found myself in a badly run-down and weakened condition. I couldn't seem to regain my strength and I kept losing weight until I was down to NINETY-FOUR POUNDS. My nerves were bad and my stomach was so upset that I couldn't digest my food properly. The food just seemed to sour in my stomach and cause gas, acidity and nervous headaches. My tongue was always coated, my complexion was sallow and my breath was bad.

"I had tried different tonics without any success, but I wasn't taking Syntona long before I could tell it was really helping me. It rid me of that gas and indigestion, so my nerves became calmed and I could get some badly needed sleep. I am free of those miserable headaches now, and in the few weeks that I was taking Syntona, my weight came back to one hundred and eighteen pounds. My complexion is back to normal now and I feel so much better in every way that I can hardly realize I am the same person."

Every weak, ailing, rundown person is cordially invited to call at Dolan's Drug Store, Belleville, and learn the plain, truthful facts about Syntona. Find out how it can help you, too.

Canadian Trade Commission on Way To Barranquilla

Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 10 (CP Cable)—The Canadian Trade Mission to the West Indies and South America left here by plane Monday for Barranquilla, Colombia.

Before starting the 400-mile flight over the Caribbean, the Trade Minister, Hon. J. A. MacKinnon told newsmen the Jamaica visit had been highly satisfactory. He looked for increased trade between Canada and this colony, he said.

The delegation was here four days.

"We had a wonderful visit," Mr. MacKinnon declared just before leaving. He said he could not name any specific points on which agreements had been reached, since this was a matter for the respective government.

Excellent arrangements had been made here with a view to having the visitors meet the greatest possible number of producers and suppliers, he said.

L. D. Wilgress, Canadian Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce, declared: "We now understand better the problems of Jamaica and the information gained will be of great assistance to us in studying questions regarding Jamaica's trade on our return to Ottawa."

"When the war is over," he added, "we will have to study further measures to be taken to bring about closer relations."

Letter Written By Columbus Brings $1,000

New York, Dec. 10—(AP) — A copy of a letter by Christopher Columbus relating his discovery of America was sold for $1,600 Monday night as manuscripts and rare books of renowned men and women went on the auction block in a Red Cross drive to raise money for Great Britain.

The letter, written in 1494 and containing the earliest woodcut views of America, went to John W. Garrett, of Baltimore, Md.

It remained for one of Britain's own — Geoffrey Chaucer, the 14th century poet—to stir up a triple play sale. State Supreme Court Justice Irwin Untermyer bought "The Works of Geoffrey Chaucer, Kelmscott Edition," for $1,000. He resold it for $800 to Arthur Houghton, book collector who sold it for $850 to Harry Levinson, another collector.

London, Dec. 10—(CP)—The Admiralty announced today thirteen merchant ships totalling 52,229 tons were sunk by enemy action in the week ended Dec. 1, compared with weekly average of 65 weeks of war of approximately 62,000 tons.

The latest report included nine British ships totalling 41,360 tons, three Allied ships totalling 5,734 tons and one neutral ship of 5,135 tons.

It was added that the Germans claimed they sank 227,500 tons of shipping in the week ended Dec. 1.

Today's figure was down 35,000 tons from the previous week and was approximately one-quarter of the highest week's losses in recent months, the 198,000 tons sunk in the week of Oct. 14-21.

Destroyer Strength Of Canadian Navy Is Eleven

Ottawa, Dec. 10—(CP)—Pending repairs to the destroyer Saguenay, damaged by an enemy torpedo in the eastern Atlantic, the destroyer strength of the Royal Canadian Navy is 11.

When the war began, Canada had seven destroyers. Sinking of the Fraser off Bordeaux, France, last June reduced this strength to six, but the Fraser was replaced soon after by the Margaree, transferred from the Royal Navy.

Subsequently, the R.C.N. obtained six of the 50 United States destroyers traded to Britain in exchange of defence base sites in the western hemisphere.

Thus, for a time, Canada had 13 destroyers, but loss of the Margaree in a North Atlantic collision last October reduced the strength to 12.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at the paper while we were waiting for pop to come home, saying, I'd like to see this new picture at the Narcississ, but I know without asking him that your father would object to any picture called Tropical Love, with or without Viola Latour, but especially with. Oh well, maybe he'll unbend after dinner. Fortunately we have liver and onions and that ought to help, she said.

Wich it seemed to, pop leaning back with a sattisfied expression after his 3rd helping and saying, Oh boy, did I eat? Oh boy, I did. Now what the doctor orders is to go up and put on my old maroon smoking jacket and install myself in my old arm chair with a new Queen Billie cigar, he said, and ma said Now Willyum, whatever induced you to drag that old maroon smoking jacket out of the dusty arkives of memory just 3 days after I gave it away to the man from the Help Thy Naybor Association. You know you haven't given that jacket a thought for months, it was just falling apart she said.

On the contrary it was just falling together and it's never been completely out of my thoughts, pop said. Yee gods I'm going up to see if you've given my cigars away to the League for Smokeless Hoboes, he said.

And he went up to the living room, ma saying Oh deer, well that was no moment to introduce the subject of Tropical Love. Oh well, he'll soon forget, time is a great heeler, she said.

And she went up herself and stuck a cushion in back of pop's head, saying, There, isn't that more comfortable? and pop said It's a surprise anyway, I had an idea you might of given all the cusions to the Sissiety for Sickly Sitters.

Proving he hadn't forgotten yet, and after a while he lit his 2nd cigar and ma looked at the clock, saying, This might not be a bad night to take in the show at the Narcississ, and pop said, Why, are they giving away smoking jackets this evening? and ma said No, they're giving away 80 carrot diamond on silver platters.

GREAT IMPETUS TO BUSINESS

Mr. A. E. Arscott Presents Bank's Strong Statement. Payrolls of Canadian wage earners 30 per cent. Above Last Year.

At the Annual Meeting of Shareholders of The Canadian Bank of Commerce held in the Head Office of the Bank in the City of Toronto 10th December Mr. S. H. Logan, President, and Mr. A. E. Arscott, General Manager, presented the Annual Statement of the Bank's operations in the past year, together with a review of Business Conditions. Mr. Arscott's address to the meeting follows:

The Balance Sheet presented to-day shows some substantial changes in comparison with the Statement for 1939 and is of special interest for the reason that it covers the first year of the present war.

Our Total Assets amounted to $704,480,000, being lower by $41,170,000 than the aggregate for 1939. The major change in the Assets occurs in our security holdings which show a decrease of $43,598,000. This downward trend in Total Securities held has its counter reflection chiefly in a reduction of our Liabilities to the Public and in a substantial increase in our Current Loans in Canada.

Total Quick Assets amounted to $395,932,000, being 60.63% of the Total Liabilities to the Public. Our Total Cash Reserves amounted to $119,121,000 represented by Notes of and Deposits with the Bank of Canada and Notes of, Cheques on and Deposits with Other Banks, the equivalent of 18.24% of the Total Liabilities.

ASSETS

Our Current Loans and Discounts in Canada at $219,947,000 show an increase of $18,172,000, which indicates a greater demand by industry for advances in connection with the increased production resulting from war activities. Current Loans and Discounts elsewhere than in Canada at $17,211,000 are lower by $5,380,000.

Our Total Deposits this year stand at $615,074,000 as compared with $662,708,000 last year, a decrease of $47,634,000. Last year, however, I explained when presenting the Statement that the deposits of the Dominion of Canada then showed a substantial increase largely represented by the proceeds of the two year bonds which were purchased from the Dominion in October, 1939, and which had not been withdrawn at the end of the Bank's year. In this Statement the Dominion of Canada deposits with the Bank show a decrease of $22,223,000.

Deposits by the Public Bearing Interest, which largely represent Savings Bank deposits, stood at $348,604,000 as against $374,553,000 last year, a decrease of $25,949,000. This decrease, as I have already mentioned, is the result of withdrawals by depositors for the purpose of investing in the First and Second Dominion of Canada War Loans.

BUSINESS ACTIVITY

With regard to Canadian business conditions during the year, the salient factor has been the intense activity in industrial operations and the preparation to accelerate these further by the opening of a considerable number of newly constructed plants as well as additions to existing establishments under the aegis of the Dominion Government. A year ago the Bank's index of industrial activity, which we publish each month in our Commercial Letter, showed that production was at an all-time high, 12 per cent. above the previous record of 1937. However, at this time the index shows that another record has been established, about 20 per cent. above a year ago, mainly attributable to the increased production of heavy industrial units, machinery and mechanical equipment plants in the past six months. Forestry has also been strongly progressive, as with the cutting off of North European supplies Canada has become the principal source of lumber for the United Kingdom and of pulp and paper for that country, the United States and Latin America. The largest domestic construction programme undertaken since 1930 also contributed to the exceptional demand for forest products, the output of which was one of the highest in the history of the Dominion.

MINERAL PRODUCTION

Mining has also contributed heavily to our war effort. The gold production this year, it is estimated, will amount to $215,000,000, a very important sum to assist us in providing exchange for the payment of materials which it is necessary for us to import to supplement our own supplies for the production of armament. Another branch of the industry, that of minerals used in construction, has also become increasingly important. In addition a large part of a record non-ferrous metal production has been turned into vital sinews of war in a greatly increased number of domestic industrial operations and in the plants of the United Kingdom. The value of mineral production as a whole for the year will probably exceed $500,000,000, the highest in the spectacular history of an industry which is among the most important in the world. It is noteworthy also that this new record was established under stable prices for the major metals and, therefore, as the result of loyal service rather than from profit incentives.

EMPLOYMENT

Another major development in the trend of Canadian business during the year under review has been the increase in employment. The Minister of Finance stated in the House of Commons on 21st November that the index of employment indicated there were 550,000 more employed in Canada than when the war started—350,000 of these in industry and 200,000 in the various war services. With such a strong upward swing in employment it follows that there has been a very substantial increase in the aggregate amount distributed in wage payrolls. In an endeavour to measure the extent of what has occurred in this connection we are compiling, with the kind co-operation of many employers across Canada, a wage index which, having regard to the wide cross section from which we have gathered the particulars, may be regarded as portraying the general situation in this respect. This index, I am pleased to record, indicates that the toal wages paid to Canadian workers in industry, trade, logging, mining, construction and transportation have increased about 30 per cent. The figures available indicate the total payroll of the above group for the year 1939 as approximately $1,330,000,000, which, on using the percentage rise shown by our wage index would represent an increase in the dollar amount for this year of nearly $400,000,000. These additional earnings, represented partly by higher wages, partly by more full time employment and partly by an increase in the number of employed, are the result of the increased tempo of business brought about by the very heavy Government expenditures in connection with Canada's contribution to the war effort of the British Empire. These Government expenditures, if Canada is to do her part, must continue at a high rate. At the present time the Dominion's war expenditures are running at the rate of one billion dollars a year and still increasing. These expenditures must be provided to the fullest extent possible by means of taxes and the balance required by way of the sale of bonds and savings certificates. In the months ahead, therefore, everyone should save from salaries, wages and all other sources of income to the limit of his or her ability and lend these savings to the Dominion to assist in carrying on this heroic fight for freedom and security. The people of Canada are being asked to do this voluntarily, but to be fully effective the response must be on a scale as adequate as the compulsory measures employed by the enemy. Half-hearted compliance will not be enough. It is the duty of every Canadian to invest in War Savings Certificates, Dominion War Loans or Non-Interest Bearing Certificates. I observe that the objective for the war savings campaign for 1941 has been set at $10,000,000 a month and judging by the increase in payrolls to which I have referred above, this should be possible of accomplishment.

In so great a war as this it is impossible to make any reliable forecast as to the trend of events during the coming year. I have complete faith, however, that no matter how arduous conditions may be they will be successfully met by British skill, courage and resource, and that in this epic struggle for the preservation of the Empire and all that it means to its own peoples and the world at large Canada, in keeping with her high traditions of the past, will not be found wanting in either effort or sacrifice until final victory is attained.

PRESIDENT LOGAN DECLARES PAST YEAR MOST EVENTFUL AND MOMENTOUS IN HISTORY OF MANKIND

The past year has been one of the most eventful and momentous in the history of mankind. Many countries have fallen victim to the ruthless aggression of the Axis powers in spite of heroic efforts to maintain their independence. Although grievous losses have been and are being suffered by the United Kingdom from massed bombing attacks, conviction grows throughout the world that the British Empire, aided by powerful liberty-loving friends, can successfully resist all assaults upon it and eventually triumph over the most destructive war machine ever designed for conquest and supremacy. This conviction is soundly based on the daring and brilliant exploits of the Royal Air Force and of the British naval and military units, together with the unexampled courage and endurance displayed by the civilian population of the British Isles. All nations who prize freedom owe an imperishable debt of gratitude to these valiant defenders of their liberty and security.

CANADA'S WAR EFFORTS

The war efforts of Canada, particularly those of the past six months, have been much more intensive and extensive than were foreseen a year ago. It is difficult to judge the full effects upon business of the vast programme of organization and armament which has now been undertaken and which owing to the altered conditions of warfare and the imminence of national and Empire peril, greatly exceeds in scope and variety that of the corresponding period of the Great War. Obviously, the many thousands of orders for war requirements placed here, both by the Canadian and British authorities, amounting to over $850,000,000 since the outbreak of hostilities, have given a tremendous impetus to Canadian trade and industry. Even greater stimulation may be expected until this country is adequately armed and the United Kingdom is supplied with all the materials which we are able to provide for her. Our war programme is, indeed, assuming such vast proportions that it will require not only the diversion of certain productive equipment from civilian to war purposes, but will also necessitate the unstinted support of all our citizens. There is, of course, no question as to the loyalty of our people and, united as never before, they must realise that everything they possess is at stake in this world conflict. But it should be understood that the effort required is of many kinds—both direct and indirect, physical, material, financial and moral.

CANADA'S ECONOMIC RECORD

Nothing reflects more clearly the economic strength and productivity of Canada than her record during the past year. Besides providing employment for about 350,000 new workers and turning out fully 10 per cent. more goods for domestic consumption than in the preceding year, she has supplied the training facilities and part of the equipment for armed forces of about 350,000 and has undertaken additions to the country's industrial plants to cost over $250,000,000. In export trade the national economy records a remarkable growth, much beyond our vision of a year ago. Indeed, the expansion could hardly have been expected owing to the spread of hostilities throughout Europe and the whole Mediterranean area. The value of exports, apart from a substantial quantity of unsold wheat placed in American storage, was about $1,130,000,000, the highest in the past ten years, 28 per cent. above that of the twelve months ending October 1939, and about equal to that of the third year of the Great War. Since value varies with price changes it is perhaps of more interest to note that the volume of our exports increased in the period under review by about 12 per cent.

RESOURCES OF THE BELLIGERENTS

Hitler has recently stated that he is gearing the productive capacity of Europe into one vast machine which he claims will ensure a German victory. A study of the economic resources available at this time to the Axis bloc and to the democratic powers is, therefore, of interest.

The democracies have at their command a far greater proportion of the world's major raw materials than have the totalitarian states. The British Empire, together with the free colonies of its allies, the United States and the other republics of the New World, all friendly to Britain, constitute a powerful economic bloc which contains in the aggregate a volume of war materials much greater than that of the Axis powers, combined with that of their non-belligerent allies, and those countries in which their influence is effective.

COMMODITY PRICES

Under war conditions the question arises as to whether supplies of materials which can be made available in Canada and the United States will be sufficient to meet the essential requirements of the public and those of governments engaged in immense armament programmes. There are, therefore, some feverish symptoms in commodity markets and a tendency for many buyers to build up their inventories beyond normal levels in the fear of being at a disadvantage with competitors who are in possession of large stocks of cheaper materials. Yet nothing has happened so far in this war to cause any marked lasting rise in the general price level or to create concern as to the supply of most classes of goods, particularly those of domestic and American origin. The rise of 16 per cent. in the Canadian wholesale price level since the outbreak of hostilities is accounted for largely by increased marine freight, exchange and insurance costs on commodities from foreign sources. Shortages of goods have been few and only of temporary duration.

We all realize that wars have a tendency sooner or later greatly to raise commodity prices, but even in the event of a shortage of certain materials a general scramble for the available supplies would only aggravate the situation and probably lead to further restrictions upon the production of civilian goods. All governments involved directly or indirectly in this war desire to exercise the restraints within their power upon inflationary elements, particularly those substantial increases in commodity prices which alternate with approximately corresponding advances in wage levels, in effect, a race uphill in which there is no victor—merely exhaustion for all participants.

GUARD AGAINST DIFFICULTIES

We are not so far distant from the last post-war period that we can comfortably ignore the difficulties attending the liquidation of excessive inventories in steadily weakening markets. Then heavy, and in some cases ruinous, losses were suffered by many manufacturers and merchants and the task of general economic reconstruction was delayed and made much more difficult. Bearing that situation in mind, we must guard against similar difficulties being superimposed upon the serious problems which will confront us all when we have won this struggle. When that time comes our aim should be the re-establishment of a system of international trade through which commodities for peaceful purposes may flow more freely than ever before. In such a system each country would find for itself and its nationals the opportunities for economic and social progress which this world affords with its inexhaustible wealth of resources and the human skill and ingenuity necessary for their development.

If we can avoid the manifest errors of the past, face courageously the facts of the present and emulate the fortitude, endurance and spirit of sacrifice daily and hourly exhibited by our valiant British kin, consecrating unstintedly her energies and resources to the prosecution of the war, Canada will have done her part in this great conflict waged by our Empire for the ideals of human liberty and the preservation of Christian civilization throughout the world.

Men Think Freckles Cute

By HELEN FOLLETT

FRECKLES are cute little complexion pets on the other girl's face, but not on yours. Isn't that so, Geraldine? Let me tell you sumpin. Men like them. They think they're piquant and sassy. Some of them think they are a pleasant change from too much make-up. So don't be down-hearted.

The best one can do is to follow a policy of protection, keep the skin well lubricated if you wish to avoid freckles. Strong bleaches are out of the question. Though the feminine portraits were skinned alive, and a brand new cutaneous covering developed, those yellow polka dots would pop out again upon exposure to strong sunlight. It is discouraging.

Freckle Treatment

Use soap and water only at night. Rinse every bit of the soap away. Spend at least five minutes rubbing in a cold cream. You'll rub off some of the dead skin scales and give to the face a look of freshness. In the morning use clear tepid water, dry gently and apply peroxide, letting it dry on. Half an hour later you can apply a cream. Wipe it away with tissues, have your beauty party with the powder pad and lipstick.

Whether or not Miss Freckles can indulge in rouge depends upon the character of the skin speckles. She'll have to work out that problem for herself.

Don't be a stand patter. If you do that you'll wear the same old coiffure until your family is tired of looking at you. Every season there are changes. Join the parade and march toward the beauty shop.

The woman with fixed ideas is the one who looks old before her time. Sticks to the same old colors for her clothes. Does her hair the same way, year after year. Buys the same powder. Let her put herself in the hands of a beauty specialist, be made over and she'll drop ten birthdays. It has been done, is being done all the time.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, December 11

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE auguries for this day are read as most propitious for the putting over of very expansive and ambitious programs, and for the resulting stabilization of the credit and fortunes with growth and security of investments and possessions. It is a time for working toward such goals with determination, sound effort and determination but not with too much haste, ordor, impetuosity or recklessness. Also it would be well to be on guard against subtlety, duplicity and intrigues.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of very stable and expansive conditions, with definite growth in all directions. There should be satisfactory financial increase and a solidifying of the possessions and investments, with sound personal advancement and prestige. However, these should not be jeopardized by taking too much for granted, or by impetuous, over-enthusiastic or untenable plans. Likewise there may be dangers from treachery or schemes of an entirely hidden or unsuspected nature.

A child born on this day will have much sound ability and worthy ambitions, with a generous, gracious and responsible character. However it may be carried away by zeal, impetuosity, or be the dupe of fraudulent intrigues unless alert and self-controlled.

Home Play Helps

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

To some children, even in high school, common fractions prove very difficult and confusing. Nevertheless, this section of arithmetic can be made very easy.

The child who grows up in a home where from early years he is always making and creating something with his hands, will usually find fractions fascinating. The tot of four or five, drawing, cutting, pasting, with crayons, paper and cardboard learns, even without being taught, the meaning of ½, 1-3, ¼ and the like as he measures, whether by folding, estimating or using a rule. When this child later makes paper dolls, cuts and fits clothes, or makes costumes for himself, measuring in inches, feet or yards, changing of measures from inches to feet o rfeet to inches, becomes a natural, easy, interesting experience.

Learning at Play

So also as this child adventures at baking and cooking, he soon gets acquainted with the relative simple units of weights and measures and easily and naturally translates from quarts to pints and vice-versa. By following a recipe, fraction symbols and concepts grow familiar so that, without being taught, the youngster will engage in rather difficult transfer values from one unit to another.

Especially stimulating to the child in the use of different units of measures and of fractions is working with tools in making things from wood. Both my boys from about the age of three onward through high school, developed a work shop, saving money with which to buy more and more good tools. Long before they had any manual training at school each had made for pleasure many things out of wood.

It was always fascinating to me as they drew and figured out dimensions, to see and hear them counting out the fractional parts and proportions. An outstanding practice they normally had was that of ratio.

Rating Ratio

These boys have told me that constant use of the concept of ratio so often needed in high school mathematics and physics was very easy to them whereas they observed that some classmates had serious difficulty over ratio. Physics teachers in high school and college have informed me that the concept of ratio and its correct use is more often lacking in the student than any other arithmetic concept or skill.

Fashion Flashes

THE BEAVER IS BUSY trimming the nicest winter fashions. A slim coat of soft blue woollen has panels of sheared beaver and a tiny turn-down beaver collar. The blue felt hat has a brim edge of beaver and there is a melon muff of the fur.

The tempo grows swifter as the season advances and the evening scene grows increasingly beautiful. Helping to do this are such dresses as a model of deep gold faille taffeta made with a wide-skirted silhouette and worn with a slashed peplum jacket of solid black sequins. Gold and sequin headdress.

It's a set fashion this idea of matched accessories. To tone up her winter wardrobe, one woman selected a small sailor hat and big envelope handbag of zebra striped beige and brown velvet.

The southern moon shines down on beautiful clothes. For Florida wear, one shop showed a dinner dress with draped top of black silk jersey made with a deep curved V neckline in front and draped shoulders. The top is joined at the deep curved waistline to a skirt of chiffon jersey printed in huge coin dots in deep purple, dark red and green shades.

The beach scene is gay this year. For after swim wear, one smart woman wears a hooded full-length white terry robe on which is embroidered an enormous red pelican.

New notions mark the brims of some of the new hats. An avocado green felt hat has a soft brim that comes to a point when it is turned up in front and is rounded deep in the back. The brim is banded in Chinese red grosgrain ribbon.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Wedding Present Necessary?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past year I've been going with a girl, and have become acquainted with her family too. However, they live out of the city where we are, and I've been in their home five or six times.

A sister is to be married in the near future. Do you think I ought to give her a wedding present, whether or not I am invited to the wedding? In Doubt.

If you receive an invitation, I think it would be very nice if you would send a simple wedding gift—not too expensive. But it is no obligatory. If you receive no invitation, you would be safe to follow your natural feeling in the matter.

Doesn't Realize His Good Fortune

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I was 28 years old, I married a man five years older than myself. We've been married almost a year now, and although he seems to still love me, he says he's sorry he ever married and left home. He doesn't find fault with a single thing I do, but just wishes he were back home. What do you advise in such a case? Young Wife.

Your husband doesn't seem to know when he's well off. He loves you, finds no fault with anything you do, but still is sorry he left home. Some people wouldn't be happy in Heaven, and I'm afraid he's one of them. Perhaps he'll get over this feeling, and I suggest you be patient and give him time.

Parents' Advice Often Best

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm very much in love with a boy and have been going with him for almost eighteen months. We're both 19. He says he's in love with me too, but our parents object to our affair. My mother thinks I'm too young to be in love, and his parents are opposed to our going "steady."

We were engaged at one time, but he steps out with another girl occasionally, and I have dates with other boys, although we do try to keep it from each other.

Would you advise me to keep on going with him, or should I find someone who suits my parents? Worried.

As long as parents on both sides object to the match, it seems to me the only sensible thing would be for both of you to make other friends and have "dates"—that is, if your parents are willing. If you really care about each other, why don't you wait and see if it's just a passing fancy?

If there are other reasons, apart from your youth, for your parents' objection to the young man, do be sensible and listen to their advice.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"Mail" Friends

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have been doing quite a bit of correspondence with young men and women who live in different parts of the country. I would like to send each one of them a little gift at Christmas. Since I know them only through the mail, would this be proper? For example, if the person likes reading, I would like to send a book. If not, perhaps a bag or billfold. What do you think about this plan, and what do you suggest?

S.M.S.

While I appreciate your generous inclination to send gifts to these friends, I am inclined to think that perhaps a Christmas card, or better a Christmas letter, would be more appropriate and in better taste than gifts.

Look at it from their point of view. If they haven't sent you gifts, they may be embarrassed at not having sent you a present. Also, they may decide that, since you have established a precedent of sending gifts, they should send you one next Christmas.

In other words, since the friendships are on a correspondence basis, I would, if I were you, keep it there, and make your friendly Christmas letter your Christmas gift.

INCLUDE SON

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My husband and I want to send our Christmas cards this year with our names printed on them, but we are in doubt as to what form of names to use. We have a small son. Should his name be on the card also? Would our first names be enough, or should we use my husband's initials and our last name — that is, Mr. and Mrs. J.H. Smith and son?

S.M.T.

If you are having your names printed at the end of the Christmas message — as you probably are — your names are a signature, and therefore the first names should be used. Customarily, the wife's name is used first, but when a child's name is included (and I urge that you do include the name of your small son), the father's name comes first! — John and Mary and Tommie, or The John Smiths ... John, Mary and Tommie.

Name Sequence Optional

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

Will you please advise me which is correct form on Christmas cards — Jane and Edward Bruce or Edward and Jane Bruce? Is it optional which form one uses?

N.N.

Customarily, the wife's name comes first, a form which is considered more polite to her. However, some people consider, and reasonably, that the name of the one who signs the cards (and it usually is the wife who does this) should be written last.

So, in a sense, the sequence of names is optional, though usually we see the woman's name written first. However, when children's names are included, the father's name should come first, as: John and Mary and Jonathan.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Overweight

In writing of the relationship between exercise and dieting in reducing overweight persons I may have given the impression I attach most importance to exercise. I don't.

The principal cause of obesity in adults isn't lack of exercise but over indulgence in the pleasures of the table and this must be kept in mind in prescribing reduction methods.

Again and again, I have seen men and women decide to take off weight and lay out a strenuous campaign of exercise—golf, walking, setting up exercises. They perspire until they are soaking. As a result get thirsty and drink large quantities of water. So, they completely replace that fluid they lost through all that hard work and the strain on their hearts. You have seen a man come home after eighteen holes of golf, drink a couple of whiskey and sodas and sit down to his meal with ravenous appetite. His exercise has made him so hungry that he wades through a six-course meal. The result is pretty obvious. He is playing a losing game—but not losing weight. He exercises, then eats his way right back to the same weight.

Exercise isn't the solution of the weight problem—when you have the weight. That is, if people didn't stop regular exercise after growing up, but kept on yith a moderate amount of it daily then they might stay within proper weight limits. That is, of course, if they stick to a proper diet.

Yes, exercise can be stressed too much in taking off weight, or in keeping weight down. I have known dozens of farmers who were pounds overweight. These men rose with the sun, they worked away at the heaviest sort of work all day, yet they put on surplus weight just the way the rest of us do. Why? Same reason—they ate too much.

Of course, in belittling the place of exercise in keeping off weight, I'm not advising you to forego exercise. Take it by all means, for you need it and it helps burn up some of the fat that is on your body. Don't over do it and remember the only way you can really keep that fat off is by eating less.

Obesity sneaks up on us like a thief in the night. Then one day we awaken to the fact that we are getting fat. By that time habits are fixed, and it is much easier to give in to our appetites or make excuses for our fatness than it is to take off weight.

Most people object to being fat because it spoils their appearance. The real objection to overweight is that it means a shorter life. Obesity increases the likelihood of many chronic diseases.

An examination of weight tables of any group of men and women will show usually that weight increases with increasing age. This shouldn't be the case, because for the best of health, weight should begin to reduce a little at about the age of forty so that by middle age it is five or ten pounds below what it was at thirty.

NORTH IRELAND GIRDED TO DO BIT IN DEFENCE

Canadian Press Correspondent Impressed After 500-Mile Tour of the Country

ARMY IS READY

Sam Robertson, Superintendent of The Canadian Press London Bureau and War Correspondent, made a 500-mile tour of Northern Ireland's defences and describes it in this article, first of a series of three.

By SAM ROBERTSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Belfast, Dec. 10 (CP)—The mist-capped hills and rolling valleys of Northern Ireland today seem as serene as they have been pictured down through the years by fashioners of lyrics.

But the truth of the matter is that a battle-anxious force is cloaked in that false serenity. Ulster is ready, even anxious, to face up to the Axis enemies if they are emboldened to try an invasion.

In keeping with the numerical strength of the available man-power that is being increased, defences steadily are being strengthened. The air and sea arms of the scheme worked out to meet an enemy thrust are prepared to play their part.

Significant as are these various factors, they are over-shadowed by the fact that the army, directed by Lt.-Gen. Sir Henry Pownall, General Officer commanding, is thoroughly equipped for its job.

In the words of one high staff officer I met during a 500-mile tour of the country's defences the thousands of troops are armed and otherwise equipped "to turn this natural battleground into a hornet's nest."

"Our units are fully outfitted and could move into battle today," the officer said. "The recent rate of acceleration at which guns, ammunition, Bren carriers and the 'heavier stuff' has been reaching us is completely satisfactory."

Britain Producing Supplies

These comforting words were significant because in the grand plan for the defence of the British Isles and other war-threatened parts of the Commonwealth there are other places whose needs naturally would take precedence over those of northern Ireland.

They were doubly significant in that they indicated British industry is producing the required flow of vital equipment in face of bombing that is so regular it is becoming commonplace.

The withdrawals from Dunkerque and elsewhere in France left the Empire's army facing an equipment problem that was acute. The best of the guns, tanks and transport went to France with the B. E. F. Most of the equipment was destroyed when the out-numbered troops were withdrawn.

Britain and her industries responded to the Churchill government's "go to it" plea. And now the army has been re-equipped with all the multiple instruments of modern warfare.

It is fitting that among the B.T.I. (British troops in Ireland) are thousands of Ulstermen ready to guard their homes. There is, for instance, The Royal Ulster Rifles, a unit with a long and glorious battle history. The unit was known as The Royal Irish Rifles until the early 20's and the partition of Ireland.

Enemy of Ireland

Men of neutral Eire have come up from the south to mingle with Ulstermen in the ranks of the R.U.R. One of them, a sergeant, and 100 per cent Sinn Feiner, explained:—

"It is the enemy of all Ireland we are facing in this war. But don't name me as saying so for that isn't the unanimous opinion of Eire. I'll be returning there to live after the war."

I also spoke to officers of this and other Irish formations who left Eire to fight for Britain. When leave comes they must change to mufti to visit their families. If they were to enter their neutral homeland in uniform they would be interned for the duration.

Soldiers of Wales and England help guard Northern Ireland. Many Irishmen who have made their homes and living in England are in one battalion. The Welch Regiment is also stationed in the counties.

Linen Industry Sags

Even distant Canada has its representation. George Wheland, who left Toronto eight years ago, is Regimental Sergeant Major of one of the Welsh units.

Ulster is not a prosperous country. For instance the linen industry has sagged through inability to obtain flax from Soviet Russia.

But lack of money has not stopped the people from lavishing their characteristic hospitality on the troops. One battalion commander said only 250 men would be in barracks for Sunday dinner. Three times that number would be invited to the homes of the townfolk to share their humble but plentiful fare.

When troops on route march pause for a breather the people hurry out of their village and farm homes to offer strong Irish tea—"the proper dignity, you know"—and buttered scones.

Old Ulster has taken the army to her warm heart.

Churchill's Statement To House of Commons

London, Dec. 10,—(AP)—Following is the text of Prime Minister Churchill's statement today to the House of Commons:—

Some months ago the collapse of France seriously endangered our position in the Mediterranean and made the task of defending Egypt from an Italian invasion one of extreme difficulty, the more so as we were compelled to face the menace of invasion ourselves at home.

However, by the time the Secretary of State for War paid his important visit to the middle east in October, reinforcements of men and material had reached Sir Archibald Wavell, commanding the British and Imperial Army of the Nile, sufficient not only to give a greater feeling of security, but to open the possibility of an assumption of the offensive.

Part Played Important

However, at this moment the Italian invasion of Greece made it necessary for us to send a considerable part of our air force from Egypt to the aid of the Greek army in their heroic defence of their native land. The part played by the Royal Air Force in the Greek victories has been most important and we have received the warmest expressions of gratitude from the Greek King and government for the aid we were able to give.

Serious temporary dimunition of our air forces in Egypt made it necessary somewhat to delay the execution of the offensive plans which had been matured and it was not until the beginning of this month that our air force in Egypt was once again, in a position to afford the necessary support to a forward movement.

Successfully Accomplished

Accordingly, on the night of the 7th of December, a strong detachment from the army of the Nile, under Sir Maitland Wilson, comprising British and Imperial troops and a detachment from the Free French forces, advanced towards positions which the Italians had fortified since their incursion across the Egyptian frontier three months ago.

It will be realized that the operation of advancing, almost in a single bound, across 75 miles of desert, is by no means free from hazard and complexity when considerable forces are employed.

It was with satisfaction that his Majesty's government learned that this long and rapid approach had been successfully accomplished.

Armies Contact Each Other

Yesterday morning, the 9th our forces came into contact with the enemy at various points over a wide front stretching from Sidi Barrani, on the coast, into the desert.

In the first defended area which was assaulted and overrun, 500 prisoners and some war material fell into our hands. The Italian General in command was killed and his second in command was captured.

Later in the day, a further advance was made into the second and stronger and more important position nearer to the coast and more prisoners and material were taken.

Preliminary Stage Successful

Other British forces also reached the coast between Sidi Barrani and Buqbuq, making further captures of transport and prisoners.

It is too soon to attempt to forecast either the scope or the result of the considerable operations which are in progress, but we can, at any rate, say that the preliminary phase has been successful.

The British Mediterranean fleet and the Royal Air Force are, of course, co-operating closely with the army.

British warships have bombarded the various coastal positions involved in the fight, including particularly Maktila and Sidi Barrani. Some details of the air action have been received.

On the 8th, a heavy attack was made by our bombers on the airdrome at Bengasi where about 25 tons of bombs were dropped effectively on hangars and among aircraft.

On the same night air attacks were made on the Italian advanced airdromes as a prelude to the morning's action and throughout yesterday our bombers continually harassed the Italian advance airdromes, while our fighter aircraft, in which Hurricane squadrons are conspicuous, made low flying machine-gun attacks on enemy troops and motor transport, causing substantial loss. "We shall no doubt receive further news shortly."

Port Stanley Tugs Forced to Return

Fingal, Ont., Dec. 10.—(CP) — Port Stanley tugs had to return to part today as rough seas halted their search for traces of a Canadian air force bombing trainer which disappeared over Lake Erie Sunday with three men aboard.

It had been planned to co-ordinate the search by planes and tugs but strong winds whipped up the lake into huge combers which interrupted the search by surface vessels. Missing on the training plane are FO. L. A. Hood, native of St. Joseph, Missouri, and Aircraftsmen E. W. Bourne of Oshawa and J. H. McNally of Minaki, Ontario.

Meantime the shores of the lake were scanned by various parties for any trace of wreckage. These men radiated east and west of Port Stanley combing the shoreline.

L. L. Brown Named Timber Controller

He succeeds H. R. MacMillan of Vancouver who has held the office since it was established last June and who has resigned to devote his attention to his duties as chairman of the newly-created Wartime Requirements Board announced Nov. 18.

The Department of Munitions and Supply, announcing Mr. Brown's appointment said Alan S. Nicholson of Burlington, Ont., formerly Assistant Timber Controller has been appointed Deputy Timber Controller, Mr. Nicholson has had a long and extensive experience in the Canadian lumber business from coast to coast.

Mr. Brown was born in Portland, Oregon, and graduated from the University of Idaho in 1911. Later he became a Canadian citizen and served overseas with the Canadian Engineers in the first Great War and was awarded the Military Cross.

NEED MORE OFFICERS

Washington, Dec. 10. —(AP)— The United States war department announced today it now appeared that it would be necessary to order approximately 20,000 additional reserve officers to extend active duty before next June 30.

By the end of this month, the army said it expected to have almost 30,000 reserve officers on active duty as a result of expansion of land forces.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

British and Greek forces sped after retreating Italians on both sides of the Mediterranean today as Hitler told the German people loss of the war would be the end of them.

Hitler's speech was the more surprising because it marked no special event in Germany. It was said to have been made in a Berlin munitions factory, location of which was kept discreetly dark, presumably in memory of the alleged British bombing of the Munich Brown House during celebration a year ago of the abortive beer cellar putsch.

The usual "heils" came from the chorus, but the Fuehrer's remarks appeared to have a tinge of sadness about them. There was the usual talk of going on to victory and assertion that Germany would take from others what she needed.

Refers to England

He spoke of 85,000,000 peoples being crowded into Germany with a population density of 120 to the square kilometre while the density of the rest of the world is one to the square kilometre.

He made various references to "England" in this connection. If he actually meant England, here are comparative figures in Whitaker's Almanac: England and Wales, (together) 703 to the square mile, Germany, 347 to the square mile.

If the Germans felt themselves overcrowded in peacetime there was nothing, except official edicts or Hitler's "pure race" policy to prevent their going abroad. In the days before Hitler's rise to power they emigrated to many places. There are many in Canada and the United States, many in Latin America.

Argument Doesn't Hold Water

The argument that Germany has been cramped economically because she must buy goods from abroad, a familiar one, does not hold water either in peace time. If Germany owned all the colonies she wants, she still would have to pay for what she took back to the Fatherland—unless she stole it.

Hitler and Mussolini made the mistake of seeking self-sufficiency and guns without butter at the same time. Eventually they found they must change their tune or try to burst the bonds they had tied about themselves. They chose to burst.

Mussolini was the less fortunate. He was badly situated geographically and burst into North Africa which, with the exception of the Nile valley, is not rich. It is important to Britain because it assures that no one will bottle up the Mediterranean and the route to India and because she does not want to see anyone walking on her friends down there.

Graziani, Mussolini's chief in North Africa at the moment, has found the Mediterranean not only poor from his standpoint, but dangerous as well. The British fleet and air force have kept him without sufficient supplies to advance, and now, in a few hours, British desert troops have seized 1,000 of his men and killed one of his generals.

Dr. Semple Reviews Book on Trend Of the Church

A most important book on the Church was reviewed by the Rev. Dr. James Semple at the evening service, Sunday, at Bridge Street United Church. It was "Sons but Not Heirs, The Trend of the Church", written by Rev. Dr. A. J. Penney, Presbyterian Minister, Oyster Bay., N.J., and published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and called "one of the best sellers among religious publications".

"One of the most challenging books that have appeared on the subject of the Church in a decade" was Dr. Semple's description of the book. He pointed out that its purpose is to incite the active members of the Protestant Churches to a deeper devotion to Christ and His Church, to awaken in indifferent Protestants a realization of the tremendous harm their attitude may do the cause of religion and if possible to awaken in them a desire to turn to the church of their fathers and become again followers of their Lord and Master".

The minister gave a full appreciation of the book in detail in the course of his sermon.

British Attack In Egypt Adds To Duce's Woes

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Dec. 10.— (AP)— The fact that British forces in Egypt have launched an attack on the stalled Italian invading army is of greater consequence than the present scope of the operation.

Despite the disposition in London to class it as a "local" action, official British reports from Egypt tell of contact between advancing British forces and the enemy "on a broad front", and of the capture of 1,000 prisoners near Sidi Barrani, Italian advance base in Egypt.

The battle developing in that area may prove to be an extremely important one. The opportunity clearly exists for a crushing new blow at Italian military prestige— a blow that might shake the morale of Italy to its foundations. The results which might follow from the smashing of Marshal Graziani's army or its ejection from Egypt offer a glittering invitation to the British leaders to incur risks on that front.

Graziani Cut Off

Duplication in Egypt of the stinging defeat the Greeks have administered to Il Duce's legions in Albania might reshape the whole Mediterranean battle front in Britain's favor. There have been intimations that London was preparing some such stroke even before Italy's attempt to invade Greece collapsed. The recent visit of the British War Minister, Anthony Eden, to Egypt to inspect the armies there hinted at such developments.

Whether a full-scale British offensive has been started, or whether it is a preliminary test, British initiative in the East comes in direct answer to the clamor of press and Parliament in London for offensive action aimed at knocking Italy out of the war. A striking victory at this stage, routing Graziani's troops well might prove the deciding factor to bring French African colonial forces into the war again on Britain's side and seal the East front against the Axis.

With British naval and air bases firmly planted on the Greek island of Crete, any help for Graziani from Italy direct is out of the question. His situation, after he has been bogged down at Sidi Barrani for three months, is far more critical than it was before Italy's thrust at Greece was delivered.

Italians' Plight Serious

London's reluctance to admit a major British offensive in Egypt until there is some development indicating the ability of Grazani's force to stand against it is understandable. The Italians have had many weeks in which to consolidate their position at Sidi Barrani and probably have been more concerned with defensive measures than with preparation for an offensive.

However, the plight of the Fascist army in Egypt is becoming increasingly serious because of the failure of the campaign against the Greeks. British ability to expand the present operations into a major offensive has been enhanced by closer British naval domination of the Eastern Mediterranean from Cretan bases. Even landing operations somewhere along Graziani's exposed 70-mile sea flank in Egypt may be impending. Thus cut off his army might be annihilated or forced into an inglorious retreat under the terrible handicaps imposed by desert terrain.

All in all, the Italian cup of woe seems brimming; and British hopes of releasing naval power from the Mediterranean to join in protection of North Atlantic sea lanes on the rise. A crushing Italian defeat in Egypt could change the whole war picture in Britain's favor in a matter of weeks.

R.A.F. BOMB JETTY BUILDINGS NEAR VALONA

Athens, Dec. 10.— (AP)— The British Air Force in Greece announced today that Royal Air Force fliers carried out an "offensive in the vicinity of Valona", where bombs hit "the south jetty and buildings near the harbor".

The communique said there was no Italian fighter opposition, and all the R.A.F. aircraft returned safely.

WINDSORS CHEERED AT MIAMI, FLA.

Arrive in United States on Fourth Anniversary of Duke's Abdication

Miami, Fla., Dec. 10.— (CP)— The applause of a crowd that blocked traffic and taxed police lines on Biscayne Boulevard, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor arrived in this city today where the Duchess of Windsor will undergo an operation on an infected tooth. This is the fourth anniversary of the Duke's abdication from the British throne.

The Duke and his American-born Duchess after their arrival went through the formalities of receiving dignitaries and talking with newsmen before they sped to St. Francis hospital for preliminary X-rays.

When the Windsors appeared on deck, a roar of applause rose from the crowd. As the Duke and Duchess left the yacht, steamships in the harbor sounded their whistles and coast guard planes roared a salute overhead.

The Duchess appeared well and in good spirits as she stood beside the Duke at his press conference. Neither referred to the fact that it was the fourth anniversary of his abdication.

The Duke declined to discuss the British war effort, with the remark:—

"I formerly was a free lance, but after all, I'm an official of the government now".

Gallant Airman Killed in Action

London, Dec. 10 —(CP)— Acting-Squadron Leader J. A. Pitcairn Hill, D.S.C., D.F.C., leader of one of the most outstanding attacks on Germany's internal communications, was killed in action in September, it is announced.

Pitcairn Hill led the raid last August on the Dortmundems Canal, chief link for heavy transport between the Rhineland and northwest and central Germany. The aqueduct over the canal was shattered by a shower of heavy bombs.

It was due greatly to Pitcairn Hill's skilful judgment and resolution that the attack, carried out from less than 150 feet, was pressed home despite the heaviest opposition.

Pitcairn Hill was awarded the D.S.O. for his part in that raid. He had won the D.F.C. the previous month.

Germany Has Lost War, Says Benes

London, Dec. 10 (CP)—Germany has lost the war, former President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia said today in a press conference.

Announcing the formation of a Czechoslovak "State Council" to function here as an advisory body until parliament takes over, Benes expressed his belief in "the certainty of British victory and the certainty of the re-establishment of the Republic," at Prague.

Benes said he felt the war was in the second half, "where the Axis will begin to descend," because:-

1. "Only two countries in the world can be master of the seas—Great Britain and the United States.

2. "The aviation potential in the hands of Great Britain and the United States is so big it can not be equalized by Germany."

Italy, said Benes, "is now only a liability and will be to the end."

Highlights of the Saguenay Torpedoing

(By D. E. Burritt)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 10.—(CP Cable) — One of the heroes was Lt.-Engineer H. H. Wright, who ignored burns suffered in fighting the fire and half lowered himself down a hatch to rescue six-foot Leading Seaman Myers, believed to come from Montreal.

Then Wright forced his way through the inferno and tried to rescue another seaman pinned by a fallen beam, but was unable to shift debris caught in the capstan engine.

Cook's Assistant Saunders of Halifax begged to remain aboard when most of the crew were transferred even agreeing to work as a seaman, whose duties he carried on for four and one half days.

Leading Seaman John Hancock, believed to be from Oshawa, Ont., freed himself from a trapped position and then, despite burns on the face and arms, tried in vain to rescue Able Seaman Harry Shepherd of Montreal, who was sleeping in the next hammock. Shepherd was described as "the most popular man on the lower deck".

"SPIT AND POLISH" TRADITION BROKEN

London, Dec. 10 — (CP) — The "spit and polish" tradition of the British army received a setback today when the Chatham Army area ordered that all parts of army uniforms be left unpolished in the field. It said this would lessen the chance of troops being observed from the air.

LONDON'S "HELLO GALS" TAKE IT IN THEIR STRIDE

When the air raid sirens scream in London, the only difference it makes to the heroines in the big city's telephone exchange is that they must don their steel hats. They stick to their boards through what they call the "unpleasant" periods. Often they must vary their stock phrases with, "Sorry, sir, that number was bombed out last night." Their part in the Battle of Britain is an important one. They play it magnificently.

Hepburn Orders Probe of Birth Of Baby in Trailer

Toronto, Dec. 10—(CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario today ordered investigation of the case of a baby being born in a trailer at Kingsville, Ont., during extreme cold weather, when the mother and the rest of a family of eight had allegedly been refused a house in Kingsville because they were on relief.

"There is no need for such a case in Ontario," said Premier Hepburn, "when the province spends so much on numerous and varied social services." Facts of the case will be checked by Hon. Norman Hipel, Minister of Welfare.

The premier agreed that administration of relief is a matter for the municipalities but he pointed out the province contributes 40 per cent of the total relief cost and it will be determined whether in the Kingsville case local officials had declined to give the family relief or a home to live in.

The family had lived in Kingsville two winters. Last winter they occupied a tent and this winter they moved into a trailer which the father, a fisherman, purchased for $75.

Home Secretary Defends Treatment Of Fifth Columnists

London, Dec. 10 (CP)—Herbert Morrison, Home Secretary, defending in Commons today the government's treatment of fifth columnists, said, "it would have been a very ine thing for Germany and for the world," if the former German government had shot Hitler.

He recalled that Hitler, following the 1923 Putsch, was imprisoned for a few months.

"If I had been running the German government at that time, he would never have got out and never have survived," Mr. Morrison said. "He was an enemy o the state and ought to hae been shot."

Reply to assertions that British internees like Sir Oswald Mosley, Fascist leader, should be permitted full legal rights, Mr. Morrison told the House the war could not be run "with classic Liberalism," and reminded members of what had happened in Norway and the Low Countries.

Beverley Baxter, Conservative, charged Mr. Morrison was "playing right into the hands," of men like former United States Abmassador Joseph Kennedy, who was quoted in an American interview which he later repudiated as saying democracy had ceased to exist here.

"I can only say I have expressed a view and I am afraid I cannot be moved from it by considerations of Mr. Joseph Kennedy," Mr. Morrison retorted.

CHINESE BATTLE JAPS IN SUB-ZERO WEATHER

Hong Kong, Dec. 10 —(CP)— Central News (Chinese agency) reported today severe fighting was proceeding in sub-zero weather between Japanese and Chinese forces in Suiyuan Province, northern China.

A large Japanese force, it said, launched a drive four days ago westward from Paotow, terminus of the Peiping-Suiyuan railway, but hard-fighting Chinese were stemming the attack.

Central News reported that in southeast China, meanwhile, Chinese guerrillas had carried out a bold raid against the island of Amoy, crossing from the mainland during the night of November 29.

Major League Club Owners May Vote to Extend Contract Of K.M. Landis for Five Years

Meeting May Rescind No-Trade Rule Passed Last Year

NIGHT BASEBALL

Move Afoot Not to Allow Any Team Play More Than Seven Night Games at Home

By EARL HILLIGAN,
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, Dec. 10—(AP) — Baseball's major league club owners opened their annual winter meeting today amid rumblings of a possible blast of legislative action and the still gentle murmur of trade winds.

As managers continued their uncounted huddles over disposition or acquisition of playing talent, American and National League moguls entered separate sessions to consider several problems in their respective circuits. They ranged from a move toward rescinding the no-trade rule, imposed last year on the American League championship club, to extension of a new contract for the game's commissioner, Kenesaw M. Landis.

No decision on another term for Landis will be made until the joint session of the leagues tomorrow or Thursday. But the National League owners were expected to discuss the problem and the American League has ready a formal resolution that a new contract extending to 1946 be given the 75-year-old Landis, whose present contract has another year to run.

Hot Battle Expected

There was a prospect of a hot battle over the rule which prevents the American League pennant winner from inter-league trading. Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, said that his club would vote to retain the present no-trade regulation, which he called "the greatest rule we've ever had." Washington and St. Louis also reportedly were intent on keeping it on the books, but Chicago, New York, Boston and Detroit were expected to vote for its abolishment.

The night baseball question was expected to bob up with a bang. The National League has prepared a resolution to prohibit any major league club from playing more than seven night games a season at home. The American League last year gave St. Louis permission to play 14—and the Browns drew more fans in those 14 after-dark contests than in 53 home daylight appearances.

BOSTON BRUINS, RANGERS CLASH

Game Attracts Little Notice as Both Clubs Are Down in the Standings

(By The Canadian Press)

The stage hasn't been reached where a clash between New York Rangers and Boston Bruins is passed up without notice by National Hockey League fans, but it has to be admitted that their meetings now do not attract quite so much attention as in recent seasons.

All that undoubtedly would be changed if the two teams occupied loftier positions in the standing, and there's no law that says such a thing will not come to pass. But at present the Bruins are in fourth position and the Rangers in fifth and they haven't looked much like the teams that finished one, two last season.

The headlong rush of Toronto Maple Leafs, as much as anything, has served to push other clubs in the league into the publicity back ground for the Torontonians have been stealing all the headlines. They have won ten of their 12 games, dropping contests only to Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks.

Twice winners over Montreal Canadiens this season, the Leafs play the Montrealers again on Thursday in Toronto while Chicago Black Hawks take on Americans in New York.

Alice Marble Voted Best Woman Athlete

New York, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Meet Alice Marble of California, and New York, the outstanding woman athlete of 1940

Seventy-two sports experts throughout the United States took part in the annual Associated Press poll. All but seven put the tennis queen, also the winner in 1939, at the head of the list. She got 65 first-place votes, nine seconds and three thirds (this total of 77 votes being explained by the fact that several ballots gave her first, second and third place) and 316 points.

Just as she stood so far above the amateur tennis field that she finally turned pro for lack of competition (and $25,000), so she finished so far ahead in the point standing there hardly was a second. This doubtful distinction, in any event, was won by Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., who got four firsts and 89 points for the feat of winning the United States women's golf title for the second year in a row.

In one of the hardest fought games of the present season, Toronto Maple Leafs nosed a 3-2 victory over Boston Bruins at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto. Bruins moved into the third period with a 2-1 lead which was taken away when Drillon, LEFT, with stick raised, batted the puck behind Brimsek to tie the score. With one minute and nine seconds left to play, Hank Goldup came through with the Leafs' winning counter.

THREE-WAY TIE FOR FIRST PLACE IN SENIOR RACE

Oshawa, Hamilton and Niagara Falls on Top Rungs

G-MEN WIN EASILY

Sailors Downed by Oshawa 6-3 While Brights Beat Hamilton 3-2

(By the Canadian Press)

The Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" hockey race looked all-Hamilton two weeks ago, but today it is far from belonging to any team.

Last night's two games created a three-way tie in the first place between Hamilton, Oshawa and Niagara Falls.

To build the three-team deadlock, Niagara Falls Brights beat Hamilton Dofascos 3-2 and Oshawa scored a 6-3 victory over Port Colborne sailors. The Niagara Falls triumph was by far the most difficult, coming as it did against the mighty Dofascos, who went undefeated in their first eight games this season.

Of course, Brights also have some claim to fame in that they weren't beaten in their first seven games this season.

Oshawa had practically no trouble in beating Port Colborne. George Ritchie scored one of his two goals against the Sailors on a penalty shot in the first period. Jerry Cooper was the big shot of the scorers, with three, and Jack Thompson got the other. Jimmie McKelvie scored twice for the sixth-place sailors, and Swanson counted once.

The Cooper - Walton - Bellinger line shone for Niagara Falls, with Cooper scoring two goals and Walton one. Dillon, Brady got the first Hamilton goal, Woodward the other.

The joker in the deck is that Toronto Marlboros conceivably can be in first place by late Wednesday, by beating London while St. Catharines drops Dofascos.

Hockey Railbirds in for Busy Week at Hume Arena

Juniors Call for Aspiring Talent on Wednesday Night as Reliance and Air Force Practice Tonight

JUNIOR POSITIONS OPEN

City Juveniles Organize to Practice on Thursday and Friday and Open Next Week—40 Already Signed

It never rains but what it pours and generally speaking this applies to pre-season hockey practices in Belleville.

Hockey rail-birds can spend every evening this week taking a gander at the various puck-chasing outfits that will represent Belleville in the provincial puck campaigns from senior O.H.A. clubs down to juveniles, as every evening for the remainder of the week is being devoted to hockey practice at the Hume Arena.

Commencing this evening during the dinner hour, the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" will practice to be followed by the newly-organized Reliance Aircraft seniors, who take to the ice at 7.00 p.m. The latter team will get down to the senior business of practicing in preparation for their Van Horne Memorial series game at Kingston versus the Vimy Signals on Wednesday night, while Group Captain T. A. Lawrence's "Flyers" will hold but a light workout, at which 40 are scheduled to appear.

Junior Talent Called

Of general interest to the juniors of the community, the Belleville junior O.H.A. squad will practice at seven o'clock on Wednesday night and Coach Holway has issued a call for aspirants, as an entire new junior squad must be built before the O.H.A. campaign opens. The only talent left over from last year's junior squad are Ethier, Clare, Gerow and Clarke, which means a general scramble for positions can be assured before Coach Holway selects his squad. As the junior schedule is not expected to open before the New Year, three good weeks of practice is anticipated by the Yanover-Cook-Holway aggregation who announced today that all positions are vacant and will be awarded the players making the best showing during the pre-season training period.

Juveniles Are Organized

The Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association gained the jump on the other local pucksters when they concluded their organization by signing 40 players at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. Additional registrations will be taken at Townsend's sports shop on Campbell Street up until Wednesday evening, following which the players will be allotted to the four clubs comprising the Association. As in former years the group will operate at the Hume Arena and opens next week with a twin bill of hockey.

Team Coaches Named

The coaches and managers named to the respective teams in the City Juvenile group last night were: Americans—Dick Beare, coach, Art Rogers, manager; Black Hawks—Herb Morris, coach, "Boiler" Lloyd manager; Maple Leafs—Frank Cunningham, coach, Frank Pollwell, manager; Les Canadiens—Bill Dennis, coach, and Fred Reid, manager.

Practice hours were assured the juvenile teams at the Hume Arena for Thursday and Friday nights, commencing at 7 o'clock, with two teams holding work-out periods each evening prior to the official opening of the league early next week. The teams to practice on the above dates will be notified following Wednesday night's Juvenile meeting. The opening games of the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association will bring together Americans versus Black Hawks and Canadiens versus Maple Leafs in a gala doubleheader at the Hume Arena to usher in the 1940-'41 hockey season.

DAVE CASTILLOUX LOSES TO SPIEGAL

Boxer From Uniontown, Pa., Scores 10-Round Upset Over Montreal Fighter

Toronto, Dec. 10 —(CP)— Dave Castilloux must realize today something Tommy Spiegal knew last night—that in punches the quality, not the quantity, must be considered.

Spiegal, smooth little boxer from Uniontown, Pa., scored a 10-round decision upset over Castilloux last night here by following that axiom. He tested the Montreal fighter, Canadian lightweight champion, for a few minutes before he decided he had nothing to fear and started boring in. He kept right on boring all through the fight, forcing Castilloux to fight close in. Those forcing tactics enabled Spiegal to make the most of his specialty—infighting.

The fight had no knockdowns. At 133, Spiegal was 2¾ pounds lighter than Castilloux. Also handicapped by a crippled right leg—a disability that never has hindered his fighting—Spiegal kept shuffling straight ahead.

VITT MEETS HIS SUCCESSOR

Gordie Poirer May Play With Ottawa Senators

Montreal, Dec. 10.—(CP)—Gordie Poirier, left-wing of the Tony Lemay-Albert Lemay line which compiled more than 100 points last season in the new disbanded provincial hockey league, will join his teammates soon in the lineup of Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, it was announced Monday. The trio played for St. Hyacinthe.

Poirier, a member of the Royal Canadian Medical Corps, has been transferred to Ottawa and will be eligible to play for the unbeaten Senators, who signed the Lemay brothers before the season's start. Before the transfer, Poirier, who turned professional late last season with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, played with Montreal Canadiens of the Q.S.H.L.

Because he was a member of the Canadian Active Service force it was not necessary for him to be reinstated as an amateur.

It takes the weatherman to bring out the true facts. In the spring the boys will talk baseball and hockey, but no definite move is made until Ol' Sol shines brightly and beckons the boys to the diamond. The same applies to hockey. Couldn't get a rise out of the R.C.A.F. pertaining to hockey until it was rumoured around the Hume arena had opened and now it is announced there is to be a ten-teamed intermural or department hockey league operating out of the R.C.A.F. base at Trenton. The league is under the direct supervision of Andy Reeke and Ken McAdam, the two Y.M.C.A. Sports Directors at the Trenton Airport. It seems neither the Hume arena nor the Trenton rink can singly accommodate this Air Force intermural group, so the games may have to be divided between the two district rinks. "With two senior clubs, a junior O.H.A. team, Juveniles and Interscholastic hockey clubs all clamouring for playing dates here, we can't neglect our skating periods," arena officials assured today.

Hockey moved out into a definite sphere last evening as the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association registered upwards to 40 players on their initial effort. All registration cards should be in the hands of the Association by Wednesday night as the teams will be selected that evening and practices will be held at the Hume arena on Thursday and Friday nights with the league swinging into action next Monday night with a doubleheader. The Reliance and Air Force seniors are practicing this evening, while "Toots" Holway's juniors will take to the ice at 7.00 p.m. Wednesday night, which means hockey practice at the local ice igloo every night this week. With only two or three of last year's juniors available this season, Coach Holway is anticipating a large turnout when the juniors take to the ice Wednesday. The Juvenile group named coaches and managers for their clubs as follows: Americans, Dick Beare and Art Rogers; Black Hawks, Herb Morris and "Boiler" Lloyd; Maple Leafs, Frank Pollwell and Frank Cunningham and Les Canadiens, Bill Dennis and Fred Reid.

Did You Know That: Johnny O'Flaherty of the New York Americans, got his nickname "Peanuts" because he sold peanuts for years in the Maple Leaf Gardens?....Also that O'Flaherty is the property of the Maple Leafs and on loan to the Amerks?....That no Toronto N.H.L. goalkeeper has ever won the George Vezina Trophy for the lowest number of goals scored against him in one season?....That goalie Earl Robertson, of the Americans, has lost 16 pounds since the N.H.L. opened? That there are five hockey players performing in the N.H.L. whose names begin with the letter "P" and who are all six feet tall? ....They are Muzz and Murray Patrick, Babe Pratt, Alfie Pike and Jack Portland, check 'em and see ....That Detroit is not the first N.H.L. city to play Sunday afternoon professional hockey games?..It was tried in Chicago several years ago....It could be the pros, are just a little envious of the capacity crowds which the so-called amateur pucksters are enjoying "south of the border."

Do you remember when Toronto Argonauts squeezed out a 4-3 victory over Sarnia Imperials, O.R.F.U. champions at Toronto seven years ago today for the Dominion rugby title. Argos had previously whipped Winnipeg, Western Canada winners, 13-0 in the semi-final.

With Jim Ellis taking over his new duties as coach of the Peterborough seniors, the Liftlock City pucksters skated out to their initial practice over the week end. The Petes claim the services of every member of last year's championship squad, except Don Coughlin, who joined Ned Vitarelli with the Baltimore Orioles. Red Creighton is back from Owen Sound and the fiery "red-head" will add punch to the Petes' front line. Coach Ellis also had out Mabies, former Queen's senior and Johnny Godfrey (no relation to "Big George", we hope) former defenceman with the New York Rovers, who Fred Craig tabs as a potential tower of strength on the Petes' defence. (Speedy St. St Louis and company please note.)

Engineers of General Electric, who have developed lighting systems for both the majors and minors, have devised a new nocturnal game called "Spooks baseball." A bat and softball, covered with fluorscent paints, activated by ultra-violet rays from mercury light sources, are used. While the ball and bat glow in the darkness of the night, the players are invisible. When the ball is hit into the infield or outfield, it looks to players and spectators like a ball of fire flying through the night. In the first experiments, the engineers illuminated only the ball and bat. A batter after hitting the ball, can not run the bases because they are not visible in the darkness, nor are the infielders or outfielders. Next year, the engineers expect to illuminate the bases, so the batter will know where to run, and also illuminate the gloves of the infielders, so they will know where to throw the ball to retire the batter.

Sport Slants — When the Chicago Bears won the professional football championship of the U.S.A. on Sunday by beating the Washington Redskins 73 to 0 "Slingin' Sam" Baugh, the Redskins' ace backfielder says he was never so humiliated in his life.... You see the Bears scored better than a point a minute and every man on the Bruins' line-up was in on the kill,...It is seldom a team has to stop booting placements, but that's what occurred to the Bears on Sunday.....After touchdowns the Bears were kicking placements for the extra point, but the fans had a little game all of their own—they had a contest to see who could gather in the largest number of footballs for souvenirs....So many pigskins disappeared into the arms of the fans the officials warned the Bears against booting any more placements—"We ain't got any more footballs, so don't try it again" warned the referee as the Redskins tossed out oval No. 7... The St. Louis Cardinals are on the rampage again so don't be surprised at anything pertaining to trades in major league baseball soon.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of letting these conditions become chronic. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hem-Roid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk a chronic pile condition when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

Australian authorities are searching for two men who, posing as police, obtained produce from an Italian woman by threatening her husband with internment.

ITALIANS RETREAT

On the southern sector also, the Italians were said to be retiring steadily toward Chimara, with the Greeks pressing hard on their heels toward the port of Valona.

Today's Greek High Command communique declared tersley "we have advanced further," and a spokesman filled in these details:—

"The entire army of the Italians' right wing was withdrawing Monday toward the north and northwest of Port Edda and Argirocastro, while its rear guard was harassed and pursued by our advancing troops.

"More to the north the enemy has been compelled, after a fierce attack by our troops, to abandon important strategic positions and withdraw in full flight. Still more to the north, units of our army have been able to dislodge the enemy's forces which until Sunday stubbornly defended peaks and heights very important from a strategic viewpoint.

"These forces were obliged not only to retreat but to take to flight. If these forces have been able to avoid annihilation it will be due to bad weather which has prevailed.

"Still more to the north other units of the enemy also are in flight."

The Greek advance apparently is divided into twin drives. In the southern sector Greeks, chorusing "On to Valona," are reported converging on that port along the coastal road from Porto Edda, by way of Chimara, and along an inland road north from Argirocastro, by way of Tepeleni. The Greeks apparently have not yet taken Chimara and Tepeleni.

In the northern sector drives toward Elbasani are aimed along a mount road north and west from Pogradetz and up the Devol river valley northwest of Moskopolis.

INSTALMENT 5.

"Here, let me see that," Gwen's father commanded, suddenly interested. "Elmer used to say he'd had an offer for it, but I never believed him. He was holding out for fifteen thousand. I just thought it was one of his nutty ideas. So he really did have an offer, did he? Three years ago, eh? . . . Sure enough, they wanted it. But according to what he used to say, he turned them down."

"Dad, without a penny in the world would he be idiot enough to turn down thirty-five hundred dollars!"

"I guess he would, dear."

"I suppose that by this time they are using something else?" the younger Peter amused.

"Who?" Gwen's eyes suddenly flashed blue fire. "Oh, Pete," she gasped, "d'you suppose there's a chance that they might still want it? Oh, Pete, if we could get that thirty-five hundred—think! Back interest on the mortgage—we could send that two hundred to the bank."

"We could pay off the mortgage, sap!" her brother interpolated, almost as excited as she. "It's only twenty-eight hundred."

"Peter!" Gwen gasped, electrified. "Oh, we could, couldn't we? And then that rotten hundred and sixty-three a year would be done with! Whose would that money be, Pete?"

"Gwendolyn, come to life, darling. Wake up, it's morning!" Peter informed her gently. "It'd be yours."

"Dad, Pete and I have been thinking that Link ought to see these deeds and documents!" Gwen said eagerly, as her father returned to the room. "If this firm really offers thirty-five hundred we could clear off the mortgage—"

"As far as that patent goes, Gwen," said her father, "I should think you'd know that it isn't ever going to amount to a hill of beans! If you're counting on anything poor Elmer Wall had to do with, I can tell you it's just going to give you a lot of trouble for nothing."

"Just the same, I'm going to talk to Link as soon as they're back!" Gwen said. She gathered the papers carefully together and carried them upstairs.

Comfortably in bed, she found that she would neither read nor sleep. The long panorama of the day's events wheeled before her vision. Now she was putting on Sheila's veil; now she was receipting a check for thirty-five hundred dollars; now Dick Latimer was telling her that he had merely thought it was Sheila he loved — it had been Gwen all along—wonderful to marry a famous doctor—

"I feel a hundred times better, Gwen. . . . Thanks a lot!"

Dick's words were in her ears as she dropped off into exhausted sleep.

* * *

It was a foggy morning, three weeks after the wedding, that Gwen and Peter set forth in the family car to go up to mine and spend a Saturday night with Sheila and Link.

The patent papers, the famous, "deed and documents", were safely packed in enormous brown envelopes and arranged for Link's professional inspection. Gwen had been warned more than once by her father that any hopes founded upon their evidence were doomed to disappointment, but still Gwen hoped. The thought of thirty-five hundred dollars danced in her mind, as she discussed possibilities with her brother.

"It'd be a great thing to have the mortgage cleared off, to have father and mother own house outright," Peter was presently rambling along comfortably. "It'd mean I could get married — you could get married when you felt like it—"

Gwen listened in a happy dream. It was heavenly to be driving along through the sweet morning lights and odors. Being in love, even with a man who hadn't the slightest idea how one felt about him; it carried her off to sleep at night as if it were a galleon with flags flying; it colored her dreams. She felt utterly content, sitting here beside Peter; hearing him talk of taxes and rents. Mom could rent rooms as easy as pie, way downtown. Sheila and Link would always lend a hand financially, if times got hard. Link, Peter opined, was going to get somewhere.

"And you'll marry, Gwen."

"I suppose so." Spring sang in her voice.

"Picked him out?" Peter asked, surprised, with an oblique glance.

"I don't know." She had flushed rosy red; she began to laugh. But upon Peter's questioning her seriously, she suddenly sobered and would tell him nothing. "I haven't informed my young man yet," she said demurely. "I have to work on him. He may die of the shock if I break it to him too suddenly."

"Someone in Kenthill?" Peter asked.

"I'll not tell you. He's in love with someone else at the moment." But Gwen had begun to laugh again, and Peter finding her gaiety infectious, laughed with her.

The orchards and farms had dropped below them now; the road was rising steadily and winding into the cool blue mountains. It was noon when the scaling of a wooden spur and a precipitous descent into a hidden valley brought the harsh, enormous buildings and the gashed hillside of the Lone Star Mine into view. It was a long hundred and fifty miles from Kenthill to Sheila's new home; for an hour they had driven in the solemn green shadow of the redwoods; had emerged on dizzy cliffs below which the river rushed, crossed great granite stretches lying hot and bare in the sunshine. Now and then across the clear air drifted the scene of the tufted tall red pines as strong as ether and infinitely sweet.

Sheila, the sunlight dazzling on her bright hair, rushed out to meet them, and the sisters laughed and cried as if their parting had been one of years rather than days. Gwen linked her arm in Sheila's and they went through the house together.

"Sheila, I should think you'd love it here. The air is simply like champagne!"

"It's the most wonderful thing. You're on your toes all the time. Isn't my kitchen darling?"

Sheila was completely happy; that was obvious. It was wonderful to see her so. Sheila had always been gracious and lovely, but there were a softness and sweetness, a quiet gaiety in her manner today which were new. Gwen loved to see her look toward Link when any little question of what they were to do, where they were to go, was raised. There was adoration as well as confidence in the lifted beautiful eyes; there was much quiet laughter, there were many little casual asides between them. Evidently the happiest sort of companionship was already established.

"He really," said Sheila of her husband when luncheon was over and the sisters were resting on the spare-room beds, "he really is the finest man I ever knew. I've never dreamed a man could be so clever and so gentle and so full of fun."

"Was Pebble Beach fun, Sheila?"

"Oh, Gwen, the loveliest place you ever saw! We drove down there from San Francisco. But do you know, Gwen," Sheila broke off to say, laughing, "we loved our wedding so, and we had such a good time at it, and Link got so intrigued by every separate member of the family that while we were driving down to Monterey he said suddenly, 'Oh, let's go back and hear what they're all saying about us!'"

"If you'd come back you would have found an admirer of yours," Gwen told her; Dick always in her thoughts.

"Who was that?"

"Dick Latimer. He came all the way from the city to your wedding, and then hadn't the nerve to come in."

"Hadn't the nerve?" Sheila asked, widening her eyes.

"It seems that he's had the most awful crush on you for years."

"Dick—Dick who? Dick Latimer? I don't even remember him," Sheila murmured, amused.

"A square, dark-looking sort of boy. He's a doctor, he's an intern in San Francisco."

"Oh yes, I place him now. But I don't remember ever speaking to him except about books. He used to take out medical books."

"That's the one. . . . And if you knew . . .!" Gwen thought.

"And he liked me?" asked Sheila.

"He was all broken up about your marrying anyone else."

"Oh well!" Sheila said, laughing. "And now I've got to go change my clothes," she added; "and you try to get a nap."

"D'you mean to say that that wavering old man actually invented this process?"

"His father did. His father was quite a scientist."

"Well, I should say he was! But look here, Gwen," Link said, scowling at the papers, "he sold it".

"Find a receipt?" Peter asked alertly.

"No, but here's some notice, clipped out of a newspaper, see? It says the Johnson Wallbestos process now operating at the Johnson-Polk Mills, is to be made the subject of experiments by a group of British scientists'."

"Then he DID sell it!" Gwen said, dismayed.

"Well, evidently. But since he preserved so much trash, you'd suppose the old man might have kept some record of the transaction," Link commented, shifting the papers about.

"The receipt might easily have been lost, Link. Goodness knows how long the deeds and documents were drifting around in that drawer! I wish," Gwen said, "that I'd paid more attention to them or to what Uncle Elmer kept saying about it. But I know," she added emphatically, her face brightening, "I know that he didn't sell it, because up to the very end—up to the wedding day—he kept telling me that he wouldn't take one cent less than fifteen thousand for it."

"Well, yes, it was. He was in an asylum, you know, but they thought they might cure him."

"I'll tell you what I can do, Gwen," Link said, still scowling as he studied the rumpled and much-fingered and annotated papers. "There's no date on this clipping, nor anything else, as far as I can find out. But you leave all this with me, and I'll see if I can get in touch with the Johnson-Polk Mills and find out if they have any records there. If this Wallbestos thing is worth the time of a lot of British scientists to investigate, it's possible you might have some royalty; I don't know. Anyway, I'll send out a feeler and we'll see what we get."

When Sunday morning came, and Gwen and Peter had to start for home, she clung to her sister. "Ah, Gwen, do this soon again! I hate so to have you go."

"I'll ask for another Saturday next month. And mother and dad are coming up."

"We'll be all ready for them. But of course that won't be so much fun. I haven't laughed so much in years as I have in the last twenty-four hours," said Sheila.

The glory of young wifehood was about her like an aura, and it was with this aura surrounding her that Gwen thought of her during the weeks to come.

Sheila's marriage, and the thought of Dick Latimer, had somehow made life quite different, different from what it always had been, and infinitely more exciting. When a girl was thinking of a certain man all the time, she did things and felt things in new ways. Little things became important; just the way she arranged her hair or pronounced some certain word or wrote her name had significance now.

Gwen was the only daughter at home; she had her room all to herself. She moved Sheila's bed up to the attic, had new bookcases built, went on foraging expeditions all over the house, collecting her own individual possessions to make more personal her own apartment.

All these activities seemed somehow to be connected with her new feeling for Dick; she could not have said why. But she felt definitely that they enhanced her personality in some way; they made Gwen Washburton more important, more distinctive.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 10 (CP)—The gold stocks advanced more than a point in active trading up till noon on Toronto Exchange today and the base metals firmed slightly. Industrials and western oils were steady to slightly lower. Volume totalled 212,000 shares for the first three hours.

Features of the trade were Kerr-Addison, Chesterville, Upper Canada, Pamour, Central Patricia and Hard Rock. McIntyre advanced 3-4 to 51 3-4 and the other seniors were steady.

Base metal issues were dull with Smelters and Nickel down narrowly. Royalite and Highwood sold higher and other western oils were slightly lower. The soft spots included Davies, Pacalta and Home.

Senior Oils, Utilities and Steels showed a slight margin on the up side and the foods and miscellaneous issues weakened.

WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 10. —(AP) — Stocks acted as though they wanted to rally in the early part of today's market but buyers soon stepped aside and a moderately lower drift developed.

Initial advances of fractions to around a point where converted into declines of as much in the majority of cases near the fourth hour. Dealings were slower than in the preceding session.

A lack of climbing power was shown by U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, American Can, Boeing, Great Northern, Phillips Petroleum, Anaconda, American Smelting, Public Service of N.J. and U.S. Rubber.

Occasional resistance was exhibited by U.S. Gypsum, Standard Oil of N.J., American Telephone, General Motors and Air Reduction. Chesapeake & Ohio edged into new high ground for 1940.

In the Canadian section Dome Mines and McIntyre showed small improvements. Hiram Walker dipped as much while Canadian Pacifice and Distillers Seagram held unchanged. Canada 4s, in the Bond market, advanced 1-4 points.

TWO NAZI AGENTS

It was the first announcement since the war started that spies had been executed.

The two German agents were convicted at the Central Criminal Court Nov. 22 under the Treachery Act.

Had Radio Transmitter

Waldberg, 25, and Meier, 24, were accused of having a radio transmitter which they erected in secluded spots in the countryside at night.

The men, authorities said, apparently had instructions to pose as refugees from German-occupied territory and to move about the country, picking up whatever military information they could.

They were said to have been supplied with large sums of money, all in pound notes.

The official announcement said the men had been led to believe they would be relieved shortly by invading German troops.

Pentonville prison was the site of the hanging of Roger Casement, Irish Nationalist, for high treason in the last war. His execution, on Aug. 3, 1916, was the first hanging in Britain for high treason in nearly 100 years.

The men were convicted under the Civilians Treachery Act, which provides death by hanging. Military conviction would have meant execution by firing squad.

BRITISH REPORTED

Latest advices from Cairo told of sharp fighting under bright moonlight last night as the British followed up their sudden assault on Marshal Graziani's Legions on a broad front near Sidi Barrani Italian advance post 70 miles within Egypt from the Libyan frontier.

Testing Moral Strength

London newspapers printed news of the engagement under banner headlines and speculated on the possibility of a full-fledged British offensive in North Africa timed to coincide with Italian dificulties on the Greek war front.

"The news suggests that Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell (British Near East Commander) and Lt.-Gen. Henry Maitland Wilson (Commander of British forces in Egypt) judge the time has come to test not only the material strength of the enemy, but his moral strength as well," declared the News Chronicle.

It said the recent shake-up in the Italian General Staff "must have had considerable effect on the enemy, and it is reasonable to suppose that Wilson has ordered British advance elements to take the offensive in order to discover to what extent Italian morale has fallen and by how much their powers of resistance have waned."

Better Egg Supply Causes Price Easing

Toronto, Dec. 10.— Increased receipts pushed top-quality egg prices down 1c to 2c in both sections of trading yesterday on the Toronto open produce market. Butter was quietly steady, while cheese nominally gained a fraction.

Demand for eggs was only fair throughout the day. The growing volume of supplies caused A-large eggs drop to a range of 33c to 34c in the graded group and to 37c in wholesale-to-retail trading. The only upturn was registered by Grade C eggs, which advanced from 28c to 29c in selling to retailers.

Butter offerings were light and the market maintained a firm tone. Buying was on a small scale but appeared sufficient to keep supplies moving. First-grade Ontario creamery solids were steady at 33c.

Montreal Produce

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 34c first grade solids, jobbing price, 33 1-2c.

Eggs: Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 37c; A-medium, 33c to 34c; A-pullets 32c to 33c. Other grades unquoted. Receipts: 427 cases.

FIRE THREATENED

room crew kept the ship forging slowly ahead.

As flames neared the magazine and shell room the chief engine room artificer, William Brooking of Dartmouth, N.S., and Chief Stoker Charles Branch and Lt.-Engineer H. H. Wright battled their way through the "bloody awful mess" to open the flooding valves.

Turns Off Valve

Brooking went down through the abandoned mess to reach the valve while Wright maintained communication between the man below and Branch who was on deck.

For a while the fire appeared to be getting out of control. The Captain was forced to leave the bridge to take a position at the rear steering post on a searchlight platform.

But a fire-fighting squad made up of petty officers James Walkey, Hamilton, Ont., William Carson, Regina, and stokers Douglas Haig Allen of Halifax and Eddie McCullough of Sherbrooke, Que., who had been forced to retreat to positions in the seamen's mess, lugged their hoses atop the forecastle, removed the ammunition and sent columns of water into the heart of the blaze.

They were aided in their fire fighting by quick-thinking torpedomen Campbell of Victoria and Dan Gearing of Hamilton, Ont., who raced to turn off the ventilating fans.

Part of Crew Transferred

It was daylight before the flames were finally brought under control and the bulk of the crew were transferred to a British ship. All the crew wanted to remain but the Captain ruled: "We may stop another of those things and every extra man means another bunch of flowers, and you know how expensive they are."

One of the tasks which drew the admiration of fellow sailors was the cutting down of the fore topmast which was shattered by a torpedo and left hanging on guy wires in danger of crashing through the forecastle.

It was accomplished by petty officers Harold Rye of Montreal and Ginger Robbins and Reginald Leal, Haligonians, under the direction of youthful Lieut. G. Huntley Davidson, also of Halifax.

No one got a night's sleep while the ship, which was threatened by a shortage of fuel, pushed ahead until it was picked up by a tug which tried for 12 hours to hold the destroyer against the howling gale but finally was ordered to release the lines and the Saguenay went limping to port under her own power..

The crew were given leave until December 27th.

Strong Upturn in Industry And Exports and Marked Rise In Wage Earnings Are Reported

President S. H. Logan of Canadian Bank of Commerce Refers at Annual Meeting of the Bank to Increase of 28% in Exports This Year — General Manager A. E. Arscott Estimates Mineral Production of Canada at More Than $500,000,000 This Year, a New Record

S. H. LOGAN,
President Canadian Bank of Commerce

A. E. ARSCOTT
General Manager, Canadian Bank of Commerce

Toronto, Dec. 10.—A strong upturn in business activity and export trade accompanied by a marked rise in wage earnings, was reported today by A. E. Arscott, general manager and S. H. Logan, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at the bank's annual meeting in Toronto.

Industrial Activity Index

The General Manager said the bank's index of industrial activity had risen in the last year by 20 per cent to an all-time high, mainly because of increased production of machinery and mechanical equipment plants since June. The output of forest products—one of the heaviest in the country's history—was stimulated by the greatest building program since 1930, by the demands of war and the call for pulp and paper products for markets in the United States and Latin America.

Mineral Production

Mr. Arscott estimated the value of Canada's mineral production at more than $500,000,000 for this year, a new record. He estimated that the distribution in wages had increased 30 per cent in the year.

The Bank's President called attention to the export figures which indicated an increase of 28 per cent over the 12 months ended October, 1939. The value of exports in the latest year, apart from the unsold wheat in United States storage, was estimated at $1,130,000,000.

Canada's Economic Strength

On the business situation, Mr. Logan said that nothing reflected more clearly the economic strength and productivity of Canada than her record during the past year. Besides providing employment for about 350,000 new workers and turning out fully 10 per cent more goods for domestic consumption than in the preceding year, she supplied the training facilities and part of the equipment for armed forces of about 350,000 and undertook additions to the country's industrial plant to cost over $250,000,000.

Never has Canada had greater reason for economic satisfaction than that the growth of mining, manufacturing and forestry in this country has enabled these industries to contribute so substantial a part of the materials necessary for carrying on the war.

Powerful Economic Bloc of Britain and Democracies

A study of the economic resources available at this time to the Axis bloc and to the democratic powers was of interest, the President said, because Hitler has recently stated that he is gearing the productive capacity of Europe into one vast machine which he claims will ensure a German victory. The proportions of world supplies of many strategic materials available to the belligerents were shown by Mr. Logan to substantiate his claim that the British Empire, together with the free colonies of its allies, the United States and the other republics of the New World all friendly to Britain, constitute a powerful economic bloc which contains in the aggregate a volume of war materials much greater than that of the Axis powers, combined with that of their non-belligerent allies, and those countries in which their influence is effective.

Canada's Part

Canada will have done her part in this great conflict waged for the ideals of human liberty and the preservation of Christian civilization throughout the world if she avoided the manifest errors of the past, faced courageously the facts of the present and emulated the fortitude, endurance and spirit of sacrifice daily and hourly exhibited by our valiant British kin, consecrating unstintedly her energies and resources to the prosecution of the war.

BRITISH SCORE

(A communique in Cairo today said the British forces had taken 4,000 Italian prisoners).

Initiative in Middle East Begins

The Prime Minister had a broad smile on his face when he rose to make his statement in the House. He gave a cold, factual account of the operations so far, summing up in these words:-

"It is too soon to attempt to forecast either the scope or the result of the considerable operations which are in progress, but we can at any rate say the preliminary phase has been successful."

British Campaign Timed

It is still not clear from official sources whether Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, Commander in Chief in the Middle East, who once was described by Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Chief of the German high command, as the greatest General in the British army, has launched a full scale offensive advance position.

The British campaign, however, obviously has been timed to take advantage of Mussolini's difficulties elsewhere. Gen. Wavell gave the order to advance while Mussolini's top-rank military leaders were resigning, his navy crippled, and his army in Albania retreating steadily before the Greek forces.

Broad Strategy in Campaign

For some time the view has been held in official circles here that Italy might be forced to her knees within a measurable period of time if steady blows could be directed against her by land, air and sea. It is more than likely that the campaign in the western desert forms part of this broad stategy.

Mr. Churchill said R.A.F. help for Greece which had proved "most important" in the Greek victories had caused a temporary postponement of attack against the Italians in Egypt in which Free French forces had co-operated with the British army of the Nile.

The House cheered as he concluded his report with the statement:—

Fleet and R.A.F. Co-operated

Mr. Churchill said the Mediterranean fleet and the air force "are, of course, co-operating closely with the army", and added that British warships have bombarded the various coastal positions of the Italians forces, particularly Maktila and Sidi Barrani.

He also announced substantial increases in coastal command aircraft for the protection of convoys in waters around Britain and said the House would debate shipping problems shortly in a secret session.

"I have come to the conclusion", he told the House of Commons, "that while there is no need at present to change the position of the coastal command as a part of the R.A.F., it is necessary that the coastal command should play a more important part than it has hitherto done in trade protection; and that for this purpose substantial increases, some of which have been already effected, will be necessary".

Coastal Command

Then he added that since the function of the coastal command is to co-operate with the navy, "the operational policy of the command must be determined by the Admiralty, of course in consultation with the air officers commanding in chief".

Oliver Simmons, Conservative, and Austin Hopkinson, Independent, decried the "continued suggestions for dismemberment of the R.A.F.", and the latter asked for immediate steps to end "newspaper intrigue in this connection, and particularly in those newspapers controlled by Lord Beaverbrook".

(Lord Beaverbrook is Minister of Aircraft production. His chief paper is The Daily Express.)

Mr. Churchill replied to this:—

"I cannot exercise any control over the press other than that which is well known to the House under the existing war conditions"

Mr. Hopkinson, however, pursued the matter, asking whether the Prime Minister could not "exercise any control over his colleagues in the Cabinet".

'I Think I can', Says Mr Churchill

There was an outburst of laughter, and Mr. Churchill retorted:—"Yes, I think I can" .

"The last thing wanted", Mr. Churchill said, "is an inter-service controversy". (Such as splitting up the R.A.F. might engender.)

William Thorne, Labor, asked assurance that "the shipyards all over the country are being fully employed", and A.U.M. Hudson, Civil Lord of the Admiralty, replied "I think that it so."

Ronald Cross, shipping Minister, informed the House that "every possibility" of utilizing Danish ships, immobilized in neutral ports, was being explored.

Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced the compulsory War Risks Insurance Bill would be published tomorrow.

Brush With Enemy Sub Puts Saguenay In Port for Repairs

Destroyer Hit by a Torpedo in Eastern Atlantic-No Indication Whether Sub Was Destroyed

Ottawa, Dec. 10 (CP)—A brush with an enemy submarine in the Eastern Atlantic has sent the Canadian destroyer Saguenay to port for repairs, and resulted in the death of 21 members of the Royal Canadian Navy and injury to 18 others.

Announcement of the torpedoing last night by Naval Service Headquarters was the first official word of damage to a Canadian warship in action against the enemy, but Canada has lost two destroyers in collisions since the war began.

The terse naval statement gave no details of the destroyer-submarine engagement. It said merely:—

"Naval Service Headquarters announces that H.M.C.S. Saguenay was struck by a torpedo whilst engaging a submarine in the Eastern Atlantic. The ship has safely reached port where she will be taken in hand for the necessary repairs.

"Twenty-one ratings are reported missing. Eighteen ratings are wounded and are now in hospital. Their next of kin have been informed."

The rest of the brief statement was taken up with a description of the Saguenay and her history. There was no indication whether the submarine was destroyed, or whether other allied vessels were involved in the action.

All Naval Ratings

Casualties aboard the Saguenay all were naval ratings Apparently her Commanding Officer, Cmdr. George R. Miles of Halifax, and his commissioned officers, escaped without injury.

Every province but Manitoba suffered loss of at least one man in the torpedoing. Next of kin of six of the dead live in Quebec, of five in Ontario, of two in Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, and of one in British Columbia, New Brunswick, Saskatchewan and Alberta. One man came from Newfoundland, and no address was listed for the other.

Injured From Six Provinces

The injured were from six provinces, Nova Scotia, Ontario, Quebec, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and New Brunswick.

Canada's two destroyer losses of the war were the Fraser and the Margaree.

The Fraser was sunk in collision off Bordeaux while aiding in the evacuation of Britons from tottering France last June. Forty-five members of her crew were lost.

Canada acquired the Margaree from the British Admiralty as a replacement, but she was cut in two last October 22 by a large merchantman she was convoying through the North Atlantic night. The loss of life then was 142 officers and men, including the Commanding Officer, Cmdr. J. W. R. Roy of Ottawa.

Destroyer Fleet Now Eleven

A few days later, Canada suffered another naval loss when the auxiliary minesweeper Bras d'Or disappeared with thirty officers and men aboard. She was travelling through the stormy gulf of St. Lawrence from Clark City, Que., to Sydney, N.S.

With the Saguenay temporarily out of action, Canada's effective destroyer fleet now stands at 11, assuming that the six destroyers recently obtained from the United States are in service.

Canada started the war with a fleet of seven destroyers. Loss of the Fraser was repaired by acquisition of the Margaree but so far the Margaree's place has not been taken.

When the United States traded fifty destroyers to Britain for defence bases sites in the western hemisphere, six of the fifty were allotted to Canada, but it has not been stated officially whether they have been placed in service.

With a displacement tonnage of 1,330, speed of 35 knots, overall length of 321 feet and beam of 32 feet, the Saguenay is typical of the Allied destroyer fleet which are the terror of enemy submarines. She is armed with eight torpedo tubes, four Lewis guns, two two-pounder guns and four 4.7 inch guns.

BRITONS PLEASED

The weather was not unfavorable to raiding, although the bright moonlight of the early night gave way later to clouds and light mist.

Press Speculates

The Press Association speculated that the lull might have been caused by the Royal Air Force's blows at Germany and German air bases, or by a German strategy of massing its Air Force for a heavy blow later, but added:—

"The now constant guessing as to why the Luftwaffe fails to raid night after night still is without an answer."

A Government communique declared:—

"An enemy bomber was shot down into the North Sea yesterday afternoon by our fighters. Apart from a reconnaissance flight near the south coast (of England), there was no activity during the night."

Two planes were said to have flown some distance inland this morning through several bursts of anti-aircraft fire, but there were no reports of any bombs being dropped.

Handling May Cause Explosion

The parachute bomb, the papers explained, is a "dark gray-green metal object about the size of your gas mask container—merely handling it may cause it to explode."

Such bombs do not always explode when they strike the ground, the articles continued, but when they do explode they have such a high degree of fragmentation that they can cause casualties as far as 50 feet away.

The bomb itself was described as a sheet metal cylinder with a wire about five inches long attached. The cylinder is built to make it spring open as the bomb falls. Two parts form a rough, metal parachute and other parts operate as vanes which rotate the bomb as it rushes through the air, bringing the fuse into action.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Hired Wife"

(As reviewed by Roly Young)

Universal production, directed by William A. Seiter, with the following cast:

Hollywood is inclined to be carried away by its own sense of humor, and, judging by the publicity given out in the trade papers for "Hired Wife" now showing at the Capitol, the Hollywood mind is completely convulsed and hysterical over the fact that Rosalind Russell administers a swift kick to Brian Aherne toward the end of the picture. As a matter of fact, while said kick in the slats is highly gratifying, since you feel that it is coming to Mr. Aherne, it really is a minor episode in a long series of laughs. Everybody involved in "Hired Wife" deserves to take a bow for having got so much vim, vigor and humor into the piece, because the whole premise of the piece is an old sterotyped situation about the secretary who loves her boss, who has to get married suddenly for business reasons. Aside from hanging their heads in shame for dragging out such an old bromide for a plot, even the authors can take a bow for decorating the piece with a brilliant bit of scripting, although they will have a tough time, even in the name of comedy, to explain the secretary leaving the boss's office saying, "So long, Butch!"

Personally, I think Rosalind Russell is ideal for this type of picture, with a grand flair for keeping the pace going. Even in its quieter moments Miss Russell has a collection of mannerisms and little gestures that keep the picture up to pitch, and, as far as I am concerned, she is running neck and neck with Myrna Loy in the Favorite Comedienne Sweepstakes.

Brian Aherne is an ideal foil for the reservedly romantic cementy-coon, and Virginia Bruce has no difficulty in carrying off the role of the siren advertising model. And, of course, there's Robert Benchley, who always adds 50 per cent to my enjoyment of any film. In this one Benchley is Aherne's lawyer, and wanders in and out through most of the piece with his usual screwy humor.

Yep, I think "Hired Wife" is one of the season's funnier comedies, and I heartily recommend it for what ails you.

"Mein Kampf—My Crimes"

Chapters of European and Germanic history, dating from the close of the Great War of 1914-18, and including scenes of the mad unbelievable terror depicting the atrocious crimes of Nazidom of the present era are shown in "Mein Kampf—My Crimes", the current film attraction showing at the McCarthy Theatre.

The film shows in graphic picturization battle-scenes from the last Great War—the war to end war—and the subsequent celebration throughout the world that at last peace had been signed. It shows discontented Germany during the following years, a Germany ripe for a new order, and the Germany in which the seed of National Socialism was shown Followers of the "Brute of Berlin" are shown in actual films which were smuggled out of Germany, the struggle of Hitler and his new order to gain supremacy and the hate, the cruelty, oppression and domination practised by the Nazis in their march for power which ultimately threw the world into the greatest turmoil of its history.

Graphically depicted is the burning of the famous German "Reischstag" and the murders of Dollfus, Chancellor of Austria, and of Roehm who aided Hitler in his rise to power and who was declared a traitor to the cause by the "Beast of Berlin".

The persecution of the Jews by Hitler and his troopers is told in the film as well as the teachings of the Nazi Youth Movement to overthrow the church and to act as spies against their parents. The stark revelations of the film leave little for the imagination as no effort to cloak the horrors and atrocities enacted by Nazidom are attempted.

Following the invasion of Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Austria, which is all graphically told, the preparation of Britain and France to oppose the Nazi oppression is shown.

AT THE BELLE

"A Dispatch from Reuter's"

A picture as timely and exciting as the latest news bulletin is now on the Belle screen when Warner Bros. "A Dispatch from Reuter's," starring Edward G. Robinson, starts its local run. The screen has brought to the front the stories of many famous people but never before has it revealed the tale of a person so widely heard of, but so little known.

Robinson plays the part of Julius Reuter, whose speedy dispatches held within them the fate of empires and who did more to form the ethical credo of news gathering than any man in history. He first had the idea of finding some way to speed up the travelling of news when he was a child. Never forgetting his childhood ambition, he and his friend, played by Eddie Albert, open a news agency and use pigeons to carry the news between towns which have no telegraph. As years go on the Reuter's News Agency becomes more and more associated with dramatic and far-reaching events despite attempts to place obstacles in his path.

Edna Best portrays his sympathetic wife who drives home the lesson that the duty of a reporter is first to his people and secondly to his paper. Others in the cast include Albert Basserman, Gene Lockhart, Otto Kruger, Nigel Bruce Montagu Love.

"Haunted Honeymoon"

What is undoubtedly one of the funniest and most original "who-dunits" the screen has seen in some time is the added comedy feature "Haunted Honeymoon," filmization of Dorothy L. Sayers' entertaining narrative of a pair of honeymooners both previously, associated with the business of crime, who go to the English countryside to "get away from it all" only to discover themselves in possession of the corpse of a murdered man.

With Robert Montgomery as Lord Peter Wimsey, debonair amateur detective and Constance Cummings as his mystery fiction-writer wife, filling the leads, the action runs along at a merry pace with any number of suspects seeming to fit the picture as the guilty men, and an innocent - looking unwatered plant forming a pivotal clue in the final solving of the crime.

The mystery and comedy elements of the production have been skillfully blended by Director Arthur B. Wor's and a word must be said for the picturesque settings with which the story abounds and which are a delight to the eye.

The Belle News of the day will be exhibited on the same program.

ALL-TEEL "BLISTERS" LONDON'S NEWEST SENTRY BOXES

This steel igloo is London's newest sentry box. It's an all-steel pillbox to protect policemen and military sentries on duty during air raids, and the sturdy little steel "blisters" are beginning to dot the streets of the capital. Huge Quantities Material Seized Not Yet Sorted

Head-on Collision With Graziani's North African Troops a Possibility

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 11 (AP)—The British Command announced today that more than 6,000 Italian prisoners have been taken in the western desert, together with "quantities of war material."

A communique said operations in the western desert were "progressing satisfactorily."

The "huge quantities" of war material seized have not yet been sorted out, the communique said.

The British army, having driven a wedge between important Italian advance positions at Sidi Barrani and other Italian forces farther west, faced a possible head-on collision with the main body of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's North African troops.

Snow in the Antarctic! Since ordinarily the chief cause of precipitation is rising, damp air which is cooled to its dew-point to form clouds, why should snow fall in Antarctica? Why? Because it is thought to be covered with cold, dense air in which there are no rising currents. But there must be snowfall, as witness the ever-flowing glaciers moving outward from the interior. There are two theories: One, that the snow is condensed from air in contact with the surface; the other, that the winds force air to rise over masses of slowly moving surface air. In blizzards much of the snow is picked up from the surface. At present our information is too eager to form a satisfactory and complete explanation of Antarctic snowfall.

WILL NOT APPEAL COURT SENTENCE

Attorney-General Conant However Requests Welfare Department to Investigate Household

Toronto, Dec. 11.—(CP)—Attorney-General Gordon Conant said today no appeal will be launched by him in the three months sentence given by Magistrate C. F. Bick at Midland, recently to Sam Losko for wounding Mildred Grkovich, six-year-old daughter of Losko's housekeeper. The child was struck by a curtain rod, a wound being inflicted in her head, as she ran from Losko when he was about to chastise her.

At the some time, Mr. Conant said he is concerned with the home "in which this most unfortunate affair occurred", and he is requesting the Welfare Department to investigate it. Ontario Provincial police will also keep the premises under observation.

The evidence as submitted to him shows that while Losko intended to chastise the child, he did not intend to inflict "the rather serious injuries which resulted from his action".

Losko, Mr. Conant explained, has been in jail since October 13, and will be confined there for three months following date of conviction on December 3, altogether a period of almost five months.

Settle Dispute Over Officer-Prisoners' Pay in Germany

London, Dec. 11 (CP)—Settlement of a long dispute over the rate of pay of British officer-prisoners of war in Germany has been announced by the Red Cross and St. John War Organization. Such prisoners are entitled to pay under the Geneva convention regarding treatment of prisoners but an argument developed over rate of exchange between the mark and the pound.

Through the international Red Cross the rate of exchange has been fixed but no details were announced. British prisoners will be given full pay retroactive from the date of capture.

The Geneva convention specifies officers shall receive from the detaining power the same pay as officers in corresponding ranks of that power provided such pay does not exceed that they were granted in their own country.

Prisoners in the ranks are not entitled to pay but may work if they wish. Pay for their work must be on the same scale as prevailing for such work in the district. For instance if a private or non-commissioned officer laid bricks his pay must be the same as bricklayers in that district received.

Canadian Airman Goes into Action 48 Hours After Arriving in England

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press War Correspondent)

Somewhere in England, Dec. 11—(CP Cable)—Some members of the first class of Canadians graduated in the Empire Air Training scheme, who arrived in Britain a couple of weeks ago, already have been in combat and have flown over German-held territory.

Pilot Officer Arthur Snell of Calgary, who qualified as navigator, bomb aimer, wireless operator and gunner, was the first of the new Canadian airmen to go into action and within 48 hours of his arrival in England he helped bomb Boulogne one of the Nazi invasion bases on the French coast.

The bomber in which he was flying raced in to the target, dropping incendiary bombs starting half a dozen fires to help illuminate the target for other British bombers, and then circled back to unload a cargo of high explosives.

Snell, who wears an observer's wing, gained his commission under the plan after joining as an aircraftman, second class, at the outbreak of the war.

Collapse of France and Conquest of Norway Gives Germany Advantage in This Area

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 11.— (CP)— The British government is being urged from all sections of the House of Commons to approach President De Valera of Eire for permission to use sea bases in Eire in the war against the German U-boat.

The two bases in mind are Berehaven near the southwest tip of Eire and Lough Swilly in the extreme north of Eire, commanding the two approaches to the west coast ports of Britain.

It has been proposed that Britain lease the two ports for the duration of the war on something like the same terms as the United States was permitted to use sea and air bases in Newfoundland and the West Indies. There would be no question of Eire's intervention in the war.

London, Dec. 11 (AP)—Along the walks of Long Meadow, beautiful estate of a blinded veteran of the Boer war, a shuffling, sometimes stumbling procession of men and women winds each day.

They are a new class of blind created by a new war using the new methods of bombing large cities from the air. They are civilians suffering a disablement once almost exclusively the risk of a front line soldier in wartime.

Of 28 men and women at Long Meadow, at Goring on the placid Thames, all earned their living before being blinded; all but three were married, had homes and a variety of interests.

Duncan Praises Attitude Employers, Employees In Helping War Effort

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 11 (CP)—Nothing in Canada's wartime economy is more satisfactory and encouraging than the "reasonable, understanding and patriotic attitude" of the nation's employers and employees, James S. Duncan, Acting Deputy Air Minister, said today.

"Both recognize that they should not unduly profit by the sacrifices which this country is making to preserve our liberties," he told employees of an aluminum plant (Aluminum Company of Canada) after an inspection tour of the factory.

Mr. Duncan said that the plant was classed as "AA" in the list of priority industries, "meaning that its product is considered as of first national importance to the war effort.

"This implies that every man in your organization is pulling his weight in the national boat, and is making his contribution to the country's welfare just as much as if he were serving in the armed forces.

"It may well be that the bugle call is more stirring than the factory whistle, but in these days of highly mechanized warfare, men in plants such as these are serving their country just as truly and just as loyally as those who are in uniform."

Youth of Country Praised

Mr. Duncan said the aluminum plant's employees were doing work "not dissimilar" to that done by the British Commonwealth Air Training plan with which he was connected.

"Our raw materials are the youth of this country, whom we are training and moulding into air-crews," he said. "They are already proceeding in ever-increasing numbers overseas to join airmen of the Royal Air Force, who are at the present time fighting to preserve all the things which are nearest and dearest to us.

"You, on the other hand, are turning your raw materials into the manufacture of Aircraft for Canada and for Great Britain. It is upon the abundant supply of these that not only this country, but the British empire and the oppressed people of the continent of Europe, are counting to give us that air superiority upon which all our hopes are based.

"We are both vital links in the chain which, if well forged, will lead us undoubtedly to final victory."

International Police Force In Air Seen as Guarantee By British Home Secretary

Home Secretary by Implication Rejects Any Hope of Peace in World Dominated by Nazi Germany

London, Dec. 11 (CP)—Home Secretary Herbert Morrison envisioned today a co-operative post-war world "guaranteed by an international police air force" in which "never again shall it be possible for a thug with a bomber force to terrorize a continent."

By implication he rejected any hope of peace in a world dominated by Nazi Germany, saying "many people would be ready to listen" in Germany "could hold out a convincing promise of a Europe enriched by economic unity and pacified by the removal of national rivalries."

He added, however, that "the civilized world gasps at each revelation of the cold ferocity with which the Nazis are prepared to treat peoples hom they dominate."

"The new European military order is a vast military monopoly," Mr. Morrison declared. "The organization which the Nazis offer Europe is that of a slave plantation."

"Unless this war ends with a preponderance of military striking power in the hands of the democracies," Mr. Morrison said, "Europe can look forward to no constructive period from war to a better and permanent peace . . .

Co-operation International System

"I conceive us to be aiming at a co-operaitve international system guaranteed by an international police air force. Never again shall it be possible for a thug with bomber force to terrorize a continent to smash homes and cities and crush the innocent bodies of women and children, to blast into powder the fruits of man's toil and the monuments of his greatness . . .

"Nations must be ready to sacrifice many of their independent rights and they must feel genuinely moved to work together to create a better life for their citizens.

"It is not enough to abolish tariff walls and competitive armaments. These things are merely negations of evil. We need to go beyond them and find positive means to good."

Gov't Keeps Close Watch On Canada's Butter Situation

HIGHER THAN IN 1939

Ottawa, Dec. 11 (CP)—The War Time Prices and Trade Board continues to keep a close eye on the butter situation, acting collaboration with the Department of Agriculture with which numbers of protests against any attempt at butter price fixing have been lodged.

Butter now is priced at about 33 cents a pound wholesale, four or five cents above what it was last year at this time, having advanced during the past few weeks in anticipation of storage stocks showing a shrinkage. Stocks are down 15.5 per cent and production is off.

The problem, it was said today, embraces the possibilities of increase in price, imports of butter and possible manufacture or importation of margarine.

Butter in store at the end of November was down 7,700,000 pounds as against a year ago, to 41,769,020 pounds. During the winter months beginning in November farmers produced less than is consumed and this condition continues until the end of April.

Farmers, it was understood, have been more vociferous in their demands that the price of butter remain unfixed than consumers in asking that it be set.

If a maximum price for butter is fixed the farmers want a minimum figure as well and suggest feed prices should be also set.

The bureau of statistics reported domestic disappearance of butter during November increased approximately 2,800,000 pounds from the November, 1939, figure but dropped nearly 16 per cent compared with last October.

PRE-DAWN ALARM FIRST IN MORE THAN 46 HOURS

Long Respite Believed Due to Bad Weather Over Nazi Air Bases on Continent

ARTILLERY DUEL

Any Planes Seen Over England Apparently on Scouting Missions

London, Dec. 11—(CP)—A single German plane dropped two bombs this morning on an East Anglian town while London had a brief pre-dawn alarm—the first in more than 46 hours.

One of the bombs wrecked a house in the East Anglian town and killed one person and injured several others.

Eight German fighters appeared off the southeast coast early in the afternoon. They were chased off by Royal Air Force fighters.

Bad weather was believed responsible for London's longest respite from bombing since early autumn.

Today's communique said there was "very little enemy activity during the night and no reports of damage or casualties have been received."

Later the government reported that in one town in East Anglia bombs dropped by a raider had damaged several houses and caused "a very small number of casualties."

Sighted Over East Anglia

Invading planes again were sighted over East Anglia shortly after dawn.

New York, Dec. 11 —(AP)— A manuscript done on vellum, written by a French scribe in the 15th century, brought a total of $2,025 last night at the second auction banquet given by the Red Cross to raise money for Great Britain.

The manuscript, written in red and brown ink and dealing with Biblical characters, was purchased for $1,025 by William Rosenwald, a dealer, who handed it back for resale for $1,000 to Herman Oriele of New York City.

All of the manuscripts, paintings and other objects of art were donated by prominent collectors, including J. P. Morgan and Thomas Lamont, the financiers.

French Spirit in Brittany Shows Signs of Recovery and Defiance

London, Dec. 11 (CP)—A reassuring light upon the recovery of the French spirit is thrown by a private letter smuggled into England from Brittany and printed by the Daily Telegraph.

The newspaper described the letter as of unquestioned authenticity and written by a Frenchman of great experience. More than this could not be said, except that the unwitting complicity of a German sergeant helped speed its arrival.

Brittany, one of the largest French provinces, is completely occupied by the Germans, who promised it autonomy shortly after they marched in. This promise has not keen kept, the writer said, as the Nazis soon learned the Bretons are pro-British and have no desire to separate from the rest of France.

Italy is regarded with contempt, according to the letter, and a recent order issued in Brest provides that: "No insulting remarks are to be made against Italians in general and the Italian Vice-Consul in particular. If further breaches of this order are reported the town will be fined 50,000 francs ($13,350)."

Another order lays down: "No garbage or rubbish of any kind is to be thrown out of windows while German officers and troops are passing in the street."

The letter contains interesting reflections on the attitude of the population toward the Vichy Government and Gen. De Gaulle of the Free French forces aligned with Britain.

It emphasizes the fact that the leader of the Free French forces now occupies the first place in popular esteem.

"The mobilization of the spirit has already been carried out in occupied France," states the letter. The writer goes on to say that although in present circumstances active support is materially impossible, any British success against the Germans will cause them to be faced by a difficult and dangerous situation inside France.

Ship in Harbor, Munitions Dump Destroyed in Raid

Presence of Italian Fighter Planes No Deterrent to Bombing Squadron

Athens, Dec. 11. —(AP)—Greek sources disclosed today that a number of troops from the rugged hills of Crete have been thrown into the Greek front line against the retreating Italian in Albania. Greeks describe these men, whose favorite weapon is a knife, as surpassed in toughness only by the Kingdom's famed Mountain Troops.

At the same time a government spokesman reported "important moves are now in full development", but would give no hint of the new Greek offensive action beyond saying advances were continuing on all fronts.

R.A.F. Announces Raid

The British Royal Air Force announced a raid on Valona, Italian supply port in Southwestern Albania, in which a ship, a munitions dump and some buildings were hit despite Italian fighter opposition.

The men from Crete, dark, hardy Mediterraneans have already engaged the Italians, one dispatch from the Front said.

Fined on Charges Of Violation of Censorship Rules

London, Dec. 11 (CP)—The editor and publishers of Reynolds News, a Sunday newspaper, were fined £15 ($66) each today and ordered to pay £10 ($44) costs following upon their conviction on two charges of violating censorship regulations.

A third charge, involving an article concerning the "Defence and Fortifications of Malta," was withdrawn for lack of evidence.

The other two charges involved stories about the sowing of mines in the Rhine and the movements of British aircraft in the Mediterranean. The magistrate accepted the prosecution's view that the case was not serious and that a mistake had been made.

In connection with the Malta article, the government's case was based on the fact that the censor had made some cuts in a story submitted for censorship in the paper's London edition after it had appeared in Hull in the Scottish edition Aug. 17th.

TRAILER FAMILY RECEIVES GIFTS

Scenario Writer From Hollywood Wishes to be Shown Trailer so Picture Can be Made

Kingsville, Ont., Dec. 11.—(CP)—Gifts of all descriptions, including money in substantial amounts, are being showered upon Gosfield South's trailer family, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Laskey. Sums as high as $20 have reached the father from sympathisers in the United States. A Hollywood scenario writer has addressed a request to the doctor asking that she be shown the condition of the trailer at a later date so that she may acquire "sofie atmosphere", for a projected picture.

Another group of sympathizers in Windsor have suggested the formation of a Zeke Laskey Club to raise funds for the care of the family until they can get back on their feet. From newspaper stories the family's plight has become known within a radius of several thousand miles.

Meanwhile, a Provincial investigation is about to be launched by order of Premier Hepburn who has declared he could not see the necessity for a family living in such conditions while the province spends hundreds of thousands for welfare.

Laskey has been donated a former railway waiting-room on the same sub-division which holds the trailer where the latest arrival in the family was born early the morning of November 30, with the aid of a pocket flashlight and a small kerosene lamp. Dr. J. P. Lee, attending physician, one of the veteran practitioners of the town of Kingsville, is also receiving public acclaim.

11 SHOPPING DAYS TILL Christmas

INNER HARBOR ICE 7-8 INCHES THICK

Between seven and eight inches of ice now covers the inner harbor, it was revealed by frequenters of the waterfront on Tuesday. A large percentage of this is snow ice, but the surface has been sufficiently smooth for skaters to enjoy themselves to the full Mr. Jim Cook, caretaker of the South End Athletic Club, mindful of the fact that snow is likely to come and spoil skating except in shovelled areas, has the boards placed for the skating rink directly opposite the club's premises, and outdoor lovers are promised their usual skating pleasures at the Belleville waterfront.

Caught in the ice of the harbor by the sudden lowering of temperatures two weeks ago, one fishing boat, the F. B. Wright, is causing her owner considerable difficulty before she is placed in her winter quarters. Workmen were engaged freeing her from her icy shackles before hauling her up on the shore for the winter.

UNSEALED CHRISTMAS CARDS MAY BE MAILED FOR A CENT

Many inquiries are being received at the local post office about the rate of postage on unsealed Christmas greeting cards. Postmaster Trualsch says that these unsealed envelopes may be posted at one cent each to any place in the world, but he pointed out that there are distinct advantages in sending Christmas and New Year greetings by first class mail. The most important, he said, was that it enhances the personal spirit of the greeting.

When greeting cards are sent by first class mail they may be sealed, may contain written messages, and will be redirected or returned if undeliverable at the original address. First class greeting cards are also given preference in delivery. This rate is two cents for local delivery and three cents for outside delivery.

SUBALTERNS AND W.O. MUST HAVE O.K. OF C.O. TO MARRY

Subalterns and warrant officers under the age of twenty now serving in the Active Canadian Army will in the future have to obtain permission of their Commanding Officers in order to marry, according to amended Routine Orders issued recently.

It is also ruled that all non-commissioned officers and men under the age of nineteen will be required to produce written consent of a parent or guardian when applying for his permission to marry. If the intended wife is under twenty-one, written consent of her parent or guardian is also necessary. Should conditions not permit the obtaining of the necessary written consent, the Commanding Officer, if he considers the case worthy, may refer it with full particulars to the District Officer Commanding.

Failure to obtain the necessary permission from the Commanding Officer may interfere seriously in obtaining Dependents' Allowance, the order reveals.

C.D.S. DISTRIBUTES BONUS TO EMPLOYEES

Employees of the Canadian Department Stores, Limited, received a pleasant surprise with the announcement of a Christmas bonus based on length of service.

The members of the staff who were in the employ of the company prior to January 1st last are given cheques in the amount of their pay for two weeks. Those who were taken on during the period from January 1st to June 30th this year get an extra week's pay and any others who joined between July 1, and November 1st, receive three days' pay.

The bonus applies to all employees of the T. Eaton Company and Canadian Department Stores throughout Canada. Employees enlisted for war service this year are also sharing in the distribution of earnings.

HIGHWAYS SANDED IN THIS DISTRICT

With the exception of a stolen car, which was later recovered, activities in and around local police circles were quiet and serene, authorities reported today. One lone inebriate and five transients shared the cell block at the police station last night. Provincial Highway patrolmen reported no serious accidents had occurred on district highways. "The highways have been sanded in this district and progress is much safer than earlier in the week," reported Patrol-Sergeant S. J. Hunter today.

SUNDAY EVENING ENTERTAINMENT OF AIRMEN WELCOMED

Members of city service clubs who have "adopted" two members of the Royal Canadian Air Force base at Trenton for Sunday evening entertainment state that the plan is meeting with unqualified success.

The clubmen say that splendid types of young Canadian manhood wearing the blue-grey of the force and who come from the Maritimes to Vancouver comprise the groups that visit their homes for dinner and evening entertainment.

Many of the young airmen, in fact the majority of them, are experiencing their first taste of homelife since they left colleges, schools, businesses and other phases of civilian life for the less lucrative profession of the Air Force.

Judge Charles A. Cameron waxed enthusiastic over the plan. "We have had several of these young men at our home and they have proved to be perfect gentlemen. They come from fine homes, and the appreciation shown more than pays the hosts for any trouble."

The plan will continue during the winter and during the spring. Ten members of each service club are delegated to entertain two R.C.A.F. members each Sunday evening.

HIGH WIND HOLDS PLANE MOTIONLESS

Chance sky-gazers were given a first hand demonstration of the power of head winds and their resultant action upon aircraft when a lone Trenton R.C.A.F. training plane was seen directly above Belleville streets on Tuesday afternoon apparently hanging motionless in the sky.

Flying at between one and two thousand feet above the city the plane for several minutes remained in the one position, apparently not making one foot of forward progress. Stiff headwinds undoubtedly accounted for the phenonenon as after struggling fruitlessly to make forward progress the pilot suddenly turned his ship in the opposite direction and glided away before the wind which a moment before had held him motionless in the air.

THIRTY TRAINEES GIVEN PROMOTION

Thirty trainees representing the cream of the 750 men in training at Exhibition Camp, C.A.T.C. 32, Peterborough were promoted to the rank of Lance-Corporal on Tuesday, with the appointments being effective from the date they entered camp.

This is the first time since the military camp was started in Peterborough that trainees have been promoted, and besides the "dog-leg" on their arms, it means an increase in pay of 20c per day.

The men were chosen bcause of their ability and their aptitude in imparting knowledge to others, and it is expected they will continue on their military training with their respective militia units when the camp-training period is over.

Those from the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment who were promoted include: Ernest Anderson, Frankford, A. B. Carson, Belleville, R. 3; John F. Bradford, Belleville; Francis J. Morrison, Belleville; R. M. Simpson, Trenton; Alvin J. Cowle, Bowmanville; George A. Kinney, Picton; Joseph J. Tracy, Stoco; William C. Nightingale, Belleville R. 7; J. V. O'Connor, Belleville.

O.V.C. APPLICATIONS NOW NUMBER 26

Applications for membership in the Ontario Volunteer Constabulary are continuing through the offices of the Ontario Provincial Police and Major Willing of the O.V.C. Already some 26 citizens of Belleville have joined this voluntary defence organization and it is expected that lectures and training periods will commence in the near future. The work of the O.V.C. consists of assistance to the police authorities in case of strikes or disturbances and to quell subversive activities. Lectures on air raid precaution work will constitute much of the winter's agenda.

CAR STOLEN IN CITY WRECKED NEAR ODESSA

Following a thrilling 90-mile-an-hour chase along Highway No. 2 a motor car, which had been stolen in Belleville, was wrecked at Odessa and the alleged car thief captured shortly before 11.00 p.m. Tuesday night. The car thief later told police authorities he was Douglas Fothergill, 19-year-old unemployed Toronto youth. The automobile stolen was the property of Mr. Bert High, Catherine Street.

Mr. High stepped out of his motor car to call for a friend, who resides at the corner of East Moira and North Front Street about 10.00 p.m. Tuesday evening and left the motor running, as he did not expect to be gone more than a matter of seconds. It was just long enough to permit a passing pedestrian time to step into the vehicle and speed away. City police were notified and Sergeant Arthur Booth relayed the message of a stolen motor car at Belleville via long distance telephone to all parts of Eastern Ontario. The vehicle was described as a 1938 model Buick sedan bearing licence plates number 938-M-5.

At Napanee Motorcycle Patrolman Morden sighted the fleeing vehicle and gave chase in his automobile. East of Napanee the stolen vehicle was driven as high as 90-miles-per-hour in a futile effort to evade police. At Odessa the stolen vehicle collided with the steel girders of a bridge, shearing off the left front wheel and fender. The vehicle skidded sideways across the bridge and two men were seen to jump out of the vehicle into a stream of water that ran beneath the bridge. Only one of the men was captured and he gave his name as Douglas Fothergill, age 19 years and said the other man was a transient, whom he had picked up east of Belleville. The second man was not apprehended.

Chief Kidd and P.C. Ellis went to Odessa last night and brought Fothergill back to Belleville, where a charge of the theft of a motor car was preferred today. Later in the day Chief Kidd revealed the youth had been in Belleville some four years ago, at which time Chief Kidd procured him employment with a nearby farmer under the name of Jack Sutton.

THANKS U. S.

The Duke of Windsor is pictured during his broadcast a few nights ago from Nassau. The Duke was a guest on Bob "Believe It or Not" Ripley program. His Royal Highness thanked the United States for their splendid co-operation to war-stricken Britain and also appealed to the radio listening audience for the Red Cross.

Trenton and District

Appeal for Skis Gets Good Response

Trenton,— (Special)—An appeal for skis made by Major Angus Mowat at Trenton, is meeting with an enthusiastic response. This morning a number of pairs and odd skis were received by the Major from the Peterborough Canoe Club. During the past two weeks, a number of odd skis were received at the Trenton Station.

The appeal is being made by Major Mowat to obtain skis of any sort, odd, broken and pairs in order that the Headquarters Company stationed at Trenton can be trained into an efficient ski company.

Already a number of white camouflage suits have been made for the soldiers and cloth for more suits has just been received. These white coveralls will be similar to those used by the Finns in the Russo-Finnish War of the past year, when the Ghost Patrols wearing the white suits and equipped with skis were able to overwhelm large numbers of Russians while the snow was on the ground.

Anyone having any odd skis that they would like to donate to the soldiers can do so by sending them to the Trenton Armouries.

Soldier Stole Car

In many cases, citizens have aided soldiers on the highways by giving them lifts and aided them in many ways but sometimes this privilege is abused. An example of the imposition and the abuse of the hospitality was perpetrated in Trenton, yesterday, when a soldier appealed to Trenton citizens for aid when their car broke down in the town.

The soldier was given a night's lodging at the Trenton jail by Chief Bain and the next morning took his car to a garage where it was learned that a bearing had burned out. A citizen volunteered to aid the young soldier with the money who promised to return the same. However instead of getting his car fixed the soldier made a deal with a garage owner and traded cars.

A check-up by the garage revealed that the car had been stolen and it was later learned that the soldier was absent without leave from his regiment. Police in the district were notified and are on the lookout for the car.

On Banking Committee

Word has been received here that W. A. Fraser M.P., has been appointed to the Banking and Commerce Committee and the Public Accounts Committee of the House of Commons at Ottawa.

Police Aid Fund

Trenton police are doing their part to help win the war. The officers have already forwarded one cheque to the Ontario Police Headquarters, which will be added to the fund for the purchase of Spitfires.

The fund was first started at the Ontario Police Chiefs' Convention held recently at Guelph and since then the movement has spread to other provinces of the Dominion. Over 50,000 police officers throughout Canada will contribute to the fund. All county and village police in the district are requested to send their donations to Chief Bain, at Trenton.

Police Radio Installed

Trenton police will soon have their radio sending and receiving station to aid them in their already efficient police work in Trenton and district. The radio receiving set has been installed in the car and a cupboard is now being constructed in the Chief's office for the sending station.

Messages sent out by the Belleville Police over the transmitter in Belleville, are being received clearly by the receiver in the car. Efforts are being made to have the Belleville, Trenton, Kingston and Brockville station on the same wave band so that the police of this district can work in co-operation with each other.

The two branches of Canada's fighting army are now to be designated as the Canadian Army Active and the Canadian Army Reserve. The C.A.S.F. is designated as the Canadian Army Active and the N.P.A.M. is now known as the Canadian Army Reserve.

Contracts amounting to $830,000 have been awarded to two construction companies for the erection of buildings at the Mountain View Airport, according to governmental advices received yesterday by Supt. W. D. Ross, of the local Employment Bureau.

Another contract for groundwork which will bring the grand total to approximately one million dollars is yet to be let.

The Pigott Construction Company has been given the contract for the construction of fire-resisting buildings for the amount of $468,000. The Ontario Construction Company will provide wooden construction for a contract price of $362,000. Contracts will expire some time in April.

In the list of awarded contracts received by Mr. Ross is one for steel construction at the Trenton Airport given to the W. C. Brennan Company, Hamilton, for an amount of $78,000.

According to Mr. Ross some groundwork on the Mountain View airport has been started already by the Ontario Construction Company.

Wedge is Driven At Sidi Barrani By British Troops

British Now Dealing With "Pockets of Italian Resistance" In This Zone

Cairo, Dec. 11 (AP)—The British army in Egypt faced a possible head-on collision with the main body of Marshal Graziani's North African forces today after driving a wedge between important Italian advance positions at Sidi Barrani and supporting elements further west.

Reports from the front indicated that British troops were firmly established on the Egyptian coast between Sidi Barrani and the Libyan frontier, 70 miles away, and were endeavoring to mop up strong Italian forces isolated by the sudden desert drive.

Parts of two Italian divisions were reported trapped in the Sidi Barrani zone and British authorities said they hoped to add to the 4,000 prisoners they captured in the past two days.

Both the Royal Air Force and the Navy were said to be keeping the approaches to Sidi Barrani under heavy bombardment to prevent the Italians from sending reinforcements to the rescue.

Because of the difficulties of the terrain the British held the successes they already have attained as particularly significant. Lightning methods, in which mechanized units played an important part, were said to have been a big factor in the drive.

In Triangular Area

The Italian advance forces reported isolated by the British were said to be within a triangular area formed by the towns of Sidi Barrani, Maktila, 15 miles east along the coast, and Ibeiwa, 15 miles to the south.

Nibeiwa was said to have fallen to the British soon after the action started, while the Royal Navy pounded Maktila and Sidi Barrani with its heavy guns.

Credit for the success of the British drive was given here to 59-year-old Lt.-Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, who, as Commander-in-Chief of the troops in Egypt, has organized his forces into a swift-striking army.

Sir Henry, six feet tall and an old Etonian, was the first man in the British army to command a completely mechanized unit.

In 1935 he was given command of the Sixth Infantry Brigade and whipped it into a modern, high speed outfit which formed a model for development of Britain's present armed forces.

By SAM ROBERTSON,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 11 — (CP Cable)—The army of Nile's initial brilliant success against Rome's legions in the western desert warmed British hearts on this grey wintry day.

In tall bannerlines, the London Press told a public long thirsting for a British offensive that part of two Italian divisions were surrounded by armored units which smashed through Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's lines between Sidi Barrani and Buqbuq.

The lightning stroke against the forces which had held the northwest tip of Egypt for three months seemed to have two objectives, first, to shatter Mussolini's plans to strike toward the Nile in an attempt to gain command of that lifeline, and, second, to crack the dictator's prestige in the middle east. Both objectives seem well on the way to fulfilment.

Commenting on the latter factor, the Daily Telegraph said in an editorial that "this setback to Italian pretensions in North Africa will have a redoubled effect on native opinion and not only in Libya, where the bulk of Graziani's troops are recruited."

The Fascists maintain air communications with Ethiopia via Libya and the Blackshirts policing that country could be isolated if the army of the Nile scored a deep penetration into Libya.

Blow at Whole Structure

Commenting on this angle in the Daily Mail, G. Ward Price, noted Foreign correspondent said: "We may be sure that Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell has not left these minor theatres of war outside the scope of his plans. By striking at the main Italian army confronting him he is delivering a blow at the whole of the lath and plaster structure Mussolini has built in Africa."

Some war correspondents in Egypt likened the British thrusts across the desert to the old tactics of North American Indians.

The engagement is being conducted on highly mobile lines which suggest mechanized Red Skin raids, with tanks replacing ponies, the correspondents reported. Swooping suddenly on large enemy comps, the British columns charged in with machine guns chattering from swift tanks and armored cars.

The correspondents said the modern Mohicans were finding ideal targets in the scattered enemy material, which had been widely dispersed as protection against bombing.

London, Dec. 11 (CP)— British troops in Egypt now are dealing with "pockets of Italian resistance" around the camps in the Sidi Barrani zone which they stormed earlier this week, military circles reported today.

The British forays were described by these sources as "highly successful," but they cautioned against over-optimism.

Although British armored units have smashed through to reach the Mediterranean coast at Buqbuq, some 35 miles west of Sidi Barrani, there is nothing to confirm reports that two Italian divisions have been cut off, they said.

"We've done lots of damage," an informant said, "and demolition parties will do more to Italian communications such as the coastal road and to Italian bases. But it is too early to say whether a major offensive will be thrust home."

Rome Admits Retreat

Rome (AP)—The Italian High Command acknowledged today that Italian troops had been forced back to Sidi Barrani from a point southeast of that Egyptian outpost by British armored divisions, but claimed heavy casualties had been inflicted on the British forces.

General Maletti was killed during the course of the fighting, a communique said, while leading his Libyan battalions

The British assault, the High Command said, began at dawn Monday, when "armored divisions attacked our line southeast of Sidi Barrani held by formations of Libyan troops."

"These troops at first resisted gallantly, but after some hours were overcome and retreated to Sidi Barrani."

The bulletin, first official mention in Rome of the engagement, said that fighting "of exceptional violence" had continued all day Monday.

Wide Field of Activities

Military circles admitted that the preliminary operations opened a wide field of activities.

"If our officers find the Italian morale bad and the troops not fighting—and this seems true from early reports—there is little reason why the offensive can't continue on an even larger scale," they said.

At the same time they explained that the Italians would be able to use large numbers of tanks in counter attacks which would relieve Italian forces still fighting at points like Maktila, 15 miles east of Sidi Barrani.

The circles also said that "far from being desert," most of the terrain covered by the advancing British forces is wind-swept rock. Comparisons with advances in the First Great War on the Western Front cannot be taken seriously, they said, as "Italians have no fixed lines, merely a number of heavily armed camps," which the British forces are attacking.

Labor Man Describes Plight of Britain In Grave Terms

Washington, Dec. 11 —(AP)—Sir Walter Citrine, executive secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, described the plight of Britain in grave terms last night and declared a British victory is impossible without unsparing help from United States factories.

"We wakened up late". he said at an American Federation of Labor banquet given in his honor, "as I hope against hope that you won't awaken late".

Britain must rely more and more upon American help, he asserted, after describing the rain of bombs that has fallen on the British Isles, asking if anyone could maintain that "no British works have been hit", and telling of the difficulties of a people constantly harrassed by bombs, always short of sleep and yet endeavoring to maintain industrial production.

Sharp Reduction Of Storage Butter Noted in Canada

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—(CP) — Sharp reduction in stocks of Canadian-made butter at Dec. 1, as compared with the same date last year, was reported last night by the Dominion Bureau of statistics in final revised figures.

Total holdings of butter in cold storage plants and dairy factories amounted to 41,768,020 pounds, compared with 49,429,463 pounds at Dec. 1, 1939—a decrease of about 15.5 per cent.

Last night, an official of the wartime prices and trade board said the board would study these figures closely, to see whether the "considerable" reduction was an indication of an approaching butter shortage.

Recently the board indicated it might find it necessary to fix the price of butter if a marked price rise occurred.

While he emphasized that the situation has not progressed yet to a point where action must be taken, the official said that if a serious shortage does occur, "a rise in the price of butter, automatically curtailing domestic consumption, might be an alternative to rationing which would be very difficult to put into effect".

NO FOODSTUFFS TO BE ALLOWED PAST BLOCKADE

NAZI RESPONSIBILITY

Washington, Dec. 11 — (AP)—Britain ruled out United States' aid for Europe's hungry this winter, reiterating that the responsibility for feeding conquered countries rested with Germany.

A plainly worded statement issued by the Marquess Lothian, British ambassador, late yesterday apparently dashed the tentative plans of former President Herbert Hoover and others for shipping foodstuffs to the inhabitants of Nazi-vanquished nations.

Great Britain, he said, will not permit such shipments to pass the blockade.

"Under present conditions," said Lord Lothian, who recently returned from consultations with his government in London, "any such scheme must be of material assistance to Germany's war effort and would thereby postpone the day of liberation of these peoples from German subjugation."

Before the German invasion, he declared, the small countries of Europe had ample food for their own needs and "in conquering them and installing German control, Germany has assumed responsibility for their welfare."

In New York, Hoover said he received the news "with interest," but he reserved comment on the ambassador's declaration.

No Certain Guarantees

"His Majesty's Government," Lord Lothian continued, "have been unable to discover any scheme of distribution by neutral authorities in these countries which, in the light of the Nazi record, could provide guarantees against the strengthening of the German war potential by the importation of foodstuffs.

"They feel, therefore, that they have no option but to stand by the decision announced by the Prime Minister in the House of Commons on Aug. 20, that they will not agree to any lifting of the blockade for any country under German domination, or so long as that domination continues.

"Directly, however, Germany withdraws its troops and restores control of these countries to their own citizens they will immediately arrange for ample supplies of food to reach their inhabitants."

Lord Lothian declared, however, the British "are at all times prepared to facilitate the passage through their blockade of medical supplies, destined for distribution in territories occupied by Germany and in unoccupied France by approved bodies."

Salvo From Saguenay Believed to Have Hit U-Boat That Attacked

London, Dec. 11 — (CP Cable)—The submarine that torpedoed the Canadian destroyer Saguenay is believed to have been hit by a salvo fired by the destroyer in its battle with the U-boat, according to A. J. McWhinnie, the Daily Herald's naval correspondent.

McWhinnie was aboard another destroyer to which 81 men from the Saguenay, 18 of them wounded, were transferred after the torpedoing.

"For days the Saguenay had been sailing in company with us escorting the convoy," he wrote.

"In the pitch black darkness of the Atlantic night a torpedo hit her. One of the Saguenay's guns spat out and there is reason to believe the U-boat was hit."

"For hours in the night the seas were searched. With dawn we were racing back to the Canadian destroyer."

McWhinnie's ship flashed "Well done" to Cmdr. George Miles and the Saguenay's commander, replying, said he was determined to reach port under his own steam.

Before undertaking the hazardous trip he asked the other warship to take on the wounded, the ship's code and papers. The men were transferred in a whaler while the uninjured sailors sang hillbilly songs and twanged guitars to cheer their wounded companions.

PREMIER WILL

FOLLOW PRACTICE

Ottawa, Dec. 11 (CP)—If any honors are given to Canadians in the New Year's honors list to be issued in London at the year end, they probably will be either to Canadians resident in Britain or to men serving overseas with one of the Canadian armed services, officials said last night.

It is indicated here that Prime Minister Mackenzie King will adhere to the practice he has followed during his four terms as Prime Minister since 1921 of refraining from recommending Canadians for honors.

The Danish minister of trade has ordered a temporary ban on trade in any sort of rubber for automobiles.

Canada's 1940 potato crop is estimated at 42,058,000 hundredweight, an increase of 16 per cent over last year's production.

Immediate Loans Are Discounted By Many Officials

Final Policy May Deal More With Long Range Consideration Than With Immediate Present

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—A comprehensive prospectus on Great Britain's present financial position and future outlook is virtually ready, it was learned today, for submission to President Roosevelt.

The conclusions which the President and his advisers reach after studying the data, high officials said, will determine the administration attitude on the whole complicated and controversial subject of financial help for Britain.

The likelihood of immediate loans or credits was heavily discounted by these officials, who indicated that the final policy agreed on probably would deal more with long range considerations than with the immediate present.

Expectations were that the British financial data would go to the White House some time next week shortly after Mr. Roosevelt returns from his cruise in the Caribbean.

Much, if not all, of this material was placed before a special meeting of key administration officials yesterday by Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau.

Brought Up-To-Date

Morgenthau explained later that he was bringing in his colleagues "up-to-date on the information which we have obtained from Sir Frederick Phillips, Undersecretary of the (British) Treasury."

Sir Frederick worked over the weekend preparing a balance sheet of British resources and war costs, and the belief was that he turned it over to Morgenthau during their two-hour conference Monday night.

Although the broad picture of Britain's status is ready for White House consideration, informed officials did not rule out the probability of further talks between Morgenthau and Sir Frederick. They said, however, that the two conversations the men already have held were sufficient for a thorough exploration of all basic facts.

Not Concerned With Size

They were not concerned with how large a loan Britain might welcome, or what collateral she could offer.

They were concerned rather with bringing out the decree of financial assistance Britain would need in the future at the present rate of war expenditures and how soon that date would be reached.

Britain, it was said, realizes that at the present rate of spending she eventually will reach the bottom of her financial barrel, and hence seeks some assurance that aid can be counted on.

BLOWS RAIN UPON ITALIAN FASCIST REGIME

British successes in the opening of what is believed by many to be the initiative of the British Middle East campaign are cheering to Britain and her Empire and the empires of the Allies as well as to the neutral nations. The march of British forces in Egypt 75 miles to the Mediterranean, the capture of 4,000 Italians, the destruction of 22 Italian planes on Monday, and other manoeuvres in the North African campaign aroused the greatest enthusiasm throughout Britain and friendly countries. Had it been possible for the Nazi-dominated peoples of Europe to know what was going on, there would have been rejoicing among them too.

London view is that the British movements were timed with the disasters which have been falling upon Mussolini at the hands of the Greeks and the Royal Air Force and the British navy.

Another cheering piece of news was that the Free French forces were co-operating with the British army of the Nile on the western border of Egypt.

From the Italian standpoint there are signs that there is discontent. A government organ assailed the "defeatists" and "rumor-mongers" and believed in giving them a beating as a treatment. The point is that there is here an admission that the Italians are openly reading foreign newspapers and not taking in all Mussolini's bridled press and radio give out. There was also a reference in another paper to high prices and the question was asked if anyone in Italy really believed that the profiteer had disappeared in that country. It was a bold question to ask but it was asked in Italy. This might indicate something of the misfit which the Fascist is in Italy.

The Mediterranean Sea is now the centre of all eyes for there events of the greatest possibilities are taking place. Italy has shown a marked weakness and the British and Greece a great strength in that area of the struggle.

These events are also of importance as they relate to the Balkans and to East Europe and the lands that lie in Asia. They also have a bearing on Germany.

KUBELIK'S HEROIC RESOLVE

Jan Kubelik, world famous violinist, native of Czecho-Slovakia, who died last week in Prague, Bohemia, near which he was born, left besides memories of his great artistry the story of a heroic battle against a debt which had piled up against him as a result of financial reverse. As far back as the year 1912 he admitted that he had made more than a million dollars with his violin and it was said that his earnings as a virtuoso during his public career amounted to $1,500,000. In 1918 he and his wife purchased for one million dollars the great Hungarian estate of Prince Otho of Wundischgraetz. In 1932 he went into bankruptcy placing his liabilities at $125,000. He attributed his situation to losses in American securities.

But he assumed all his debts, although not legally bound to do so. So he wore down the debt year after year by giving concerts, playing a hundred concerts a year trying to ward off disaster. In earlier days he had insured his hands for a quarter of a million dollars, but though he was stricken with rheumatism and other ills he kept his fingers flexed. Though he was injured in a taxicab accident in Paris his hands escaped injury.

English literature has an example of the same kind of heroism. Sir Walter Scott, burdened with a financial misadventure in the publishing business, found himself as a partner of the firm facing liabilities amounting to $600,000. This amount he assumed, though he might have compromised. Like a slave he devoted himself to work and 1828 after two years was able to pay off with the proceeds of his novels written with incredible rapidity $200,000. He kept on writing with relentless speed but the strain was too great and he was stricken with paralysis. He made a trip to Italy and at last returned home to die. Ironically enough after his death the debt was entirely liquidated by the sale of copyrights and the increasing sales of his works.

As Kubelik bought a great estate, Scott too was interested in building up a vast estate to which he gave the name of Abbotsford.

The heroism of such men in facing the burden of debt indicates the high sense of honor which they possessed, they would not have anyone lose through their mistakes and misjudgments.

HITLER'S WORDS LOSE THEIR BLITZKRIEG

Adolf Hitler does not broadcast to the world so much as he used to do.

Once upon a time, before the war, Hitler's words were carried worldwide. Now he meets in an unheralded place (this man who has sent millions to war) and there is no general broadcast.

For the world takes less interest by far than it once did in the harsh-voiced Teuton. When the world was at peace Adolf Hitler's voice was raised in warlike tones to frighten mankind into subjection to his terrorism. But his wild speeches and his wordy blitzkriegs are not effective now. For he gives nothing new to the world and the world knows him for a treacherous, violent, warped personality who crushed every semblance of power in his own people to make it an instrument for his nefarious plan of crushing the world. If Hitler speaks or does not speak, the world really cares little. For the world has the one thought that this violent figure must pass from the scene of world politics.

On Tuesday he attacked democracy in a broadcast to workmen. But he said nothing new. It was his old Nazi philosophy he was expounding, his distortion of every principle, his hates, his threats of vengeance. He admitted he was a fanatic.

He is the same ranting, shrieking demagogue, the man who will resort to any subterfuge, to any lie to gain a point. He is the hypocrite who claims he did not want to attack anything but military objects. He is the fanatical foe of institutions and of civilization and of liberty. He appeals to the working man as the basis of the German state but he has crushed the life and liberty out of this common man wherever he can do so and made him the agency of his own mad dreams of empire and lust for power. He attacks what he calls capitalism in the world and yet maintains about him Nazi leaders who have been accused of amassing riches and art treasures at the expense of nations and of the German Reich. He attacks democracy in favor of totalitarianism and allows a few men to grow wealthy and have power and makes the whole of the German people slaves for them and for himself and his own glory and revenge and seeks to enslave the world.

The world knows Hitler too well now to tremble at his speeches. They say nothing new.

"WE BROKE NOT FAITH WITH YOU"

"If ye break faith with us who died, we shall not sleep, Though poppies blow in Flanders Field".

O Brothers, sleep in Flanders Field; we broke not faith with you;
The torch you flung, we caught it up, and kindled it anew,
We kindled it at holy flames from docks and streets and spires
That turned the skies your poppies red with sacrificial fires.

O Brothers, look from Flanders Field and shade your dazzled eyes.
See where the City of your love does battle for your prize.
Watch England's honour flame aloft—a splendour and a shield,
Where young and old and weak and strong endure but never yield.

Then turn and sleep, O Brothers A sound deep sleep to you.
You cannot dream so great a dream as this which has come true,
When English man and maid and wife, and children on the sea
Lift up the torch and pass it on to deathless victory.

Teach Troops 'Unarmed Combat'

British soldiers are being taught "unarmed combat".

The idea is that if a man loses his rifle, even if he is made a prisoner by a German with a loaded revolver, he should be capable of making an attack that is deadly.

Unarmed combat is a thoroughly frightening mixture of all-in wrestling, boxing, the lowest tricks in football, rugby tackles ju-jitsu and street-corner fighting.

London Tower One of Best Known Historic Edifices

One of the most famous edifices in the world, the ancient and historic Tower of London, has suffered heavily in these continuous bombing attacks. No one at all familiar with the environs of London could ever forget the grim majesty of the huge fortalice which, in its time, has served as fortress, royal residence and prison.

William the Conqueror, having won England in the year 1026, built the first of its four great towers in 1078 so as to keep the turbulent citizens of London in order.

The great keep on the bank of the Thames fairly shouts with drama and tragedy. So many heads have fallen there—Anne Boleyn's, Sir Walter Raleigh's, the handsome head of the Earl of Essex The Earl of Northumberland strolls the haunted passages of the tower carrying his head under his arm Anne Boleyn, mother of Queen Elizabeth, has been glimpsed by many Beefeaters shaking in their shoes.

In the year 1674, workmen repairing a staircase came surprisingly upon the skeletons of two boys. The finding was reported to the king, Charles Stuart, Charles the Second. King Charles suspected to whom these poor bones had belonged and directed that they be placed in an urn and given a fitting niche in that vast mausoleum of vanished royalty, Westminster Abbey. Two hundred and fifty years later the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons definitely fixed the identity of the skeletons as those of the boy king Edward the Fifth, and his brother the Duke of York, who were murdered in the tower at the order of the wicked prince, who then ascended the blood-stained throne as Richard the Third.

Shakespeare tells the tale most dramatically, and it is all true. The part that makes it so real is the statement of the eminent surgeons that the skull of both boys had tear ducts abnormally large. The medical conclusion was that these lads, cut off from relatives and friends, thrown into the dark tower, abandoned to despair, had literally cried their eyes out.—St. Catharines Standard.

A Generation of Monsters

And Jesus said:

" . . .whoso shall offend one of these little ones . . . it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea."

Among the many crimes against humanity perpetrated by both the Nazi and the Fascist dictators, none is more vicious, more horrible than the crime committed against the children of their own countries.

For they have, in literal truth, taken the spirit of childhood out of the hearts of the youngsters of Germany and of Italy.

Regimentation has been applied never more harshly against any groups in either country than it has against the boys and the girls.

Formed into troops and organizations of "Hitler youth", with subsidiary bodies that mold and compress and suppress all individuality, the children of Germany have been made into little robots, miniature soldiers of the Reich, almost from babyhood.

Drilled with tiny rifles, formed into companies and platoons and regiments, taught soldiering almost from the cradle, the Black Shirts of Mussolini have turned the normally joyous and carefree children of Italy into serious little monsters, learning, even before their lips have lost the lisp of infancy, the cruel science of killing, the vicious philosophy of slaughter.

That the spirit of childhood still lives in Britain that it can never be quenched, is evidence enough that Hitler and Mussolini and all their hordes and all their mechanized might are doomed to ultimate defeat and dissolution.

For a nation cannot live without the spirit of childhood, that precious gift from God that Nazi and Fascist alike have done their witless best to destroy.

And a nation cannot die that still hears the laughter of little children through all its woes.

Icelandic Fishermen Spending Fortunes in English Port

The taxi crawls down to the fishing quays at Fleetwood, northwest port of the fisherfolk, loaded up with radio sets and electric fires—and piled high with a dozen top hats.

The fishing skipper who has hired it sits back among his treasures, smocking his cigar He does not speak much English, but he is happy—and rich.

The Icelandic fishermen who are making fortunes in the Fleetwood fishing industry are spending huge sums of money in the shops there, and have caused the most extraordinary boom that the town has known for years.

These fishermen from Iceland are making from £80 to £100 each for a trip lasting ten days—but they are not allowed to take more than £10 out of Britain.

Spends Surplus

So most of them spend the surplus on goods they can take home and sell.

Every time a trawler comes into port—and they arrive usually on five days of the week—the men go out on mass shopping expeditions.

It is no uncommon sight to see them driving round the town in taxis, which return to the ships laden with clothing, electrical apparatus and crockery.

Often suites of furniture and second-hand motor-cars are loaded on the trawlers to be taken back to Iceland.

These Icelanders are keen buyers and they have acquired a fair knowledge of English in their visits to Fleetwood during the past year.

In Reykjavik, the Iceland capital, where most of the men live the voltage is identical with that at Fleetwood. That is why the men spend so much of their money on electric radiators, irons and radio sets.

When they buy clothing the fishermen seldom buy a single garment. They usually buy a dozen at a time.

Not long ago an Icelandic skipper bought a dozen silk tophats and piled them in a taxi to take back to his ship.

One week two motor-cars were delivered at the docks and lifted to the deck of a trawler.

Expensive carpets are among the normal purchases.

Icelandic trawler-owners are making fortunes because British trawlers have been acquired by the Government.

One catch realized £11,574 on the Fleetwood market—the result of ten days' fishing. The usual takings vary from £3,000 to £10,000.

Some Banking Money

Some members of the crew refuse to convert their profits into Icelandic money by trading in British goods. Instead they are putting their spare money into banks in this country and intend to collect it when the war is over

Although Fleetwood shopkeepers are doing well for themselves by selling goods to the Icelanders, those people in the town who are in the fish trade are resentful.

They are demanding that the Government restrict the prices of the fish brought into the port. They state that fish prices have soared so high that the greater part of the public cannot afford to buy, and that the market may have gone when the war is over.

The Icelanders, however, are not responsible for the high prices

The people to blame, it is stated in the town, are the merchants who, in their eagerness to buy the reduced stocks of fish available, outbid each other and put the prices up to four times the pre-war figures.

Crowds Sing in Tube 'Chapel' To Clatter of Passing Trains

Last night I went to "chapel"—in a Tube station, and I heard the clatter of passing trains drowned by hundreds of voices singing "Onward Christian Soldiers", and "Land of Hope and Glory".

Leading the singing was the Rev. B. E. Peake, the former lorry driver who was congratulated last week by the King for his work among the bombed population of Fulham.

"We don't try to convert them" Mr. Peake told me. "We bring them no 'message'. We are not here to depress them or frighten them, just to give them a short sing-song of the hymns they know best".

"If the King could hear you sing, as perhaps one day he will, he'd be very happy. If Hitler could hear you he might as well pack up, and then . . ."

"Bob's your uncle!" roared the children in chorus with him.

Mr. Peake does not care if his hearers have a hand of cards as he talks.

Their "Theme Song"

"Why shouldn't they?" he said "And, anyhow, I often see them singing while they play".

Nobody in his path misses his goodnight handshake, and "Goodnight, ma" was his farewell as he kissed an old grandmother—"and don't tell your husband " Faces for yards around lightened from boredom to amusement.

As they leave the station his small party go off with their "theme song": "Just Smile and Keep on Smiling".

Why Hitler Can't Win

Why, Hitler is asking himseh can't the British be conquered, like the other people of Euorpe. If Hitler wants to know, let him examine five simple exhibits presented by Julian Huxley in the New Republic. They tell more than five volumes of Gestapo reports.

Exhibit One: In East London an area of workingmen's houses was bombed flat. The people came back to make a Union Jack out of colored handkerchiefs, laid it across the ruins of their homes.

Exhibit Two: Cats were everywhere among the wreckage. Every morning the local policeman brings a supply of cats' meat, paid for by himself, to feed the homeless beasts.

Exhibit Three: An oil bomb fell in the middle of a tiny but much-prized London garden. The old lady who owns the garden has spent all her spare time since then scraping the oil off the leaves and stems of her plants with a toothbrush.

Exhibit Four: At Whipsnade zoo the Germans blew huge craters in the ground. Cheerfully the zoo officials started to flood them to make much-needed ponds for waterfowl.

Exhibit Five: Mr. Huxley and a group of English thinkers sitting around a table planning a new and greater London to replace the bombed slums, while more bombs are falling in the street outside.

If Hitler can learn why the people of England act thus, he will understand why they cannot be conquered. But to sense the deep current of English character requires centuries of living among Englishmen, in England. That current is the one factor which Hitler's clever calculations overlooked.

The Carnarvon Castle

Three former British luxury liners now share the fame of having matched their meager armament and flimsy bulwarks against German warcraft superior in strength. The Carnarvon Castle, nursing her wounds in Montevideo Harbor, is luckier than the Rawalpindi and the Jervis Bay in that she is still afloat, while they and the greater part of theid complement are at the bottom of the ocean. But the bulldog courage with which they tackled far heavier odds was the same in each case, and the spirit of the Carnarvon Castle gunner who, mortally wounded, turned to his comrades asking, "I havent let you down, have I, mates?" was the spirit of all their gallant companies.

The men of the British merchant marine have won equal glory in this war with the men of the Royal Navy. Fighting was not their trade; but they have shown that when occasion demands, they also can fight and die with devotion equal to that of the fighting forces. In the estimation of their countrymen the Carnarvon Castle lads will take their places by right alongside the crews of the Ajax and Essex, who equally disdained the odds against them in the battle with the Admiral Graf Spee in those same waters. That they were the victors in their battle of an hour and a half may be regarded as indicated by the retirement of the German raider from the conflict, from whatever motive. The winner is not he who runs away.

Soon or late the raider will doubtless be run down by a British ship more capable of dealing with her. If Captain Hardy's impression that she was partly crippled in the fight is correct, that end may come soon rather than late. Unlike the Carnarvon Castle, the raider will scarcely dare to take the chance of entering a neutral port for repairs, thus giving the enemy the opportunity of waiting for her outside and tackling her when she comes out again.—New York Times.

Lauds Bravery Of Postal Staff

T. H. Boyd, Assistant Director General, G.P.O., in a broadcast told of an heroic episode when a mail train was bombed in a station.

Hundreds of thousands of letters and parcels had already been stowed in the train. There was an air raid on at the time, but that did not stop the work. A high-explosive bomb fell displacing the platform and blocking the train. A few minutes later an oil-bomb added to the confusion.

There was a very real danger that part of the station roof might collapse. None the less the postal staff scrambled out of the train and immediaely began to carry the sacks to other trains. One of these received a direct hit and a great number of letters and parcels were destroyed. "One of our staff was buried under the wreckage, but the rest of them carried on, salvaged what they could, and put it on its way."

Not a single delivery has missed going out, even in London. Many a time sorters and postmen have had to work in more than half darkness on a convenient pavement or perhaps in some extemporized office.

Describing how difficulties were being met Mr. Boyd said they are short circuiting a lot of the big rail routes by road services, so that mails which would normally come into London would not touch the capital but would catch their express trains just the same. He mentioned that not long ago emergency arrangements were made to carry by road 4,000 parcels a day which would ordinarily have gone by train. He appealed to the public to post early.

Former Typists Now Skilled As Foresters

City girls who used to do everything from typing, serving in shops and factory work are now doing all the jobs that men can do on the farm, and more besides.

Details of the work the land girls are doing in Gloucestershire, one of the largest employing counties of the Women's Land Army, were revealed at a rally in Gloucester's Shire Hall.

Training in Gloucestershire of the Women's Land Army began in June of last year, and two short courses of training had been completed by the time war broke out.

Among the occupations the land girls followed before the war were the following: art teachers, students, domestic servants, shop assistants, nurses, factory workers, barmaids, cashiers, typists, hairdressers and kennel-maids.

Now they are employed on farms doing milking and dairy work driving tractors and looking after pigs and poultry, while others are market-gardeners and forestry workers.

Perhaps the most fortunate are the girls who have taken up forestry. They are trained at a hostel at Parkend, in the Forest of the Dean. Since the hostel opened in January there have been continuous classes for groups of 20 girls at a time.

Thirty-five of the girls are already employed by the Forestry Commission as timber measurers and foresters, and are working now in the historic Forest.

One thing that should interest girls in other parts of the country is that there is no unemployment among Gloucestershire land girls. The problem is to find enough girls to satisfy the demand.

Causes of Disordered Heart Action in Soldiers and Civilians

During and following the last war medical officers found thousands of cases of apparent heart disease yet no organic condition was present. These soldiers did not just imagine that they had heart disease because, as a matter of fact, the symptoms of heart disease were really present. These cases were given different names by the medical officers of various countries. Some called it effort syndrome or effort symptoms, others called it disordered heart action, irritable heart. The name neurocirculatory asthenia was suggested by a team of medical reserve corps officers of the American army sent to Colchester, England, to study the condition with Sir Thomas Lewis.

The symptoms of this disorder of the heart are breathlessness, fatigue and exhaustion, palpitation or heart consciousness, fainting, giddiness, headache, sweating, blueness or mottled coloring of the hands, and other nerve and bloodvessel symptoms. The pulse at rest and in sleep is normal, but is easily made to beat much faster by emotion or exercise and is very slow in its return to normal after exercise.

It can thus be seen that this disordered action of the heart which is not really organic or true heart disease, nevertheless has many of the symptoms of organic heart disease.

An editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association states that the most important point in the treatment of this condition is prevention. That is, this nervous or emotional type of individual should not be allowed to take part on warfare proper on land, sea, or air, because under effort or stress he is very apt to develop these heart symptoms and become a liability to the army and to his country.

The treatment consists mainly in reassuring the patient and carefully explaining that his symptoms are not due to heart disease but are due to his nervous or emotional make-up under stress or effort.

The point is that there are thousands of emotional and nervous individuals who are "predisposed" and suffer from these heart symptoms when placed under mental or physical strain or both. They naturally think they have heart disease. The physician, by use of stethoscope, exercise, fluoroscope (Xrays) and electrocardiograph, shows that no organic heart disease is present, and explains why these symptoms are present in this type of individual.

His hands amputated seven years ago, John Tamplin of Walla Walla, Wash., replaced them with an ingenious equipment which enabled him to shoot and kill a 400-pound bear which charged him.

Apart from war prisoners, 950,000 foreigners are employed in Germany and of these 550,000 are farmhands.

The War Today

(By Guy Rhoades)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

While Britain and Greece struck blows at western totalitarianism today the United States disclosed a step which it seems safe to assume is directed against the Axis in the Far East.

Even as the Greeks announced new gains against Italian forces in Albania and the British Command reported continuance of its assault on Italian Libyan troops, the United States announced new export licence requirements for a long list of militarily useful products.

A Presidential proclamation issued last night declared that, effective December 30, licences would be required for export of iron ore, pig iron, tin-ferro alloys and 76 semi-finished or finished steel and iron manufactures.

Licences Issued

Accompanying the proclamation was an announcement saying licenses would be issued for export of the restricted products to Britain and western hemisphere nations, and, for the present, subject to United States defence needs, to other nations "in quantities approximating usual, or pre-war exports".

This not only was a blow to Japan, normally a heavy importer of almost everything on this list—and a consequent encouragement to China—but an insurance that neither Germany nor Italy can get the materials.

In the ordinary course of events the United States Neutrality Act, with its cash-and-carry clause, stops Italy and Germany from getting the products directly, as they cannot get more than an occasional ship through the British blockade.

Trying to Get Through Spain

However, suspicion has arisen that the Axis powers have been trying to get contraband through Portugal and Spain and Russia. The clause in the new American proclamation limiting exports to these countries to normal, pre-war levels, should make such an effort impossible.

The direct effect on the Anglo-Greek Allies may be of considerable importance. It should relax materially the work of the contraband control and release some ships engaged in that work for use elsewhere.

While no mention was made of releasing such goods to China there appeared to be nothing in the proclamation to prevent Britain from re-exporting some of those goods to that embattled republic.

The United States already has disclosed its intention of helping China, but there are technical difficulties in getting shipments of goods to her because, having practically no merchant navy, China cannot hurdle the cash-and-carry provision of the Neutrality Law.

Britain, of course, hurdles it every day. Furthermore Britain still commands the Mediterranean and shows every indication of continuing to do so. British ships not only can help supply Greece, but can pass into the Indian Ocean and unload goods at Rangoon for rail shipment across Burma and thence over the re-opened Burma road by truck to Chinese forces.

The dismal Italian showing in the Mediterranean, brought out further today by reports the Royal Air Force had smashed the Addis Ababa Railway in Italian occupied Ethiopia, leads observers to the conclusion that the road through "Mare Nostrum" to the Suez Canal is safe for some time.

N.Y. Times Expresses Commendation for British Invasion

New York, Dec. 11 (CP)—The New York Times observed editorially today that what Mussolini has boasted of—that nothing can stop him—"seems to be true," but added the footnote: "But he is going in the wrong direction—toward home."

Commendation was expressed for the British achievement of moving 75 miles over the Egyptian desert without loss and apparently without detection by the Italians. The Times added:

"For months the Italians have been pleading the difficulties of the desert terrain, the lack of water, the blazing sun and the shifting sands as their excuses for advancing no farther than Sidi Barrani. The British, without mentionin gay of these handicaps, have overcome them and pocketed their foes. Even Signor Gayda will not find it easy to explain this away."

The Herald Tribune said "The thunderbolt which fell out of Monday's dawn on Graziani's army in Egypt has driven another mighty nail into the coffin of Axis hopes."

Port Hope Pilot Mentioned 3 Times In London Gazette

London, Dec. 11—(CP)—Pilot Officer W. J. Lewis from Welcome, Ont., near Port Hope, is probably the only man in the Royal Air Force who has had his award of a Distinguished Flying Cross mentioned three times in the London Gazette.

The announcement duly appeared in the London Gazette in September. It was repeated in error in the issue of Oct. 22. The third mention, published Nov. 1, was worded thus: "Erratum: In notification of Oct. 22, 1940, page 6136, column 2, delete Pil. Offr. Wilfred John Lewis (41188)."

But "Mike" Lewis still has his D. F. C.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at her paper and pop was in back of his own sporting page, saying, Winter sports are all right, I suppose, but as far as I'm concerned you can have your football and your ice hockey.

They're not mine and I dont want them, thanks, ma said, and pop said, I was speaking figuratively, my deer. I was merely paying an indirect compliment to baseball. Baseball is the real sport of the people, it provides the greatest excitement for millions of comfortably seated sportsmen while a mere handfull of players do all the work, he said.

Well just exactly what is the principal of the game? ma said. I suppose the reason I never got much out of baseball is because I never saw much in it. I mean I never really understood how it's really played, and perhaps I'd take a real intrist in it if you gave me a firm grasp of its rules and regulations. So just start at the beginning, Willyum, just as though we were attending a real game and you were explaining each move in regular order, she said, and pop said, Well, that shouldn't be difficult, like all beautiful things baseball is extremely simple. First of all, after the players have gracefully warmed up by hurling the ball at each other with debonair but unerring mastery, the pitcher faces the batter and pitches the first ball, he said.

Well naturelly, his very title tells me that much, ma said. The pitcher pitches, she said, and pop said, Suppose I just tell you the titles of all the other players and then you'll be fully documented.

Now dont exaggerate, go on with the game, ma said, and pop said, Okay, the pitcher pitches.

You told me that, ma said, and pop said, No I didn't that was the first ball and this is the 2nd, because the first ball was a ball.

What was the 2nd, a seat cushion? ma said, and pop said, Yee gods, suppose you give me a short talk on how to croshay.

Wich she didn't, and they both kept on with their own papers.

UNUSUAL HIT-RUN CASE

Pottsville, Pa., Dec. 11 —(AP)— Police have an entirely new type of hit-run case under investigation here. George Joseph reported someone backed a truck into his house, causing considerable damage and then sped away before startled occupants could get the licence number.

A 46-year-old London civilian was sentenced to a month imprisonment for falsely representing himself as a major in the Intelligence Service.

Picton—Thirty-three cases of jam weighing 1,600 pounds were delivered to Picton headquarters of the Red Cross yesterday. This was made at L. R. Brickman's factory at Victoria by Rednersville Women's Institute and War Emergency Committee. In all, this community made an outstanding contribution of 2,160 pounds of jam of various kinds.

The Phi-Del-ta-Tee Club was entertained Tuesday night at the home of Miss Anne Waring. Helen MacDonald had charge of a Christmas program. Miss Eileen McCalpin spoke on Christmas carols. Members exchanged small gifts and a collection was taken for Christmas cheer work.

The arrival of several hundred airmen from Manning Pool Depot, Toronto, at midnight Monday, has swelled the numbers of students at the Bombing and Gunnery School here. With fifty buildings erected, the training centre is like a small town. Plans are being made to entertain the men in various ways.

On Wednesday evening, Mrs. Frank Starr, Worthy Mistress of L.O.B.A. Lodge, No. 587, entertained her officers of 1940 at a much enjoyed banquet at the Orange Hall on Elizabeth St.

Covers were laid for twenty-three at a long table in the centre of the hall that was most attractively arranged. Over a damask cloth was centred a reflector with Santa Claus and his reindeer and a chimney surrounded by tiny Union Jacks. The serviettes and place cards were orange. Following a sumptuous repast, the guests played bagatelle for which were awarded a goodly number of prizes. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the Worthy Mistress for a very pleasant evening.

Many of the fine large homes of Picton are being remodelled and parts of them are arranged as modern apartments, for which there is a great demand, as wives of many of the members of the R.C.A.F. arrive in town.

Pilot Officer Clarence King, of the R.C.A.F., Toronto, has been promoted to Flying Officer.

At the bazaar on Friday afternoon in the Parish Hall, it was announced that the Guild of St. Mary Magdalene's Church had raised over one thousand dollars this year, of which sum Group II, under Mrs. Geo. Jones, raised three hundred and sixty-five dollars and Group I, under Mrs. Francis Owens, raised three hundred and sixty dollars. The bazaar netted over seventy dollars and there had been banquets and other undertakings under the leadership of the President, Mrs. George Haddon, which brought the totol to this splendid amount.

Mrs. Saunders, King St., opened her home on Monday evening for the meeting of the Evening Branch of the W. A. of the Anglican Church with Mrs. Chas. Rand and Mrs. D. Wark as associate hostesses.

Andrews has been in London since Monday, the announcement said, and is expected to return here tonight.

Members of the British cabinet were said to have participated in talks between Churchill and Andrews, but the nature of the discussions was not disclosed.

It was Andrews' first visit to London since his resignation as Premier several weeks ago to succeed the late Lord Craigavon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hogan and little son, Picton, have taken up residence in Belleville.

Miss Madge Howard has returned from a visit with friends in Ottawa.

Dr. and Mrs. O. A. Marshall entertained the executive of the Women's Canadian Club last evening in honor of Nancy Pyper following her address in St. Andrew's Church Hall.

An enjoyable card party was held last evening in St. George's Sunday School. The winners of the prizes were ladies' first, Mrs. Cherrie; second, Mrs. Amo; third, Mrs. Collyer; men's first, Mr. Ellis; second, Mr. Hill; third, Mr. VanDusen. The lone hand prize was won by Mrs. Collins.

At the home of Mrs. J. A. Dilts, Holloway Street United Church parsonage an enjoyable tea was held yesterday afternoon by the members of the W.A. The guests were welcomed by Mrs. Dilts and Mrs. L. Sweetnam, the president of the W.A. There was a splendid response and a fine sum was realized by the event. The tea table was lovely with its Christmas decorations and red tapers. Mrs. A. Sills and Mrs. B. McMurray poured tea and those who assisted during the afternoon were Mrs. Snodden, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Colclough and Mrs. Reid. Mrs. A. Campbell, Mrs W. Green and Mrs. T. Ketcheson were in charge of the tea table and Miss McCrudden was treasurer for the tea.

Under the auspices of Christ Church Guild, a delightful afternoon tea was held yesterday at the rectory. Mrs. G. G. Wright and Mrs. F. B. Sprung, president, welcomed the many guests. The living room was most inviting with its cheery grate fire, rose-toned chrysanthemums and the glow of candles on the mantel. Mrs. R. E. Colling invited the guests to the tea room. The tea table at which Mrs. R. R. Casement and Mrs. J. L. Tickell presided was effectively arranged with a centrepiece of silvery balls in the centre of which was a slender taper, while red candles adorned each end of the table. Mrs. M. Vanner, Mrs. H. Bateman, Mrs. C. Bishop, Mrs. Simpson, Mrs. Lummis and Mrs. Embury Adams assisted. Mrs. Theobald was treasurer. The home-cooking was in charge of Mrs. Wm. Adams, Mrs. Wm. Kempston and Mrs. John Bone.

Club Hears Origin Of Christmas Carols

At the regular meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held last evening there was a large attendance.

After the usual business, Miss Barbara Read, a recent graduate, gave a piano number. Mr. George Maybee, director of music at the Collegiate Institute, spoke to the members on the origin of Christmas carols and the Christ Church boys' choir sang these carols in splendid style. A spelling match proved very entertaining with Mrs. Morden and Mr. Wishart tying as winners.

A two minutes' silence was observed in memory of the late Mrs Blatherwick, who was a popular and an active member of the Association.

The mothers of children in Miss Cunningham's room were hostesses for refreshments following the meeting.

The price of pork in German-occupied Denmark has reached the equivalent of 20 cents a pound, the highest in twenty years.

'Famous People I Have Met' Address Given by Nancy Pyper

Famous Woman Tells of Meeting George Bernard Shaw and George Russell

Members of the Women's Canadian Club and their friends who had been awaiting a return visit to Belleville of Nancy Pyper, whose vivacious personality and brilliant wit captivated previous audiences, had in her lecture last evening in St. Andrew's Hall a gratifying fulfillment of their anticipated pleasure. Mrs. Pyper spoke of famous people she had met, and her gift of description, enriched by her dramatic powers, made her hearers believe that surely, they, too, must have met these famous people so clearly were they pictured.

A love of the drama, as director, and actress, and a critical appreciation of its allied arts are revealed in Mrs. Pyper's words, but most of all she loves people and finds delight in meeting those with whom she has had a reading introduction. There was George Bernard Shaw. All her life, she explained, she had loved him, and her first view of him in his reseda green suit with knickerbockers, and the blue green tie that exactly matched his eyes ("you know how men are about these things"), very tall, very thin and with his lovely voice, caused an exciting, chaotic moment that she will never forget.

Shaw's Charm

"The reason Shaw is so charming," she said "is that he takes an enormous interest in you, looks at you, his mouth crinkling with laughter. He makes you feel that he has been waiting all his life for this moment. Of course, it is an old stage trick and doesn't mean a thing, but it is flattering."

Shaw who told her to call him "Geebie" talked to her of his father, whom he adored and from whom he derived that sense of anticlimax so evident in his plays. Shaw's father died comparatively young. He was charming, had a wonderful gift of repartee, but was not a good provider having an inherent devotion to Irish whisky. He thought a great deal of his mother who worked hard to support her son before fame and success came to him. He described her as wonderful but not the kind of woman men die for.

Shaw's comment on parent psychology was that people make a great mistake holding themselves up as an object lesson to children.

"It is an awful mistake for them to say 'See what I am and try and be like me.' They should hold themselves up as a warning. 'If you don't take good care, you'll grow up exactly like me'."

Shaw chatted of Sean O'Casey whom he regarded as a genius who is going to be one of the most marvellous writers of this age, and of Sarah Bernhardt, explaining away a very harsh criticism he had made of her acting by remarking that it was a secret but he once had an aunt Sarah and couldn't stand her.

Mrs. Shaw is a quiet serene woman, who stays much in the background but was brilliant in her own right before she married. She had translated many plays, among them the famous, if controversial "Damaged Goods."

Mrs. Shaw sits quietly in the background at parties at her home just, she says, sitting back and watching people making fools of themselves over Bernard, especially the women.

Miss Patch, Shaw's secretary is without doubt the model for the secretary in "Candida." She too adores Shaw, and like Mrs. Pyper could not understand how people insist that Shaw always writes with his tongue on his cheek. His method, she said, is to get people laughing and listening and then give them the real truth, as Dickens did.

Miss Patch told Mrs. Pyper many little stories of Shaw's generosity and deep feelings for others that finds expression in little hidden kindnesses.

Mrs. Pyper, in that trip to England and Ireland, next met Helen Waddell and found that this tiny person, plain of face, with beautiful brown eyes, had that quality of light that made her shine with warmth and made one feel instantly at home with her.

Simplicity of Manner

AE (George Russell), Mrs. Pyper found to be a huge powerful man with the build of a boxer, a black beard streaked with silver a beautiful head and lovely blue eyes. He was simple of manner, reminding Mrs. Pyper of what Rudyard Kipling had once told her; that all his life he had found it true that the great people are always simple. It is so awfully hard to be simple and so easy to "put on," for simplicity takes genius and greatness of heart, AE loved words and when Mrs. Pyper used "hap" a little word of her mother's, he was enchanted with it.

"We were both so delighted that we almost got to tears." In parting he gave her one of his paintings, and sang her a little song, in the style of the Irish come-all-ye-s" which she sang for her audience.

Another rare pleasure was her meeting with Yeats who told her how hard it was to keep to the truth and write a great thing the people didn't understand. Yeats, too, possessed a lovely voice that moved his hearers deeply, and he read to her from his works.

Greatest Humorist

W. W. Jacobs is one of the greatest humorists in all the world, Mrs. Pyper declared and added that anyone who hadn't read his books should be ashamed of themselves and should get them at once from the library so they wouldn't be uneducated any longer. Jacobs is small, gentle and kind, with the saddest face imaginable.

Christopher Morley, Mrs. Pyper met when he was lecturing in Toronto and she and her husband found him so delightful, that he almost kidnapped them on his return to New York, so that they could sit up all night and continue their chat with him. They had to part with him very sadly at Hamilton. Morley is a big, in fact an enormous man, with a round face, who laughs all the time in that zest for life that attracts one to him instantly.

Two women who have done much for their husbands are Mrs. Lloyd George and Mrs. Stanley Baldwin. The former, Mrs. Pyper fondly recalls as being the subject of her first newspaper scoop, a real feat since Lloyd George, remembering Mrs. Asquith, evidently wasn't going to let his wife make a fool of herself and made interviews almost impossible. Mrs. Baldwin is most attentive and watchful of her husband's health, devoting her time unselfishly in looking after even the most trifling details.

Mrs. Pyper's address came to a close all too soon, and the audience echoed the words of the President, Mrs. C. E. Argue, when she expressed in her appreciation of Mrs. Pyper's words, the hope that she would visit Belleville again.

Toys That Teach Tot To Create

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

The average child from the time he begins to walk till he nears the teens, must be doing something practically every moment he's awake. Have you ever seen a child of three or eight just loll and do nothing for five minutes at a stretch? He is constantly on the move with his feet and hands, feet only, or hands only, or is looking, examining, reading, or is mentally engaged in some other way. Even when the child of three or four is spinning yarns of fancy aloud his whole body may be in action.

I think you will agree with me that except for out-of-door play, the average tot uses his feet too much and his hands and head too little. Possibilities for education are with the hands and head more than with the feet, certainly indoors. Furthermore, the more the child uses his hands and head and the less he uses his feet, the less as a rule, he annoys other in the house; the less likely, indeed, he is to get into trouble anywhere.

Teach Child to Help

Many a mother write me of the tot who follows her about the house all day but won't play with his toys. Even then, if this mother answers all the youngster's questions and converses freely with him, both she and the child may be profitably engaged. Some such children are provided with a toy broom, sweeper, dust pan and the like, so they can "help mother". However, some mothers, being pressed for time, find their nerves tightening with a toddler always at their heels. They can reduce their problem by providing more and better things for the tot to amuse himself with and by showing interest in his crudest creations with objects and tools.

Thanks to the modern kindergarten and primary teacher, children learn at school to create with their hands and continue this at home. How fortunate the child who learns years earlier at home to build, draw, paint, paste, cut, saw, hammer. See how much happier he will be at home and how much less trouble to his mother. See also his preparation for later success at school.

Give Toys All Year

Why is it that most parents will wait till Christmas to buy playthings for their children showering them with so many all at once, but starving them for toys the rest of the year? Why don't they get these necessary means for good education all the year round, one or so at a time?

Let me urge parents, especially of the young child, to buy some toys at once instead of so many at Christmas time. Nearly all the best toys for your child are in the toy stores and departments now and have been there since last Christmas. The same applies to books to read to the baby and young child.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

EXCEEDINGLY eventful and unforeseen circumstances may contribute to making this day a memorable one. And while sudden and disruptive situations may appear devastating and disconcerting, yet shrewdness, deep insight and far vision may so shape matters as to end in outstanding success and satisfaction. But such happy and lucrative denouement might be jeopardized by rash, passionate erratic or other ungoverned behavior.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of an interesting and probably intriguing year, with much happening of an unusual or unpredictable nature. There are signs of peculiar and obscure events, with sudden upheavals or queer situations. These should be managed with much sagacity, shrewdness and the employment of highly stimulated inner forces and faculties rather than eccentric, passionate and wayward impulses. There may be critical moments to be swerved to success and happiness by poise, restraint and inner promptings.

A child born on this day may have excellent vision and sagacity, with strong intuitions or inspirational qualities leading it to unusual success and high creative expression. But tendencies to erratic and irregular conduct should be taken in hand early in life.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Gamble

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm in love with a girl who goes to the same college I do. She used to go with another young man, but this boy went back to his old girl, to whom he was engaged for a year. I know that I care for this girl, but I'm not sure she loves me, though she says she's fond of me. When I asked her to become engaged to me, she asks me to wait.

She admits she misses the former boy friend, and then when we are out with other friends, she treats me very mean. When I complain of this, she avoids giving me an answer. Would you advise me to drop her or shall I go on waiting?

Wondering

It is very humiliating to be "second-fiddle" in a love affair, and it might lead only to unhappiness. But it seems to me that you had better ask this young woman to decide between you and the other man, not hurrying her at all. In the meantime, be less attentive to her.

I suspect you are partly to blame for her lack of kindness and response. She seems too sure of you. If you withdrew completely, perhaps she would come after you. But it's risky to play a game of that without taking a chance of losing her altogther.

He's Not Worth Bothering About

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've known my boy friend for several years, but my girl friend knew him before I did. She went with him first, but started going "steady" with another young man, at which time the boy I'm going with asked me to be his girl. When I told my girl friend about it, she became jealous and turned around and now is trying to get him back again. She wants to see him all the time and does, whenever she gets a chance.

I haven't seen him for two weeks now, and it's plain to everyone that she's just trying to get him away from me. I know it but hate to start a fuss with her as she has always been my favourite girl friend. She keeps on going with her "steady" boy friend, while she's trying to get my boy friend away from me.

Can you give me any advice, please? Everything is so mixed-up.

Marybelle

You have the right name for it, my dear. If you ask me for an opinion about this first young man, I'd say, without fear of doing him an injustice, that he isn't worth bothering about. He goes with your best friend for several years, and when she drops him, he takes up with you.

If you really want this young man, why do you want him? And also, there isn't much to be said in favor of the girl whom you call your favorite girl friend. Why don't you cultivate an entirely new line of acquaintances? You're not doing yourself justice.

Doesn't Want to Go "Steady"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The boy friend I have been dating as "steady" for the past two years told me that he had also been dating another girl, whom he likes very much. And now he wants us to stop going "steady", as he doesn't think it is fair to me. However, he wants to go out with me once in a while, and said he hoped I would always be a good friend of his.

Of course, you can imagine that I'm all upset over it, and wonder if I ought to still see him, considering that I am very much in love with him. I'd like to win him back. Please give me your advice.

M.

When a boy tells a girl he does not want to go "steady" because it isn't fair to her, there's nothing to do but accept it as gracefully as she can. Hold your chin high, and don't show that it hurts your feelings. That would be a surer way of getting him back than if you went around moping and desolate. It's likely you may have lost this young man in the first place, by showing how much you cared.

Why Not a Christmas Note Instead of a Card?

I'm happy to see that manufacturers have observed that there is a definite market for Christmas note paper. So this year, in the midst of the hundreds of thousands of Christmas cards with their more or less perfunctory greetings or messages, we are offered a group of simple and really charming note papers.

It's heart-warming, this idea of writing a Christmas note instead of sending Christmas cards, or at least of writing notes to some special friends on our list. These heart-to-heart messages, springing from our own spirits instead of from the printer's or engraver's machines, written in our own handwriting, are the very essence of personality.

Look at these papers and be inspired to write some Christmas notes. Usually these papers are the convenient semi-note paper size. Some of the most simple ones are white papers edged with Christmas red or green. We find some with a Christmas design—a small and winsome Christmas tree; a beautiful small Christmas wreath; Santa Claus alone or with his reindeer; a burning Christmas candle; a brilliant star. Sprays of holly and mistletoe trail down the sides of another paper. The designs have charm and show artistic restraint.

If you get the urge to write some Christmas notes, and aren't able to locate these Christmas note papers, don't forsake the urge—write your notes on plain white paper of the best quality that you can afford.

As a matter of fact, Christmas notes or letters are often the only notes or letters we get time to write during the year; that is, notes that are not written "in answer" to something. These notes can keep the song of friendship singing in the hearts of those to whom we are devoted.

You needn't try to be "original" one or two sentences of traditional greeting in your own handwriting will make a friend's heart glow. Or the sacred benediction of "Peace on earth, Good Will toward men", written on plain white cards, will add your plea to the much-needed prayer this year.

If you are willing and feel inspired, put into your own words some Christmas message that will inevitably mean you to your friends. Make a real gift to your far-away friends of a real letter, a glorified Christmas greeting. These gifts of yourself, of your own words, are deeply welcome.

Christmas Tip for a "Boy Friend"

You'll rate high with your girl's mother—and, of course, with your girl—if you send a greeting card (or a box of flowers) to the mother at Christmas time.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

On Christmas Trees

This is not too early, I am sure, for a warning to be careful about the way you decorate Christmas trees, whether they are in the home, in churches or in schools.

Every Christmas it seems, children and adults are burned to death by candles on Christmas trees. They are very attractive, but they are never safe. If you can't use electric lights on your trees, put on a little more tinsel, a few stars, or something else. Don't use candles.

I feel keenly about this right now. For about a year ago a young doctor friend of mine was burned to death by the candles on his Christmas tree. He was a fine young fellow with a practise up in Northern Ontario. There weren't any electric lights in the community he served and he used candles. He was dressed in a Santa Claus costume, and one of the candles set fire to it. By the time they had gotten the fire extinguished, he was fatally burned. In the same region a few years ago lights on a Christmas tree were the cause of a great many deaths amongst school children at a Christmas entertainment.

Placing the Christmas tree too close to the fire place is another mistake many make. The tree sits there by the fire for a few days, becomes drier and drier, and then one day, the fire is a little hotter than usual, and the tree bursts into flames.

Just to show you how careful one must be I'll relate for the first time an incident that occurred in our nursery here. None of the people involved are there now, so I feel freer to tell it.

A photographer wanted a picture of our five little girls singing carols. He thought it would be a good idea if they held candle sticks as they did so. Someone else thought it would be better if the candles were lighted: the picture would look more authentic. It happened that I walked into the nursery room where the photographing was going on to find the Quints singing away and waving the lighted candles in time to the music. I was made sick by the sight, for my first thought was: "What if one of those filmsy dresses caught fire! What if one of them waves the candle a little too far and catches one of her sister's hair!!"

I stopped the procedure and I scolded everyone roundly. Of course the nurse in charge was terribly upset. She told me she just couldn't imagine how she ever let the children hold the candles lighted as they were. She just had a mental lapse for a few minutes. The danger just didn't occur to her. The photographer was just as upset to think that he might have been the unwitting cause of an accident. He told me afterwards that he was so absorbed in his picture taking that he never thought of the danger there might be.

In our nursery we are very, very careful about fires and matches. I have seen what terrible things can happen when people are a little careless about such apparent trifles as candles in the Christmas tree and matches.

FASCIST PAPER FAVORS BEATING OF 'DEFEATISTS'

Il Popolo di Roma Calls Those Who Read News From English Sources 'Poor Idiots' and 'Rascals'

PRICES RISE IN ITALY

Magazine Protests Sharp Rise in Prices and Asks if Anyone Believes Profiteers Have Disappeared

Rome, Dec. 11 — (AP)—A front page editorial in the newspaper Il Popolo Di Roma recommended Tuesday the beating of "defeatests, alarmists, pessimists and rumor mongers" in Italy.

The newspaper sharply criticized Italians who buy Swiss newspapers and read "enemy communiques and news from English sources," and termed them "poor idiots" and "rascals."

"These gentlemen who smell of defeatism are those who read our war bulletins with the air of being fed up," the editorial said, "those who know everything, incorrigible rumor mongers who always have something to add when a communique of our High Command is read.

"They are professional alarmists, prejudiced pessimists, empty-headed and sour-stomached who still, here and there, spring up, alas, even among us.

"Now it is not admissible that while the real Italians are united in the homeland and on the war-front under Il Duce's orders, ready to face any sacrifice to pluck certain victory, that certain ones who take criminal liberties should be left unpunished. . . .

"Four which reason it seems to us the hour has come to beat them up so it will leave a mark that will not soon be forgotten."

Magazine Protests Prices

Meanwhile, the current issue of the magazine La Vita Italiana, protesting steeply rising prices, says the cost of wearing apparel has more than doubled since Italy entered the war.

Prices of other commodities also have risen, and "the crescendo is continuing," the publication declared.

"We do not live by bread alone," La Vita says. "There are many other things of prime necessity.... with things increasing at this rate, the wages and salaries to remain unaltered?"

The magazine recalls Mussolini's promise at the outset of the war that there would be no profiteers in Italy, and goes on to ask:

"Is there anyone who imagines that prices are blocked, and that profiteers have disappeared while the mass of the people are submitting with admirable discipline to the limitation in their standard of living?......

"Don't let us forget the question we are raising is part of the war's finances, which is going to put the Corporative System to the test."

Voluntary System Proving Better Than Compulsory One

London, Dec. 11.—(CP)—Germany's compulsory labor system has failed to produce the results attained by voluntary output in Britain, Ernest Bevin, Labor Minister, said yesterday in a speech reported by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

"I venture to state that as against the German system of the Gestapo and of compulsion in production, Britain in individual output has accomplished much better results than Germany", Mr. Bevin said.

Mr. Bevin's answer to "those who wished to introduce compulsory methods", the BBC said, was this: "If you have compulsion you must undertake selection. However clever one may be one is apt to select the wrong people as against volunteers".

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Must Belleville Be Bombed

(Like Coventry, Birmingham, Bristol)

Before We Face Realities

Our cities could be bombed and might be bombed, unless we use all our strength, and marshal all our resources in men, material and money for defence.

What a magnificent example of sacrifice and service the people of Britain's cruelly racked cities set for us!

We Canadians must measure up to their standards of heroism.

You ask: "What then can I do as a civilian to share in our defence?"

The answer is: "All of us at least can save to the limit of our ability, and lend our savings to Canada to help carry on the fight against the Nazi menace".

IF YOU ARE AN EMPLOYER, start saving and give leadership. Urge your employees to save. If you have not already done so, organize for them a War Savings Payroll Deduction Plan—the most convenient method for saving and lending to Canada. Get 100% of your organization to participate; EVERYONE must share in it to assure the $10,000,000 a month needed.

IF YOU ARE AN EMPLOYEE, start saving. Give whole-hearted co-operation to your employer in organizing a Payroll Deduction Plan. Use all your influence to persuade fellow employees to save and invest in War Savings Certificates. And keep on saving and investing until Victory is won.

Just as the war is being fought day by day, so must the cost be met day by day. That is why the flow of saving and investing in War Savings Certificates must be continuous.

No one need go without actual necessities to save, but we urge you not to buy things which compete for labour and material with war production.

Ross Drags Out the Big Stick And Boston Bruins Romp Over N. Y. Rangers by 6-2 Score

Manager Threatened to Send Half of the Players Down to the Minors

SCHMIDT STARS

Bill Cowley, Centre Ice Star, is Leading Scorer in the N.H.L. Loop

By JACK MITCHELL

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Maestro Art Ross is a progressive fellow, noted almost as much for his innovations and proposed innovations in hockey as for his Boston Bruins, but the energetic leader still believes in the time-honored custom of waving the big stick when his Bruin band is playing a sour tune.

There was a time half-way through the last National Hockey League season when the Boston club that Ross—as per habit—said was the best ever assembled failed to live up to his rating. So Art threatened to change them en masse for the Hershey Bears of the American League, and the Bruins went on to win the league title.

Again this season, Ross has seen the "greatest team ever assembled" in his Bruins—and again the club failed to fulfil the description to the letter. So Ross dragged out the big stick again last night and Boston, playing under a "win or else" ultimatum, responded with a 6-2 victory over New York Rangers.

The triumph in Boston came after two successive losses for the Bruins, who have been somewhat of an enigma in the first quarter of the schedule. Once in a while—as when they ran up 16 goals in two straight victories over New York Americans—the club has promised to return to its renowned powerhouse form, but the spurt has usually petered out.

Weakness in Defence

The Bruins, although in third place well behind the flying Toronto Maple Leafs, have compiled a 44-goal total, four more than the Leafs who are next in line, and have the leading individual point-gatherer in centre Bill Cowley. The weakness would seem to rest in the defensive side of the club, which has allowed a total of 33 opponents' goals in 13 matches.

Offensive and defensive worked in complete harmony against the fifth-place Rangers, however, following Ross' warnings that several of the players would be sent down to Hershey unless things picked up. Ross accused the team of careless play in both of its two losing starts during last week-end.

A crowd of 13,000 in the Boston Gardens watched their champions run up a 6-0 lead before the Rangers bagged their first tally late in the final period.

MAXIE BERGER WINS ANOTHER

Montreal Welterweight is Promised Bout With Lou Ambers

New York, Dec. 11 (CP)—Maxie Berger, Montreal's welterweight contender who has one of the best left hooks in the business, will be so busy training for his coming bouts in the next three weeks that he'll just have to get someone else to do his Christmas shopping.

After he won a fairly easy, 10-round decision from Johnny Bellus of New Haven, Conn., in the main attraction at the Bronx Coliseum last night, Maxie was besieged with so many offers that it wasn't until 2 a.m. today that his manager, Tommy Dio, could close any deals.

The bout between Dave Castilloux, Canadian lightweight champion, and Sammy Angott of Louisville, Ky., scheduled for that date has fallen through after Davie's loss to Tommy Spiegal in Toronto Monday night.

If Berger comes through in his next three matches, he will be offered a crack at Lou Ambers, former world's lightweight champion, who is trying a comeback as a welterweight.

Maxie hasn't been whipped in nearly two years and last night's win increased his undefeated streak to 25 consecutive bouts.

A crowd of 6,500 saw the fight. Berger now has drawn well over 200,000 fans in his three-year campaigning at the Coliseum.

Outstanding Team Performance of Year Goes to Cincinnati

By BILL BONI,

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Dec. 11—(AP)—United States sports editors, following the precedent they themselves established in eight of the nine previous Associated Press polls, today singled out the Cincinnati Reds' capture of the National League pennant and the world series as the outstanding team performance of the sports year.

Each winter since 1932 the experts have awarded this honor to the current baseball champions, basing their verdict on the reasonably sound theory that any club which can beat seven others over a 154-game season and then go on to whip the rival league's best has proved its worth as a team in every sense of that word.

The Reds got 26 of 62 first-place votes, were named second by 14 and third by 15 for 121 points on a 3-2-1 scoring basis. Their first-place total was more than three times that of any other team, and their point score almost double that of the second-place Minnesota football team.

The Gophers, last week named No. 1 grid team of the year, were ranked first by eight and got 67 points for winning the Western Conference Championship and coming through eight major games unscathed.

Third place went to Stanford's Pacific Coast Conference Football Champions, whose 26 points gave them a slim edge over Texas A. and M. The University of Washington crew won fifth place on the strength of its victory in the Poughkeepsie regatta, the Tigers sixth for their surprise triumph in the American League race and the Chicago Bears seventh for taking the Pro Football title with that 73-0 licking of the Washington Redskins.

CLOSE FINISH AT BAY MEADOWS

Can you pick the winner? — Not from this shot taken at Bay Meadows from an unusual angle. The winner was Patronymic, on LEFT, with Jockey Balaski up, while El Gorgorito, CENTRE, took second and Dew piloted Wee Biddy on RAIL, into the show money. It was a rousing finish that had the whole crowd standing as the thoroughbreds crossed the line almost at the same time.

HERSHEY BEARS TIE BARONS WITH 5TH STRAIGHT WIN

Springfield Indians Also Have Margin Cut by Losing to Capitals

A CLOSE RACE

Rambler's Defeat Left Team in Cellar Position in Western Division

Both Springfield Indians and Cleveland Barons, who threatened at one time to run away with the two American Hockey League sections, surveyed their respective divisions today and from positions not nearly so secure.

Eddie Shore's Indians still have a clean margin at the top of the Eastern Section, but lost their third game in five starts last night in dropping a 2-1 decision to Indianapolis Capitals. The loss left Springfield six points ahead of the second-place New Haven Eagles, who have two games in hand.

Meanwhile, the Barons gained a bedfellow in the front position in the Western Division. Idle themselves, Cleveland was forced to share the lead when Hershey Bears climaxed their chase after the faltering Barons by beating Philadelphia Ramblers, 4-0.

The victory was the fifth straight for the Bears. Playing at home, they sprang into a one goal lead in the second session after a scoreless first period and then added three more goals to clinch the verdict in the final frame.

Joe Krol gave the Bears their first goal at 17:37 of the second period while his team held a one-man advantage. Gordie Bruce made it 2-0 in the final frame and then Bobby Kirk and Krol tallied again before the end of the match. Hershey was backed by a flawless goaling performance from Nick Damore.

Springfield meanwhile went down to their first home defeat before Indianapolis, who broke a five-game losing streak by the victory. Bill Jennings scored the winning tally for the Capitals at 11:16 of the final period on a pass from Art Hechenratter.

The teams had played evenly through the first two frames, with Indianapolis taking a one-goal lead in the initial session and Springfield knotting the count in the next. Winger Butch McDonald scored for the Capitols on a pass from Bob Whitelaw, while Larry Thibeault tallied for the Indians.

Challedon Named "Horse of Year"

Baltimore, Dec. 11—(AP)—Challedon is still the boss. William L. Brann's big four-year-old Bay today was named the "horse of the year" for 1940 by the nation's turf experts in the annual turf and sports digest poll, thus becoming the first galloper to retain the throne in the five-year history of the voting.

"Big Pete" did it by a convincing margin in a year in which the class of competitors in the racing world was decidedly "off." He received 84 nominations from the 172 experts who cast votes, compared with the 34 for Charlie Howard's Seabiscuit, the richest money winner of all time.

Challedon also was chosen first in the handicap division, among the four-year-olds and up. Col. E. R. Bradley's Bimelech, despite his loss in the Kentucky Derby and the hoof injury which forced his retirement in mid-season, was named best of the three-year-olds. In the two other divisions voted on Crispin Oglebay's Level Best, Equipoise's Best Daughter, was easily the outstanding two-year-old filly, while the closest contest of all found Warren Wright's Whirlaway besting Royce G. Martin's Our Boots for top billing among the two-year-colts.

LAST NIGHT

Milt Schmidt, Boston, who scored two goals and an assist in pacing the Bruins to a 6-2 triumph over New York Rangers.

Mac Colville, Rangers, who turned in a strong performance and bagged one goal although his team was overwhelmed by the Bruins in Boston.

DROUIN RECALLED TO CANADIENS

POLLY DROUIN LOUIS TRUDEL

Polly Drouin has been recalled from New Haven of the American league by Montreal Canadiens to report immediately and take to the ice against Toronto Maple Leafs this Thursday. At the same time Les Canadiens' management announced that Louis Trudel will replace Drouin on the farm team.

BUFFALO CATCHER LEADING HITTER

New York, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Any major league baseball club in need of a catcher for next season might do well to make a bid for Clyde McCullough, who spent most of the 1940 season with Buffalo Bisons after getting a spring tryout with Chicago Cubs.

The needy club might find he's all tied up and not for sale, but the international league's official records show he's worth trying for. Not only was he one of the circuit's leading hitters last season with a .324 average, but he was an outstanding performer behind the plate.

A new tabulation, not ordinarily carried in the fielding records, helps to bring out his effectiveness. McCullough led the league in catching runners who were trying to steal. He threw out 40 of them in his 145 games while the next-best catcher, Tommy Heath of Toronto, caught only 29 would-be stealers. McCullough also had the second-best fielding average among the "regular" catchers of the circuit, .984 as compared to .986 for Tom Padden of Newark.

"PECK'S" PRANCING POP

Although he is 80 years old, Frank Peckinpaugh, father of Roger Peckinpaugh, who recently became manager of the Cleveland Indians for the second time, plays baseball every day as a member of the "Three-Quarter Century Baseball Team" of St. Petersburg. He is shown here about to spear one. The players on this club are all over 75 years of age—hence the name.

KENESAW LANDIS AND BILL KLEM GIVEN HIGH POSTS

Landis Will Continue as Baseball's Commissioner for Four More Years at $65,000 a Year

FRICK RE-ELECTED

Veteran Umpire, Bill Klem, Will be Supervisor of Umpires in American Loop

(By Earl Hilligan)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, Dec. 11. (AP)—Two of the most dominant and picturesque figures in baseball, shaggy-haired Kenesaw Mountain Landis and heavy-jowled Bill Klem, came to mile-posts, in their long careers today.

For Landis, commissioner of the sport since 1921, the day meant the beginning of another period of service to the United States National pastime. The American and National Leagues, as they entered their joint session to wind up their annual winter meetings, were unanimously in support of another term for the 74-year-old commissioner.

For Klem, an umpire in the National League since 1905, it meant the start of a new job. The 65-year-old arbiter who always said he "never missed one in my life'" was promoted to the post of supervisor of the circuit's umpires.

Klem replaces Ernie Quigley, who will enter the league's public relations department, but the veteran umpire probably will be behind the plate or on the baselines on special occasions.

Ford Frick was re-elected president of the National League for four years. Both leagues agreed yesterday to extend Landis' term four years, to January 12, 1946.

The commissionership carries a yearly salary of $65,000.

The date of the annual all-star game was fixed as July 8. It will be played at Detroit, with the American League squad being managed by Del Baker, pilot of the Tigers, and the senior circuit team being handled by Bill McKechnie, manager of Cincinnati's World Championship Reds.

The American League season will open April 14.

Louisville Declares Yuletide Dividend

Accompanying the checks, Bruce Dudley, president of the Colonels, is sending letters expressing the club's Christmas greetings and offering the following suggestion:

"If you want to make still more folks happier this rollicking Yuletide, telephone Magnolia 3700 and order some opening-day baseball tickets or, far better, some season tickets and give them for Christmas remembrances".

An order blank was enclosed.

Dudley and Pewee Reese, Louisville resident and Brooklyn Dodger shortstop, continued their round of the knife and fork league recently by speaking at the Highland Merchants' Association luncheon, November 27.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Cowley, veteran Boston Bruins centre, added two points to his lead over the second-place Syd Howe of Detroit in the National Hockey League's individual point-scorers by earning two assists last night as the Bruins beat New York Rangers 6-2 in the only match. Roy Conacher scored a goal for the Bruins to move into a fourth-place tie with the Rangers' Phil Watson, who was held pointless. The only other change in the Big Seven was marked up by Eddie Wiseman, also of the Bruins, who scored a goal to move into a tie for the last berth.

The leaders:

Cowley, Boston	5	12	17

Hank Greenberg Headed for Draft

Detroit, Mich.—Hank Greenberg, Tiger outfielder voted the most valuable player in the American League for 1940, seems likely to be called for military service by June 30 next.

The Wayne County Selective Service Board No. 23, with which Greenberg registered, has been ordered to supply 409 draftees by June 30. Hank has local order No. 621.

A draft official asserted that while the board area in downtown Detroit would yield a high percentage of eligible single men, it appeared doubtful that 400 such single men could be obtained within the first 600 order numbers. "So it seems possible that Greenberg might be called by next June 30," said the official. Hank is a bachelor.

The management of the Belleville Junior O.H.A. squad and the local heads of the Juvenile Association are crossing bridges before they come to them; or it would so appear at this time of scribbling.

It seems the Junior and juvenile mentors have heard certain rumours relative to B.C.I. students planning to play Interscholastic hockey only, abandoning all other puck connections. Frankly, we put little stock in such idle gossip, because first and foremost the City Juvenile League schedule will be concluded before the Senior Interscholastic pucksters even so much as draft a schedule.

President Ted Schwab of the City Juvenile loop, heard of the situation. "Well, if the boys at the Collegiate don't want to play in our loop, there are plenty of others who do," he openly remarked, but added the Collegians would be quite welcome, as the Belleville juvenile group is organized solely for the purpose of training young pucksters.

"For the past two years the Juvenile Association has trained and coached these boys, but now when they reach junior age, they're bolting the issue after receiving elementary training at the expense of the juvenile organization," was President Bill Cooke's viewpoint.

After listening with intent to all concerned, we cornered some of the interscholastic athletic heads in the community and we find there is absolutely no ruling whereby a student at the Belleville Collegiate cannot play both senior interscholastic and junior or juvenile hockey within the community. Two or three seasons ago George Laughlin of the B.C.I., Pete Beach of Albert College and Frank Cunningham of the O.S.D., entered into a gentleman's agreement, whereby they would not permit O.H.A. players to compete in the senior interscholastic puck series.

This ruling was purely within the confinement of local secondary school sporting circles and was not sanctioned by the C.O.S.S.A. However, we can say with authority, in the W.O.S.S.A. this regulation is rigidly enforced. Students must either play in one category or the other, but not with both. Pertaining to this, however, we might point out that in Western Ontario the communities are larger and all types of grouping more compact than is the case in the central region. In the E.O.S.S.A. and Ottawa Valley a student can play with his school and as many outside clubs as he desires.

"My feelings are purely for the good of Albert College. I do not believe a young player can make hockey progress while playing under two or three coaches in the same season," was the opinion expressed by Coach Pete Beach of Albert College.

Actually it looks as though this mutual benefit agreement came into being after Bill Sherry, Pete Morgan and a few of the junior O.H.A. boys packed the B.C.I. squad one winter. Lester Shiels, who coached hockey at the Collegiate for a number of years and seems to be the logical man for the job again this year, says he has no personal objection to students playing with a city team as well as the school sextette. Summing it all up in a few words it would appear as though Albert College and the O.S.D. benefited if there was any advantage gained by the mutual agreement, as the only school affected would be the Belleville Collegiate.

With this angle cleared up there should be no misunderstanding and it is hoped a goodly number of collegians will be out to this evening's initial junior O.H.A. practice at the Hume Arena. Coach Holway announced today the junior squad will have to be built from the ground up and therefore candidates seeking positions with the teen-aged O.H.A. team should attend every practice possible from now until the puck campaign opens.

Do you remember when one of the most memorable National Hockey League games was played at Boston seven years ago tomorrow night? Crashed to the ice by Eddie Shore, Irving (Ace) Bailey, Toronto forward, was rushed to hospital with a serious brain concussion which ended his playing career. Shore was suspended for 16 weeks by President Frank Calder of the N.H.L.

With Skipper St. Louis making a tour of the Ottawa Valley sector (guess what for?), the Reliance Aircraft seniors held a strenuous practice at the Hume Arena last night. Tried and proven players like "Tilley" Donihee, Gow and Hastie stood out in prominence, but it is quite evident the "plane-makers" need additional strength before entering senior O. H. A. competition. Bob Johnson, of last year's Trenton juniors, and Frank Butler, who played sterling hockey with Toots Holways' kids last winter, were two newcomers seeking berths on a senior squad. The regular Reliance team is in Kingston for a Van Horne Memorial tussle with the Vimy Signals tonight but will return for additional practice later in the week.

Squadron Leader Carling-Kelly had the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" out prior to the Reliance work-out and as the saying goes there wasn't a prospect in the car load. "Simon" Legris stood out like a sore thumb, while a junior from Moncton showed promise out of some 40 candidates. Incidentally we hear "Peg" Hurst is back at the helm of the Whitby Redwings this year. Remember big "Red" Cameron, who played defence for the Air Force last season? Well, the red head has caught on with the Glace Bay Miners under Coach Jo Jo Graboski.

Tell us it isn't true——believe it or not, two wrestlers were arrested in Ottawa and fined $50.00 and costs for allegedly causing a disturbance during an advertised grappling bout. Now who ever heard tell of wrestlers causing a disturbance, especially in a wrestling ring?

"Anne of Windy Poplars"

Marking her sixteenth RKO Radio picture since she first leaped to fame six years ago in "Anne of Green Gables", Anne Shirley currently plays the title role in "Anne of Windy Poplars", screen version of L. M. Montgomery's latest book in the popular series the next feature attraction at the Belle Theatre.

Until she skyrocketed to stardom in the first "Anne" picture, Miss Shirley was known as Dawn O'Day but her outstanding success in the film prompted her to assume the name of the heroine, which she has used ever since.

In the new vehicle, Anne is a school teacher in a coastal town on Prince Edward Island, in the mouth of the St. Lawrence. Finding herself among hostile strangers, the heroine has plenty of opportunity to exercise her well-known gifts for getting at the bottom of trouble, wherever she finds it.

"The Saint Takes Over"

George Sanders and Wendy Barrie two of Hollywood's most popular players, are teamed romantically in RKO Radio's "The Saint Takes Over", latest in the series of thrillers depicting the exploits of Simon Templar, colorful crime-busting hero announced as the companion feature attraction.

Based on the popular novel by Leslie Charteris, the current film has to do with The Saint's adventures in New York in trying to bring to justice a gang of race track crooks who are attempting to frame Inspector Fernack, a police officer who has been friendly with the volunteer avenger.

Once again Sanders enacts the title role of the resourceful gunman who wars on the crime barons of the world. Wendy Barrie, who had the feminine lead opposite the stalwart star in "The Saint Strikes Back", an earlier film in the series, portrays a girl of mystery whose efforts to avenge her brother's murder make her an unwilling ally of the danger-loving, master criminal. And from this unique association springs an exciting romance.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Mein Kampf—My Crimes"

"Mein Kampf—My Crimes" now showing at the McCarthy theatre, compresses into 80 minutes screening time the actual events that has happened in Germany under Hitler's heel—during the past ten years. The effect is unforgettable—the picture is one you are urged not to miss. Latest Fox News, an excellent musical revue and a clever technicolor cartoon "The Adventures of Tom Thumb Jr." are also now playing.

"The Lone Wolf Keeps a Date"

"The Lone Wolf Keeps a Date," newest release in this popular detective story series will be presented next at the McCarthy theatre with Warren William again featured in the title role. Frances Robinson supplies the romantic interest in this new adventure of fiction's most likeable rascal. Others in the cast include Eric Blore, Jed Prouty, Bruce Bennett, Thurston Hall and Fred Kelsey.

John Wayne, star of "Stagecoach" and "Allegheny Uprising" and Duke his miracle horse in an action-crammed western "Somewhere in Sonora" plus closing chapter of "Terry and The Pirates" will also be presented in addition to "The Lone Wolf Keeps a Date" this week-end at the McCarthy theatre.

"Under Texas Skies"

Rufe Davis, a country boy from the town of Mangum, Oklahoma, and also a man who made good in a big way, is now featured by Republic in their popular Three Mesquiteers series, the latest of which, "Under Texas Skies" comes next to the Capitol Theatre.

Several years ago, claims Rufe, he got tired of picking cotton on his farm near Mangum (population 4,000) and decided to do something "on his own." Thinking of his childhood when he and his brother had imitated all of the animals on their farm, Rufe determined to see what he could do in the way of capitalizing on his imitations.

Rufe's first appearance was in a small theatre near Mangum, and apparently the debut was so successful that from that time on, Davis was convinced that he was cut out for the entertainment field.

The "Radio Rube" was evidently right, for since that memorable day he has played practically all of the major vaudeville circuits, and there is scarcely an important city in this country that has not been entertained by Rufe Davis.

In New York, long engagements at the Palace Theatre (seven times), the Roxy, Loew's State and the Paramount are ample proof of Rufe's popularity. As far as the country's second largest city, Chicago, is concerned, audiences at the Chicago, Palace, Oriental and State Lake theatres have all been convulsed by the Rufe Davis imitations, not only once, but on repeat engagements.

His addition to the "Three Mesquiteers" series marks another milestone in his career, establishing him definitely as one of the screen's high ranking comedians.

Bob Livington and Bob Steele are the other two members of the starring trio, the roster of supporting players including Lois Ranson, Henry Brandon, Rex Lease and many others also shown on the same bill.

"The Escape"

Hair trigger thrills will be the order of the day when "The Escape," new 20th Century-Fox picture opens.

The fast-paced saga of New York's East Side, told by a kindly old family doctor who has attended a dying gunman, features Kane Richmond, Amanda Duff, June Gale, Edward Norris, Henry Armetta and Frank Reicher.

A husband who posed as his wife's brother was "best man" at her bigamous wedding and then lived with the couple as their lodger.

LOST SUNRISE

by KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 6

Gwen was in the kitchen one Sunday morning, with her just-washed hair bound into a rag, and a dozen culinary operations under way at once, when Richard Latimer walked in. The world took a sudden dizzying spin for Gwen; she laughed in a manner she felt even at the time to be completely idiotic, put a hand to her hair, and laughed afresh as he said in compunction, "You've gotten it all floury!"

Then she came down to earth. He was a perfectly ordinary person, of course. He was just square, dark young man not too smartly dressed. She had been spinning a lot of silly dreams about nice, ordinary, penniless Dick Latimer, whose mother used to be a trained nurse, Gwen's cheeks reddened; she decided that she didn't care that he saw her in her old coolie pyjamas with her hair bound up. If anyone had to, it might as well be Dick Latimer!

"Well, Dick!" she said cordially. "Nice to see you! What brings you to Kenthill?" Gwen went on gaily—"I've just washed my hair, and I'm starting chicken fricassee and upside-down cake and everything! Sunday is my day of rest."

"I can help with the dishes anyway," the man said, picking up a towel.

"No; you sit down. There are nothing. Did you walk from the train?"

"Nope; I drove all the way. A feller in the hospital has a car he lets me use while he's laid up."

"Tubercular?" Gwen's hands were constantly busy; she assumed an air of kindly interest. He wasn't what her imagination had made him, perhaps, but he was very attractive just the same. Nice voice, nice expression in his blue eyes.

"Oh no. Smash-up. As a matter of fact he was smashed up in this very car. I tinkered with it for a while and saved him a garage bill, and so he lets me use it."

"Pleasant associations for you!" She was laughing, but she was conscious of a sudden disturbance of pulse. "You'll stay for dinner, Dick? You'll have to amuse yourself while I get dressed . . . I wish I knew what he does to me, just sitting there," Gwen thought.

"I can't. That is—I oughtn't, really. Your mother—No, I ought not," Dick said, in the irresolute tone that shakes the heart of a hostess. "I drove up today," he explained, "to see about my mother's tenant in the old house. You know the place—over by the mill—well, the tenant just got out, apparently—"

"You'll have dinner with us," Gwen decided, interrupting.

"No, what I wanted was for you to come up to the Arcades and lunch with me," Dick said, flushing suddenly, and speaking with a sort of awkward determination.

"The Arcades? Oh, why?" In imagination it would have seemed to her thrilling to have Richard Latimer here in the same kitchen urging her to go off and have lunch with him at the famous Italian resort. But in actuality it seemed oddly flat and disappointing. He did not seem at all the man of her dreams, nor she the girl who had dreamed them. There was no sense of sympathy or ease between them this morning. Why shouldn't she go to the Arcades if he asked her to? Why had she questioned the plan in that half-amused, superior manner? Gwen felt her own face grow hot; she wished angrily that she didn't so often act like a fool when alone with a young man.

"Why not?" he asked.

"Why not—? Oh, the Arcades?" Gwen murmured, aroused from thought. "Well, but we have dinner here at half past one . . . I suppose we could keep this idiotic fencing up indefinitely," she said to herself resignedly.

"But it seems like imposing on your mother. I know my mother'd not like it."

"Mother'd love it. You go see about your tenant, and I'll finish up here and get dressed. Then you come back and have dinner with us."

"I think he's moved out," Dick answered to this, looking at her oddly, as if not thinking of what he was saying.

"He—?" She was completely at sea. "Oh, the tenant?" she asked, enlightened. "Oh well, then, who can you see?"

Dick had seated himself at the kitchen table. "Here's what I wanted to ask you," he said, and came to a full stop. Gwen looked at him, her cheeks burning. "Did you ever think and think about a thing, and not know just what you were thinking, until it suddenly came to you?" Dick presently resumed. "Well, I've been thinking like that," he said. "I've been thinking ever since that day when your sister was married."

"You told me how you felt about Sheila," Gwen reminded him, in a mere breath of a voice.

"Yes. I was in love with her, I guess," Dick said, adding the last phrase after a second's hesitation. But I've been thinking about you, and that you said that day that you weren't—well, going with anybody. And what I was wondering was—you see you're—you are everything I ever wanted—I mean I've said to myself all this time, 'that's the way I wanted her to be.' But not being in love, you know."

He came to a pause, his eyes appealing for understanding.

"Not being in love," she repeated slowly.

"D'you think it would work?"

Her steady gaze met his. They looked at each other unsmiling.

"You mean our being friends — [illegible] the girl formulated it. Dick nodded, and she laughed without mirth. "We could try it," she said.

"Would you?"

Gwen didn't know why consenting to this made her feel a little affronted and hurt deep down inside. She kept outwardly calm; even a little amused.

"Why not? For a while anyway."

"For a while, yes. You might find someone you liked better," he admitted.

"I know. But so might you." Gwen was standing perfectly still at the sink, facing into the kitchen, a hot clean cup and a dish towel in her hands. Every few seconds she wiped the cup again.

"I won't. Because it all—just came over me," Dick assured her. "I've got a lot of intern work to do, I've got no money," he went on. "But I thought—if I came up here, and now and then you came down and stayed with mother—not being in love, you know, or anything like that, but just feeling that you're—you're different—"

"I understand," Gwen said in the pause. She looked at the cup, wiped it again.

"I don't know what you'd get out of it," Dick said suddenly, with an uneasy laugh.

"It would be friendship anyway," she answered. "That's something. What would you get out of it?" she countered suddenly.

"I? Oh well, gosh!" Dick said. "Why I—but you see, that's what I want. To be married some day, and have a family, and be a married doctor somewhere. Rio or Hong Kong or somewhere. Does all this sound crazy to you?"

"No, it doesn't. But I can't see that now," Gwen said temperately, I can't see that now it means anything more than our being friends . . . How fast I'm falling in love with him!" she thought.

"Will you?" he asked, as if he could not believe it.

"Will I try that? Seeing you, and visiting your mother, you mean?"

"Would you, really?" His face had so brightened, his voice was so eager that she felt her whole being respond. But she spoke calmly:

"Well, why not? Nobody but ourselves need know. And if we can decide that there's nothing — nothing romantic about it, we can always be friends, anyway."

"Then I'll beat it, and you get dressed!" he said, getting to his feet, his face radiant. "And we'll go up and have lunch at the Arcade!"

"But that's a dollar lunch, Dick, and we've plenty here," she protested sensibly. His great laugh rang out joyously; she had not heard him laugh before.

"I can stand it," he said. "I'll be back in an hour. You be ready!"

When she came downstairs he was waiting. Gwen looked her best now in white and blue; a brimmed white hat pressing her dark bang down above her blue eyes; her crisp striped frock short enough to show slim legs, slim ankles and fringed white buckskin shoes.

"It's six miles to the Arcades, Dick. Want me to drive? You've been driving all morning." Gwen spoke sensibly, quietly. This was going to be a friendship, not a love affair.

"Nope, I'm not tired. Jump in!"

"What are you laughing at?"

"Laughing at you. To think that a girl who can look as—as swell as you do now would make herself look the way you did when I came in." He was being sensible, too. She felt a little dashed.

"That was to point the contract. That was a device!"

"Yes, it was," Dick murmured good-naturedly. At Antonelli's famous Arcades, Dick and Gwen found a table under a grapevine, tucked away in an inconspicuous corner. They were not embarrassed now, Gwen told herself rejoicingly. Their awkward moment was far behind them. They were friends. This was going to be fun!

"Well, I graduate next week," Dick said. "Then I'm staying on a year at the City and County — intern."

"Will that be fun?"

"That'll be hard work. Good practice. Then it depends. I might get an offer from an eastern hospital, if I can pass their state boards all right. But—here's the catch. Even if you get a scholarship it doesn't pay much. So it means about five years before I get going."

"But why so long, Dick?" Won't you be able to practice as soon as you graduate?"

"Well, you could. But nobody does. The more intern years you can pack in, the better. Some fellers can't because they have to support themselves right off the bat. But if you're going to specialize you've simply got to."

"And you're going to specialize?" He nodded, looking up from his plate. "Spine," he said briefly.

"Well, pretty damn fascinating," he said, laughing at her thoughtful little pronouncement. "And not as crowded a field. But I don't know that I can work it. I'm only doing it because my mother helps me."

"I envy you, Gwen said. "I envy you your having to work so hard, and knowing that you'll come out of it, 'Doctor Latimer.' I think it's—fascinating that, in spite of not having a rich father or anyone to help you, you've gone straight ahead and are graduating next week."

"Lord, there are a lot doing it!" he said. "Nothing unusual about it. Except that I get such a kick out of it!" he added simply. And I know what I'm going to do. In four years I'll have done four years' intern work, and then—" He looked at her, laughed. "Then it's going to be travel for a year," he said. "I'll have five thousand dollars, and I'll go to six cities. Amsterdam, Rio, Stockholm, Gloucester, Hong Kong, Budapest and Cork."

"Why Budapest and Cork and Rio and all those?" she asked.

"Because I want to see all those places and decide which one I want to live in. And when I've seen them all I'll settle down in the one I like best. I'll be 'the American doctor' see? And the Americans will come to me. Of course it may be Baltimore, or even Charleston," Dick mused. "Or Gloucester."

"But Dick, look. Where'll you get your original five thousand to go around and sell all these places?"

"Oh, I'll get it."

"I may get Thirty-five hundred dollars," Gwen confessed suddenly.

Light offerings of No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids at 33c a pound were absorbed near the close and buyers in some cases had to pay 33¼c for the product The prevailing strength of the butter market was reflected in another increase in churning cream, which rose to the range of 33c to 34c for No. 1 grades on truck country points.

Increasing receipts and only fair local demand caused further recessions in fresh egg prices yesterday. A good out-of-town inquiry was reported, however. Undergrades remained steady.

Chrysler Corporation To Distribute Bonus And Raise Wages

Detroit, Dec. 11—(AP)—Approximately 60,000 employees of Chrysler Corporation will share in the pre-Christmas bonus of more than $2,500,000 and receive a flat pay raise of two cents an hour, officials of the corporation and the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) announced today.

A union spokesman said each of the corporation's employees in the 11 plants were U.A.W.-C.I.O. contracts are in effect will receive a bonus of $40 to be paid before Christmas.

Announcement of distribution of the bonus and the wage increase came after a night of negotiations between union and company representatives.

The general raise in pay for hourly-wage employees plus the bonus will total approximately $6,744,000 for a year, according to union estimates.

U.A.W. officials said that with this increase Chrysler employees will be receiving the highest average wage of any industrial workers in the world.

BRITISH GOV'T

The collapse of France and the conquest of Norway, Belgium and Holland gave Germany a great advantage in sea warfare by possession of submarine bases from Cape North to the Gironde River. It not only permitted Hitler to increase the range of his submarine fleet but diverted the great bulk of British merchant shipping from the east and to the west coast ports, thereby concentrating it in the comparatively narrow western approaches.

Ports on the west coast of Britain now handle the bulk of the large imports of food, raw materials and, more important still, planes, tanks and other munitions of war from the United States and Canada.

Easy Prey for U-Boats

A glance at a map will show that ships heading for the Clyde, the Bristol Channel or the Southwest Channel ports must pass within easy distance of Lough Swilly or Berehaven. This traffic moves along sea lanes, but however much zig-zagging a convoy may attempt it operates in a confined space and therefore. at this stage of their voyage, the ships are comparatively easy prey for the U-boats.

It is argued that if Berehaven and Lough Swilly could be used to refuel destroyer flotillas and seaplanes, these narrow belts of sea could be patrolled so intensively no submarine could operate in them.

During the first Great War, German submarines had to leave Kiel, Wilhelmshaven, Heligoland or some other German base and round the tip of Scotland before approaching the western sea approaches. It is also true these sea lanes were not as congested as they are today because Britain's east coast ports were in full use.

No Direct Approach

Now. however, the U-boats operate from Brest, Lorient or some other base along the German-occupied western coastline of Europe, cutting hundreds of miles off the journey to their hunting grounds. It makes it possible for small U-boats to be used. U-boats that could not be operated in the North Atlantic at all unless the Germans had these near-by bases.

As far as can be learned, no direct approach has been made to President De Valera but the government is under steady pressure to initiate negotiations. The big complication of course, is Eire's neutrality and the determination of its government and people to stay neutral. The whole question is bound up with the partition of Ireland and the refusal of Ulster to consider any proposal to unite with Eire.

PRE-DAWN ALARM

The London pre-dawn alert lasted half an hour. Two planes were heard high over the city but they veered off when anti-aircraft guns opened fire.

A few planes also were reported on what seemed to be reconnaissance flights over the midlands.

The Press Association observed that "it would be a big mistake" to "imagine anything more optimistic" than that bad weather held back the German Luftwaffe.

British bombers were reported last night to have attacked German positions along the coast of France; again concentrating on German long range gun positions in the vicinity of Cap Gris Nez.

There also was an artillery duel across the channel.

BLIND CIVILIANS

As soon as they left the hospitals they came to Long Meadow and under the tutelage of its owner, 75-year-old Capt. Sir Beachcroft Towse, blinded himself by a bullet in the Boer war, they began to learn again to walk, to eat and to dress.

Blinded children are sent to one of three "sunshine homes" to learn to live in darkness.

Almost brusque with outsiders, Sir Beachcroft is equally gentle with the pupils he leads about the spacious estate which he threw open at the start of the war for the express purpose of rehabilitating the blind.

Patiently he walks them about, casually tells them most of the furniture at Long Meadow has been made at his carpentry bench, demonstrates his skill with golf clubs on the estate's course, and relates with an Isaak Walton touch his success at trout fishing.

Thus he builds up the idea that blindness does not necessarily mean the end of a useful and pleasurable life.

All the men invariably want work. They are sent to industrial and commercial schools and, once trained, are assigned to work in a factory or office in company with other sightless employees.

Usually the women turn to stenography, or re-learn the household tasks they knew in brighter days.

The normal childish optimism helps in training the youngsters at the "Sunshine Homes."

There was a girl of five just out of the hospital who was being trained in manual dexterity. She laughed merrily when the teacher told her she had fit pieces of wood into correct spaces of a board.

If she fell while running about the garden she never whimpered and she seemed to enjoy being told about sunshine.

THAI CONSULATE ISSUES REPORT

Charges Flare-up on Border Was Started by Indo-Chinese

Singapore, Dec. 11 (AP)— The Thai (Siamese) Consulate charged today that a flare-up Monday in the Thailand-French Indo-China border fighting was started by the Indo-Chinese, who were alleged to have bombed and machine-gunned the Thai border towns of Lakhon and Penom.

The Thai report said one of the Indo-Chinese planes was shot down by a Thai pilot in an air battle. It added that on the same day colonial artillery fired 100 shells across the Mekong River, the boundary between Thailand and Indo-China, damaging residence districts in the Thai town of Ban-Muk-Dahan, whereupon Thai warplanes were sent across the river and bombed Indi-China batteries.

(The account of the fighting from Hanoi, French Indo-China town of Savannakhet, across the river from Ban-Muk-Dahan, and that Thai planes bombed and machine-gunned Vientiane, farther north on the Indo-Chinese side of the Mekong).

Tokyo, Dec. 11 (AP)—A Domei (Japanese News Agency) dispatch from Hanoi, French Indo-China, said today hostilities were intensifying along the border of French Indo-China and Thailand (Siam), with considerable aerial activity and artillery action.

French Indo-China authorities, Domei said, were reported willing to open negotiations for a peaceful settlement, but were determined to oppose any hostile action.

DUNCAN PRAISES

Canadians should realize that in this war, "unlike what took place in the last war or in any previous war," no large amount of money was being made by industrialists "or suppliers of any kind."

Generally speaking, the margins of profit on war orders were "reduced to an unprecedented low percentage"; and if by unforeseen circumstances some deals might prove more profitable than expected, excess profits taxes would return almost all the extra profits to the government.

BRITISH FARMERS URGED TO PRODUCE

Minister of Agriculture Speaks on British Food Situation

London, Dec. 11 —(CP)— R. S. Hudson, Minister of Agriculture, declared today that Britain's food situation is "just as grim" as it was during the difficult days of 1917.

He told a farmers' club in London that the Royal Navy's task of defeating the German counter-blockade of submarines and long distance bombers is "now doubly or trebly as difficult" as then.

Urging the farmers to increase home production, Mr. Hudson said "the situation today is just as grim as when Mr. Lloyd George (then prime minister) started his intensified food production campaign in 1917."

The government, he added, "is trying to adjust production so as to produce foodstuffs that will keep the people healthy as well as alive."

He said that farm labor would have to contribute to the steadily increasing demands of the armed services and that, apart from conscientious objectors sent to the farms, any additional labor would have to be female.

The same situation was debated in the House of Lords.

Convoy System

There Lord Strabolgi, Labor, declared that Britain's convoy system needed overhauling and Lord Templemore predicted "energetic measures" by the Navy and Air Force which, he asserted, would "counter effectively and defeat" the Nazi threat.

Lord Strabolgi declared that the situation was "serious" but not "desperate," owing to "a large accumulation of stores and because of heavy cargoes which have come through unscathed."

He said: "There is always danger in war of relying too much on methods which were successful in the last war." The present convoy system has been built on the 1917-18 model.

"We have been too timid and too slow in buying or chartering available neutral tonnage other than American," the Labor peer went on. "Chances have been lost again and again by the Ministry of Shipping.

Purchasing Commission

"There should be a Purchasing Commission in every country with mercantile marine, buying or chartering all available shipping. . . . There is need for much stricter rationing and tighter prohibition of all unnecessary imports."

SHIP IN HARBOR

Their strength and ferocity astounded and seemed to terrify the Italians, the dispatch said.

Valona, an ancient coastal town, is one of the principal ports of debarkation for the Italians and has been frequently raided by the R.A.F.

The leader of the R.A.F. bombing squadron said his flight swooped down from heavy clouds to find Italian planes guarding the city. The British planes dumped their bombs and roared back into the clouds before the Italians could strike. One British plane, he said, had a running fight with the Italians but came away safely.

Canadians May Have Helped

Several Canadians are among the R.A.F. personnel now in Greece, but names are not allowed and it cannot be said whether or not Canadians participated in the Valona raid. Australians and New Zealanders are also among the pilots.

Italian troops were reported still falling back steadily for a possible new stand on the heights around Chimara—almost halfway up the coast from Porto Edda to Valona.

The Greek spokesman said the Italians were withdrawing rapidly along the coast road and north of fallen Argirocastro and added that heavy blows also hastened the Italian retreat through the tangle of snow covered mountains between Pogradetz and Elbasani in mid-Albania.

Although exact Greek advance positions were not disclosed, they apparently were almost twice as deep into Albania at both flanks of the battlefront as the maximum Italian thrusts into Greece before the Fascist invasion forces were thrown into reverse.

"Strong enemy positions were occupied at bayonet point. The enemy suffered heavy losses. Three 100-millimetre guns have fallen into our hands."

The Greeks were said to have captured an Italian officer and a number of Alpine troopers in the drive toward Elbasani and found large quantities of abandoned war material at Delvino, wrested from the Italians between Porto Edda and Argirocastro.

Drifts of snow and a glaze of ice in the mountain passes and seas of slush and mud in the valleys continued to hamper operations in the northern sector.

IRELAND READY TO MEET ANY ENEMY THRUST

People of Ulster Scarcely Know the Sound of the Raid Siren

HOLD REHEARSALS

(By Sam Robertson)

Belfast, Dec. 11.—(CP)—Northern Ireland is only an overnight boat trip from England, or an hour by air, but as a haven of peace it might be 1,000 miles away from the rest of the United Kingdom.

Its picturesque coastline is patrolled by sea and by air. A strong military force under the able command of Lt.-Gen. Sir Henry Pownall is encamped among the hills and valleys that have inspired so many bards.

It is ready today to meet any enemy thrust and there is the bustle of battle-preparedness about the place. Yet it is like a dream of restfulness to the visitor from London whose ears have reverberated to so many air-raid alerts that an automobile grinding in second gears seems to be just another warning. That condition has come to be known as "second gear ear".

The people of Ulster scarcely know the sound of the raid siren. During the four days I spent touring the country's defences the siren wailed once; by mistake. There have been four brief alerts since the war started but no bomb has scarred Ulster's beauty.

They have periodic rehearsals to make certain sirens are in working order. On such occasions notice is given in the newspapers that a practice air raid warning will be sounded at such-and-such an hour. They did that in England, Scotland and Wales before Jerry-of-the-air started coming over in earnest. That seems a long time ago.

Doing Holiday Trade

There is rationing of butter and sugar and a few other foodstuffs. But it seems unreal to the visitor to find a full sugarbowl and heaped-up butter plate sitting invitingly before him.

For wartime Ulster is doing a good holiday trade, even though there are strict regulations about entering the county from across the Irish Sea or stepping across the border—not a border of bayonets but of political and religious differences—that separates Northern Ireland from neutral Eire.

There is no war tempo about the resort hotels and there is no half-measure about the way the guests' holiday. A chalked request on the morning call-board in one hotel read "Room 18: call at 10 a.m. Two brandies and soda".

One hears almost as much talk of the differences with Eire as about the life-and-death struggle against Germany and Italy. The refusal of President Eamon de Valera to lease to Britain the four naval bases Britain returned to Eire in 1937 caused deep bitterness in Ulster.

Differences Quite Wide

Discussing this and the knotty question of partition as a whole one high Protestant churchman, who spent much of his clerical life in Eire, told me:—

"North is north and south is south and never the twain shall meet in Ireland. The political, cultural and religious differences between the peoples are as wide as the Atlantic".

However, a young Ulsterman, a captain in the Royal Artillery, was less certain. He didn't believe union would come, not for many years, at any rate. But he added:—

"The bitterness our father knew has only been passed along to the present generation in a half measure. We have a greater understanding of each other's viewpoint and if this improvement continues for a few more generations a united Ireland perhaps could emerge".

GOV'T KEEPS

Disappearance during October was unusually high at 29,400,000 pounds, an increase of 20.4 per cent over October, 1939.

(A spokesman for the agricultural branch of the bureau attributed the increase to large military orders, apparently based on requirements of some months.)

During November 15,006,029 pounds of creamery butter was produced compared with 22,605,687 during October and 15,396,069 during November, 1939. The decrease in November occurred only in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario.

Cheese production during November was 5,959,608 pounds, compared with 5,136,546 pounds in the same month last year and 15,867,077 during October. Increases over last year occurred in all provinces.

Creamery butter prices at Montreal averaged 30 3-8 cents a pound for first grade during November, compared with 28 1-8 cents for November, 1939. Ontario colored cheese at Montreal averaged 14 cents, compared with 15 3-4 cents during the same month last year.

Exports of butter in November amounted to 146,800 pounds, compared with 144,800 pounds last month and 248,800 pounds in November, 1939. Cheese exports were 9,289,600 pounds, compared with 15,289,400 pounds last month and 18,822,400 pounds in November a year ago.

Duce Meets Defeat on Two Fronts

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—The disclosure that Britain's Army of the Nile was primed weeks ago to take the offensive against Italian invaders of Egypt throws a new light on the war in the Middle East.

It suggests that Mussolini ordered the attack on Greece in a desperate attempt to forestall a British offensive in Egypt. Apprehension that his army there might collapse may have prompted him to risk unfavorable weather conditions and ignore the indicated warnings of his own and German military experts.

Prime Minister Churchill has revealed now that the first effect of the outbreak of Italo-Greek hostilities was to delay the British counter-attack in Egypt. He told Parliament that planes were rushed across the Mediterranean to help the Greeks. The attack in Egypt was held up a month until these planes could be replaced.

Hints of Disaffection

It is not clear whether a full-fledged British offensive designed to destroy Italy's main army in Africa is under way or whether the attacks are designed merely to wear it down. It depends, Mr. Churchill indicated, on first results. Yet, even as he spoke, new reports of British victories, hinting at widespread disaffection in the Italian army in Egypt, were coming in from the front.

If the Italian invasion of Greece was intended to avert a British counter-attack in Egypt it means that Il Duce saw little hope of otherwise avoiding disaster there and took the risk. The plain fact is that Fascist submarines and air power had utterly failed in their prime war mission. They neither kept open Italian communications with the army in Egypt nor prevented the arrival of British reinforcements.

In the light of what is happening to his Italian Axis partner in Greece, Albania and Egypt, Hitler's "victory" pep-talk to Nazi munitions workers sounds somewhat ironical. He avoided any mention of Italy's military adventures, gave no hint that German arms would go to her aid.

Excuses For Nazi Failure

There were overtones in that Hitler speech tending to justify the British contention that it was a "defensive" effort. Just why it was necessary to speak at all to German war workers at this time is not clear. Hitler offered nothing new except excuses for Nazi failure to invade Britain on schedule.

By contrast, Mr. Churchill was almost simultaneously telling Parliament of initial British successes in Egypt. He was saying in effect that Britain has definitely turned the corner after nearly sixteen months of war and six months of lone-hand fighting for life to take the offensive on land as well as at sea.

It is still too early to measure the British attack in Egypt or its possible effect on Italian public morale if it is successful. British capture of 6,000 Italians in preliminary outpost actions around Sidi Barrani may be significant. The figures hint at wholesale surrenders and indicate that the fighting elan of Graziani's forces may be as low as that of the picked Italian Alpine troops in Greece and Albania.

PEOPLE SHAKEN UP

Toronto, Dec. 11 — (CP) —A Toronto street car was lifted off its trucks and canted over at an angle of 45 degrees early today when a truck loaded with five tons of bricks skidded on icy ruts and the projecting wheels went under the trolley and hoisted the body from its wheels.

No one was injured though six people on the street car were shaken up.

ASKED TO REGISTER

London, Dec. 11.—(CP)—Health Minister Malcolm Macdonald today appealed to "the many thousands" of Londoners who have not registered their children for withdrawal to safer areas to do so immediately.

"They should certainly not be put off doing so by the short succession of comparatively quiet nights in London", Mr. Macdonald said.

Winner of V. C. Called Bravest Man of the War

By DOUGLAS AMARON,

London, Dec. 11—(CP)—Flight-Lieutenant James Brindley Nicolson is a conscientious sort of chap who feels that four years' training in the Royal Air Force should qualify him for more than one German plane.

That's why, although his fingers are still stiff from the scars of burns and doctors still have him under observation, he wants to get back to flying.

Tall, with a shock of wavy hair that brought him "The Professor" as a nickname in his squadron, Nicolson has been called "the bravest man of the war." He has had only one air flight, shot down only one enemy plane, yet he is the R. A. F. Fighter Command's first Victoria Cross holder.

The official account tells why this handsome, 23-year-old Sussex boy's name was added to those of twelve other heroes of the second Great War who have been awarded the services' highest honor.

Ft.-Lt. Nicolson has gained his V.C. for refusing to jump from a blazing Hurricane until he had destroyed his enemy, although it was his first flight and he had been twice wounded, the account said. For forty - eight hours doctors fought for his life.

Ft.-Lt. Nicolson was on patrol over the Southampton area with his squadron on the early afternoon of Aug. 16. He saw three Junkers 88 bombers crossing the bows of the squadron about four miles away, and he was detailed to chase a Junkers with his squadron.

He got within a mile of them, and then saw a squadron of Spitfires attack and shoot them down, so he turned back to rejoin his squadron, climbing from 15,000 to 18,000 feet.

Suddenly, as he himself said, there were four big bangs inside his aircraft. They were cannon shells from a Messerschmitt 110.

One tore through the hood and sent splinters into his left eye. The second struck his spare petrol tank which exploded and set the machine on fire. The third crashed into the cockpit and tore away his trouser leg. The fourth hit his left foot and wounded his heel.

As Flight-Lieut. Nicolson turned to avoid further shots into his burning plane, he suddenly found the Messerschmitt had overtaken him and was right on his gun sight. His dashboard was shattered and was, in his own words, "dripping like treacle" with the heat. The Messerschmitt was 200 yards in front.

As Flight-Lieut. Nicolson pressed the gun button he could see his right thumb blistering in the heat. He could also see his left hand, which was holding the throttle open, blistering in the flames.

The Messerschmitt zig-zagged this way and that, trying to avoid the hail of fire from the blazing Hurricane. By this time the heat was so great that Nicolson had to put his feet on the seat beneath his parachute.

He continued the fight for several minutes until the Messerschmitt disappeared in a steep dive. Eye-witnesses later reported they had seen it crash a few miles out to sea.

The account went on to tell how Nicolson then and only then, after he had shot down his opponent, bailed out. Doctors gave him little chance for life during the next two days, but he showed he could fight from a hospital cot as well as in the air.

He has been gaining ground steadily and not long ago got special leave to visit his wife and son —born seven weeks after he was shot down. The doctors won't let him return to his squadron just yet, but he'll be there before long.

CHARGES DISMISSED

London, Ont., Dec. 11.—(CP) — Within two hours of their arrest Pte. Melvin Morano, 24, and Pte. T. G. Edwards, 26, of the Canadian Active Service force, were dismissed in court today on charges of assaulting Stanley Rance, barber. No evidence was offered by the Crown.

Rance complained to police he was beaten and robbed by two soldiers who drove him to an isolated section of East London.

CANADIAN TRADE MISSION IN BAHAMAS

BRITAIN'S AIR BOSS AND HIS BOYS

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Britain's secretary of state for air, is shown (light coat) chatting with some of the Australian flying officers who are on duty with the coastal command during his recent inspection. This department of the Royal Air Force has done gallant work in convoying shipping and locating and attacking enemy submarines.

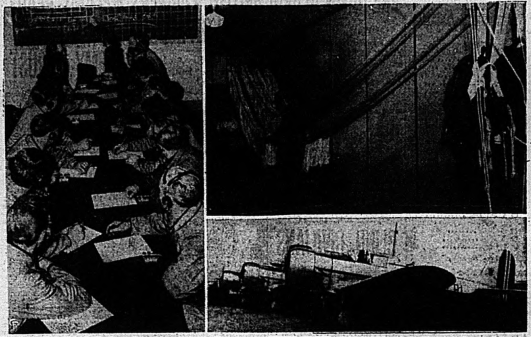
HELD BY GESTAPO

Shown here is Mrs. Elizabeth Deegan, clerk in the United States embassy at Paris, who has been arrested and is being held by Hitler's dreaded Gestapo. No charges have been made public against Mrs. Deegan, but it is thought that she was accused of assisting British officers to escape from occupied France. American officials are working for her release.

VICTIM OF EARTHQUAKE REMOVED FROM RUINS

A crushed and dying victim of Rumania's disastrous earthquake is shown being removed from ruins of Bucharest's swank "Carlton Place." Ninety-eight persons met their death when the 13-storey apartment building was tumbled down by the earthquake shock. Over 300 persons in all were killed throughout the Balkan country by the quakes of Nov. 9 and 10. Thousands of others were injured.

FAR FROM HOMELAND, NORWEGIAN FLIERS PREPARE TO MEET NAZI AIRMEN



Far from their homeland, these members of the Norwegian air force are shown as they undergo various phases of training at Toronto preparatory to taking to the skies against Nazi airmen. Radio operators of the R.N.A.F. are shown, LEFT, in one of their class rooms brushing up on their work. Parachutes are carefully tended, UPPER RIGHT, while a flight of training machines are shown, LOWER RIGHT, as they prepared to take off. Many of the men now training at Toronto fought against the Nazi invasion of their country and managed to escape after their country became overrun and made their way to England and Canada.

Born in an air raid shelter in London, this baby gives every indication of growing into a hardy Briton, thanks to the ministrations of the nurse who herself braved death to be present at the baby's debut.

Bombers over England do not halt the flight of the stork and new life comes into the war-torn world even while other life is going out before its time. This brings us to some of the unsung heroines of the Battle of Britain—the nurses from "Barts," famous London hospital, who bring their training as midwives to the aid of mothers in child-birth despite storms or fire and high explosives. The nurses use bicycles to answer calls. Sometimes the bicycles are more hindrance than help, as in the case shown here. The steel-helmeted nurse must carry the machine over spots where bombs have blasted the road.

It lacks many of the comforts of home, but this cubby hole beneath the stairs of their headquarters is about the safest place for these nurses to snatch a few hours rest. They are from "Barts" hospital, one of London's most famous mercy institutions.

Negotiating Alliance

According to a report from a Japanese news agency circulated in London, Sir Archibald Kerr, ABOVE, British ambassador to China, is negotiating a secret military pact with the Chinese government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. Under the terms of the alleged alliance, Britain would expedite war supplies to China and establish aircraft assembly plants in India, Burma and Singapore to produce warplanes for China.

Called from the United States court of appeals to be assistant secretary of war some months ago, Robert P. Patterson, ABOVE, will soon be elevated to the post of under-secretary of war, according to reports current in Washington. Judge Patterson was a major during the world war. He received the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action in 1918.

H.M.C.S. SAGUENAY SAVES CONVOY FROM SUB

Twenty-one seamen were lost and 18 injured when H.M.C.S. Saguenay under the command of Commander C. R. Miles, INSET, was struck by a torpedo after engaging in battle with a Nazi submarine. The Saguenay limped into port with her bow so far under water that the prow could not be seen from the forecastle. The Saguenay was escorting a convoy when she attacked the German U-boat. The convoy scattered and all reached port safely.

LORD LOTHIAN, AMBASSADOR TO U. S., DIES

GENERAL ITALIAN RETREAT DEVELOPING IN EGYPT

Sidi Barrani 'Victory of First Order'—Churchill

British Diplomat Had Won Esteem In All Circles

Received Title in 1916 and Succeeded Sir Ronald Lindsay As British Ambassador in August, 1939

Washington, Dec. 12. (AP)—The Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States, died early today from an uremic infection, the British Embassy said in a statement today. Death occurred at 3 a.m. E.D.T.

His Embassy made this annoucement on the decease of the man who had represented Britain's interests in the United States since four days before his country declared war on Germany:

"The British Embassy deeply regrets to have to announce that the Marquess of Lothian died early this morning.

"Lord Lothian was taken ill on Sunday night and although he continued to improve during Monday and Tuesday, he suffered a relapse last night.

"The cause of death was a uremic infection".

Death Comes as Shock

London, Dec. 12 —(CP)— The death of the Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States, came as a shock today to official circles.

The ambassador had the highest confidence of his superior colleagues as the very man needed at a critical time to build up Anglo-American relations.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Hail in winter! We do have occasionally thunderstorms in winter. Why then, it is asked, does not hail fall then, since its frozen nature is more indicative of winter than of summer? Hail forms only when there are strong updrafts needed to carry the hailstone up It falls when the draft becomes weak, and is then carried up by another. Strong vertical currents are common in summer due to the heated ground, a condition not met with in winter. Also, hail falls mostly in summer because the freezing level is not so high then as in middle and late summer. It is believed that if hail does form in midsummer, it melts before reaching the surface.

Hitler Will Attempt to Win With Great Blows But Will Go Down to Defeat

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 12.—(CP)—Britons know 1941 is going to be a "hard and dangerous year" but they are confident that with help from the United States "we can win, and win decisively, in 1942, if not before", was the belief of the Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to Washington. (Lord Lothian died Thursday morning in Washington.)

"It is for you to decide whether you share our hopes and what support you will give us in realizing them", Lord Lothian said in an address read to the American Farm Bureau Federation Wednesday night.

The Ambassador was confined to his room in Washington by a slight illness and was unable to come to Baltimore. The address was read by Neville Butler, Embassy Counsellor.

Dutch War Vessel Captures Nazi Merchantman

London, Dec. 12 (CP)—The Admiralty announced today that a Netherlands naval vessel, the Van Kinsbergen, had captured the 6,031-ton merchantman Rhein in West Indies waters yesterday.

A communique said:

"The Royal Netherlands ship Kinsbergen (Commander J. L. K. Howeke), yesterday intercepted the German steamship Rhein, 6,031 tons in West Indian waters.

"The crew of the Rhein set their ship on fire and attempted to scuttle her. This was frustrated by the prompt and gallant action of the boarding party from the Van Kinsbergen.

"This incident in the Western Atlantic illustrates the widespread and effective co-operation being rendered to the Royal Navy by the Royal Netherlands navy."

DIED FROM EXPOSURE

Sheet Harbor, N.S., Dec. 12 (CP)—Two Sober Island boys George Hubley, 20, and Maurice Munroe, 15, were found dead on another island near here yesterday. The boys, missing since last Tuesday, were believed to have died from exposure.

Canadian On Leave Proves Hero, Rescues Victims of Air Raid

Somewhere in England, Dec. 12.—(CP)—Twenty-year-old Pte. Jack Droye of Vancouver, is a modest lad who has turned out to be somewhat of a hero in the 2nd Canadian Division.

A few weeks ago he went to London on leave. There was plenty of bombing and he returned to camp without any unusual yarns.

Then a letter came to a senior officer of the division from the Red Cross, informing him of valuable service Droye rendered when he helped rescue survivors from a building shattred by Nazi air attacks on his first night in London.

The Red Cross was highly complimentary of the manner in which Droye worked with the rescue squads, showing great courage under trying conditions.

The youth didn't tell anyone about the exploit—not even Lieut. William Ferguson of Winnipeg, whose batman he is. And he does not want to talk about it much yet.

"Aw, let's not make a fuss about it; that sort of thing goes on in London every night", he said.

In Thrust Toward Premet Greeks Occupy Heights of Great Importance

Athens, Dec. 12 (AP)—Italian forces were reported today to have attempted counter-attacks at two points in the northern sector of the Albanian front, only to be driven back by the Greeks with heavy losses and lose the positions from which they attacked.

The Greeks were said to have captured a large number of prisoners and much war material.

Italian prisoners were quoted as saying that Royal Air Force and Greek attacks on the airdromes at Durazzo and Tirana, main port of entry into Albania and the capital, respectively, had been so effective that the Italians had abandoned the fields.

Eton College, Bristol Guildhall Recently Damaged

London, Dec. 12 —(CP Cable)—Parts of Eton college dating back to the 15th century, the Bristol Guildhall and the Assize Court and the Wembley Stadium Pitch used in the soccer cup finals have been damaged in recent air raids, it was disclosed today.

Some of the oldest parts of famous Eton—including the schoolyard and the headmaster's house—were damaged. Much valuable stained glass in the school chapel was blown out and shattered.

Class rooms built by Sir Christopher Wren were partly destroyed and the school offices below them were wrecked by a delayed action bomb. The school memorial to its dead in the first Great War also was damaged.

The Old Crown Court at Bristol Guildhall was destroyed.

No damage was caused to the huge Wembley Stadium though a small bomb penetrated one of the terraces. An oil bomb struck the Cup Final Pitch, which was subsequently re-turfed.

Royal Navy Harasses Italian Communications

London, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Admiralty announced today that the Royal Navy is "continually harassing Italian communications" in an effort to disorganize "the Italian retreat in North Africa."

The announcement said that British ships had "heavily bombarded the focal points of the Italian retreat at Salum near the Libya-Egypt frontier and Bardia on the Libyan coast."

Britain Seeks No Conquest Nor Gain Says Shipping Chief; Aim is Right of Men to Live Free

Every Strain Put on Enemy By Keeping From Him Raw Materials, Foodstuffs, Brings Him Nearer to 'Cracking Point'

MUSSOLINI 'DISCREDITED' IN ITALY

London, Dec. 12 (CP).—Britain's aim in the war is not conquest or gain, but establishment of the right of men to live in freedom, says Ronald H. Cross, Minister of Shipping.

This is the way Mr. Cross described the British aim in a broadcast last night to the United States:

"We seek no conquest, we seek no gain. Ours is a war of sacrifice. We shall end it poorer in wealth and mourning our dead. Our goal is to establish for ourselves and others the natural human right to live as free men."

He said that every strain put upon the enemy by keeping from him raw materials and foodstuffs brought him nearer to "the cracking point".

"The more we can deny the enemy, the shorter the war and the less our sacrifice of blood and treasure," he said. Food could be sent to people now under German rule "only at the cost of the lives of British men, women and children." The choice was between "their stomachs or our lives.

Lives of People Put First.

"We put the lives of our own people first," Mr. Cross added.

Discussing the Mediterranean situation, Mr. Cross said Mussolini had been "discredited" in the eyes of his people, and his position could be restored only by the success of Italian arms.

"No German help would vindicate him in the minds of the Italian people," he continued. "If there is one people the Italians hate, it is the German people."

BORDER WARFARE CARRIED DEEPER INTO THAILAND

Thai Willing to Withhold Further Attacks if Indo-China Will Do Likewise

WANT NEGOTIATIONS

Singapore, Dec. 12 —(CP)— A Thai (Siamese' communique issued in Bangkok today asserted that the Thai High Command was willing to withhold further attacks in the two-month-old border warfare with French Indo-China if the colonial authorities would agree to do likewise.

The communique also reiterated Thailand's readiness to define the frontier in accordance with international practice if Indo-China would send negotiators to Bangkok.

(A report from Hanoi today said communications had been re-established with Bangkok but did not state whether negotiations were in the offing. The border clashes started when negotiations over Thai territorial demands broke down.)

London, Dec. 12 (CP)—War Secretary Anthony Eden and Gen. Sir John Dill, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, sent the following message of congratulation today to Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, Commander in Chief, Middle East:

SHORT-OF-WAR AID QUESTION BEFORE THE PRESIDENT

Special Aid May Mean Eventual Help From U. S. Fleet to Convoy Ships to Britain

NAVY STRUNG OUT

Washington, Dec. 12 —(AP)— A British plea for assistance from the United States "on the seas" posed a major "aid-short-of-war" question today for President Roosevelt in the minds of some United States observers.

The need for such assistance to maintain supply lines to the British Isles was mentioned by the Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States, in a speech read for him last night before the American Farm Bureau Association in Baltimore.

Lord Lothian said in his speech: "With your help in airplanes, munitions, in ships and on the sea, and in the field of finance we are sure of victory."

Some thought they meant merchant shipping to replace British losses and a bid for more destroyers to follow the 50 the Royal Navy obtained in the September trade which leased the United States defence base sites on British possessions in the western hemisphere.

Others, however, regarded it as an overture for eventual help from the United States fleet, perhaps in convoying shipping or in some arrangement that would free British warships in the Pacific and elsewhere for service in European waters.

U.S. Has 159 Destroyers

The latest available figures show the United States now has 159 destroyers of which 75 are last war ships of the type traded Britain for naval bases. New destroyers, of which 166 were listed as under construction Nov. 1, are joining the fleet at the rate of one every 10 days.

There have been previous reports that Britain was seeking more destroyers.

Speculation that Lord Lothian's remarks might prelude a request for actual American naval vessels assistance sprang from two statements in his Baltimore address.

BIRMINGHAM AREA FOCUS OF ATTACK BY NAZI RAIDERS

Attack Described as Being on "a Fairly Heavy Scale"

RAIDERS KEEP HIGH

London Kept Under an Alert for Fourteen Hours but Little Damage Done

London, Dec. 12 (CP)—German air raiders stabbed twice at London today without penetrating the capital's defences after pounding the industrial Birmingham area and surrounding Midlands towns during the night with incendiary and explosive bombs.

London was under air raid alarm overnight for 14 hours.

Among buildings hit in the Birmingham area were six churches, 11 schools, two movie theatres, private homes and public shelters.

Considering the scale of the Midlands attacks, the casualties were not believed to have been heavy

Following the usual pattern, the first night raiders dropped incendiaries, which guided the second wave with its explosives. Many fires were started, but with the strenuous work of fire-fighters they were quickly extinguished or some brought under control.

Barrage Fire Very Heavy

The anti-aircraft barrage in the Birmingham area was heavier than ever before there since the start of the air siege.

There were numerous cases of residents pulled from under debris by rescue crews.

Two formations of aircraft attempted to penetrate London by way of the Thames Estuary, but they were turned back after a short battle with British fighters.

Fill U. S. Post Without Delay

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Dec. 12 (CP Cable)—The vitally important post of British Ambassador to the United States will be filled without the slightest delay, it was learned reliably today, following the death in Washington of the Marquess of Lothian.

An informed source described Lord Lothian's death as a "heavy blow." Word of his illness came in a telegram Tuesday saying he was confined to his room with slight food poisoning but it was not regarded seriously here.

The importance of Lord Lothian's post for cementing Anglo-American relations at this critical times makes immediate action upon his successor necessary "but who on earth will fill it, goodness knows," this source said.

It was added that it will be "some big gun, possibly a cabinet minister."

FENCE OF RESERVATION FOR PREMIER PETAIN

Berne, Switzerland, Dec. 12—(AP)—French officials in the Paris area, helped by German forces of occupation, are fencing off Versailles, the Forest of Versailles and the adjacent villages of Chesneye and Roquancourt as a "reservation" for Premier Philippe Petain and certain other officers of the Vichy Government.

R. A. F. Rains High Explosives On Power Station at Mannheim

London, Dec. 12.—(CP)— High explosives and incendiaries were dropped by the Royal Air Force on a power station at Mannheim, Germany, main objective of last night's raids, the Air Ministry News Service said today.

Fires broke out and were still raging when the last R.A.F. planes turned homeward. The inland Port of Mannheim, an important industrial town on the Rhine, was also bombed, as well as the railway and sidings on the river.

There were several fires which eventually caused heavy explosions.

Docks at Calais, Boulogne and Etaples were "badly knocked about" during the night, the service added.

British May Take 34,000 Prisoners In Present Drive

British Forces Bombing and Machine-Gunning Italians Withdrawing From Sidi Barrani Captured Wednesday

London, Dec. 12 —(CP)— The British forces have taken more than 20,000 Italian prisoners in the Battle of Egypt, the Ministry of Information said today in giving an estimate of the total number of troops captured since the offensive began in the western desert.

A Reuters news agency dispatch from Egypt said the latest Royal Air Force reconnaissance indicated a general Italian retreat was developing.

A communique from Cairo said British advance troops were "in contact with Italian forces which are continuing their retreat westward."

The British forces were bombing and machine-gunning the Italians as they fell back from Sidi Barrani, advance Italian invasion base in Egypt, which fell yesterday after a swift advance of British mechanized troops to the coast.

NEGRO CHAUFFEUR FURTHER GRILLED

Confesses to Thrice Assaulting Comely Greenwich Society Matron

Greenwich, Conn., Dec. 12 (AP)—A negro chauffeur-butler, who, Assistant Prosecutor Archibald H. Tunick said, confessed thrice assaulting a comely Greenwich society matron and later hurling her into a lonely reservoir, faced further grilling today after arraignment on a rape charge.

Tunick said that when the servant, Joseph Spell, 31, was presented in court and his bail set he would ask for a continuance to check all angles of the case, including one of possible kidnapping which brought Federal Bureau of Investigation agents into the investigation.

Detective Sergeant Martin H. Nee, after visiting Mrs. John K. Strubing, Jr., 32, in hospital, said she accused Spell of forcing her to write a $5,000 "ransom note" in addition to attacking her

Mrs. Strubing, Nee reported, related that Spell, threatening her with a knife, first attacked her in her bedroom after she emerged scantily clad from a shower bath.

After she was thrown into the reservoir, Nee said the woman told him, the butler stoned her until "I decided to float as if I were dead." She later struggled ashore, and was taken to hospital by a truck driver and policeman.

'DESERT MARCH BRILLIANT', SAYS PRIME MINISTER

FEAT OF ENDURANCE

London, Dec. 12 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill today told the House of Commons it would not be surprising if at least the best part of three Italian divisions were caught in the attack on Sidi Barrani.

Mr. Churchill said 7,000 Italian prisoners already had reached Matruh, British camp at the railhead of the line running to Alexandria.

"It would not be surprising," he continued amid cheers, "if numerous Blackshirt formations had been either destroyed or captured."

Mr. Churchill said that "while it is too early to measure the scale" of the operations in and around Sidi Barrani, Italian advance base in Egypt which fell yesterday, it was "clear they constitute a victory which, in this African theatre of war, is of the first order."

"The pursuit to the westward continues with the greatest vigor and the air force are bombing and the navy are shelling the principal road open to the retreating enemy" the Prime Minister said.

Mr. Churchill spoke of the "remarkable feat of endurance and daring" which accompanied the attack and of a "brilliantly executed desert march."

Officers Are Elected For Mission Circle Of Tabernacle Church

For their last meeting as a Mission Circle before changing to an Evening Auxiliary, the members of Tabernacle group assembled at the home of Mrs. H. Froats, 225 George Street, last evening, Mrs. Froats having originated the Mission Circle which has played a splendid part in the work of the church during the years of its existence.

Rachel Fox, president, was in the chair for the very interesting program which followed a Christmas Service. Various members of the Circle took part in the dialogue in which was beautifully told the story of the birth of the Saviour, and the work of the Missions throughout the world. Hymns in keeping with the theme and a solo by Mary Bronson was an interesting part of the service. The service was divided into three parts: A Circle of Homage Around the Christ Child, the World Circle of Homage Around Christ, and Our Circle of Dedication and Prayer.

Edith Stanton gave a reading from the Watch Tower telling of the work the missionaries are doing in China for the Red Cross and other agencies. Ethel Horton contributed as a piano solo a medley of Christmas airs. The nominating committee brought in the following report of officers for the new year, the slate being unanimously adopted:

Police Blotter

A case of canned goods was reported stolen out of a parked automobile at the rear of the A. & P. store off Campbell Street Wednesday afternoon. The motor car belonged to Mr. R. Walton, Toronto supervisor of the store behind, which he had parked his vehicle. Valuable papers were also taken from the vehicle, but were later found at the rear of the Bank of Commerce, where they had been abandoned by the thief.

Nine transients were given shelter at the police station last night. Upon entering two of the men, who gave their names as William Appolinsky and James Randolf, failed to produce their National Registration cards when asked for by Sergeant Arthur Booth. Today Chief Kidd questioned the men relative to their failure to have their Registration cards and after being given a satisfactory explanation the men were told to notify Ottawa of their predicament.

Frank Anstey, minister for health and repatriation in the Australian government from 1929 until 1931, is dead at the age of 75. He was well known as a newspaperman, author and politician.

Editor Prints Child's "Kiss For Teacher"

Request of Third Grader Startles Cynic, But He Complies in Page 1 Box

War and politics gave up some first page space in the Cameron (Mo.) Sun and metropolitan papers in the vicinity recently, all because of the love of a third grade boy, Lawrence Clark, for his teacher, Miss Anna Marie McGlauflin.

It all started when the Cameron Sun editor looked over his counter and saw the boy hanging on with both hands.

Questions Are Asked.

"Do you print here?" the youngster wanted to know.

"Print? Why, yes," replied the editor.

"Will you print something for me?" the boy asked.

"What is it you want printed?" insisted the editor, bending lower the better to hear his young caller.

"Will you print a kiss for my teacher?" said the boy.

"A what?" came back the editor, whose impregnable cynicism of years was being abruptly shaken up.

"Yes," went on the boy, "she's my teacher and I love her most of anything. And I want you to print a kiss for her."

After telling the editor the name of his teacher, the boy went away assured the mission would be fulfilled.

Kiss Made Official.

At the end the editor added, making the kiss official:

"And so, Miss McGlauflin, you have your printed kiss. And although the editor does not know and has never seen you, he raises a hat of tribute from an almost hairless head. He thinks you must be a fine teacher to have sparked such a flame of devotion in a little boy's heart. For it is his solemn opinion that only God could pay you a sweeter honor than that paid you by your little student who sends you his printed kiss."—Editor and Publisher.

WESTERN ONTARIO HOG BREEDERS REPLENISH HERDS AFTER EPIDEMIC

Ontario underwent the most serious outbreak of hog cholera in the western parts in years, a department of agriculture representative stated yesterday.

While Eastern and Central Ontario showed little signs of the ravages of the disease, Essex and Kent counties were the most seriously infected, although other areas were hard hit. Provided the disease is under control, hog-breeders associations are contemplating holding sales to give farmers whose stock was slaughtered this year, an opportunity to purchase good breeding boars and sows.

Farmers are warned, he said, against allowing their pigs to contact others on conditions where they are liable to come in touch with the disease virus. He stressed the importance of not feeding hogs bacon rind which mibht contain the virus, adding that it is not cold weather which halts the disease, but rather the additional care which swine receive when they are indoors.

ENTIRE CREW SAFE IN SEA COLLISION

Seven Members of Crew in the Forecastle Escape Through Gaping Hole in Hull

An East Coast Canadian Port, Dec. 12 (CP)—Survivors of a collision at sea, 38 seamen off a British vessel waited in this port today for new berths in the Merchant Marine as they shook off the effects of the crash that narrowly missed taking some of their lives.

Seven Canadians were among the crew, which escaped intact from the holed vessel and was picked up by the second craft in the collision. Five were Nova Scotians, and the others hailed from Montreal and Saskatchewan.

While the scene of the accident and its location remained veiled under wartime restrictions, the survivors related last night that it occurred in the early morning as the vessels travelled without lights. A ship of a neutral country was the vessel that thrust its bow into the Britisher's forecastle.

"She hit us on the starboard side, right where six other fellows and I were sleeping," recounted 20-year-old Arthur Sieniewicz of Halifax. "The first thing I knew was when the fellow in the bunk above crashed down on me."

Just Miss Being Killed

Unable to escape through the regular hatch as buckled plates blocked it, the seven in the forecastle were forced to climb through the gaping hole gashed open by the collision. They used the twisted steel of the hull as a ladder to safety, even while water poured through the gap.

"We just missed being killed by inches," a Shetland Islander in the crew said. "If any of us had been sleeping any closer to the starboard wall, we'd have got it for sure."

As the ship settled in the water, the seamen took to the boats. The man at the wheel, after the boats had been launched, coolly struck off six bells and joined his mates. They waited five hours for the colliding freighter to pick them up.

The second vessel was inbound from across the Atlantic. The British craft had been heading out. The eventual fate of the pierced vessel was not disclosed.

Militia Building Damaged by Fire

Ottawa, Dec. 12 (CP).—Fire early this morning seriously damaged a militia building on the northwest corner of Queen and O'Connor streets.

Stores of military equipment including rifles, clothing and accessories were believed to be a total loss.

Units affected were: First Corps troops, R.C.A.S.C.; Third Divisional Signals R.C.C.S.; 22nd Field Ambulance, R.C.A.M.C., and Ottawa Divisional Headquarters R.C.N.V.R.

While naval officers, ratings and the military were assisting the firemen to carry equipment from the building Pilot Officer James Walker, R.C.A.F., was overcome by smoke.

The fire started on the top storey of the three-storey building where a dance was held last night.

Presbyterian Young People Hold Inspiring Conference at St. Andrew's

In spite of the inclemency of the weather and the condition of the roads, which made travelling difficult, a very successful conference of the Presbyterian Young People of the Presbyteries of Kingston and Peterborough was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, on Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 7th and 8th.

Members registered on Saturday afternoon and conference opened with a song service. The ladies of the church catered, and served a most delicious banquet on Saturday night. The following members of the Provincial Executive were present. Mr. Dan Firth, President, Mrs. Helen Randall, Fellowship convener, Mr. Bill Bodden, Editor of the P.Y.P.S. Bulletin and the Front Line; Miss Mary McGeorge, Secretary; Miss Winnifred Allin, Recording Secretary; Mr. Frank Tester, song leader, and Mr. Gordon Hamill, Treasurer. Mr. Harold Kitney, St. Andrew's Church organist and choir leader, was pianist and organist.

The chairman at the banquet was Mr. Bill Bodden. Mr. Walker welcomed the delegates and visitors and read a letter of greetings and good wishes from the members of the executive of Peterborough Presbytery. Mr. Bob Kidd, President of Kingston West Presbytery, expressed his hope, that, in spite of the disappointment in attendance, all present would enjoy themselves, and would receive much benefit from the conference. Mr. Dan Firth also spoke at this time and expressed his pleasure at being back in Belleville again. A sing song was held, after which games were played with much enjoyment, under the capable leadership of Mrs. Helen Randall of Cobourg.

Communion was held Sunday morning at 9:45 and then the regular church service at 11.

The members of the conference convened again at 2.[illegible] Sunday afternoon for a song service and short worship service. Those present separated to enter into various discussion groups. Miss Mary Mc'George conducted the worship group. She stressed the necessity of planning meetings at least three months in advance.

The following are kinds of worship material, music, hymns, scripture, prayer, stories and meditations, poetry and pictures. All of those used should keep the theme of the service in the forefront.

The service group was under the guidance of Miss Winnifred Allin. Service consists mainly of missionary effort both at home and abroad. This year our mission givings are to be sent to help the missionaries in Manchuria. We are to study this part of China at our meetings. "Goforth in China" is the book recommended as worth while since Dr. Goforth established this mission field. Means were discussed whereby the missionary allocation of $4,000 for Ontario might be raised without interfering with our regular church offerings.

Mrs. Helen Randall very capably showed the Fellowship group how they might enjoy fellowship in thinking, friendship, worship, work and recreation. Christian fellowship should withstand all of these tests.

The discussion on Stewardship was led by Mr. Gordon Hamill. Here are some of the decisions arrived at:

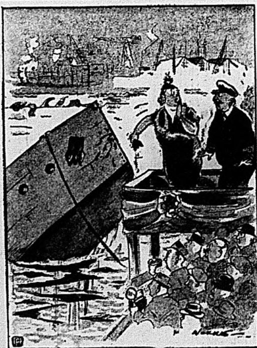
"Make deposits each week in the Bank of Heaven. The dividends are eternal." "The need of this hour is for a church that lovingly gives to God at least the first fruits of all time energy and money."

"To have is to owe! To give is to live! To love is to lift!"

The afternoon session closed with an open forum. The Bible readers, course was introduced to some who knew nothing about it. The pamphlets are sold each January to all wanting them. They contain daily scripture readings. At the end of April a Bible readers' contest is to be held in each society to encourage people to read their Bible.

A plea was made at this time for more subscriptions to the Front Line. This magazine is published by the P.Y.P.S. and contains many helps for each society. There is a news section, telling of activities throughout the province. Each issue contains Bible lessons and worship services.

The evening service began with a song service. Mr. Dan Firth conducted the worship service. Rev. Mr. Walker delivered the message. Special music was provided by St. Andrew's choir.



"Oh goodness me! I didn't mean to hit it that hard."

BENES FORESEES VICTORY

Germany has lost the war, says former President Benes of Czecho-Slovakia.

This great statesman and historian declares his belief that the war is in the second half where the Axis will begin to descend.

He puts Italy in the class of a liability now and to the end of the war.

He sees the certainty of British victory and he knows the naval and air potentials of the British Empire and the United States.

Benes and his people have seen tribulation. But men like the former president are proud to stand with Britain for they know that Britain's victory means the return of freedom to the distressed and conquered lands of Europe, when the storm of Hitler has passed.

And how proud the British have a right to be that through their fortitude and their steadfastness they are destined to be the rescuers of Europe from the jackals who would drag civilization back to the dimmest ages of the past.

Benes has had faith from the beginning. He knows that the moral law will triumph over the madness and greed of upstarts like Hitler and Mussolini.

SOMBRE PICTURE FOR NAZIS

The German people were given a sombre outlook as Hitler in his speech to workers at Berlin demanded of them work and patience. There was no promise of lightning war, Rather he warned that the war would be long for he said, "I know that whatever was done in three or four or five centuries a single person cannot move within two or three or five years." Here is an admission that the Fuehrer who heralded himself and was heralded by his associates as the man who would conquer Britain months ago, and the man who would blitzkrieg civilization in a short time, finds his path blocked.

Hitler knows by this time and he has doubtless believed it for some time that Britain will not enter into any negotiations or settlement with him or his Nazis and that it is a fight to the end. He had to give the Germans an idea of this as they entered a second winter of war and his lack of enthusiasm, his reiteration of the statement that Germany could defeat the world and his insistence upon need of patience and labor as the German weapon made it clear enough.

There was no ground for German enthusiasm in this address. He did not mention the "new order" which he initiated in Europe and the situation in the Balkans, he did not speak of Italy, perhaps naturally enough in view of the trend in that area of the war. He told the workers that Germany had to depend upon him and that he would set the time and he spoke of patience as a means of reducing the sacrifice to a minimum. Rarely if ever has Hitler spoken of saving men's lives. And he added that "we want no prestige successes and no prestige attacks." He may not have been thinking of Mussolini's difficulties and problems, and he may rather have been thinking that a prestige attack or a prestige success meant far too great danger for the Germans.

Oddly, he made a direct reference to the possibility of British invasion of Germany as if the thought had got into his mind and as if somehow the German workers had become aware that such had been referred to by leading Britons. He went back to the winning of the Maginot line saying it had been won in six weeks and he added, "We have added bases and batteries on the coast and no power on earth will throw us back." That was a typical Hitler boast but in the context it indicated that he har been thinking of the possibility of British invasion. Then he went on, "If England once gets a foothold on the Continent, she will again get to know us." It would be strange that Hitler should mention this if the news of the possibility had not penetrated Germany.

The fanatic who madly plunged the world into war now shows that the stern actualities and realities of the situation and the course of the war are causing him grave anxiety. This, actor as he is, he could not hide from the German people and the world.

THE MAIL CARRIER

A mail carrier is always a busy man, but at the Christmas season he is more than busy. As the holiday time nears his task will be heavier day by day.

Time was when the faithful carrier was not known in Belleville. That was when mail delivery to the homes and business establishments was non-existent. In those faraway days of thirty years ago, some one in every family had to go to the post office to secure the family's or neighbor's mail from the public wicket or from private boxes.

Then came the carrier. He has made life easier for the many thousands of Belleville folk. They have been spared the energy and the time it used to take to go to the post office and they have also been presented with a regular service which means earlier delivery of mail in general than was possible in the older days.

To achieve all this the carrier walks. The regular routes are not short. What with the walking on the street, crossing from one side of the road to another, walking over private walks to and from the houses and possibly up verandahs to reach the doors, the carrier walks many miles a day. perhaps a hundred miles or more a week and about 5,000 miles a year. That means that five years of this daily service would be the equivalent to walking once around the earth, a distance of nearly 25,000 miles every five years.

This is a full time job for the mail carriers—to see that Bellevillians have their mail delivered. What the service means is clear enough—to carry a heavy load of mail, to tread miles upon miles of streets, whether the walks be dry or wet, covered with snow or ice, to use the walks of private property to the front door and even up to verandahs, the steps of which are not always free of ice. Along street after street, this goes on through fine days or hot days, through wet days and through the stormy days of winter. The carrier dares the elements—his duty calls him to be on the job early, to be a good walker, to be accurate, to be courteous to the public. Day after day, week after week, month after month, and year after year this is his routine.

So this daily visitor is among the best known and the most popular of men and his uniform is a familiar sight on the streets.

The time of year is at hand when he will bring the most precious messages. But these bundles of pieces of mail mean so much work that the public does not see—in the post office, and by the carrier for no man follows the courier around day by day to know what his tour means in miles covered, in carrying the mail satchel. But the carrier and the inside staff know. Their work is accomplished daily.

World's Heaviest Bombings Making London Democratic

(Sunday Mercury)

It has taken the heaviest aerial bombardment in the world to make the Londoner really democratic; or perhaps it would be truer to say, that this ordeal has brought out those finer qualities of the English character.

For there is no denying that there is a spirit of friendliness in the capital never before shown on such a scale, and which has broken down every social barrier and class distinction.

Complete strangers now speak freely to one another in the buses, tubes and shops; and everyone exchanges air raid reminiscences. And such is the dramatic instinct of the Cockney, that you can be sure that his bomb was bigger than anyone else's!

Take my own experience. For five years I had lived in a flat in Chelsea, and beyond an occasional glance, had never taken the slightest notice of my neighbors, didn't even know their names.

But German bombs changed all that. Night after night, and sometimes seven times a day, we congregated, making tea, sharing meals and doing services for one another. We organized the night into watches, so that some could sleep, while others remained on guard; and took it in turns—when bombs had been falling in the neighborhood—to look for incendiaries.

When, eventually we were evacuated in three minutes owing to time bombs, we made arrangements to keep in touch with one another. In fact, I can say without exaggeration that I have made five true friends and that the friendship is based upon that surest of foundations—the sharing of a common danger.

When, within the space of several days, I was bombed out for the second time, and had nowhere to go and little money to go with, a complete stranger welcomed, not only me, but two of my friends, into her home in North-west London.

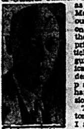
She refused to take any money and insisted that, as her children had been evacuated, she was only too glad to fill up the house. She put all her worldly goods at our disposal, including food and clothes, and told us to make ourselves completely at home.

Would that, I wonder, have happened in peace time?

Stewart Says—

Mexican Brickbats Hurled at Wallace Disturbing Factor

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Canadian Columnist



Chas. P. Stewart.

Washington— On the recent eve of General Camacho's inauguration as president of Mexico numerous newspapers on this side of the Rio Grande printed an article by a distinguished American columnist describing how particularly happy an occasion it was.

The Washington daily which I see most frequently published this article under the eight-column headline, "A New Era of Friendship Dawns in United States-Mexican Relations".

Underneath this eight-column streamer was a two-column bank, as newspapermen call it, to the following effect:

"Wallace's Presence at Camacho's Inauguration Strengthens Ties".

Streamer and bank aptly epitomized the article which followed them.

Turn we now to the front news page of the same issue of the same newspaper.

In star position upon this page appeared a spot story, by wire from Mexico City, telling of the shower of brickbats which greeted U.S. Vice President- elect Henry A. Wallace upon his arrival there. It was stated, too, that the missile hurlers fired their barrage to the accompaniment of yells of "Down with Wallace! Down with the United States! Down with Roosevelt! Down with Camacho!"

Of course, the columnist wrote his yarn some days in advance of the inauguration date. He jotted down what the affair was scheduled to be like. The spot reporter merely told what actually happened.

U.S. Seeks Unity

Now, it's well known that the Washington administration is doing its utmost to unify the western hemisphere, on general principles and especially in the light of the present world situation. It particularly seeks to unify North America —the United States, Canada and Mexico. That, largely, was why Henry Wallace was assigned to be on hand at the Camacho inauguration. He speaks middling good Spanish and Washington's impression was that the Mexicans would be flattered by his presence at the ceremony. Some of them were, I presume, but certainly not 100 per cent. of them.

To be sure, it wasn't Henry's fault that he was brickbatted. Contrariwise, he behaved extremely well in the circumstances—simply laughed off the brickbatting.

The fundamental difficulty was that, as President (now ex-president) Lazaro Cardens' term drew toward its close, two candidates aspired to succeed him—General Camacho and General Juan Andreu Almazan. Election having been held and the votes counted, it was announced that Camacho was the winner. The Almazanistas, however, insisted that the count was phony—that their man was the honest-to-goodness victor, if the ally had been on the level. Retiring President Cardenas was pro-Camacho and the Almazanistas charged that he had the score doctored.

It was like the U.S. row back in the 1870's between Rutherford B. Hayes and Samuel J. Tilden. That dispute was settled without any outside influence. Mexico's Almazanistas, though, assert that, this time, in their case, Washington did exert its influence in Camacho's behalf. I don't know whether it did or not, but that's the Almazanistas' story.

Almanzan Attitude

General Almazan rather belatedly announced, "Oh, well, let it go. I'd rather be film-flammed out of the presidency than start a civil war over the question".

But a lot of his followers remain on the rampage. And their contention that Washington had a finger in the pie is what led to the brick-batting of Henry Wallace and Josephus Daniels' U.S. embassy in Mexico City. Probably it would have been better if Henry hadn't gone there at all. The Almazanistas' account is that President Roosevelt sent him down just to gloat over 'em.

How strong the Almazan faction is we don't know yet, or how much trouble it's liable to make in the near future. Anyway, the brickbatting was an unfortunate incident. It didn't help the North American unification program a particle, and maybe it throws a crimp into the whole western hemispherical solidification scheme. The Mexico City inauguration itself went off quietly enough, but correspondents on the scene say it took 30,000 troops to keep it that way.

I don't refer to the brickbatting as a matter of news. That was broadcast while the dornicks still were flying. I'm only trying to bring out the contrast between the real event and that headline—"A New Era of Friendship Dawns in United States-Mexican Relations."

British Railways Take National Job— Bombs, Blackouts And Fires All In The Day's Work

The war has given Britain's railways and railwaymen a huge task, vital to the national effort. They are doing it magnificently.

Transport of troops, of war material, and of industrial freight makes enormous demands on lines, rolling-stock, manpower and organization. Plans have to be made, abandoned, changed and put into operation at almost no notice.

Railway working in many of its aspects is complicated by the blackout and other security measures.

Finally, enemy bombs not only make railway work a hazardous front-line duty, but they sometimes cause damage to lines that must be repaired as rapidly as possible, often under difficult and dangerous conditions.

Planning New Routes

Day and night operating staffs of the Main Line Railways and London Transport are ready to arrange emergency services by railway, road and river steamers to carry the public to and from their work and they usually have the emergency services working in a remarkably short time.

Railway engineering staffs who are always on the alert for instant action in the event of damage to lines, the speed with which the repair squads get to the scene after a bomb explodes, and the rapidity with which they complete the repairs, are almost incredible to people who do not know the meticulous organisation that lies behind the rush work.

Amongst the jobs which have to be tackled are these—putting out fires caused by bombing, clearing great quantities of debris from the lines; filling up bomb-craters and relaying the tracks; installing emergency signalling systems pending the repair of the permanent installations; repairing damaged electric cables; inspecting arches of bridges and tunnels, and overcoming the problem of unexploded bombs on the line.

Four bombs fell on a suburban line at 1.30 p.m. blocking three lines. By 3.15 p.m. two lines had been opened for traffic.

At a terminal station bombs killed the driver of a train and seriously injured two firemen, damaged the station roof and platforms, and put the signalling system out of operation. Regardless of this, the trains were still kept running.

Rapid Repairs

A complicated junction near a large station was bombed at 4.00 p.m., but before 6.30 p.m. the whole of the lines, points and signalling had been examined and repairs were made in time to cope with the bulk of the evening business traffic.

Bombs were dropped at midnight on a suburban station dealing with very heavy passenger traffic.

In less than two hours repairs had been carried out, a damaged empty train had been removed, and early morning passengers were passing through the station.

An incendiary bomb recently hit a suburban train, setting it on fire. The guard's log read: "Train fired by enemy bomb, fire extinguished en route, passengers behaved splendidly, little delay."

A dozen bombs dropped on a station in the eastern suburbs one evening. Platform walls were damaged, the track lifted and rails bent, and there were bomb craters in various places. A train ran into the debris, thereby blocking two of the four sets of metals through the station.

Less than twenty hours later the debris had been removed, the derailed train withdrawn, the platform walls and track repaired, the latter work requiring six new rails, and both lines were re-opened to traffic in time for the evening rush hour.

Business people who had seen the damage when travelling through the station over one of the undamaged sets of metals in the morning, were astonished to find on their return in the evening that their train passed over the place where the damage had occurred.

Work Despite Danger

One evening recently an unexploded bomb fell a short distance from a main-line signal box. Train services were temporarily suspended while military experts made an inspection. They were of the opinion that the bomb was of a type that could not be disposed of immediately.

But the railway didn't wait for the bomb to be taken away before restoring the service. Someone at once suggested that a screen of wagons placed on the up line would make possible single-line working on the down line. This was done: thirty high-sided wagons loaded with coal were shunted on to the up line.

Volunteers were then called for to work freight past the danger spot. The traffic and locomotive running staffs volunteered to a man. The crews of down trains from London showed the same spirit. They refused to leave their trains, although volunteer relief drivers were ready to take over the dangerous sector of the run.

As a result of the courage shown by these railwaymen, twenty-four important freight, newspaper and fish trains were worked past the danger spot before the bomb was removed, when ordinary train services were restored.—Gananoque Reporter.

HER BROKEN LEG MADE HER WINNER

Brisbane, Australia, Dec. 12 (CP) —When Amy Huggins, aged 22, a candidate in a beauty queen competition to raise funds for patriotic purposes, broke her leg, she decided not to abandon her campaign.

The leg was set in plaster and she charged people a shilling to autograph the cast. When it was covered with names she washed them off and began again. In this way she raised the equivalent of $30,000 and won the competition.

New Meaning For a Bit Of Old Slang

From the New York Herald Tribune

It was some weeks, or maybe months, ago that a London cable, referring casually to an air raid as "the flap" aroused the interest of those who believe that in the argot, no less than in the songs, of a people one can read more than in all the laws their legislatures may ever pass. A "flap" apparently was an air raid. But later indications suggested that a "flap" was any kind of hurly-burly or furore; and now there arrives a glossary of R.A.F. slang, supplied by the British Press Service, in which "flap" is defined as "A row, inquiry, excitement."

But turning up Partridge's Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English, published in 1938, before Herr Hitler had set out to civilize the Briton, one finds that the word has a far more ancient and honorable lineage than is encompassed within the present trouble.

"Flap" from the 16th to the 18th centuries, signified simply "a blow" as of the hand; from the 17th to the 20th centuries it also implied "a female of little repute"; for a time in the Victorian era it meant "sheet-lead used for roofing" (from the sound made by this material when loose and flapping in the wind), and in the late 19th and early 20th century it was a naval term, signifying "any evolution or movement of warships." It may have been from the navy that the R.A.F. picked it up; at all events, in the air force in 1915 it meant "an air raid."

These definitions are all prior to 1938. In 1915 it was an "air raid"; from that it came to mean any kind of excitement, commotion or bustle; this latter is now its exact meaning, but because an air raid involves excitement, commotion and bustle it is used today in relation to an air raid. Here is the splendid continuity, combined with the splendid flexibility, of the English language.

And, here, imbedded in language, are the qualities which make the English great. Continuity and the radical inextricably intertwined—they are here in this one phrase, which is why one should study language to know why Britain will survive all the "flaps" that Hitlerian dogmatism will bring against her.

NATION'S FORCES ARMY, NAVY, AIR WERE MULTIPLIED

Canada's Fighting Services and Partially Trained Reserves Total About 350,000 Men As 1940 Ends

Ottawa, Dec. 12 (CP).—Canada's active armed forces of the sea, land and air just about tripled in numbers during 1940, according to figures available early in December.

There are approximately 225,000 men in Canada's active fighting forces for land, sea and air in addition to 130,000 men in the non-permanent units and at training centres in the compulsory training scheme.

The sharpest gain was in the air force which multiplied more than four times while the army and navy each fell a little short of increasing their numbers to three times the figure at the start of the year.

The air force at the start of 1940 numbered 8,037 officers and airmen. In December, it numbered somewhere between 35,000 and 40,000, including airmen in training for the Royal Air Force in the schools of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

When Year Opened.

When the year opened the army, at home and overseas, then known as the Canadian Active Service Force, numbered 63,881. As the year ended it numbered approximately 175,000 including about 5,000 men on the staffs of the compulsory training centres.

In addition there is the reserve army with about 107,000 men in non-permanent units now in addition to 30,000 men in training centres. At the start of the year the reserve was known as the non-permanent active militia and figures are not available on its strength then.

The strength of the navy must be numbered in ships as well as in men. When the year opened it had 85 ships with 5,110 officers and men. As the year ends it has approximately 155 ships with 14,850 officers and men.

FITNESS PEP-UP FOR AUSTRALIA

Canberra, Dec. 12 (CP).—As the result of many rejections of men for the fighting services the Australian Commonwealth Council of National Fitness has recommended a Commonwealth bureau to co-operate physical education in Australia.

Realization of under-development and malnutrition in this country of fine climate and abundant opportunity for open-air life was one of the most remarkable developments in Australia since the outbreak of war.

State governments have already appointed expert directors of physical training and municipalities are to be asked to help by providing swimming pools and recreation areas.

MAY WAIT FOR BABY

London, Dec. 12 (CP).—The Ministry of National Service has announced a decision that postponement of liability for military services may be granted where the man's wife is an expectant mother in an enemy-bombed area.

War to Prove English "Can Take It" Better Than Any Other People

By RON G. SERCOMBE
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Dr. Ralph G. Hill reads the latest headlines.

Reading, Pa., Dec. 12—London can take it, as everybody knows by this time, and in the long run Britishers will prove that they can take it better than any other race on earth.

So says Dr. Ralph G. Hill, superintendent of Wernersville State Hospital, Berks County, and one of Pennsylvania's best known psychiatrists.

"The English," Dr. Hill explained, "are of a much purer stock than the American people. In the United States we have mixtures of every race, breed and temperament in the world. Some, who are emotionally unstable—and we have case histories right here in the Wernersville hospital which prove that some races are more emotionally unstable than others—would blow up under the strain of a blitzkrieg.

"This would cause confusion among others and I am afraid we would be in for some trying times if we suddenly were put under the pressure that England is now undergoing."

Have Adjusted Selves

The English people, added Dr. Hill have adjusted themselves marvellously to the present trying conditions and Hitler's attempts to destory their morale have proved futile and will continue to prove futile.

"Naturally," he explained, "they are undergoing a terrific emotional strain and their behaviour for some time after the emergency has passed will be marked by characteristics learned during the unusual times. Take, for example, the stories of English youngsters, evacuated to this country, who hide behind trash cans and run for cover when they hear the drone of an airplane engine.

"People have enormous capacities for adjustment and with a little training or practice, can learn to live in almost any kind of surroundings. The longer they remain in these situations, the more settled they become and the harder it is to change them.

"However, there is no question but that the blitzkreig will be reflected in individual personalities. The strain will bring out any weaknesses which might be present in the individual during normal life, but which never would have been revealed except under stress.

Neurotic Tendencies

"If the individual has neurotic tendencies which are evident in his work and play, even in normal life war may enlarge those trends and make a definite neurotic out of someone who heretofore was considered a perfectly normal person.

"War is a phenomenon of man and each man meets it in his own way."

Dr. Hill does not believe the people in London are going through the same trials that the soldiers of the last war did when they were informed they were to report to the front lines.

"True," he admitted, "in this war London is the front line. But man is a clannish animal and when he is surrounded by his fellow men he can put up with a great deal more than when he is alone. It is a lot different going through a bombing attack when you are penned in a bomb shelter with a lot of friends and neighbors than it is when you are squatting in a mud hole all by yourself.

Calmer in Groups

"Man absorbs courage from his neighbours' courage, and for this reason, he will be able to withstand the constant shock of bombing much better when he stands in a group. Usually a group will remain calm if only because each is afraid to let the other know he feels fear.

"The thing the English must fear most is loss of sleep, because too much loss of sleep may cause death. However, I believe that the men working long hours in factories, as they must to keep up wartime production, are so fatigued at the end of their labors that a bomb would have to explode very close to disturb them.

"Thus you have the two contrasts, and hard work may prove to be the equalizer for the continuous nervous barrage of bursting bombs. Good, hard, physical work never hurt anybody and in this particular instance, I would say it is a boon to the English.

During the last war, Dr. Hill served as a psychiatrist in U. S. military camps, helping to bolster the minds and spirits of men just before they embarked for France. At that time he made an exhaustive study of 'war neuroses."

SUN-GLASSES OUT FOR AUSTRALIANS

Military and Medical Leaders Say Not Needed Despite Scribes' Reports

Melbourne, Dec. 12 (CP).—Fighting efficiency of the Australian military forces in Egypt and Palestine would be greatly reduced by the use of sun-glasses, reported their commanding officer, Lt.-Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey. On the recommendation of the director-general of the medical services the general use of sun-glasses in the Australian Imperial Force will not be approved.

This decision by the authorities came as bit of a shock. For some time war correspondents with the fighting Australians have been telling of the pain suffered by the troops in the intense glare of the Egyptian desert. They advocated the issue of sun-glasses to all the troops going to the middle east.

In Australia itself the use of anti-glare dark glasses has increased enormously during the last few years and among the civilian population there was strong approval of the war correspondents' recommendation.

Lt.-Col. Blamey added it was necessary to accustom troops to desert glare without glasses. Sweat and dust, he said, would make glasses useless unless they were frequently removed and cleaned.

N. S. W. SUFFERS SERIOUS DROUGHT

Biggest Producing State In Australia Lacks Water For Livestock and Wheat

Sydney, N.S.W., Dec. 12 (CP).—The serious drought in Australia which until recently extended to every state except the little island of Tasmania has been broken by good rains in Victoria and Queensland. But in New South Wales, the largest producing state, conditions caused by the lack of rain are going from bad to worse and are reported to be the worst since the disastrous drought of 1902.

Wool growers are seriously concerned for the summer now approaching because water supplies are failing, sheep are dying at many places and many flocks are hand fed because of the lack of grass. The drought has caused failure of the wheat harvest in many districts with the result that the state's harvest will be less than half last year's.

MARKS UP GUESTS AFTER SCHOOLING

Teachers Find Old Country Children Very Happy and Adaptable

Toronto, Dec. 12 (CP).—A term of Canadian schooling has shown British war guests here to be well ahead of Canadian pupils in some subjects—behind in others.

They are poor mathematicians but excellent linguists; their oral English is "outstanding", according to Principal H. F. Gulston of Rosedale School. "I do not believe they are as vigorous physically as our children," Mr. Gulston said. "They seem more engrossed in mental pursuits. But on the whole it would be pretty hard for an observer to pick out the Britisher in our playground. The only real difference is in accent."

The children are happy. Co-education is new to most of them, and both boys and girls like it. Snow is "what we like most in Canada," one girl declared.

A nine-year-old was critical of his government. "We were given only 24 hours' sailing notice and I had no time to collect my skates, which I need very badly here. Don't you think the government should have given us more notice?"

"The teachers aren't as cranky here," was another youngster's contribution, as the relative merits of the British cane and the Canadian strap were being discussed. "We have to lean over and touch our toes, and our headmaster has three bamboo canes—a short one, a medium and a long one," he said graphically.

Disparity in the educations of Canadian and English children is overcome by the age of 10, teachers agreed. Thereafter they are on equal footing as "the British child slows down to our pace."

One teacher spoke of the Canadian pupils, commenting on their "remarkable sympathy and understanding in helping their young guests to adjust themselves."

LINGERIE GIFT IS COMPLIMENT

Writer Says There Are Some Things a Woman Never Buys For Herself.

By AMY PORTER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Probably every woman in the world cherishes a Cinderella dream of herself in a pretty boudoir, surrounded on all sides by satin and lace and fat perfume bottles. She sees herself wearing the frothiest lingerie, the most exquisite negligees.

But pretty lingerie usually is the last thing the well-budgeted woman will buy for herself. Her old bathrobe is still good enough.

You, in a Christmasy mood, can pay such a lady a nice compliment with a gift of dainty lingerie.

Pretty lingerie is offered in abundance this year, in spite of the fact that no more lace is imported from France. North American lace makers have been working overtime.

Lace is used in new ways. Sometimes it forms the entire front of a negligee, sometimes it forms the belt, sometimes it's pleated in a straight yoke across the bosom.

Any woman would love a lace-laden negligee, made of pastel satin, dark velvet, or flowy chiffon. Panty and bra sets aren't much favored except by very young girls, but a well-cut slip, or petticoat, day or evening length, is always a good gift. Long-sleeved nightgowns are popular, and so are plain satin gowns with something patriotic embroidered on the front.

Canada and U.S. Agree on Division Of New Air Lines

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—The United States and Canada entered into an agreement for a division of new air lines between the two countries.

By an exchange of notes, the two governments accepted recommendations of their aeronautical authorities resulting from a meeting at Ottawa last September.

The agreement calls for the continued operation of existing air lines between the two countries, and the following division of new routes:

New York to Toronto—Canada.
Buffalo to Toronto—United States.
Windsor, Ontario, to any points in United States—United States.
Detroit to any points in Canada—Canada.

Happy Marriage Comes as Result of Intelligent Partnership

You are thinking of marriage. You look forward to the chance to make your own home just as you wanted it, without the things that were so annoying at the family home, or in your bachelor or spinster apartment. And it may be so, for the first rapturous weeks.

But then old habits will assert themselves. Your family, your old friends—not so bad after all, they had their points. You will think then of those days as if they were golden, and you will have forgotten the annoyances or your boredom with the old habits. These now will have a halo about them.

The trouble with lovers is that they think that when they have each other, all their ills will be at an end, that they will pass from rosy dawns through wonderful days to enchanting sunsets—bewitching interludes and unimaginable dreams unmarred by nightmares!

Though the world is full of wrecks of other people's loves, fancies, plans and hopes, most people believe their love will be perfect. Youth is inclined toward the idea that the burial grounds of romance are not for them, that their love is immortal.

When you once start carrying out your resolve to get the best out of marriage, try it first by giving up something. Don't give up by setting a trap and watching your mate fall into it, having baited it with a "sacrifice". Be prepared, each of you, to give more than you take.

We do live in more crowded quarters nowadays. Many of us can't recall the ancient spacious life when everybody had a room to himself and we weren't in each other's way at almost every step. You women, remember that your being home all day doesn't mean that friend husband is a stranger when he comes home; remember that he is not to be treated as a nuisance.

And husbands, when you get home, try to recall that good cheer is a part of the business of life. If your wife is looking particularly pretty, tell her so if she looks tired suggest some amusement such as a ride in the country, or a good show, even if you had been thinking on the way home of relaxing in your easy chair with your newspaper and pipe. These little attentions mean everything to women, and make them happy and contented.

One particularly good way of pleasing a husband, if his mother is living, is to make her welcome whenever she visits you, in such a pleasant generous way that, your husband feels that his wife and his mother are the two finest women in the world.

This may often mean a real sacrifice on the part of the wife, who may secretly think her husband's mother is tiresome and old-fashioned, but if she can overcome this feeling and win the good lady's trust and affection, it will be well worth while.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

WEDDING PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am planning to be married this month, on a Sunday evening. The wedding is to take place in a hall.

1. I intend to have a maid of honor, possibly a matron of honor, and six ushers. Will you please tell me the correct order of their entrance? What music is appropriately played at that time?

2. When does the bridal waltz usually take place?

3. Where is the wedding cake placed? What about boxes for the guests in which pieces of the cake are put? Who cuts the cake first?

4. If gifts are received before the wedding, may I acknowledge them on my own note paper, mentioning, of course, my future husband's gratitude also? For instance, "I can't begin to tell you how thrilled Tom and I are at your sterling silver compotes."

If gifts are received after the wedding, must I acknowledge them on note paper that has both our names on it?

Bride-to-be.

1. First in the procession comes the six ushers, walking together, two by two, the shortest leading. If you decide to have bridesmaids, they come next, walking together, two by two, the shortest leading. Next comes the maid of honor, walking alone.

If you decide to have both a maid of honor and a matron of honor, they may be dressed alike and walk together, or they may be dressed in dresses of the same type but of harmonizing colors, and walk together. If they do not walk together, the one chosen to walk just before you and your father is the one who is nearer to you in relationship or friendship.

An equal distance (four paces) should be counted between the units in the procession, but a double distance (eight paces) should be counted before you and your father enter. You enter on your father's right arm.

At the first notes of the wedding march (traditionally this is the "Wedding March" from Lohengrin"), the procession starts up the aisle. These notes are also the cue for the minister to enter (from an entrance in the front of the hall), followed by the bridegroom and his best man.

2. If there is a bride's table (with the bride, groom, and their attendants at this table), very often the general dancing begins before the bridal party is ready to join the dancing. When this group does join the dancing, the bride and groom dance at first together, and the bride dances next with the best man, and the groom with the maid of honor.

3. The bride's cake (the white cake with white decorations) is usually in the centre of the bride's table. At the dessert course, it is placed before the bride, who cuts the first slice and shares it with her husband. She may or may not cut the rest of the cake; this depends on the number of guests.

The wedding cake is the dark fruit cake. It is the usual custom to have small pieces of this cake in individual boxes. These boxes are made of white moire or grosgrain paper, embossed in silver with the last initial of the bride combined with that of the groom, and tied with narrow satin ribbon. At a sit-down meal, a box is put at each place at the table. Or, if you prefer, the little boxes may be put on a table near the door, so that the guests may each take one as they leave. It is not necessary to have these boxes of wedding cake.

4. Yes, that is just exactly what you should do—acknowledge each wedding present with a note of thanks that includes also the appreciation of your fiance.

For gifts that are received after the wedding, write your notes on plain white letter-paper or paper bearing your own monogram (the initials of your first name, your maiden surname, and your married surname). This paper never has the names or initials of both husband and wife.

The Pellagra Vitamin

There is a vitamin that for some time was confused with Vitamin B1. It was referred also to as Vitamin 2, then as Vitamin 9, and sometimes as Vitamin G. It is less confusing to remember it as the Pellagra vitamin because it appears to be the lack of it that produces the disease that has taken such a terrible toll of lives amongst the poorer people.

Experts have estimated that about a quarter of a million people are affected yearly by pellagra and that of these at least 4,000 die of it.

It is characterized by skin eruptions and severe diarrhoea. Sometimes the bowels are almost completely destroyed, and the victim is quite apt to become insane before death comes.

The Rockerfeller Institute of New York became interested in the disease some years ago and spent a great deal of time and study tracking down its cause. They found that like beri beri, it was caused by a dietary deficiency. They discovered that the people amongst whom the disease had its greatest hold lived during the winter on a diet composed of salt pork, corn meal and molasses. They found too, that people who drank milk and ate vegetables were spared the ravages of pellagra.

For the most part dietary deficiency that brought on the disease was caused by low wage levels and inadequate relief. But it was also established that many cases occurred among persons who could afford better food but were either ignorant of what constituted a proper diet or had arbitrary peculiarities in diet.

There is very little excuse for people suffering from pellagra, or for them going without sufficient of the vitamin for general good health, because it is found in fresh meats, especially liver, in eggs, in fruit, in fresh vegetables. Fortunately heating the food doesn't seem to destroy the vitamin value. However, it is soluble in water, which is another reason for not throwing away the water in which you cook a vegetable.

Another fact about the vitamin is that it isn't stored in the body we must have a steady, regular supply of it in our diet.

It is well to remember that although you or your family may not be suffering from pellagra, you may not be getting enough of the vitamin. When this happens, the person is a likely subject for digestive disturbances, nervous disorders, lack of muscular tone, unhealthy skin conditions.

Fashion Flashes

STAYAT-HOME girls have a chance to console themselves by wearing charming new black afternoon frocks. A black crepe shirtwaist frock has its tucked plastron sprinkled with black and white star-shaped sequins. Worn with a white silk jersey turban.

It's snow white hats about town. A useful and attractive little brimmed hat is of white felt with long red pheasant feathers held by green belting ribbon.

Date for dinner calls for a smart black and white costume. Black crepe makes a smart skirt, draped at the hipline and slit to the knee in front. The white crepe bodice has a deep square neckline and wide tucks. Short sleeves.

Down the aisle at the theatre comes a handsome full-length evening cape of white woollen with a deep yoke embroidered in red, green, gold, brown and blue beads and copper thread in a Persian design.

Even if it's warm down South, furs appear at evening events. Made for Palm Beach is a graceful cape of white ermine with narrow alternating bands of black velvet. The cape is lined with black velvet.

Wide Selection New Items Solves Many Gift Problems

Christmas-giving becomes more fun and less of a chore each succeeding new Yuletide season. Time was, when a man was hard put to decide what to give a woman—any woman! It didn't matter whether she was a casual acquaintance who merited some charming Christmas bauble, or whether it represented all a man's woman folk who made up his kith and kin. It all came under the head of nerve-wracking PROBLEM! The great beauty houses have solved it all, as gaily and competelly and efficiently as man demanded. Not even the tiniest problem remains. For example: for the gift that must not smack of the "personal" and which must still be exciting enough to thrill a most critical and uppity secretary, the beauty houses have prepared an array of toilet waters, sachets, bath sets and cosmetics so temptingly packaged that a simple bottle of eau de cologne takes on the aspect of the most longed-for luxury. In fact every item, from soaps to sachets, from lipsticks to lotions, has donned a gala holiday dress, at once so lovely and so highly individual that charm, not price, determines the desirability of the gift. And so great is the variety that any large cosmetic house offers, that you may go right down your list and say, "Why that looks like Mary, and that like Jane, and so on down to the end of your list," without switching from one brand name to another. What's more, there's something about the Spirit of Christmas-giving itself, that every little gift assumes a special fascination—whether it's a long-denied package of bath salts for the little file clerk, or a luxury bottle of perfume for the most glamorous lady in the world.

We'll give you fair proof that a single cosmetic house can answer all your female gift problems. The following items described, all come from a very famous and distinguished American beauty house. Four of their favorite eau de colognes in charming scroll bottles with colorful labels, nestle in a sparkling dark blue metallic Christmas tree. Christmasy, glittery and a happy thought—and most inexpensive to boot. The set contains South American, Old-fashioned, Pink Bouquet, Jamin and Rose Geranium odeurs.

Another gift packaged dreamed up by this same well known creator of feminine beauty is one sure to carry off the heart of any girl. A box styled like an old-fashioned picture frame makes the set really a picture to behold for any person who loves the unusual. Sachet and Toilet water nestle within each frame. The fragrance is called "Elation" and elating it is. It's an exciting perfume that appeals particularly on wintry evenings.

Little Gifts Of Leather Give Lasting Pleasure

Without a doubt, leather gifts are top favorites for Christmas-giving. This year our American designers and craftsmen have created many new and unusual leather gift items that are sure to please. All are smart, practical and good looking, all are lastingly useful . . . reason enough why they're welcome gifts for both men and women alike.

Just think of all the leather gifts there are! To mention a few, stunning wallets, key cases, albums, cigarette cases and boxes, compacts, desk sets, leather memo pads. Many of the latter, in fact all of them, are available in genuine leather as well as rich simulated leather, so that if you prefer to give an inexpensive leather gift, you can very easily.

Remember too that these leatherette gifts are shown in pigskin, calf, morocco leather, pinseal, alligator and many other types of leather, all looking amazingly like real leather. For the gadabouts and travellers on your list, how about these leather gifts? Leather jewel cases, beauty boxes, leather clock cases complete with clock?

Some Suggestions For Unusual Gifts

Want a few unusual suggestions to help you purchase those difficult last-minute Christmas gifts? Voila:

(1) A little garden of cut flowers—for a lady who loves a novel centrepiece to start talk at the table.

(2) Even people-who-have-everything welcome jelly you've made yourself. Dress up the jars with gay seal-sprinkled wrapping.

(3) A cheese connoisseur will bless you for a tawny crock of full-flavored cheese and a cheese board bearing a choice of crackers.

(7) Is she bride, grandmother or in between? A waffle baker with controlled heat; or nested pottery bowls that come in lovely muted colors.

(8) A punctilious housekeeper? A portable towel stand to supplement rods for bath or guest room. Or a set of really luxurious towels.

Hollywood Hair-Do's Reflect Pan-American Influence, Says Jacques

HOLLYWOOD HAIR DO .. .oFni"

Jacques, New York hair stylist, sees the Pan-American influence reflected in the newest hair styles. In the charming arrangement mentioned, he has achieved the "senorita" effect for a brunette. The hair is parted in the back, very close to the centre, with soft large curls marching up on either side of the head, to bring the softness near the face. In the front, he has made an artificial widow's peak, and added large soft side pompadours. In accordance with the latest fashion height to the coiffure by making flashes, he has covered the ears.

This coiffure is further enhanced by pearl drops. These pearls are attached to both hair and bobbie pins and can be inserted wherever they can best add to the allure of your hair-do.

HISTORY OF LOCKS TOLD BY MEMBER

Fred Lewis, Kiwanis Club Member, Gives Interesting Talk on Locks as a Protection for Property

An "off the record" account of the trip to Kingston by some members of the Kiwanis Club on Monday night was given at the regular luncheon of the Club at the Queens Hotel on Tuesday, but it was left to Jim Barclay, the incoming president of the Club to tell the members that the trip was really worthwhile and those that made the journey had an hour or two of real fellowship with the Kingston members, who were celebrating Farmers' Night. Senator Duncan Marshall was the principal speaker and Mr. Barclay said it was an address worth travelling 100 miles to hear.

A new member, Gordon Barclay, pharmacist at the Belleville General Hospital, was introduced to the Club by Dr. Sam Cronk and was initiated by Cliff Baragar. The new member was then introduced to every member of the Club and by his genial personality there is no doubt he will be a fine addition to the organization. Gordon has made many friends since coming to the city.

Due to the sudden calling to Toronto on business, Capt. Rev. W. J. Province, Padre at the Trenton Airport, was unable to be present and Fred Lewis acceptably took his place and gave a most interesting talk on "locks". He was introduced by James Barclay and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Ormonde Butler, who stated that the Club is blessed with a wealth of excellent speaking material and that Fred only upheld the tradition of the Club. Mr. Lewis stated that locks are only a protection and this protection began in a cave when the dwellers rolled boulders up to the entrance to keep out strangers and wild animals. This method advanced to the tree dweller, who invented a ladder to gain access to his abode and then pulled the ladder up. "This was his protection," said the speaker. The speaker showed that drawbridges and moats were also used for protection and then told of the inventor of the common known lock visiting Egypt and witnessing the method used in closing and opening the pyramid. "From this visit the pin tumble lock was invented," said Mr. Lewis.

He told his audience that any lock invented by man could be picked and he explained the various locks now in use, especially stressing the Master Key. "The lever type lock is the hardest to pick," the speaker declared.

Cornwall City Council Grants $1,000 to Assist Children in Britain

Cornwall, Ont., Dec. 12 (CP)—Cornwall City Council has decided to make a grant of $1,000 to assist children in bombed areas of Britain and the money will be sent during the Christmas season if approval for the grant is obtained in time from the Provincial Resources Committee.

Christmas greetings will be cabled to British children from the citizens and children of Cornwall at the same time.

Mayor J. A. Phillips expressed belief every citizen of Cornwall would approve the grant.

"Members of Council feel our citizens are able to afford this money, which will go to a worthy cause," he said. "Our financial standing allows us to make this grant and we wish we could grant more. I don't think there is a citizen who will point his finger at Council for spending the money in this way."

Point Traverse Struck by Worst Storm in Years

Point Traverse, Dec. 12.—Struck by one of the worst storms in years, this comunity is just beginning to recover from one of the earliest blizzards on record. Caught unaware by the earliness of the winter's storm, commercial fishing operations were at a temporary standstill for several days, and fishermen braved frigid temperatures and high seas to retrieve their gear from the icy waters.

Seven Days Late

So bad was the condition of the roads piled high with great drifts after an absence of one week the mail got through with much difficulty. To complete his journey the courier took his large supply by auto, sleigh and afoot.

96 Hours After

Ninety-six hours after Monday, Dec. 2nd, election returns for the South Marysburg reeveship was known; two fishermen brought word in to this district that Gerard Kavanagh was re-elected to that office.

Fishing Operations Cease

Commercial fishing operations have ceased at the fishing colony. Fishing craft broke five inches of ice at the harbor to gain access to open water to retrieve their nets, returning to their wharfs with ice sheathed hulls and frozen gear.

Owing to blocked roads, a shipment of fish was taken to Port Milford by the L. Joyce, owned by Lobb Bros., then by sleigh to South Bay via truck to Milford.

The fishing craft, Ormond K., Main Duck Island, with a shipment of fish aboard, was damaged by ice at South Bay and had to be repaired before returning to the Ducks.

The Ormond K. will be laid up at Point Traverse after returning from a trip to Cape Vincent.

Delayed Eight Days

On their way from the Bay of Quinte to West Point by boat, commercial fishermen Ken. Hyatt and Albert Cooper were forced to take shelter here. Storm-bound for eight days, Mr. Hyatt arrived home on Monday.

Sought Shelter

A British American oil tanker, carrying full cargo, sought shelter off Timber Island for many hours out of a blinding snow storm and great seas.

Food Shortage

Many residents at the fishing colony almost experienced a near depletion of food and fuel, and rationing of some eats were necessary. For eight days the tiny colony was isolated from the outside world.

Remain at Lights

Lighthouse keepers of the Duck Islands remain at their posts and it is expected they will not be relieved from their stations until late this month. Some grain carriers are due at lake ports yet, and it will be some time yet before the Canadian lighthouse ship Grenville arrives from the head of the lake to "pick them up."

The upper lake grain carrier Donnacona passed by here enroute to Kingston with a large cargo of grain. An east bound freighter was also sighted today.

Another Sharp Rise Shown in Butter; Top-Grade Eggs Ease

Toronto, Dec. 12—Butter took a sharp rise in price on Toronto's produce market yesterday on the strength of the bullish storage stock figures released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Top-grade eggs lost 2 cents in the graded section.

Offerings of butter were very light. Sales of first-grade Ontario creamery solids ranged in price from 33 1-2c early in the day to 33 3-4c at noon and to 34c at the close of trading. At the close there were scarely any offerings.

Churning cream prices gained 1c.

On the egg market, receipts were well in excess of demand, and trading was quiet. A-large eggs declined to a range of 30c to 31c in the graded section and to a range of 35c to 36c in wholesale-to-retail trading. No graded sales of Grade B eggs were reported all day.

SHORT-OF-WAR-AID

"strung out terribly thin," the Ambassador predicted even greater German submarine and sea-raider attacks on British shipping in the coming months.

If Lord Lothian had outright naval assistance in mind, the suggestion brought no immediate advocates in congressional ranks. The private consensus was that any such move would arouse a protest.

If more limited help at sea was what he meant, it found support, in principle, from Senator Warren Austin (Rep-Vermont), acting Republican leader.

Austin told newsmen he believed the United States should grant credits to Britain and revise the neutrality act so that American ships could carry cargoes to Britain.

"We should aid Great Britain in every way possible without endangering our western hemisphere defence," he said.

BRITISH MAY TAKE

In all between 28,000 and 34,000 prisoners are expected to be taken.

Divisional Commanders Captured

The Italian force bottled up by British troops which cut through west of Sidi Barrani to the Mediterranean coast consists of two divisions with a minimum of 14,000 and a maximum of 17,000 men each. Two divisional commanders and the corps commander have been captured in Sidi Barrani, along with "large stocks of war materials."

The Admiralty announced that the Royal Navy is "continually harassing Italian communications" in an effort to "disorganize the Italian retreat in North Africa.'

The Italian corps commander reported captured in the Sidi Barrani zone was identified by military sources as Lt.-Gen. Sebastiano Gallina and the divisional commanders as Maj.-Gen. Amando Pescatore and Maj.-Gen. Mazzari.

Three Sudden Attacks

These sources said the British success had been accomplished by three sudden attacks: a smash along the coastline at the Italian left flank, a heavy blow at Maktila, in the centre, and a thrust at the right flank which swept around northward to the coast at Buqbuq.

A large part of the prisoners taken were in Sidi Barrani, where the Italians had been building reserves of war material since they occupied the town Sept. 18th. Italians crossed the Libyan-Egyptian frontier just three months ago today.

Close collaboration between the army, navy and Royal Air Force was a "marked feature" of the "entirely successful" operations, military circles said, but they gave no hint as to whether the offensive would be pushed further, into Libya.

They said capture of two divisions could not be described as the capture of a corps because it was not known whether a Libyan corps was made up of two or three divisions.

SEEK METHOD OF DEALING WITH NIGHT RAIDERS

British Experts Confident Plan Will be Devised to Make Them as Vulnerable as Day Raiders

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 12 (CP)—Scientific research technicians, employed by the Air Ministry, are working on "several promising methods" of dealing with German night bombers but "there is no immediate panacea" for the dark-to-dawn sky raider.

Air experts here are confident a satisfactory method of detecting and destroying high-flying night bombers will be developed that will render them just as vulnerable as daylight mass raids. But they emphasize this will take time, not only to develop the necessary instruments but to get them into production.

The difficulty is to devise an instrument for the cockpit of a fighter plane that will not only locate the bomber but will guide the pilot to his prey. British bomber pilots have told many stories of passing close to German fighter planes in raids over Germany but not being seen, even in bright moonlight.

Present Means

Searchlights assist the fighter planes but in recent operations German bombers have been flying 18,000 to 22,000 feet, far above the effective ceiling for ground lights.

Anti-aircraft guns, particularly in the inner zone of London, are proving to be extremely effective in driving the bombers so high that accurate bombing is impossible and turning back a considerable proportion, particularly crews that don't like to take too many risks. They drop their bombs in the suburbs and in the country-side.

The sound locater, the instrument that detects the bomber and plots its course, is being improved all the time. The result is that anti-aircraft fire is improving and, in the words of a qualified source, "will keep on getting better."

Build Temporary Fields

Fascist engineers were said to be building temporary fields. Bad weather has curtailed air activity of both sides in the past two days.

A pilot of a reconnaissance plane reported that damage at Valona, a secondary port of entry into Albania, had rendered use of the harbor impracticable for large vessels. Piers and jetties were said to have been turned into masses of splintered wood and rubble.

Greek forces advancing up the Albanian coast from Porto Edda toward the heights of Chimara, 20 miles north, are meeting scant resistance, a Greek spokesman said.

"The Italian retreat on the extreme left toward the heights of Chimara is continuing," the spokesman declared, "and not even the rear guard offered any serious resistance to our troops. More to the north Italians showed resistance which was very stubborn but our troops were not held up."

At one point in the northern sector, the spokesman said, "picked Italian units" counter-attacked in an effort to recapture important heights but the attack was repelled with heavy loss to the Fascists.

Thrust Continues

"In the region of Premet and north of Premet the thrust toward interior Albania continued and Greek troops succeeded in occupying heights of very great strategic importance," he added.

"More to the north, the enemy was thrown back from very strong positions 1,800 metres (about 6,000 feet) high, which the enemy defended seriously. So great was the importance of this height that the Italians tried a counter-attack with choice troops but they were repelled with serious losses."

He said the offensive was continuing despite snow and rain in Albania.

The Greek High Command said only that the advance was continuing despite "fierce reactions of the enemy" and added that "prisoners and booty have fallen into our hands."

(Police in Bitolj, Yugoslavia, ordered all non - resident newspaper correspondents covering the Italian - Greek conflict from the Yugoslav border to leave the district today. They explained the order was a measure to protect Yugoslav neutrality.)

BORDER WARFARE

A Thai consulate official here reported that the Thai air force had bombed Vientiane, capital of Laos state, 280 miles southwest of Hanoi, Tuesday, as well as "many other Indo-China airports with most satisfactory results," while Thai artillery shelled the border town of Thakhek, 265 miles southwest of Hanoi.

The reports said the attacks were reprisals for an Indo-Chinese raid on a Thai border town in which two were killed and eight wounded. One Thai plane was reported missing after the series of raids.

Border Warfare Increased

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Dec. 12 —(AP)— French Indo-China planes were reported today to have carried border warfare a considerable distance into Thailand (Siam) with two raids on Thai airports.

Night raiders dropped three tons of bombs on Undorn airfield and on Sakonlakon airport, about 35 miles west of the Thailand border town of Lakhon, leaving fires burning, it was said.

The High Command of the Indo-Chinese air force said the attacks were successful.

BIRMINGHAM AREA

The Air Ministry disclosed the first case of a victory scored by a British fighter plane newly-equipped with cannon. The R.A.F. pilot reported he shelled a Messerschmitt 109 and saw it explode into bits "like a bursting anti-aircraft shell."

"There was a quick flash—a cloud of smoke and bits were flying through the air," he said. "The stuff was simply dripping out of the sky."

Four Enemy Craft Downed

In the Birmingham assault, some casualties were suffered when an auxiliary fire service station was hit and when the staff of an air raids precautions depot were buried under the debris resulting from a direct bomb-hit. All were rescued alive. A war reserve policeman was killed in another section.

In another Midlands town, a husband, wife and son were killed when a bomb struck their home.

The German daylight thrusts at London were short-lived. Thamesside batteries blasted at the first formation, which few too high to be seen by ordinary reserves. The volume of the engine drone, however, indicated that it was large.

The second formation was heard flying up the Estuary a few minutes later. Then followed the noise of two separate air battles. They lasted only a short time and the raiders were repulsed.

When a lone German Messerschmitt made a hit-and-run attack this morning on a southeast coast town, machine-gunning and dropping one bomb which missed and fell into the sea, a number of other raiders crossed the coast at great height.

Authoritative sources said that one of the German night raiders had been shot down.

The invaders who had been quiet for two nights smashed at the midlands' town with loads of high explosives and incendiary bombs, sending warplanes over one-a-minute for a time, then tapering off to occasional sorties of individual planes the rest of the night.

Number of Fires Caused

A communique described the attack as being on "a fairly heavy scale" and said "a number of fires were caused, all of which were quickly brought under control and most of them extinguished."

Terrific anti-aircraft fire kept the raiders high, but a bus was reported hit, a number of homes destroyed and casualties caused, some fatal. There were several reports of persons trapped in wreckage.

The raid on London, which opened around 6 p.m., ended with the longest period of quiet—two days and two nights—which the capital has enjoyed since the air siege began last August. Bad weather over German bases across the channel was believed to have grounded the raiders.

BRITISH DIPLOMAT

Commissioner Pays Tribute

Ottawa, Dec. 12—(CP)—Sir Gerald Campbell, High Commissioner for the United Kingdom, today paid tribute to Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States who died in Washington.

"I feel a personal loss in the passing of one who has given me his friendship over many years," said Sir Gerald. "But the death of Lord Lothian is far more than that—it is a national loss suffered at a time when men of his directness, sincerity and energy are badly needed.

"His name can assuredly be inscribed on the casualty list of this war for he has not spared himself ever since the war broke out, and only recently he flew to Great Britain and back expressly to see for himself what the position is and thus be a better interpreter to our friends in the United States."

J. P. Moffat, the United States Minister to Canada said: "I was shocked to learn of Lord Lothian's death in Washington. I had known him as a friend for many years. In the course of his service as British ambassador to the United States he had won the admiration and confidence of all who dealt with him."

Official quarters said quite frankly that the death had created a severe gap in diplomatic ranks.

There was no immediate mention of a possible successor.

Lord Lothian, 58, had been indisposed several days. He cancelled an appearance last night before the American Farm Bureau Federation in Baltimore and the speech he had prepared for delivery before the Federation was read for him.

In the Baltimore speech Lord Lothian reiterated a stand he had taken with increasing seriousness in recent weeks—that England would triumph in the war if given American aid.

The six-foot envoy, who succeeded Sir Ronald Lindsay as British ambassador here, had won a high place in the esteem of members of the diplomatic set.

As early as 1916 he took an important place in British affairs. In that year he became secretary to Prime Minister Lloyd George. He was credited with having written many sections of the Versailles Treaty.

He received his title in 1930 on the death of a cousin. Besides being the Marquess of Lothian, he is Lord Newbattle, Earl of Lothian, Baron Jedburgh, Earl of Ancrum, Baron Kerr of Nisbet, Baron Long-Newton and Dolphingston, Viscount of Brien, Baron Kerr of Newbattle and Baron Ker.

Lord Lothian was a Christian scientist and had written much about that faith.

When he arrived here in August 1939 it was his 15th journey to the United States. As secretary of the Rhodes Trust, he had visited 44 of the states and prided himself on knowing something about American public opinion.

Once Believed in Hitler

Lord Lothian once believed that Hitler was "earnestly" desirous of peace, and he advocated an Anglo-German pact. He even suggested that Germany's colonies be restored to her. Then came Munich and Hitler's seizure, first of the Sudetenland, and then of all of Czecoslovakia. From that time on, Lothian was convinced that the only way to deal with Hitler and Mussolini was through superior power.

Lord Lothian returned only recently from a visit in London and started public discussion of financial aid to Great Britain by declaring that country's finances were running low.

BRITAIN SEEKS

Germany had to feed the people in countries she had occupied "because it suits the German book that they should be fed, but it would suit Germany far better that somebody else should undertake the task and leave Germany with a greater margin of foodstuffs for her own use.

"And the greater the margin of foodstuffs at Germany's disposal, the longer she can carry on the war."

He said if there is want in territories occupied by Germany, Britain would like to relieve it—"providing we can be sure that the food we send is eaten by the victims of the German eagle.

"But you cannot feed some of the people under German rule without adding to the total German food supply. The more vegetable fats the Reich had, the more she would be able to spare for high explosives."

Mr. Cross suggested the lack of food in Nazi-conquered regions might lead to uprisings against the Germans, since "highly civilized people don't just wait until they're so starved that they haven't the strength to make trouble, and Germany can't . . . stand over them all."

1941 DANGEROUS

The Ambassador's forecast Hitler would "make another attempt next year—the earlier rather than later—to beat down our resistance by new methods and still greater violence", but declared "with your help in airplanes, munitions, in ships and on the sea, and in the field of finance now being discussed between your treasury and ours, we are sure of victory—sure that the gangster menace to human freedom, the greatest the world has ever seen, will go down to the oblivion it deserves".

Of the future, Lord Lothian declared that "nothing could be further from the truth" than the legend that democracy is disappearing from Britain and that she will come out of the war a Fascist or Communist state. "The British are not going to change their essential character", he said. "It has shown itself in his war. They will move forward, of course, with the times, but without revolutionary violence".

Co-Operation Necessary

"But the more people think about the future the more they are drawn to the conclusion that all real hope depends upon some form of co-operation between the United States and the British Commonwealth of Nations," he added. "Even if we win a total victory there will be no chance of immediately erecting an effective new League of Nations. There will be nothing in Europe out of which to make it . . .

"The only nucleus round which a stable and peaceful and democratic world can be built after this war is if the United States and Great Britain possess between them more airplanes and ships of war and the key positions of world power . . . than any possible totalitarian rival. Then and then only will political and industrial freedom be secure. . ."

Discussing at length the changes that have taken place since he last spoke in the United States nearly five months ago, Lord Lothian recalled the "gloomy prophesies in circulation about us" and noted there were "hardly less gloomy speculations about the future of the United States."

"Those June and July days were indeed gloomy days for us and for you. That was the period of Hitler's triumph—when he went to the Invalides to commune with an earlier conqueror of Europe, to the Eiffel Tower to survey his new Empire and to Boulogne, where once before a grand army had been assembled for the conquest of Britain.

Have Won Second War Phase.

"But that grim picture has been dispelled, at any rate for the present, by the action of the people of a small island in the North Sea, nobly and valiantly aided by the young nations of the British family across the seas. . . . And finally has come to the gradual petering out of the much heralded invasion of Britain. . . . Thus if Hitler won the first round of the great battle which began in Norway in April, we have won the second. For without the conquest of Britain Hitler cannot win the war."

But, the ambassador hastened to add, the war "is not yet won". Hitler "certainly is going to renew the attack on Britain with all his might this winter and spring. Everything else is for him a side show." For if Hitler can destroy Britain "he and his friends will have won the basis of world domination."

"But this time he is going to concentrate on the sea . . ."

Britons, the ambassador declared, are not in the least dismayed." They are confident, first, for spiritual reasons—"the core of Hitlerism is moral rottenness"—and on the side of armaments also "we have great and growing assets". Munitions and airplane production is steadily rising despite bombings. The number of divisions and of pilots also is steadily going up. Lord Lothian added:

"What is more important, the young nations of the commonwealth, Canada, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, are fast getting into their stride. The number of their divisions is increasing. You will soon hear of their prowess on more than one front, as you have heard of the New Zealand Achilles in the Graf Spee battle and the Australian Sydney in the Mediterranean.

"The Canadian training scheme is rapidly coming into output. You will be staggered at what will come out of Canada shortly in the shape of trained pilots and men. And Canada produced perhaps the best airmen in our forces in the Great War.

Growing Power Mobilized

Australia and New Zealand are producing pilots also in great numbers. South Africa is actively engaged both in the air and on land in Abyssinia, Kenya and in the Sudan. Indian troops and Munitions are now coming into the battle fronts, and ever increasing resources are coming from the colonies and territories.

"The whole of this growing aggregation of power is now being mobilized. Its first task is to defend that great ring of defensive positions which lie around you, Britain itself, Gibraltar, Cape Town, Egypt and the Suez Canal, Singapore, Australia and New Zealand.

"Our second task is to enable us to deliver increasingly formidable blows at Germany itself, at her allies, one of whom is already beginning to crack, and to bring assistance to the subjugated peoples now once more beginning to show signs of a resistance to Hitler's will".

EASTERN PORTS BOOM WITH WAR THROUGH 1940

Maritime Cities Alive With Comings and Goings of Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, and Their Families

By JOHN LeBLANC

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, Dec. 12 (CP).—War's demands have called forth an unprecedented expansion of Canada's Atlantic ports.

Cities and towns along the seaboard bulging with populations augmented by the military and seafaring men, are humming with activity. Business is bustling, and industry is swinging along under the impetus of orders brought them by the war.

Harbors where the comings and goings of a comparative handful of merchantmen and fishing vessels formed the bulk of the pre-war business now are geared to a new tempo. Halifax and Saint John always were major ports, but they too, are operating now at a new pace.

Both have gone through their greatest periods in many years. "And this winter is going to eclipse them all," predicts one Saint John port official.

But the business is not only afloat. The men of the convoys, who handle the seaborne commerce of the empire; the thousands of navy men guarding the convoys and the shore, and the other thousands of the army and air force, are bringing a new era to business in the ports.

They throng the streets of Halifax, Saint John and Sydney without letup, and, on a smaller scale, those of other waterside towns. Their dollars clink out a welcome symphony in the cash registers of merchants, theatres, restaurants and other businesses, and in the pockets of the landlords.

Population Problems.

Just about every available lodging in some areas has been taken up. In Halifax alone, city officials estimate the population has jumped about 30,000 to 100,000. The city, always afflicted with a housing shortage, doesn't know how it is going to jam in any more. On a lesser scale, it's the same story elsewhere.

An indication of the flood of added population pouring through the cities is seen in Halifax where more than 80,000 persons have slept in the Y.M.C.A. hostel in the last year. Twenty-six thousand entered the main Y.M.C.A. building in a single month—the population of a fair-sized city.

The working man is getting on the boom, too, as employment rises. Thousands are at work on war construction projects, with the result that direct relief has been cut everywhere. "In some municipalities, the number on the rolls has fallen so low it has been discontinued altogether.

One of the industries to enjoy a revival is shipbuilding, which had fallen to a low ebb after the lush days of the last century. Now, in Nova Scotia alone, 64 vessels were on the ways at the last count; 34 had been completed.

Through the ports of the Maritimes go much of Britain's sinews of war. From the United States and elsewhere the ships come with their vital cargoes, assemble in convoy and head out into the Atlantic by the hundreds.

Others tie up to load materials pouring to the dockside from all parts of Canada. Miles of freight cars stretch back from the docks, waiting their turn to be unloaded and their freights start overseas. Stevedores handling the cargoes are making up for the lean years.

CANADA ASSUMED WIDER DEFENCES AS YEAR PASSED

Review of Military Progress During 1940 Shows Nation's Ramparts Extended Over Land, Sea and Air

By FRANK FLAHERTY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 12 (CP).—Home defence forces on sea, on land and in the air were enlarged, strengthened and reorganized during 1940.

While the forces operating on the sea and in the skies above and around the British Isles remained Canada's first line of defence in fact and theory, home defence measures were taken against raids or invasions on Canadian soil.

Towards the end of the year these measures were the subject of consultations with the United States which is jointly interested with Canada in the defence of North America against attack from overseas.

The German spring offensive, first on Denmark and Norway and finally on Belgium, Holland and France gave a new urgency to North American defence and Canada stepped forward to share with the United Kingdom in the defence of certain outposts of this continent.

Canadian troops were sent to Iceland to aid in garrisoning that island against a possible enemy attempt to use it for the further encirclement of Britain or as a stepping stone to America. Canada alone assumed responsibility for the defence of Newfoundland and certain islands of the West Indies.

At sea the Royal Canadian navy set up a control system at key ports and maintained coastal patrols, as well as assiting the Royal Navy in the organization and escort of convoys leaving Canadian shores.

New Commands.

During the summer an Atlantic command was organized to look after the military defence of the Maritime Provinces, Eastern Quebec and the approaches to the St. Lawrence and to co-operate with authorities of the navy and the air force in the area.

Maj.-Gen. W. H. P. Elkins, former master-general of the ordnance was made commanding officer and the 3rd division was assigned to the area. Preparations were made for the concentration of the division at Delbert, N.S., and Sussex, N.B.

Fortress and coastal garrison artillery units along the east coast kept a constant watch for attacks which never came, while perfecting themselves in their training.

Creation of a Pacific command followed the formal adherence of Japan to the German-Italian axis. Maj.-Gen. R. O. Alexander was placed in charge and given control of defence forces in Alberta and British Columbia. Defence Minister Ralston said it was the intention to assign the 4th Division which was mobilized early in the summer to the Pacific area and preparations were made for concentration of troops at suitable points on the west coast.

While the prime concern of the Royal Canadian Air Force was the training of men for overseas under the British Commonwealth Air Training plan the junior service participated actively in measures for home defence.

The home war establishment of the air force was divided into Atlantic and Pacific commands. The squadrons assigned to the Atlantic area maintained constant patrols along the coast and far out to sea on the watch for enemy submarines or raiders.

The work of the coastal defence squadrons in Canada was hard and went largely unnoticed. Long flights over stormy seas, long weeks and months spent at lonely air stations on the Pacific coast, far from towns and entertainment were the lot of the pilots and other air personnel assigned to ward off attack.

Christmas Customs In Foreign Lands

Strange as it may seem, in many parts of Europe, Santa Claus does not bring gifts to the children nor do they always receive them on Christmas Day.

According to legend in Spain, it is the Three Wise Men who bring presents to the children. On the Eve of Epiphany (also called Little Christmas) the shoes of the children are put on the balconies and windows, and the following morning they find their gifts awaiting them.

Christmas in France is a day just for the children; they receive their gifts then, but their elders celebrate New Year's Day, the first of January, by the exchange of presents.

Russia had a very strange superstition, Santa Claus appearing as a devil with horns and a tail. He switches the children with twigs if they have not been on their best behaviour, and leaves behind him a small picture for each, one of himself and the other devils, as a gift.

Early in December, when the holiday season begins in Hungary, the children receive a visit from St. Nicholas (or Santa Claus) who brings them candy. They are very good after his visit and begin writing letters asking the angels for the presents they want, as the children believe their Christmas gifts are from the Holy Child, brought to them by the angels.

The children of Norway believe that it is the Christmas Gnome which brings them gifts at Christmas. An old legend has it that these gnomes make their homes underground, and that they will bring bad luck to anyone who is unkind to them. In the barns, a bowl of porridge with a butter "eye" in the middle of it is left by the children for the gnomes as a Christmas present.

Old women in Syria, on the Eve of Epiphany, Twelth Night, have the superstition that if they have great faith their stores will be increased, so they descend to their cellars and shake their jars of oil and wine.

Bohemian girls believe that if on Christmas Eve they put a bowl of water outdoors to freeze, a pattern on the ice will reveal the occupation of their husbands-to-be.

In the Netherlands, the superstition is that whatever is planted on Christmas Eve will not die, even if the seed is sown when there is snow on the ground.

One custom, very popular nowadays, is the Christmas tree. According to tradition, it had its origin in Germany as early as 1605. Egypt, so another tradition tells us, also lays claim to that distinction, long before the Christmas era. The belief is that the palm tree, every month bears a branch. A spray of this tree, having twelve shoots on it, is used in Egypt at the time of the winter solstice.

It was not until 1840, however, that the Christmas tree came into general use, although we hear of it first in England about 1729. The story is that on Christmas Eve the apple tree produces fruit and only a few generations ago apples were fastened to the Christmas tree. Even in our day, among the ornaments hanging on the tree are apples made of glass.

Some interesting legends tell us that the use of holly originates from pagan days, also that witches hated holly. At one time, a mischievous goblin is supposed to have paid a visit to a maiden who had not decorated her bed with holly. Another legend has it that holly is symbolical of the Crown of Thorns worn by Christ, because of blood-red berries and thorns.

The mistletoe dates from the time of the Druids who believed that the plant had miraculous powers because of its immortality. It received from them the name of "All Heal", and it was dedicated to the Scandinavian Goddess of Love, Friga. Probably from this comes the custom of kissing under the mistletoe; sometimes a branch of holly was used.

New Versions Of Popular Gifts Have Eye Appeal

Flash! Color comes to men's wear gifts! Gone are the days for drab, uninspiring gifts for men. Gone are the days that made shopping for men's gifts a problem. Your men's wear reporter has just completed a personal tour of all the local men's shops and department stores and believes every shopper in town can complete their Christmas shopping for men at one fell swoop by making the same tour. So complete are the assortments and so colorful are the individual gifts that your problem is going to be one of wanting to buy more gifts than names you have on your list.

Sportswear.

The sports hue and cry for fall is in full swing, and according to leading New York men's stylists, the brighter and l[illegible] the hues, the better for your [illegible]s attire, whether for active participation or for bystanding. Knickers are the new note in golfing clothes, worn with pullover sleeveless sweaters and soft shirts. Sweaters in natural camel hair color blend in best with all your sports clothes, and this year's crop have many new innovations in stitching: the cable, chain and drop stitches all making interesting new patterns.

Wide and narrow striped woollens in two and three color combinations make the best sport jackets. Optional in this category, are the plain and belted backs, side or centre rear vents, and the shirred yoke shoulders. The cut of the jacket is purely a personal matter, some men preferring, for example, the belted back for sports wear, others the plain cut back.

With these jackets are worn contrasting solid color sports trousers with pleats at the waist. Slate grey, tan and sand brown are good basic colors which will blend easily with almost all colored jackets. For a nonchalant air, the open collar and loosely knotted kerchief are ideal. The kerchief can pick up the strongest colors in the jacket to tie in with the rest of the outfit.

One of the recent arrivals from the Hollywood scene is the "loafer jacket," for week-end lolling around the house. It's cut roomy and full and comes in a wide assortment of loud plaids and checks.

Hand-knitted socks are coming back for a big season. They're being worn in bright colored stripes and checks, to match the pattern in the jacket. Leather belts and sports accessories are returning to wide use and add interesting touches to the outfit as a whole.

Hats appear this year in a greater variety of sport types than ever before. Some of the most popular finishes for country wear are the tweed an drough finishel felts.

SAVINGS FOR DEFENCE

Bolton, England, Dec. 12 (CP).—An analysis of Bolton's War Weapons Week total of £1,371,713 ($6,104,102) showed that nearly £500,000 ($2,225,000) was contributed in small savings, representing about £3 ($13.35) per person.

MADE BEACON FOR ENEMY

Manchester, Dec. 12 (CP).—Three small boys were severely reprimanded in court here for setting fire to a hay stack, the offence being considered more serious as the fire extended into the black-out period.

First father and son to have their "wings" in the Royal Australian Air Force are Flight-Lieutenant R. U. Hoddinott and his son, Pilot Officer W. J. Hoddinott.

NEW CHRISTMAS GIFT LUGGAGE.
Luggage makes a lastingly beautiful Christmas gift! Pictured above are the newest cases for men and women, many complete with smart fittings. Removable tray cases make luxury gifts.

New Styles, New Fittings In All Types of Luggage For Men And Women Alike

It's a well known fact that Americans are definitely travel-minded! Also that America travels more luxuriously, faster and more often than any other people in the world. Therefore, it stands to reason that Americans, more so than any other people, enjoy traveling with "first class", good-looking luggage! More power to them! And more power to our skilled American craftsmen who have designed luggage that is without peer . . . attractive-looking on the outside as it is roomy and well constructed on the inside. The new lightweight airplane luggage has everything an experienced traveler could ask for. Made of striped canvas, it is water-repellent, sturdy and features post handles and tarnish-proof brass locks. Completely lined with long-wearing rayon fabric, with compartments for different articles, it is the favorite luggage of smart American travelers. And there's a wide selection of airplane luggage from which to choose, including overnight bags, cases with hangers, hat boxes, and wardrobe cases. Wonderful to give, wonderful to receive, luggage makes the perfect Christmas gift for both men and women alike. Leather gladstones are the No. 1 favorites for gentlemen as well as being favored by the fair sex. Beautifully made of topgrain cowhide, they feature military pockets and shirt flaps.

Another luggage gift that's a winner with the gentlemen is the zipper club bag with brass locks, saddle stitching, and equipped with lots of pockets. Linings are sometimes bright plaid or contrasting solid color for accent. In black or brown embossed topgrain cowhide, this zipper club bag will get a big hand on Christmas morning. Also the so-called "suiter-bag" with a special tray fixture to hold two suits of clothing, and there's a convenient tie-holder in the lid of the case. Then there's the travel-suitcase with special pockets for shirts, pajamas and it holds suits without wrinkle.

Luggage makes a thrilling gift to your favorite Christmas beauty, to your wife or mother, to the college or career girl. So say it with luggage this Christmas!

Off for a country week-end, she'd like an 18 inch top grain cowhide case complete with a very smartly fitted lid consisting of comb, brush, mirror and tooth brush container . . . plus two small cosmetic bottles. In black or brown with contrasting lining, it's a gift she'll use proudly for years. Definitely a luxury gift is the 21 inch fitted case with removable tray. Tray has comb, brush and mirror in addition to a zipper rubber-lined pocket for her wash cloth, toothpaste and tooth brush. Grand in black or brown topgrain cowhide with blue, wine, black or ivory fittings.

Origin of the Christmas Tree Dates Back Hundreds of Years

Have you ever looked at your Christmas tree gleaming with bright ornaments and wondered where the idea of Christmas trees originated?

That happened to a group of Girl Scouts one day. And being good Girl Scouts, they set to work to find out the facts. Guided by Mrs. G. S. Miller of Washington, D.C., the girls haunted the public libraries and blew the dust off long unopened books.

Their first surprise came when they learned that the custom of the Christmas tree did not become popular until almost a century ago; the second when their trail led back to early Scandinavians long before the establishment of the Roman Empire.

Before the time of Christ, when sun worship was the major religion, the evergreen was relieved to represent the sun, its branches the sun's rays. Early Scandinavians conceived the universe to be a gigantic evergreen in whose branches dwelt the gods and at whose base lived the Three Fates, today translated into the Three Wise Men.

France, the girls found, had a thirteenth century romance to contribute. In it, the hero finds a huge tree in the forest laden with candles, some upright, some upside-down, and above the tree, a child with a halo round its head. According to the legend, when the Pope heard the story he interpreted the tree as mankind, the child as the Christ-child, and the candles as good and bad people.

Probably the most popular tale of the Christmas tree's origin is that which attributes the custom to Martin Luther. One Christmas Eve as he walked homewards the winter sky was studded with brilliant stars. Later, filled with the wonder of it, he tried to describe the sight to his family. But no words he could find suited him, and finally he rushed outside to return with a small fir tree which he decked with lighted candles.

Story of St. Winfred.

But the story which credits St Winfred with the tree's origin seems most in keeping with the spirit of Christmas. While addressing a group of converts, the story goes, he seized an axe and slashed down a huge oak, that had formerly been part of their Druidic worship. As the tree fell to the ground a tiny young fir tree stood revealed, unharmed, pointing its branches towards the stars. Winfred turned to his converts:

"This little tree shall be your holy tree tonight. It is the wood of peace, for your houses are built of it. It is the sign of an endless life, for its leaves are ever green. Let this be called the tree of the Christ-child; gather about it, not in the wildwood, but in your own homes; there it will shelter no deeds of blood, but loving gifts and riots of kindness."

The tree is not known to have become a feature of Christmas until the sixteenth century when a Strassbourg manuscript (1608) describes it as part of the Yule celebration. For two hundred years only the Rhine country decorated Christmas trees. In 1830 the idea was taken up by Munich, Bohemia and Hungary. By 1869 trees were on sale throughout Paris. The custom was not prevalent in England until the marriage of Queen Victoria to a German prince. German emigrants brought the usage to America.

Significance of Ornaments.

Christmas tree ornaments trace their origin from replicas of gods hung on pine trees during the Roman Saturnalia. Perhaps this explains why some ornaments have faces on one side. But today the shiny colored balls symbolize the planets of the universe in subjection to the Christchild. Lametta, or tinsel, which many people think represents icicles, was intended to be the Christchild's hair. Often a white stag and several reindeer are hung on the branches. This, in ancient times, was intended to be the sun stag eating up the length of time, with four smaller stags consuming the four seasons. Now, of course, they are Santa's reindeer. Under the tree, lambs and cattle guard the manger, symbolizing strength and innocence instead of animal sacrifice to the gods.

Mistletoe is another Christmas symbol whose source is pagan. Before Christianity, the appearance of mistletoe on the trees was believed to mean that the gods wanted to speak.

Gowns Follow Glamor Styles

Not only in slips, but in gowns, it's possible to select a style that will create glamour for its wearer. Like the Empire slip, the Empire gown with its high, flattering waistline and pert puff sleeves, will do wonders for the slim, svelte figure.

For the more statuesque type, a gown of shimmering satin made of suave flowing lines with bodice of gathered chiffon in the same shade would be a perfect gift. While for the woman who suffers from the cold, a cunning long-sleeved gown with delicate embroidery down the front will prove that it's possible to be glamourous and well-covered at the same time.

Pajamas Prime Gift Favorites

Yolande also suggests that pajamas are important in today's fashion picture, and should be included on every gift-list.

"Nowadays women spend almost as much time travelling as they do at home. And a pajama ensemble is the perfect costume for walking between berth and dressing-room of plane or train.

A WARM, PRETTY GIFT

Of fine brushed rayon, these double-breasted pajamas feature a smart, free-hanging jacket jauntily piped in white. Wonderful in aviation red, clipper blue.

Britain Delivers The Goods

Before the war Canada invited the world to compete for a surveying aneroid required by the Dominion's Geographical Survey Department. They asked for an accuracy of 0.02 inches of mercury. The Germans said it was impossible. They flatly refused to try.

Britain decided to tackle the job. Two years' special research have been put in on it and now the makers are able to disclose the fact that they have done ten times better than they were asked to do. They have achieved not the 0.02 inches of accuracy but 0.002, or one-tenth of the error allowed by the specification.

"We lost heavily on it," said a member of the firm, "but the research we did has been of immense value."

Today Britain's supremacy in making scientific instruments is shown by the world demand for them. Among her war time customers are Argentina, Australia, Canada, New Zealand and South Africa.

When bombers are swung aboard ship at Montreal, their dashboards carry—among much else—temperature indicators, boost gauges, fuel press gauges, oil pump gauges, air-intake, thermometers and precision altometres, all of them made in Great Britain.

The latest figures are eloquent of Britain's new supremacy. Before the war she was exporting about one-third the quantity of scientific instruments sold by her German rivals. During the first nine months of the present year she sent overseas more than £900,000 worth, an actual increase of almost £100,000 over the first nine months of 1939.—R. Williamson, London.

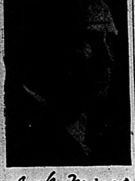
Jack Miner's Christmas Message

Yes, I say Merry Christmas, but does it come from my lips only? Let me assure you it comes from my heart, and I wish all a merry, merry Christmas, and as I say this my grey hairs fairly twitch as my heart melts with thankfulness to Almighty God, for by far the greatest riches I have on this earth is my sincere appreciation of His loving kindness toward me.



Jack Miner

If you will please pardon my personal reference I will outline a flash of my meaning. Now, near Dover Centre, Ohio, a little suburb of Cleveland, lies a small piece of land that is sacredly near to my heart, and oft I drift back to the land of my birth, and after meeting a few old tried and true friends, I find myself stealing away alone, and time and again I have gone and stood on this Memorial spot, and oft loving memories almost blind my sight, for that is where the first Miner home I have any distinct recollection of once stood, and again this little old rustic, one storey weather-beaten house comes before me. Yes, it only had one door and three windows, yet it was one of the most lovable homes God ever blest, and in spite of our scant belongings and poverty old Santa Claus gladdened all our hearts. There were six children in the family, the baby slept with father and mother. Father had built a home-made trundle bed that was pushed under their bed during the day to make more play room, and by drawing it out at night allowed all to sleep together; this was Christmas of 1868.

Finally the anticipated Christmas eve arrived and we children went to bed early, and closed our eyes tight to hurry the morning on; and although father was not considered a Christian man, next thing we would hear was his deep mellow voice, as he sang:

"Come Thou Fount of every blessing,
Tune my heart to sing Thy Grace;
Streams of mercy, never ceasing,
Call for songs of loudest praise."

Well, we are all awake at once, but not dressed. One is blowing a little trumpet, another had a little five-cent jump-out-of-the-box. Sisters have a nice piece of ribbon to tie their long braided hair, the whole house is leaping, shouting and tooting with so much delight that the strange noises awake and frighten the baby into loud cries. Later on dear mother got breakfast ready, and will you believe it, we had oysters, (once a year), Christmas morning. Yes, one whole pint tin can of oysters, cooked in water, for we had no milk, but mother had a way of seasoning water and oysters that made up for all that was lacking.

Now, father was a great rabbit hunter and would bring home five or ten rabbits in a day. On Sundays and holidays we had only two meals a day, and about two p.m., mother would have two Cotton Tail Rabbits stuffed and baked, and oh, the fragrance of the dressing, seasoned with her home grown savories! How we children would eat; but under such hungry conditions we were so merry Christmasly rejoiced, that it was hard to keep us quiet.

I am absolutely certain that the whole day's feast and top-happiness did not cost one dollar. Yes, my dear friends, we were poor financially, but multi-millionaires in harmony, love and appreciation, and my hope is, that nothing will be big or small enough around or about you to mar your Merry, Merry Christmas.

Again let me say, let us all rejoice, for if there had been no Christ, there would be no Christmas, and He, the dear fellow, had not where to lay His head. Yes, "foxes have holes, and the birds have nests, but the Son of man hath no place to lay His head":

Trusting the coming year's sunshine will drive all clouds away from your heart and soul. Therefore, let sunshine and cheer banish sadness and fear, and everlasting life start right here.

Your friend, JACK MINER.

DOLLS QUEENS THROUGH AGES

Wartime Does Not Stale Nor Years Wither Their Popularity.

New York, Dec. 12 (CP).—The doll is doing her dance again as the queen of Santa's sack, a shopping reviewer says.

War and clever new toys have failed to eclipse the star of the Canadian girls' Christmas celebration.

The toy trade doesn't worry about age-limits of those who show affection for dolls. A four-month-old baby pays attention to a rag doll. And a very grown-up lady sometimes puts in a request for a costume or character doll.

But the trade has to be alert to preferences. Neither mothers nor strong promotion schemes can win the will of a girl who says, "But I want a baby doll."

The 1940 preferences are for dolls that look like real babies, feel like real babies and have clothes similar to those little brother wears.

The newest are "magic skin" dolls made of a new plastic formula that allows them to be bathed, dolls with magnetic hands and dolls sprayed with a safe and washable substance to make them glow in the dark.

FINDS CANADA GROWN TIDIER AFTER 20 YEARS

Lady Byng, One-time Chatelaine of Rideau Hall, Gives Her Impressions on Returning to Canada.

By GLADYS GLAD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 12 (CP).—Canada, says Lady Byng, widow of Lord Byng of Vimy, Governor-General of Canada 1921-26, has become a much "neater and tidier" place in the last twenty years. Even the telephone poles look better.

"I used to want to laugh, to see the telephone poles marching across the country, all shapes and sizes, leaning in every direction like a lot of drunken soldiers," Lady Byng said.

"But a few years seem to have changed all that. Now there's a certain symmetry and orderliness about it. Roads are broader and really fine highways now. The telegraph poles are straight and precise."

Lady Byng admitted she rather missed those telephone poles of other days, the sign posts of a young nation spreading itself out and putting its roots into the gorund.

Lady Byng described herself regretfully as no longer young enough or strong enough to do the kind of war work she would like to in England. Because of that, she said, her thoughts had naturally turned to Canada.

"They need only those who are young and can give full time service in the British fortress," she said.

Only her graying hair belied the youthfulness of her brisk energy and bright brown eyes as we met at Byng House, residence of Col. Henry Willis O'Connor, where Lady Byng is staying. She said the memory of happy years spent at Rideau Hall with Lord Byng, the brisk climate of the dominion and her many Canadian friends had helped her decide to return to Canada for the duration of the war.

Rapid Changes.

One of the inspirations of a young country is to observe the rapidity with which it changes she said as she explained her surprise and pleasure in the development of eastern Canada.

"Ottawa was a beautiful little city when I was here before," she added. "Now it has quite the air of a capital."

Of the British children who have come to the dominion as refugees Lady Byng thought many of them, especially the boys, will want to remain in Canada for good. They will be attracted by a young growing land.

Shortly Lady Byng will leave Ottawa for Victoria, B.C., where she intends to live quietly, knitting and sewing for the war effort. "You see I'm a refugee myself," she said.

Lady Byng, who was Marie Evelyn, only child of Sir Richard Moryton, married Col. Julian Byng, even then a distinguished soldier, in 1902. Chatelaine of Rideau Hall during her husband's term as governor-general she was appointed a Dame of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem in recognition of her work during and after the First Great War in which her husband commanded a cavalry division, then the cavalry corps, and afterwards the Canadian Corps (at Vimy Ridge) and finally the 3rd British Army. He was made Field Marshal in 1932 and died in 1935 when the title of Byng of Vimy became extinct.

NO FRENCH LEAVE

Deptford, England, Dec. 12 (CP)—A police pensioner employed by the Deptford Borough Council as a stretcher bearer was fined £5 ($22.50) for leaving the service without permission.

LONDON'S HEROES INCLUDE TAXIMEN

Many of Them in Ancient Cars but On the Job Through Raids

London, Dec. 12 (CP).—Someone ought to write a story about London taxi drivers. They rattle around the town in dilapidated old hacks which would make Canadians holler "Get a horse!". Their tonneaus are high—they look topheavy — and their lights these nights have about the candlepower of a glow worm.

Heroes? Yes. Some were heroes once before. Their medal ribbons are pinned to their coats—ribbons that speak of Mons, Charleroi Road and the second Battle of Ypres. Their youth was spent in hell, now hell has come to London.

Curiously enough, they seem to be finding second youth in this strange war.

"Ain't as bad as Mons," they say, or "Lord Sir, you should'a seen it when Jerry broke through in '18. This ain't a patch on it."

About a third of the London cabs still are stem-winders—and having to get out and crank doesn't make for a quick getaway. No, there's no chromium on the radiator, no hot water heaters nor built-in radios in these cabs, but there's iron in the hearts of the men who drive them.

There aren't so many taxis as there were before the trouble started. Some of the drivers are in the tank corps or the air force. Others are behind the wheels of ambulances or fire trucks, and lots of cabs have been commandeered to tow auxiliary fire service equipment.

New types of wartime aircraft being made in Australia include the Wackett monoplane trainer.

DIGGING FOR STEALING

Barnsley, England, Dec. 12 (CP).—For stealing from orchards, fifteen boys aged 8 to 13 were sentenced to digging in their parent's allotments for 24 hours over a period of three months.

MINUS EXTRA FATS

London, Dec. 12 (CP).—The Vegetarian Society of England has complained to the Ministry of Food that the extra supply of fats promised their members for surrender of their meat and bacon rations coupons has not been made available.

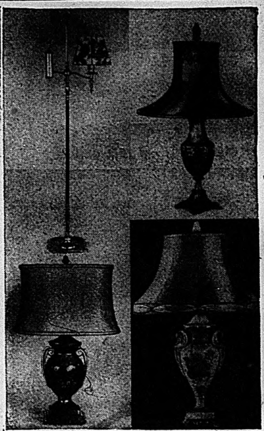
MAKE THIS AN ELECTRICAL CHRISTMAS



LAMPS ARE PERFECT GIFTS

Here are just a few of the new lamps designed with Christmas gift-giving in mind. Table and floor lamps are featured. Note their stunning shades, attractive bases and new style features.

Table Lamps Favored in Period Styles For Gifts

When a new period in interior decoration comes in, every home furnishings branch immediately moves into the production of new designs. Just now, the whole country is talking about American Regency, the entirely new decorative motif introduced in September. It has brought about tremendous enthusiasm, because our own Duncan Phyfe, this country's foremost cabinet maker, is the inspiration for much that has been introduced in American Regency forms. Borrowing from the French Directoire, then the prevalent vogue in Europe, when Phyfe came to this country about 1783, he combined his adaptions with the motifs introduced by Thomas Hope, the greatest English designer of 1807. Thus, we have a brand new period type to challenge Colonial, French and English 18th Century, Sheraton and Heppelwhite, Early American, which was revived with Williamsburgh, and others.

Decorators Favor Table Lamps

So, when a new period comes out, the interior decorator immediately turns to table lamps, the ideal lamp type for bringing out the best in a room. The decorator uses them liberally, because they have color and sparkle, not entirely possessed by floor models. In china, pottery, porcelain, glass, wood, metal, and other materials, including leather, rattan, etc., these lamps come in many shapes and decorations. They are practical anywhere and compose the bulk of lamps chosen for Christmas giving, wedding gifts and other such occasions.

Designers planning for period settings prefer taller table lamps than those usually prevalent, and manufacturers are now only beginning to respond to the demand. You will find in the American Regency settings in your favorite department store or lamp shop, tall column, fluted or reeded table lamps.

Giving a gift? You must not overlook table lamps. One cannot have too many, and what family has too many lamps, particularly newlyweds? It's smart to give table lamps in period design, more so than ever before, what with the advent of the intriguing American Regency.

Santa Claus Says Boys And Girls Like Lamps

Who forgets the kiddies in the home at Christmas? No one. Indeed, they are the first consideration. Toys? Dozens of them. But, youngsters grow up. It's amazing how quickly, they become sophisticated. They want things. They see so many comic strips and love to have replicas of them in their nurseries.

Here is where the lamp maker uses his immagination. He shows us musical nursery lamps, lamps with all the delightful animals that appear in nursery story books, lamps with popular Walt Disney characters, such as Mickey and Minnie Mouse, Donald Duck, Dopey and many others. There are also nursery floor lamps in pastel colors with animal decorations. The choice is widespread.

SUNDAY'S LUNCH PERMANENT MENU

New York, Dec. 12 (CP). — Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, who is one of Uncle Sam's most famous hostesses, always orders the same menu for Sunday lunch at her Oyster Bay home. To the writers, explorers and artists gathered at her table she invariably serves roast beef, Yorkshire pudding, salad and ice cream.

Nearly 600 child evacuees from England are in Australian homes and places are promised for thousands more when the temporary suspension of the scheme is lifted.

BATH-TUB FIRE BRIGADE

Frankston, Australia, Dec. 12 (CP)—Fire in the Mazwelton Hospital was held under control until firemen arrived, the nurses filling bath-tubs while assistants dashed it on the flames.

UP DRUMS AND BUGLES!

Melbourne, Dec. 12 (CP).—Perhaps there'll be music with this war after all—it is announced there is an acute shortage of drums, bugles and trumpets to meet the needs of the Australian fighting forces.

Belleville Electrical Stores Offer Countless Gifts to Please The Homemaker and Hostess

If it is for the homemaker you can't go wrong if you make it an electrical Christmas. Belleville stores are offering everything that the proud hostess desires or dreams about in the way of the latest electrical appliances. Take the woman who loves to sew, and more of them are learning this are every day, what with Red Cross work. You can make her really happy with an electric sewing machine and we saw one yesterday that was an answer to the home sewer's prayer. It was beautifully cased in a Queen Anne satin finish table that would look charming in any living room. It was one of those which sews backwards and forwards without stopping, darns without having to add another attachment, all in a smooth action, made possible by the rotary method which runs without vibration. The automatic stitch tension on it would be a boon when you change from fabric to fabric. The head was finished in dull surface eliminating glare and it was fitted with an electric light which did not get hot. Surely a gift par excellence.

Another thing that caught our eye was the roaster, which cooks an entire meal and can be plugged in any outlet without special wiring. On it was an automatic heat control that ensured the proper cooking temperature, and its roominess could accommodate a sixteen pound turkey, or three dishes could be baked at once in the equipment that comes with it. In the summer when the family wants to go on a picnic all one needs do is cook the whole dinner in the roaster, wrap a blanket around it and pack it in the car. The contents will stay hot for 36 hours.

Manufacturers have all kinds of new helps for the cook. There is a toaster that rings a bell when the toast is done and then automatically turns the heat off. But if you don't come to release it and there is danger of it getting cold, the heat comes on again and warms it just a bit and then turns off. This will go on indefinitely until you do get there and remove the toast.

The last obstacle to the making of perfect waffle cakes has now been removed for here is a waffle iron that does everything but spread the syrup on the waffle. It has a light on the handle that lets you know when the iron is ready for the batter and will then cook the waffle to an even brown and then shut off before the whole effect is ruined by burning. A waffle iron of this type would be a welcome addition to the equipment in some hostess' home.

In another store the very latest in radio equipment was the newly popular record-playing device. This method of entertainment is gaining in popularity all the time and recorded music of one's own selection coming from a loud speaker is a delight to music lovers. One of the most striking examples of how a radio can combine this equipment and present the whole thing in a smart style was shown yesterday. This particular model had what proved to be a drawer that could be pulled out to reveal the place for playing the record. When the record was put on and started, the drawer could be closed, completely concealing the record playing unit. People will hardly believe that the music is a record, for they can see no evidence of it, and the reproduction is perfect.

For the home this store had two very worthwhile suggestions, a home air conditioner or an oil heater. These are certainly useful gifts and if the head of the family installed them he would have the gratitude of the whole family as the great benefits of the gift would extend not for just a few days after Christmas but for months and years.

Modernistic electric toasters and that piece of kitchen equipment for which many women sigh, a mixmaster, were other very good ideas for the gift seeker.

Toasters this year have undergone such interesting changes in design and added services that no matter if she has one a homemaker would welcome a beautiful new toaster that can come right to the living room for toasting those late hour snacks.

Sandwich grilles, too, are a thoughtful gift or they do so many other off jobs besides grilling delicious sandwiches. They can be had in many versions, some with a beautiful hostess tray, others in the simpler designs, but all useful and something that the hostess may not feel like going out and buying for herself. Just another way in which you can make yourself popular with family and friends.

In another store the very latest make of radio was being given a place of prominence. It certainly had a beautiful appearance, but of course this was only one small part of its claim for fame. The test lay in its performance and having as it did the latest aids of radio science, with features that are particularly exclusive with its manufacturers, the radio offered an unusual value to its buyer. One particular model had a record attachment that was in the top and could be alternated with the radio with a very little effort.

From the largest model one's interest turned to the very smallest, the popular models which can be carried about from room to room, go with you on your holiday trips and make the summer picnic a really smart affair. To assist in carrying it, there now comes a carrying case very smart as well as useful and not much larger than a shopping bag. This is an innovation which will be welcomed, especially by one who has a portable radio which he has found awkward to handle. Now this is a gift which anyone would prize. Any member of the family would treasure a little radio of their very own, for their own room. And how about the boy or girl at college. They'd be mighty proud to go back to school with one of these in their hand.

This store had an interesting idea about presents. That was to make one, a useful heating pad. This would be ideal in any home, and invaluable in time of sickness. The heating pads this year come not just in one useful shade but in soft pastel tones that would harmonize with any bedroom color scheme.

How nice this gift would be for almost anyone, but just think how much it would mean to an invalid. There is a useful suggestion for your gift list.

If you wanted to avoid the strain of searching and searching everywhere for gifts you could solve the problem neatly by going into an electric store with your list and getting something for everyone from Aunt Emma to Brother Bill and Cousin Joe who always was a major problem. And there you'd have the whole thing done in a twinkling and with the pleasurable satisfaction of knowing that every last one of them couldn't help but be eternally grateful for your selection.

Costume Jewelry Wise Choice For Christmas

EVERY WOMAN WANTS JEWELRY!

Consider Personality, Type And Age in Selection of Gifts of Costume Jewelry

Because costume jewelry is so varied in style, because it offers so many opportunities for originality, because no woman can have too much of it, it is one of the most welcome of Christmas gifts. But to make it doubly welcome, there are certain things to remember in choosing jewelry, according to Charlotte, well-known stylist and designer.

Jewelry Fashions In Every Type.

"First, think of the age and personality of the recipient-to-be," she shrugged. "For the college girl who is stream-lined in her thinking, choose highly-polished gold or one of the new tri-tone combinations. But for the same age girl who is on the demure side, an old-fashioned locket that will hold a lock of hair or portrait is just right.

"In selecting jewelry for every woman past college age, her size and weight, the contour of her face, the length of her neck, the width of her shoulders and her coloring, all must be considered, as well as her personality," the noted designer continued.

"Necklaces, which are the big news of the moment, come in a number of lengths and shapes, so it is possible to find exactly the style that will bring flattery to its wearer.

"For the normal face and figure, the sky's the limit as to style, and you can select with only personality in mind. This is the type that can wear so well the double-strand seed-pearl and golden cellophane braid necklaces, the wide flat flexible gold collars with detachable pin centres, the massed gold or silver buttons strung on cords.

"The exotic woman will cherish the cold fire of mammoth crystals set in highly polished metal or the Oriental look of tiny golden cornucopias holding pearls and jewel-toned beads strung on black silken cords.

"Pendants are ideal for the woman of fuller figure, for the delicate chain that falls in a V creates a slim line, while the pendant itself is important enough not to be lost against a bit of extra poundage.

"The thin face needs width beneath it, but beware of too much bulk, which will prove overpowering. For this type, it's best to choose one of the flat-collar escalator necklaces shimmering with fragile colored beads.

"For the tall, stately woman, not too heavy and not too thin, who is perhaps past the first blush of youth the multi-strand cascades are the perfect answer.

TRIO OF "JEWEL" SWEATERS.
"Jewelled" sweaters—the glamour gift for day and night wear! Sparkling with multi-color sequins, silver and braid trim, these are fashion's newest. Note the new longer cardigan.

Jewelled Evening Sweaters —Gift Sweaters for Every Gay Day And Night Occasion

Nothing better than sweaters for Christmas! Nothing more fashionable either, because the new sweaters are really stunning and are worn smartly day and night by America's best dressed women. The classic sweater of shetland yarn as well as cashmere or Alpagor yarn retains its popularity with the college and career girl. In the popular crew-neck or new longer cardigan with ribbon-bound front and ribbon buttons, the classic sweater is the perennial favorite. Paired off with either a shetland or plaid skirt, these sweaters are dyed to match skirts exactly or blend beautifully. Sweaters that look hand-knit are the big vogue. Noted as particularly smart and expensive-looking are the cable-stitch sweaters cleverly made on machines to simulate that "hind knit" look. Buttons play an important part in accenting the sweaters and are quite conversation-making. Made of wool, metal and various synthetic compounds, they add a dressed-up touch. Twin sweaters of course go on to new popularity, if such a thing is possible, and they make an excellent gift. Button-down-the-back new longer cardigans are also favored and these sometimes feature matching knee-high socks. (Give them to the winter sports girl on your list—she'll love them!) Colors are wonderfully flattering and there are many from which to choose including vivid red, yellow, green, pink, honey beige, black, brown and the deeper tones of green, wine, rust. Take a peek at the new peasant sweaters too! In button-proof cardigan styles, they're gay as laughter — so wonderfully bright they pick up your spirits! In cable-stitch knit for that "hand-made" look, they flaunt vivid hand embroideries in flowers, figures and novelty designs. Finished off with shining silver buttons, they are as smart at home as they are for winter sports fun.

Evening Sweaters Ultra Fashionable.

Give her the sweater she wants most for Christmas—a "jewelled" evening sweater! She'll wear it (and incidentally look like a million dollars) atop her evening skirts or for "dress-up" afternoons. See all these in your local stores—and again we say, "Say it with sweaters this Christmas!"

Belts Are Fashion Now; Ideal For Gift-Giving

Designers say "for the bloused silhouette, belts become the natural anchor—while for the straight and narrow outline, belts define the waistline". Which is definite proof that belts make the perfect Christmas gift. In fact so fashionable have they become, that many American women have a versatile belt wardrobe.

Holiday-time always brings with it a demand for dressy belts. Suede with gold kid trimmings, narrow gold kid for very dressy afternoon frocks, with wider gold kid with fancy buckles for dinner clothes, make ever-welcome gifts. Sports belts come in very narrow widths and with amusing notes, or else with starkly simple lines and beautifully made buckles.

PRESBYTERY FAVORS GREATER CONTROL OF LIQUOR TRAFFIC

Guelph, Ont., Dec. 12 (CP)—A resolution supporting greater control of liquor traffic, shortening of hours in liquor retail stores and closing of beverage rooms, as a means of assisting Canada's war effort, was endorsed at a meeting of the Guelph Presbytery of the United Church of Canada here Wednesday.

The resolution, contained in the report of the committee of Evangelism and Social Service, presented by Rev. N. McNairn, of Conn, Ont., asked the Presbytery to give support to the request made recently to the Dominion Government by representatives of Roman Catholic and Protestant churches.

ST. JOHN'S MISSION

The members of the Guild met at the home of Mrs. Price for the annual election of officers. The meeting was opened by Rev. O. P. Heaven with hymn and prayer. The roll was called and minutes read. Instead of the usual exchange of Christmas gifts the money was given Rev. Heaven towards the Mission Fund. Election of officers followed. Hon. Presidents, Mrs. Heaven, Miss Redner and Miss Jones. President, Mrs. Price; 1st Vice President, Mrs. Mathews; 2nd. Vice President, Mrs. Putnam; Secretary Treasurer, Mrs. Corby.

Tea was served by Mrs. Bedford and the meeting was closed by Rev. Heaven pronouncing the blessing.

Norman Rogers Airport At Kingston Inspected

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 12 (CP)—Making an inspection of the Norman Rogers Airport, James S. Duncan, Deputy Minister of National Defence for Air Services, expressed himself as greatly impressed with the magnitude of the work being done here.

"There is a wonderful spirit among the men of the R.A.F.," said Mr. Duncan. "They are working under difficulties because many of them are in strange surroundings, but they are doing a remarkably fine job.

Mr. Duncan was accompanied by Air Vice Marshal L. D. D. McKean, Chief Liaison Officer of the R.A.F. in Canada; Group Captain G. Banting, Chief Engineer; Group Captain F. W. Long, Training Command; and J. W. G. Clark, Director of Public Information, Ottawa.

The Deputy Minister walked [illegible] about the Airport and made a close inspection of all phases of [illegible] saw students in Morse and other forms of signalling, watched them at their regular work and even visited the kitchens where he expressed approval at the variety of the menus.

Following the inspection, Mr. Duncan went to the plant of the Aluminum Company of Canada, where he addressed the workers.

Importance Of Diet In Good Teeth

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Before you and I were born all the teeth we have ever had, except our wisdom teeth, were partially formed. Our baby teeth were almost entirely built before birth. The quality of teeth we have had have depended largely on what our mothers ate before we saw the light of day.

If the diet of the expectant mother does not contain enough calcium and phosphorus, the prospective baby robs the mother's bones and teeth of calcium and phosphorus to build structures of its own. For some mothers, "Every baby costs a tooth", or more; and this need not happen. Even with such sacrifice by the mother, the baby may not have adequate nutrition during its prenatal life for building teeth.

Says Dr. S. M. Furnas in Man, Bread and Destiny: "All experiments on human and other animals point to the inescapable fact that inadequate prenatal nutrition always results in poor teeth for the child, no matter how good the diet may be after birth."

Well-Balanced Diet

As early as 1920, Dr. E. A. Park wrote what is widely accepted now: "Personally, I believe that if expectant women received ample well-balanced diets, in which green vegetables were abundantly supplied and cows' milk was regularly taken, and they were kept a sufficient part of their time in the open air and sun, and then infants were placed in the direct rays of the sun for a part of each day and were fed cod-liver oil for the first two or three years of life, more could be accomplished in regard to the caries (decay) of teeth than in all other ways put together and rickets could be abolished from the earth".

The food essential for providing vitamins and minerals recommended by Mendenhall for the expectant mother are: —"One quart of milk, one egg, one raw vegetable salad, such as lettuce, celery and tomato, one citrus fruit, one cooked green vegetable, two slices entire wheat or graham bread or 1 1-2 ounces whole grain cereal. If a helping of lean meat, potato, and three servings of butter and cereal or bread are added to these foods, a diet sufficient in calories and adequate except possibly in iodine, will be furnished a normal mother. More fruit and vegetables may be substituted in place of additional carbohydrates, if the energy needs to be curtailed".

Rand, Sweeny, and Vincent, quoting the above, add: "Such a diet high in green vegetables and fresh fruit, whole cereals with butter, possibly a small amount of cod-liver oil (1-2 teaspoon) will have a sufficient of all of the vitamins."

Motorized squadron of the Home Guard formed by Americans in London went through manoeuvres under the inspection of officers of the Brigade of Guards.

Nice Ideas Noticed In Gift Shops

Let's browse around and see what's new and smart in the field of Christmas gifts.

Sleek, transparent plastic materials are to be found on nearly every counter, and are the last word in up-to-date stylings in everything from kitchenware to shoes. For example, the other day we spied a charming litte transparent-as-glass" teapot with lovely painted design. You have your choice of any number of designs—pretty fat roses with sprigs of tiny flowers or gay little petunias in purple and fuchsia and sweet peas.

Then there are stately, large Florence flasks—just the thing to "glamorize" coffee—in matching designs, with their necks bound in harmonizing raffia. For vinegar, salad oil and the like, there are smaller flasks with gay wreaths of field flowers and wheat ears encircling the names of the contents. A set of these would be just the thing for the new bride's Christmas stocking.

Don Ameche and charming Betty Grable are a romantic twosome in "Down Argentine Way," musical extravaganza in technicolor, next feature attraction at the Belle Theatre.

Christmas Tree Trimmings

By ELEANOR ROSS

The well-loved custom of decorating the Christmas tree can be more than a tradition this year. It will be truly American if you use lots of color and light. The combinations are a matter of choice but here are a few suggestions that may appeal to you.

If you favor a multi-colored tree as so many of us do, choose bright shining balls and ornaments in every shade of the rainbow and show them off with lamps that run the same gamut of color. To please the children, especially, there is a parade of lamps skillfully concealed inside vari-colored bells on which favorite story-book and fairytale characters perform their antics.

Matching the Room

As to styling decorations to match room periods, this is possible, since Christmas decorations conform to no set style. A silver and blue tree is delightful for the popular contemporary setting. Supplement silver balls with an abundance of tinfoil — hang the tinfoil strips carefully and you'll get a wholly different effect than if you just threw it on the tree. Against the shimmer of silver, use blue lights exclusively.

To be more modern, don't put any lights on the tree at all. Instead, put a reflector lamp, covered with a circular disc inset with transparent colors, behind a chair or screen and facing the tree. As the disc automatically revolves, it will cast a succession of lovely red, green, amber and blue lights on the tree. Another variation of indirect lighting for the Christmas tree can be achieved by making miniature trees of cardboard. Stand the cardboard trees around the base of the big tree and attach a reflector spot lamp about half way from top to bottom and from side to side.

To really share your Christmas tree with your holiday guests, bedeck it with colorful but inexpensive novelties that the guests can take away with them as souvenirs—little lipsticks, compacts, tiny vials or ornaments filled with perfume, key rings, bill clips, cigarette holders and a myriad of small colorful toys for the children. The heaped counters will suggest lots of other trifles that will bring happiness to the recipients, beauty to the tree, and to you a reputation for being original. And plastic reflectors behind each little electric candle will keep the tree from looking sad and bare as its branches are stripped.

Excessive Competition Between Various Branches of Dairy Industry Should Be Restricted Says S. L. Joss

Secretary of Ontario Cheese Producers' Association Suggests Formation of General Council to Remedy Problems of Industry

SPEAKS AT WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, Dec. 12 —(Special)— Establishment of a council representative of the entire dairy industry to eliminate competition existing between the branches, the result of which is inevitably leading to self-centred viewpoints thereby making co-operation difficult, is, in his opinion, one of the solutions for the problems facing the industry today, S. L. Joss, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association told the National Dairy Council at its convention here.

The dairy industry, he said, like any other industry has its production, manufacturing and distribution problems. If these branches are under one management the opportunity for co-ordination of effort is facilitated and in most cases made effective.

He felt that the National Council "does not fill the bill as I think it should be filled." Each branch is doing its best to cope with its problems, but the speaker thought that the various branches were not exchanging ideas in order that the industry will receive the fullest benefits from their efforts.

Any committee appointed by the National Dairy Council could not give the problems the consideration they deserve if satisfactory results are to be expected, Mr. Joss said. The council he suggested would be representative of the entire industry and selected after thorough careful and unprejudiced survey had been made of the personnel.

There is only one way of getting the best possible results and that is to think in terms of the industry in general and that what is good for the industry must be good for all who are necessary to its welfare.

"The important point," Mr. Joss said, "is that no matter what branch of the industry we represent, they are all interdependent one upon the other and the success or failure of one is reflected in some way in the success or failure of the other."

The text of Mr. Joss' address follows:

Asks Frank Discussion

When I was invited by your secretary to attend this meeting and take part in the program I felt that I had been given a splendid opportunity of testing the practicability of some of my theories and ideas in connection with the dairy industry. Your reaction to my suggestions will have a bearing upon my future attitude in regard to many other matters pertaining to the industry. I would, therefore, ask you to be frank in your discussion. Although I have given a great deal of thought to the things I will talk about I have still managed to keep an open mind on the subject and I am quite prepared for any kind of reception from you. In fact, the greatest disappointment I could receive would be the feeling that for some reason you did not discuss my proposals frankly. After all, if what I propose is of no great value to the industry, there are many thousands of ideas and ways of improving conditions and the collapse of a few is quite insignificant.

Since 1924 my work has been entirely with the Ontario cheese business and during that time I have had an excellent opportunity of studying the industry from many angles. As an employee of a producers' organization I have been in close touch with producer problems, and as the organizations I represented marketed cheese I was brought into contact with the marketing phase of the industry. I have therefore had the privilege of studying the market both here and in the United Kingdom through actual trading negotiations and personal contact with buyers in both countries. I merely state these facts in order to show that what I have to say is at least partly based on information gained through a practical experience of the business.

The cheese business is a relatively small part of the dairy industry, yet it has been called the balance wheel, due to the fact that most of our surplus milk is exported in the form of cheese, and the price we receive for that surplus has a very important bearing on the price for all milk produced in Canada. You may not agree with this statement in its entirety but you must at least accept it as being largely correct. The important point for us all to bear in mind, however, is that no matter what branch of the industry we represent they are all interdependent one upon the other and the success or failure of one is reflected in some way upon the success or failure of the other.

In Ontario there are approximately 25,000 farmers producing milk for cheese, and although my address will not be confined to cheese I want to say something about the prices that these farmers have received for their milk during the period 1910 to 1939 inclusive. The figures I will quote have been taken from the records of a cheese factory in Leeds County and they represent net returns to the patrons of that factory. This factory is representative of all Ontario factories in manufacturing costs, in location, in volume of production per cow, and all other things that enter into the economics of producing and marketing cheese, therefore I can say with perfect assurance that the figures I give you can be accepted as truly representative of the returns secured from the production of cheese milk in the Province of Ontario during the period 1910 to 1939 inclusive.

$25.89 Per Ton Average Price

The following net returns to the patrons are shown monthly. In 1932 the average price paid was $13.75 per ton, or 69 cents per 100 lbs., which is the lowest for the period. In 1919 the average price was $46.89 per ton or $2.34 per 100 lbs., which is the highest price paid for the period. The average price for the entire period (1910 to 1939) was $25.89 per ton, or $1.24 per 100 lbs.

Since 1931 agriculture has gone through difficult times and it cannot be truthfully said that these difficult times are all behind us. Because of the difficulties of the past ten years I am going to quote the average prices paid during that time to the patrons of this Leeds county cheese factory for their milk:

1931—$17.22 per ton, or 86 cents per 100 lbs.

1932—$13.75 per ton, or 69 cents per 100 lbs.

1933—$14.93 per ton, or 75 cents per 100 lbs.

1934—$15.12 per ton, or 76 cents per 100 lbs.

1935—$17.70 per ton, or 88 cents per 100 lbs.

1936—$18.76 per ton, or 94 cents per 100 lbs.

1937—$21.01 per ton, or 1.05 cents per 100 lbs.

1938—$21.47 per ton, or 1.07 cents per 100 lbs.

1939—$19.28 per ton, or 96 cents per 100 lbs.

Averages—$17.69 per ton, or 88.33 cents per 100 lbs.

It will be noted that the highest price paid in the above period was in 1938—$21.47 per ton, or $1.07 per 100 lbs. As already stated the average price for the entire period 1910 to 1939 was $25.89 per ton, or $1.24 per 100 lbs. It is also interesting to note that from 1910 to 1914 inclusive the average price was $21.84 per ton or $1.09 per 100 lbs. A study of these returns in conjunction with a study of prices in general would explain why we hear a great deal today about "parity of prices." Before leaving this subject let us say that the prices I have quoted are reflected in the returns to all milk producers irrespective of what branch of the industry they are connected with.

Thinks 88.33 Cents Too Low

Considering all productive costs during the period 1931 to 1939, I think it can be definitely said that milk cannot be produced profitably at 88.33 cents per 100 lbs. I do not intend to try to back this statement up by facts and figures but would refer you to a preliminary report of a survey made by the economics branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture into the production costs of milk in Ontario. I would also suggest that you attend some producers' meetings and hear them discuss their problems. This condition has led to the introduction of methods to alleviate the situation and during the past five years governments have recognized the need of financial help to the cheese industry.

The form in which this help was given, the reason why it was given, and the time at which it was given, have all been criticized, but the fact that it has been given, or if it should be continued in the future, should not be criticized. Governments have also introduced a type of legislation that may help producers solve some of their difficulties. The legislation I have in mind is the old Natural Products Marketing Act, and the present Ontario Farm Products Control Act. In Ontario this legislation is proving successful and I believe is well established and will remain on the statute books of the province. The benefits that can be derived from such legislation are far-reaching and the effects can be very great. The demand for such legislation is undoubtedly growing in Ontario and its adoption is likely to be more wide-spread as time goes on. Commendable as I believe this legislation to be, it is not in itself going to solve the difficulties of Agriculture, and this brings me to the point where I will place before you some of my own thoughts as to what might be done.

Any measure that is good for the industry will be good for all who are necessary to the economical functioning of the industry in its various forms of Production, Manufacture and Distribution. I assume that you agree with that statement and on the basis of that assumption I expect you to agree with the principle of my proposals even though you should not be in accord with my ideas as to how these proposals should be put into effect. I may say that if I had chosen a title for my address it would have been "Co-ordination of effort within the Dairy Industry." This title, of course, implies that I do not think there is co-ordination. You may not agree, and may have some very good arguments to convince me that I am wrong.

Problems Must be Faced

The dairy industry, like any other industry, whether it be a steel manufacturing plant or a plant producing perfumes, has its production, manufacturing and distributing problems. If these various branches, production, manufacture and distribution, are under one management, the opportunity for the fullest co-ordination of effort is facilitated and in most cases made effective. In agriculture, however, co-ordination is not so evident as production is, in practically all cases, definitely separated from either manufacture or distribution. Each branch has its own peculiar problems and the problem of the branch you represent is, as a general rule, paramount in your opinion. This being the case, you are not seriously concerned with the fact that your problem affects the entire industry and energy expended in trying to correct conditions that affect your particular branch is partly wasted and does not reach its utmost efficiency because of lack of co-ordination with those connected with other phases of the industry. If this is correct it follows that there must be a great deal of wasted effort, as there are times when a problem affecting the entire industry is not given the consideration it warrants, due to the fact that something of minor importance is receiving prior consideration.

If you are a manufacturer or distributor you might say that in your business you have every department managed by experts, that you have a research department that is continually studying the technical and the scientific side of your business, therefore you feel that in your case you are fully equipped to run your business as efficiently as possible. This is no doubt quite correct, but there is that part of the business which you do not control, namely production, which does not come under your organization and which is vital to the industry.

Suggests Formation of Council

I appreciate the fact that large sums of money are spent annually by Governments towards educational work in agriculture and problems are studied from many angles in an effort to bring about the maximum of efficiency. Various government departments are administered by men of outstanding ability in their respective fields and no one can deny that there has been advancement made in agriculture both in a scientific and a practical way. In spite of these truths, however, we are still striving for something better, and in order that we might come closer to Utopia more quickly I would suggest that the dairy industry work for a council that would be representative of every branch with research being included. Probably some of you have already said to yourselves, "That is what the National Dairy Council represents" and I do not quarrel with you for thinking that, and I am sure you will not quarrel with me for saying that at present the National Dairy Council does not fill the bill as I think it should be filled. It might also be said that each branch of the industry is doing everything possible to cope with its various problems, which I think is quite correct, but I do not think that the various branches are exchanging ideas in order that the industry will receive the fullest benefits from their efforts. Before offering my suggestions in this matter, I am going to take the liberty of using some of the items on your program to illustrate my point.

For discussion on your program you have "Public Relations Programs," "National Advertising," "Is there undesirable competition between concentrated milk and fresh fluid milk?", "Are Milk Control Boards functioning satisfactorily? Can we offer any helpful suggestions in regard thereto?". Not one of these subjects could be satisfactorily settled today, and to carry them on for further consideration a committee would likely be appointed, or the load passed on to your secretary. I have a very healthy respect for the ability of your secretary, and I am sure that if necessary you would appoint quite a capable committee. Your secretary, alone, however, cannot do the job, and any committee you might appoint at this meeting to do it could not be expected to give it the consideration it deserves or requires if any satisfactory results are expected.

Representative of Industry

The committee or council I have in mind would be representative of the entire dairy industry, and their selection would be made after a most thorough, careful and unprejudiced survey had been made of the personnel of the industry. The recognition that such a council would receive would be determined by the work it performed. The members would have to be prepared for a great deal of hard work, a great deal of criticism fair and unfair, and be ready to devote much of their time to the advancement of the idea. These things would all have to be contended with if any degree of success is to be expected.

Before closing this address I want to cite two quotations from the Canada Year Book of 1940, which has this to say of Agriculture:

"Agriculture, including stock-raising and horticulture, is the most important single industry of the Canadian people, employing in 1931, 28.7 p.c. of the total gainfully occupied population and 33.9 p.c. or over 1-3 of the gainfully occupied males. In addition it provides the raw material for many Canadian manufactures, and its products in raw manufactured form constitute a very large percentage of the Canadian exports."

Quoting again from the Canada Year Book, 1940, we find that Agriculture represented in 1933, 21.59% of the National Income, or $5,563,768,000. If this figure is reduced to a basis of investment per head of population we find that agriculture represents $520.90 per head. Agriculture is only exceeded by Urban Real Property, which represents 26.83 p.c. of the National Income.

I make no attempt to enlarge on the foregoing quotations. It is sufficient to say that they illustrate very definitely the importance of agriculture to Canada and if Canadian Agriculture is facing a crisis we must prepare ourselves to do something about it.

350,000 Farms in Dairying

In 1938 the total value of Agriculture was $1,020,217,000 with the dairy industry responsible for $220,164,000, or 21.57 p.c. It is estimated that there are 750,000 farmers in Canada with 350,000 of them in dairying. In this important industry there are those who deny that there is any agricultural problem, and there are those who agree that there is a problem but do nothing about it. There are others who write long treatises and make long speeches about it, but they have not the slightest vestige of a solution to offer. Not only are such attitudes foolish but they can be most destructive. To have a solution or to be convinced you have one, you must be able to judge all the pros and cons impartially with full knowledge of all the facts to judge from. To have full knowledge of all the facts is not easy, because not only is it difficult to get all the facts but it is difficult to know when you have them. I recommend that one way of getting them is through a council, as I have already suggested. I might also add that when the facts are known it is difficult to judge them impartially, which uncovers one of the great difficulties in choosing a council such as I have suggested.

I feel, Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen, that there may be parts of this paper that will be understood by you differently from what I would like and, such misunderstanding may lead to an interpretation that might prove objectionable. If such should be the case I would like you to know that when preparing this paper two important things I had in mind were:

(1) Our personal opinions regarding (a) what is needed in the industry, (b) what has already been accomplished and (c) the present methods employed in an effort to bring about efficiency. These opinions are undoubtedly very strongly entrenched in the minds of many people, particularly those who have already done a great deal for the industry, and suggestions that a great deal more could be done by some new idea being introduced may not be well received.

(2) Competition existing between the different branches of the industry, the result of such competition inevitably leading to a self-centred viewpoint thereby making co-operation extremely difficult.

If these points are not quite clear, believe me when I say that my whole effort is to suggest something that will help those who are already working hard to bring about improvements and also that more ways may be found to help the producers.

In my own manner I have tried to convey to you that there is only one way of getting the best possible results and that is to think in terms of the industry in general and that what is good for the industry must be good for all who are necessary to its welfare.

Fundamental Errors Made by Italians Coming to Surface

London, Dec. 12—(CP)—Fundamental errors made by the Italians in their conduct of the war now are coming to the surface, Col. Harold Stevens, formerly British Mmilitary attache at Rome, said in a broadcast last night.

"Italian forces in Ethiopia and East Africa are now cut off from their homeland, and lines of communication with the forces in Northern Africa are, to say the least, precarious." Col. Stevens said.

In addition, Mussolini's invasion of Greece has "presented us with bases which have already proved invaluable," he added.

The Italian navy had had more responsibilities placed upon it in keeping Italian forces in Africa in contact with Italy, but now the navy had been weakened by the damaging British raids on Taranto and by the campaign in Albania.

The Royal Navy had played an important part in the North African campaign by attacking the overseas communication between Italian forces in Libya and their homeland.

Too Early to Forecast

Commenting on the British offensive against the Italian forces in Egypt, which resulted in the capture of Sidi Barrani, Col. Stevens said:

"It is too early to forecast developments in this campaign, but the results show the careful planning of the operations, which were carried out with skill and dash.

"The offensive spirit of our troops has always been encouraged, and this has stood us in good stead."

On the other hand, Italian leaders apparently had been overconfident and their troops had become "slack from inaction."

Speaking of the tactical co-operation between the land forces and the R.A.F., Col. Stevens commented: "This shows that if we are taught a lesson in battle, as the Germans taught us in France, we can even go it one better."

Santa Claus Thrills Thousands As Colorful Parade Wends Its Way Along City Thoroughfares

Decorated Floats, Clowns, Bands, Pretty Girls and Comic Strip Characters Form Pretty Seasonal Cavalcade

PRIZES AWARDED

Thousands of excited children and grown-ups lined the main thoroughfares of the city on Wednesday afternoon as the long-looked for Second Annual Santa Claus Parade sponsored by the merchants of the city wound its colorful way along the streets to the shrill acclamation of tiny tots, children and oldsters suddenly become young again.

Naturally the centre of attraction was old St. Nick himself and the rotund jovial old gentleman who brought up the rear of the seasonal cavalcade was appropriately costumed and rode in an environment that smacked of Yuletide snow, ice, reindeer and all the Noel knick-nacks that go toward the consummation of the children's Christmas.

Six prancing reindeer, that galloped along in pathways of scintillating snow surrounded by the greens of Christmas trees and diamond-like trimmings, rode in front of the laughing bowing Santa himself. His rotund figure caparisoned in the traditional white and scarlet of the story-book Noel; a red face that beamed joviality; a smile that creased his round features as he waved his hands to the thousands of excited children rounded out a parade that lacked nothing for color and seasonal excitement.

Colorful Show

The natural environment could have been better. A mantle of white snow agleam with an early afternoon sun would have added a seasonal touch and helped the general parade scheme. However the multi-colored costumes and uniforms of the many characters which took part offset to a great extent the drabness of discolored snow and sullen grey cloudy skies. As it was the spectators, especially the children and small boys, entered into the spirit of the thing with characteristic gusto and the parade wound its way slowly along the route in an atmosphere of vociferous acclaim, to say the least.

There was a variety that could help but appeal to the most biased Christmas parade fan. Beautifully decorated floats sponsored by city firms and organizations, added a realistic touch to the drollness of sombre-visaged characters, grotesquely painted clowns, gorgeously gowned girls, and hilarious characters from the comic-strips. A twisting green, red and yellow Chinese dragon squirmed and twisted its way through the streets to the enjoyment of the children.

Streamlined Cars

Streamlined rakish automobiles, the aristocracy of motordom, gleaming in their 1941 colors purred along en route adding a transportation touch that caused envious glances to emanate from the crowds. These were sponsored by the J. B. Boyce Company, Quinte Motors, Hastings Motors, Snodden Motors, Clapps Service Station, Belleville Motors and others. A feature was the Royal Car driven by Jack Trudeau, used by Their Majesties during the Royal visit.

Heading the parade as it swung into Front Street from Foundry, was the augmented Belleville Public Schools Band. Tall figures of blue-coated period soldiers followed and the Y.M.C.A. float colorfully decorated and alive with youngsters. Red, white and blue fairies preceded the "Fairyland Express," a float that contained pretty public school children correctly garbed in the fairy costume.

Tall negroes, wearing gorgeous gold frock coats and scarlet top-hats came next followed by the beautifully decorated float of the York Trading Company. A Red Cross car driven and occupied by Red Cross nurses and postillioned by two small khaki-clad soldiers mounted on small ponies, one of which caused a lot of merriment with its balky antics received well-merited applause.

The delight of the children, with the exception of Santa Claus came next in the form of huge Mickey Mouses, Popeye and Olive Oyl, Donald Duck and other famous comic strip characters.

Comical Figures

A bevy of beautiful young maidens handsomely garbed in red, yellow and blue costumes, enhanced the parade at this point and in close succession came the team of handsome dapple-grey horses of the Harry Smith Coal Company drawing a float that well-deserved the first prize it won. A small goat drawing a cart to the accompaniment of five small boys and a crowd of excited youngsters came next.

Huge figures, corpulent and skinny wearing grotesquely smiling heads followed, as did clowns and dogs, a huge rabbit, the famous other funny creations. Cats, monkey, three little pigs followed by the grinning Big Bad Wolf, and yet more clowns came into the parade picture at this point.

St. Michael's Children's Band attractively costumed in white and seated in a tastefully decorated truck followed, and along the street a few yards in the rear came a giant Christmas Cracker carried by six elfs in green and red costumes. The prizewinning Walker Hardware float appeared in all its decorative beauty, and was easily one of the prettiest in the parade. Bringing up the rear, with the exception of Santa himself, was another flock of clowns and then appeared a real character, a small bear cub, towing a clown both of which proved the centre of attraction of a large crowd of small boys.

Following are the prizewinners:— Rural Schools, Foxboro and Roslin were adjudged equal, and split the first prize of $25.00; City Schools, Collegiate Institute, $15.00; St. Michael's School $10.00; Horse-drawn Floats, Harry Smith Company; Montrose Dairy; Motor Vehicle Floats, Walker Hardware; York Trading Company. The judges were Mayor G. E. Thompson, H. L. Fair and Harold Vaughan.

67,000 Germans Died In Conquering Norway Says Carl Hambro

Schenectady, N.Y., Dec. 12—(AP) —Carl Hambro, President of the Norwegian Parliament, said last night that at least 67,000 Germans died in conquering Norway last April.

He told the Sons of Norway, fraternal organization, casualties exceeded the dead more than two-fold and of the dead only officers were buried.

"Norway is still fighting on," Hambro added. "It is carrying on in England, in Canada and even in this country at meetings like these. In Canada we are training troops and some of our men still fight on in England."

Tribune Supports Position of British Gov't in Question

New York, Dec. 12 — (CP)—The New York Herald Tribune supported editorially today the position of the British Government in declining to permit food shipments from the United States to pass through the blockade to the relief of populations in Nazi-held Europe.

"The British statement . . . is both moderate and courteous in tone, but it is also, as it should be, perfectly frank and definite," said the newspaper. "The British have too great a respect for American opinion to resort to diplomatic circumlocutions or windy concealments; they say exactly what they mean, and surely it is impossible, after a moment's reflection, to imagine that they could conceivably take any other position."

Said the New York Times:

"We can be sure that this decision was not taken hastily. . . . We can be confident that neither the British Government nor the British People would wish to see any suffering in these countries which they felt it was in their power to relieve or avoid without endangering their ultimate object of defeating Hitler."

HALF OF POPULATION OF CHATHAM ENROLLED

Chatham, Ont., Dec. 12 (CP)—In three days the "Chatham plan" for encouraging the sale of War Saving Stamps and certificates has almost reached the halfway mark of its objective to get 100 per cent of the people of Chatham enrolled as regular purchasers.

Chatham has a population of over 17,000 and to date 8,689 persons have purchased stamps at the various selling booths.

Spectacles such as "bombing" from the air, parades, entertainments, tank displays and parades of the late motorized war equipment are being staged every evening and the streets of Chatham are thronged, nightly by persons from the city and surrounding district.

Wednesday night between the hours of 9 and 9.30 there was a blackout of King Street, the main business thoroughfare.

AIR COMMODORE IN MIDDLE EAST IS A CANADIAN

Raymond Collishaw Commands British Air Squadrons in Western Desert

JOINED R.A.F. IN '16

London, Dec. 12—(CP Cable)—A distinguished Canadian of the First Great War, Air Commodore Raymond Collishaw, now commands the British Air Squadrons in the western desert which are combining with the land and sea forces against the Italians.

Air Commodore Collishaw, a native of Nanaimo, B.C., was one of the six most successful pilots of the last war in which he shot down 60 enemy planes. Among Canadian pilots only Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., and the late Captain Barker outranked him in this respect.

After the war Collishaw remained in the R.A.F. and has accumulated considerable flying experience in the middle east. As a wing commander, he had charge of the flying personnel of the aircraft carrier "Courageous" before 1939 and for two years commanded the R.A.F. station at Heliopolis, Cairo. His appointment as officer commanding the Egypt group of the R.A.F. command in the middle east was announced July 4, 1939.

The squadrons now operating under Collishaw include fighters and bombers. It is their job to strafe the Italians from the air while armored units rove the scrub-covered sands in search of machine-gun nests and other fortified positions.

While the bombers have been blasting communication lines, troop concentrations and waterpipe lines, the fighters have engaged Italian aircraft shooting down more than 20 in one day.

Joined Air Service in 1916

Raymond Collishaw as a youth had been employed in the Government Fisheries Protective Service on the Pacific Coast and joined the Royal Naval Air Service in 1916. He saw considerable action in the flying arm of the Royal Navy and in February, 1917, became a member of No. 3 Squadron R.N.A.S. which was commanded by another distinguished Canadian, Air Commodore R. H. Mulock of Montreal.

Collishaw next was transferred to No. 10 Squadron, operating on the Belgian coast, and began to take a heavy toll of enemy aircraft in aerial dogfights. In June, 1917, he shot down 20 enemy planes, 15 of them in 15 days.

His planes bore the stencilled name "Black Maria." In the three months he was with No. 10 Squadron he "wrote off" four Sopwith triplanes, destroyed by either enemy gunfire or crashes in landing, but each time a new "Black Maria" took the place of the old one.

His decorations include the Distinguished Service Order, the Order of the British Empire, the Distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

He is 46 years of age.

Cairo Egypt, Dec. 12—(AP)—Air Marshal Arthur Tedder arrived to become Deputy Commander-in-Chief of the Middle East Command of the Royal Air Force, replacing Air Marshal Owen Boyd, who was captured by Italian soldiers when his plane was forced to land on the Island of Sicilly Nov. 21.

FIRST COME—FIRST SERVED

A CHRISTMAS STORY OF THE LAST WAR

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Sergeant "Hank" Penning sat on a box behind the gun-pit and swore softly. It was dusk and the gun-flashes that denoted artillery activity in the Ypres Salient to the left lighted up his scowling face. His guns were behind Wulverghem and had been shelling the Fritz lines opposite the "C" trenches for the past three days.

But to hell with the war. He had other things to think about. For instance there was that egotistical swab of a Sergeant "Tubby" Allison, of "Y" Battery, whose guns were in a willow thicket a few hundred yards to those of Hank's outfit, "X" battery. "Tubby" had beaten him to the figurative draw in several occasions, not because he was smarter, but through sheer trickery. That guy would stop at nothing to get what he wanted.

And now had come the last straw. It was December 24th and prior to a few hours ago, the Christmas feed looked as though it would be a reality.

Hank ground his teeth in rage. "That ornery gravel-crusher" he swore. "I'd like to have him strung in front of one of the gun-muzzles. I would pull the dam trigger myself."

That day special rations had come up the line from the base for the battery's Christmas dinner. Plum and apple jam, some fresh meat, not turkey, but a damned fine substitute for bully-beef and hard-tack. "X" battery's runners had arrived at the railhead to find the rations missing. No one had seen any sign of it. It was another of those mysteries. But later on, the high-pitched voice of Tubby had trickled over the battery wires wishing him a "Merry Christmas". First come—first served, Hank" Tubby had gloated.

So that is where the special rations had gone. Hank kicked savagely at a trench rat that ran squealing across his feet. "Just another rat," he spoke aloud. "Well, mebbe we'll find the right cheese that will bait him into the trap."

Footsteps squelched into the muddy ground near the gun-pit. Gunners lying in nearby funkholes looked up. A tall figure loomed in the darkness. "Is Sergeant Penning there?" came the voice of the battery O. C., Major Gerry Gordon. Hank got wearily to his feet.

"Yes, sir," he replied. "Anything up?"

The C. O. stepped closer to the sergeant. "Listen, Penning," he said, "there is no reason why the boys should not have something special tomorrow. Do you remember that large pig Madam Estelle has near her estaminet west of the horselines?"

Hank's face brightened. "Why yes sir." "Here," said the major, "is some money. Send one of the lads back to buy that hog and we'll dine on pork chops tomorrow. And," he added, "don't come back without it."

Hanks arm whipped to the salute "O.K. sir" he grinned.

Tubby could have the damned rations. This was going to be a real Christmas after all. "Hell, I'll go buy that hog myself," he laughed. He strode quickly from the gunpit to the Wulverghem Road. Very lights from the trenches up front shone a weird light on the smiling countenance of the sergeant as he walked quickly down the cobbled road to the estaminet.

An hour later he entered the partially ruined farmhouse. It was the usual night and the usual crowd. Infantry, artillery engineers out at rest sat singing or drinking their "biere Belique." Hank ordered one and glanced quickly around the room. At a nearby table sat Tubby with some of his gunners.

He waved a hand at the "X" battery sergeant. "Hyah, Hank," he shouted through the thick smoke of the estaminet. "How're all the "X-ers, gointa have turk tomorrow?" The quartette of his mates laughed hoarsely at the quip.

So they're wise too, gritted Hank through clenched teeth. Laughing, swearing, Tubby and his gunners lurched out of the room, waving arms at the enraged Hank.

A minute after they had left, Penning approached the ramshackle bar behind which fat Madame Estelle presided. Drawing her aside he made his proposition regarding the pig. Madame tossed her fat arms in the air. "But, m, sieu" she grunted, "ze sergont, he is too late. M,sieu Tubbee, he but buy ze pig but ze short time ago."

Terse fluent Canadianese cusswords ran through the smoky room. Soldiers looked up amused as a fiery Canadian artillery sergeant strode out of the estaminet, tin hat dangling in his hand, and spewing a vocabulary that would make one of Kitchener's troopers sound like a raw recruit.

He was still emitting profanity as his shoes beat a tattoo on the cobblestones on the road back to the battery. "My God," he swore, "I am not beaten yet. That rat will pay if I have to chase him all over Germany. I'll put poppies on his eyes that will make the Flanders species look like trilliums."

His rage had not left him when he entered the officer's dugout and reported the incident to Major Morton. The officer sitting on a box cupped his face in his hands. "Major Hartwick, of the "Y" outfit dropped in this afternoon, and I might have dropped a hint about buying the pig. I wonder," he mused.

"By the way, Penning" he said a moment later, "A runner dropped in a few minutes ago with this note for you." Penning tore open a grimy envelope. His eyes flamed. He opened his mouth but a wild consuming anger had engulfed him and for the moment he was speechless. He tossed the note on the major's lap, and sat down on an empty box. On a dirty piece of paper were inscribed the words "First come, first served." In a corner was a greasy thumb mark.

"What is all this about?" queried Gordon. Penning related what had happened; the telephone message and later the incident at the estaminent. "First come—served, eh," he choked. "We'll see."

He jumped to his feet and started toward the dugout entrance when the major's voice halted him. "Just a moment, Penning," he said in a low voice. "I think I have a plan which will square accounts all round. Sit down a moment." Hank settled his length on the box again and listened. His eyes opened wide in amazement, then his face stretched into a wide grin as the audacity of the plot sank into his mind.

That night a mysterious cavalcade left "X" battery's horselines. Sandbags muffled the hoofbeats of the horses. Penning was in the lead as the party strung out along the cobbled road. "Everything's O.K. boys" he had told them. "We are duty battery and our sentry will be on duty at the crossroads. He is wise and there is no danger."

In the distance gunflashes illuminated the front lines. Occasional rifle and machine-gun fire cut into the blackness of the night like a knife. Very lights soared into the velvety darkness of the heavens, sputtered and died somewhere in No Man's Land.

The horsemen drew up near a tree opposite the estaminet of Estelle All was darkness and as quiet as the grave. Three men sidled into the pigpen at the rear of the building and later emerged with four quarters of fresh pork. Quietly the cavalcade mounted, and started along the cobbles to the horseline.

Suddenly the challenging voice of a sentry rang out in the darkness. "Jeez, sarge, that's not Nobby Jones voice, sumpin must be wrong," whispered one of the riders to Penning. The sergeant knit his brows. "Holy Mackerel, I forgot. X battery goes off battery duty at midnight, and "Y" will take over. What time is it."

A watch glowed in the darkness. "Twelve thirty" came the low reply. "Penning groaned. Again the challenge rang out. Suddenly he had an idea. "Spur those nags" he whispered hoarsely "and leave it to me." The cavalcade started forward. Nearing the sentry, Penning shouted, "It's alright, buddy, We're "Y" battery with your Christmas dinner." He held his breath. Then from the darkness came the reply. "O.K. mates, but for cripe's sake don't eat it all."

Penning heaved a sigh of relief. He mopped a warm brow. "Cripes" he ejaculated, "that was close, "but" he turned in his saddle, "me lads, the cards are beginning to turn up in our favor."

Called to the officers' dugout about eleven next morning, the sergeant found the battery officers in conference. Major Gordon spoke. "Penning," he said, "I have just returned from a board of enquiry at brigade headquarters looking into the disappearance of a pig from a certain estaminet near our horseline. We were cleared on any participation in the matter as a sentry swore a mounted party from "Y" battery had passed him shortly after midnight bearing what the man in charge had said was a Xmas dinner for "Y" battery. Major Hartwick, here" gestured toward the rival battery commander who was present, "states that he has seen no sign of the pig, although he had made arrangements for its purchase. Naturally the onus falls upon him in view of the sentry's evidence, and he has to pay the estaminet Madame 3030 francs. Do you know anything about the incident, as we do not want any trouble with other units?" Penning straightened to the salute. His features were expressionless. "No sir, I know nothing about it" he lied gallantly. I can account for myself and the men of the battery." "That's all sergeant," Gordon said in dismissal.

Later that evening, a note was handed to Sergeant Allison of "Y" battery inviting him to Christmas dinner with the sergeants of the 'X' unit. "Dinner is served at five" the note said.

"Huh," Allison snorted, "gettin' big hearted eh. Well, they'll probably have more than bully beef and hard tack since we lost that hog, so I may as well try it."

At four-forty-five, Tubby strolled into the dugout where the n.c.o's of "X" battery had their mess. On an upturned box lay four greasy plates. A larger plate than the rest carried the remains of what had been an excellent repast of pork chops. No one was in sight. In the distance the gunners sat in their funk holes or polished their eighteen-pounders. Not an n.c.o. was near.

As he turned to leave the dugout, a clean plate set with tin knife and work at a distant part of the impromptu table caught his eye. On it was a grimy piece of paper. In one corner was a greasy thumbmark. Inscribed in handwriting that looked strangely like his own, were the words, "First come—first served."

THIS picture symbolizing the flow of contributions from all parts of Canada to Montreal headquarters of the Canadian Pacific Railway employees' Golden Bomber Fund shows a portion of the old golden jewellery and cash given by employees, pensioners and their friends for the purpose of buying a modern $100,000 bomber for the Royal Canadian Air Force. H. Shoobridge, of the vice-president's office, Canadian Pacific Railway, Montreal, is seen here arranging some of the gold on a model train built by Ubald Gregoire, Canadian Pacific fireman. Employees of the company, who have been most generous in supporting the war service campaigns of the Red Cross, Salvation Army and other organizations and who have contributed freely to government war loan drives, are now parting with valued keepsakes in this novel new war effort. Wedding rings, lodge emblems, old jewellery and other heirlooms are being given to the fund by employees, pensioners and friends outside the company. Others who have no old gold are identifying themselves with the fund by cash donations.

The Dardanelles Is a Hard Place for An Army To Cross

Leander swam the Hellespont (we call it the Dardanelles nowadays) and maybe Hitler could, too—but the Nazi Fuehrer can't swim an army across this strategic water barrier between Europe and the Near East to help Mussolini crush Britain in the Mediterranean theatre.

That's fanciful, say you. Granted! But it's meant to emphasize that the Dardanelles strait presents one of the most serious obstacles the axis partners will encounter if they try to crash into the Near East by a thrust down the Balkan peninsula.

It is a fact we should keep in mind as the war threats flash back and forth across this cock-pit and the situation hourly grows more tense. We are likely to hear a lot more about the Dardanelles before we are through.

Hitler must feel rather sorry for himself to find that, having been stymied from the British Isles by the English Channel, he now is up against another water hazard which has broken the hearts of many good men and brave in days gone by. It's one of the world's toughest roads to conquest.

I have small doubt that once the Germans had forced this strait and conquered Turkey they could steam-roller most of the rest of the Near East rather readily. If the exponents of total war make this effort they're going to precipitate one of the great battles of history.

The strategic importance of the Dardanelles always has been very great, because it does form a barrier between the Balkans and the Near East, and because it is the gateway from the otherwise land-locked Black Sea to the Mediterranean. Free passage of the Dardanelles is vital to Russia, since if the strait, were in enemy hands she not only would be cut off from the Mediterranean, but a hostile fleet could attack her in the Black Sea.

The Dardanelles strait is forty-seven miles long, and from one to four miles wide. It then broadens into the little Sea of Marmora, which in turn opens into the Black Sea through the Bosphorus at Istanbul (Constantinople). Just by the way—maybe it's the oriental influence—the Dardanelles radiates an atmosphere of mystery and eeriness which makes one expect to see the spooks of the sea rovers of old come swarming aboard ship.

I've sailed through this narrow reach and rarely have seen a position so easily capable of defence. I call that to your attention, too.

This whole waterway is in Turkey's territory, so that she can fortify both sides and the passage itself. Under an international convention signed in 1936, the Dardanelles, the Sea of Marmora and the Bosphorus were demilitarized and open to all nations, but— and this is vital—Turkey was granted permission if at war, or threatened by war, to close the straits to other nationalities.

Well, if the present isn't a threatening situation I don't know what is. It's a safe bet that the Turks have made this water thoroughfare as nearly impregnable as they can to prepare for eventualities.

If the axis twins find any solace in the thought, the Dardanelles has been forced before this. It first achieved fame in 480 B.C. when King Xerxes of Persia invaded Europe by using a bridge of boats a mile long. Then in 334 B.C. Alexander crossed into Asia.

It is to be noted, however, that neither of these great soldiers had to fight his way against heavy artillery, dodge submarines and mines, defend himself against air fleets, nor do battle with two million hard-bitten Turkish soldiers—and in battle the Turks are just as tough as they come.

Of course, there was the allied disaster during the World War. The allies tried to force the passage so as to reach the Black Sea to aid Russia by breaking the Turkish blockade, and to influence the Balkans.

There can be no small doubt that Hitler and Mussolini are getting set for a drive to the Dardanelles if the operation seems feasible. Disassembled German submarines and seaplanes are reported to be en route to some Black sea naval base. Troops continue to mass, and this applies equally to the Russians.

Turkey is ready to fight, and with the naval assistance of Britain should cause plenty of trouble for any axis attack. Should Russia decide to support the Turks, it would make a battle of the ages. The Muscovites still remain silent as to their plans.—N. Y. Sun.

Resignation of Marshal Badoglio Significant Event

London, Dec. 12 (CP).—Sir Alfred Zimmern, professor of international relations at Oxford University and former professor of political science at Cornell University in the United States, said last night the recent resignation of Marshal Pietro Badoglio from command of the Italian forces in Albania was "the most significant event of recent days".

Sir Alfred spoke on the British Broadcasting Corporation's "Britain Speaks" feature.

"By his resignation," Sir Alfred said, "the failure of the Greek campaign has been revealed to the eyes of the world."

This had resulted in the "stiffening attitude of neutral nations". In addition "there is no lack of signs that Russia is profiting by the situation to reassert her influence in the Balkans."

Sir Alfred warned, however, against "reading too much into Russian policy".

Italian reverses in Albania had narrowed the scope of Hitler's fighting power, Sir Alfred said. "The troubles of his allies have indeed put Hitler in a position in which he needs to exercise every bit of his skill."

France Will Not Join As Ally.

Hitler may want France for a new ally, he said, either in an active capacity or by allowing the use of her ports to German forces.

"But this idea seems as monstrous to us as it does to most Frenchmen," he added.

Two reasons for difficulties in this scheme were that it would expose French cities to British air attacks and probably would lead to a split between France and its colonial empire.

Hitler's other courses would be to send troops to the Mediterranean area or intensify the attack on Britain. Recent heavy air attacks and increased submarine activity showed that he was adopting the latter course. As for the former, "the Italians are notoriously unwilling to see German troops on their soil".

A Lancashire woman who sent a letter to Eire in care of an airplane passenger instead of using the mails was fined £10 ($44.50). The court said the contents of the letter were "very incriminating".

WELFARE CLUB OF STIRLING HOLDS MEETING

R. A. Paterson Elected President of Club for Ensuing Year

JACK DEACON HEARD

Stirling, Dec. 12 (Special)—Music lovers throughout the Stirling district were given a real treat on Tuesday evening Dec. 10th when the Stirling Community Welfare Club held its annual Ladies' Night in the Stirling Community Service Building. The main feature of this interesting program was a vocal recital given by Mr. Jack Deacon of Belleville who was heartily acclaimed for his fine vocal renditions. Other items on the fine program included the report of the nominating committee in the presentation of the new slate of officers for the coming years by Past President T. W. Solmes.

As the dinner gong sounded in the dining hall nearly one hundred members and guests took their places at the gaily decorated tables. Dinner was served by the Stirling branch of the Ontario Women's Institute. Mr. R. W. Meiklejohn capably performed the duties of sergeant-at-arms and lively community singing was enjoyed under the leadership of Art Duncan with Fred Houchin at the piano.

R. A. Patterson is Injured

Marring the happy spirit of the evening was the accident during the fun period in which R. A. Patterson, newly elected President suffered an injury to his left shoulder in a fall. It was in the midst of one of the stunts prepared by the committee for the entertainment of the gathering. Due to a fall Mr. Patterson received a dislocated shoulder and after being treated by Dr. E. A. Carleton was taken to his home. The entire group was saddened by the revelation of the extent of the injuries in this unfortunate accident.

Other items in the funfest portion of the program which were greatly lessened in enjoyment by the unexpected accident included quiz games, intelligence tests and games of consequence under the direction of Rev. A. M. Laverty, H. L. Fair, R. A. Patterson and Arthur Dunan.

Music Enjoyed By All

From the opening song in the community sing-song to the final "March Regimental" rendered as the climaxing number in Mr. John Deacon's recital great interest was taken in the musical part of the evening.

Artist Displays Versatility.

With Mrs. Deacon presiding at the piano, Mr. Deacon introduced each of his carefully selected songs from his splendid repertoire with a portrayal of personality for which he is well-known. For the purpose of reaching the pleasure of all, Mr. Deacon offered approximately ten fine songs and included several of the lesser known ballads. Darkie spirituals from the deep south and soul-stirring favorites of all music lovers, such as "Sylvia", "Sleighing", "Duanna". Width of scope in expression was exemplified in his offering of tender lilting love song to stirring militant marching songs sung in "brae Scotch dialect" and the distinctly different deep south darkie dialect steeped in sincere and religious emotion for which the southern negro is famous. From his first offering to his closing "Regimental March" from "The White Eagle" this brilliant singer was warmly acclaimed by appreciative listeners.

Apart from the unfortunate accident which marred the entire evening somewhat, the program was one of most enjoyable in the history of the club.

At the conclusion of the recital, President Ernie Sarles who presided as master of ceremonies for the evening introduced past president T. W. Solmes who on behalf of the nominating committee presented the new slate of officers for the coming season which was heartily endorsed by the members present. Mr. Solmes also speaking on behalf of the committee recommended the use of membership badges or button in the future and hoped that the matter would be dealt with more thoroughly at some future meeting.

Past President—Ernie Sarles.
President—R. A. (Bob) Patterson.
Vice-president—H. R. Tompkins.

The evening was climaxed with the singing of "There'll Always Be An England".

Scarcity of imported liquid fuel has led to producer-gas and wood tar equipment substitutes for fuels for the engines of Sweden's fisher-fleet, very important in the nation's food supply.

CLUB SPONSORS CHURCH SERVICE

Men's Club of St. John's Holds Special Service in Church

Stirling, Dec. 12 (Special)—St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, was well filled for the special service on Sunday evening sponsored by the Men's Club which was conducted by Rev. John L. Hutchinson, vicar of St. George's Church, Trenton. In his special message to the Stirling congregation, Rev. Hutchinson spoke on the subject "Our Place in the Church." His impressive message was an appeal to greater support to the Missionary activity in the Canadian Church of England and included his impressions of a recent address given in Kingston by Bishop Sherman of Calgary.

Should Be Independent

The Canadian Church missionary effort has been supported by the mother church of England to the extent of five thousand pounds a week, declared the speaker. And now with war raging in the homeland we should be able to meet our own financial obligation without such aid so that the difficulties encountered in war torn England would receive the undivided support of those who so unstintingly have help us in the past. The Ontario Diocese of the Church of England is responding to the call for a firmer missionary support but there is still a great need. A church that is not fired with the missionary zeal is not one of forward movement. Therefore the place and duty of every member is to learn of the churches' need and obligation and make sure that his or her share of the responsibility is met. Rev. Leslie Harding officiated at the evening church service in Trenton to make Rev. Hutchinson's visit possible.

St. Paul's Y.P.U.

The regular weekly meeting of St. Paul's Y.P.U. was held in the church parlours on Monday evening under the direction of the Citizenship division. The meeting opened with quiet music played by Miss Jeanette Workman. Miss Phyllis David, president presided over the meeting and read the Scripture lesson from a portion of the tenth Chapter of St. Luke followed by prayer. Miss Margaret Atkinson offered a pleasing vocal solo "Jesus Master". The address of the evening prepared by Douglas Richardson was given by the President and was based on the story of "The Good Samaritan". It is upon this theme of life that true democracy is based and at the present time we can be good Samaritans to scores of refugees seeking a haven of security within our midst". Another interesting musical contribution was a banjo solo given by Maurice Bell. Rev. A. M. Laverty spoke briefly on the subject of the previous address and commented on the value of its existence to all humanity. The meeting closed with the use of another hymn and the Benediction and was followed by a recreation period consisting of a flower contest directed by the minister.

An interesting letter was received from Miss Clazie Missionary stationed at Tokyo, Japan and well known to many ladies present. The letter described her trip to the field where she is now stationed.

Mrs. G. H. Luery convener of the program committee, was in charge of the remaining portion of the program and began it with the use of a hymn and prayer. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. W. L. Fox and taken from St. Luke's Gospel. A splendid reading entitled Christmas was given by Mrs. R. A. Patterson. POPULAR TEACHER GIVEN SURPRISE

Miss Margaret Watt, Bride-to-be, Showered With Gifts by Friends

Stirling, Dec. 12—(Special)—On Monday evening about fifty friends and neighbours gathered at the Front Street home for a surprise party and shower in honour of Miss Margaret Walt, popular teacher at Stirling High School, who has resigned her position and will become a bride later in the month.

Miss Walt has spent her entire life in Stirling with the exception of years spent attending Queen's University and Toronto University acquiring academic training to qualify for the position which she so capably filled on the Stirling High School teaching staff. Popular throughout the entire district, Miss Walt was honoured by friends and other teachers with whom she has worked. A fine program of musical numbers, games and contests arranged and directed by Mrs. C. B. Rollins and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wells formed the main part of the pleasant evening's entertainment.

Mr. C. I. Hatton acted as master of ceremonies for the evening and the program included a musical selection by Jimmy Armstrong on the guitar and harmonica, vocal duets and solos by Miss L. G. Poynter and Arthur Duncan. Mrs. C. A. Wells directed the contest with Mrs. Poynter providing the necessary music. A vocal selection and tap dance by Carolyn Rollins was also enjoyed by all present.

Guests were received by Mrs. Rollins and Mrs. Wells.

After an enjoyable social period Mr. Hatton briefly outlined the true purpose of the gathering and called upon Mrs. Fred Eigle who read an address. Little Carolyn Rollins and Tommy Wells, dressed as a bride and groom then appeared, drawing a toy wagon into the presence of the honoured guest, bearing a large basket of lovely and useful gifts of every sort.

In a brief and sincere address Miss Walt expressed her gratitude to all her friends for the many lovely gifts and the kindly gesture that provided such a pleasant evening. Rev. A. M. Laverty brought the function to a close with prayer.

CEMENT, STEEL BLOCKS HIGHWAYS TO GUARD IRELAND

Gen. McNaughton Can Claim Credit for Fine Defences Constructed

RESULTS STARTLING

Sam Robertson, superintendent of The Canadian Press London Bureau and War correspondent, recently completed a 500-mile tour of Northern Ireland. This article is the last of a series of three.

(By Sam Robertson)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Belfast, Dec. 12—(CP)—A thousand and one road blocks of cement and steel, designed to impede any invader, guard the myriad highways of Northern Ireland.

They are the strongest and finest devised to date by the military mind and are a vast improvement over the type that once dotted the highways elsewhere in these embattled isles.

There is good reason to believe Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton may claim credit for the improvement of these vital blocks — at least for pointing out the need for the improvement if not for their actual development.

The Canadian soldier-scientist, whose agile mind is, in reality, a mobile research laboratory, was struck with the inadequacy of the blocks he saw in England and elsewhere. He arranged a demonstration to prove his point. The result was startling.

Crushed Two Types

A monstrous 25-ton tank crushed two types of road barriers in a demonstration, staged before enough generals, brigadiers, and other officers to staff an army.

The tank growled into the first barrier and crumbled it. The other block, whose cement and steel made it seem the last word in impregnability, withstood the first battering. But a second charge shattered its vital parts.

The lessons learned at this Canadian-staged show appear to have been embodied in new blocks which guard Ulster's roads.

Behind these and other defences Irish, English and Welsh troops are settling down in Ulster for a winter of training and intensive schooling in strategy. While the B.T.I. (British Troops in Ireland) is keyed for the possibility the invasion may come with tomorrow's dawn, the general belief is that a thrust will not be tried before the spring.

A senior staff officer at Northern Ireland command headquarters told me the educational part of the training program is designed "to broaden the brain pan of the men".

By fostering individual initiative in battle it should make the army more mobile and the attack more fluid.

LEGISLATURE BILL OUSTS TWO FROM HOLDING OFFICE

Winnipeg Alderman and Member of Legislature Comes Under Bill

READ THIRD TIME

Winnipeg, Dec. 12—(CP) — Attorney - General W. J. Major said last night that a Winnipeg alderman and a Manitoba legislature member will be ousted from their seats when Lieutenant-Governor R. F. McWilliams gives royal assent to the bill which automatically bars from holding or seeking public office in the province persons convicted, ordered detained. de[illegible] or interned under the Defence of Canada Regulations.

The bill was given third reading in the Legislature yesterday and Mr. Major, sponsor of the legislation said he expects royal assent will be accorded "within a day or so."

The Attorney-General told The Canadian Press that James Litterick, elected to the Legislature on the Communist ticket in July, 1936, and Alderman Jacob Penner, member of the Winnipeg council since 1933, will be disqualified under the act.

He explained that Litterick, whose present whereabout is unknown, has been sought under the Defence of Canada regulations for some time. Penner elected last fall for a two-year term on the council as a Communist candidate, is at present in an internment camp.

Mr. Major said it is "probable" that both Penner and Litterick will forfeit their indemnities as a result of their disqualification.

Penner is a native of Russia while Litterick was born in Glasgow, Scotland, coming to Canada in 1925. A miner by trade, Litterick was once Provincial Secretary of the Communist party of Canada. The Communist party is now an outlawed organization in the Dominion.

Business in City Shows Signs of Being the Best in Many Years

More Money in Circulation and Aggressive Sales Policy of Belleville Merchants Along With Well-Stocked Shelves Big Factors in Buying Revival

The pulse of Christmas business throbbing in a rapidly increasing tempo bids fair to eclipse the volume of the past twenty-five years, according to a consensus of merchant opinion on Front Street today.

Purse-strings of a buying public that opened a year ago to send seasonal sales skyrocketing to a new high, are yawning wider than ever, the aftermath of industrial and business prosperity that is both directly and indirectly attributable to the reaction of a country at war.

There is more money available, the merchant opinion revealed. And as a consequence Mr. and Mrs. John Public, in the flush of more ready funds, are selecting and buying a much better quality of merchandise than heretofore.

Quickly cognizant of public demands foresighted merchants have stocked their shelves with the best stocks procurable and as a result, it was stated, are believed to be confining a generous portion of business that ordinarily goes to the metropolitan centres, to Belleville.

But the business men and merchants did not confine their activities to the securing and stocking of high quality merchandise alone. They selected the newspaper as the medium to place their goods and prices before an eager buying public with results that thus far have exceeded their fondest expectations.

Sales Volume Up

Perhaps a concrete evidence of the seasonal increase in business, even with ten more shopping days to Christmas, is the statements made by several merchants that thus far their total sales have exceeded the entire volume of 1939.

And despite the fact that up to the present, the weather has been anything but conducive to record shopping days, Christmas crowds have defied the elements and wandered through brilliantly lighted and decorated shops with but one purpose in mind—to get their shopping done early.

This, in conjunction with the fact that the inevitable last-minute crowds which swarm shops and stores during that final twenty-four hours will add an eleventh-hour impetus to the rising tempo of business, is in part the reason for the optimism that at present prevails among the merchants of the city.

Another noticeable feature of the buying season thus far, is the fact that large crowds of out-of-town shoppers have made their appearance in the city and are taking mounds of merchandise to rural centres and communities. This is significant of the efforts of the business men of the city in not only procuring the best possible for their patrons, but of their foresight in selecting the newspaper as the medium for displaying to the best advantage their goods and prices.

Large Business After Parade

The Santa Claus parade held on Wednesday after being postponed from Saturday afternoon, was the signal for a surge of mass shopping that was most satisfactory. All afternoon shops were crowded with direct purchasers and potential ones. According to store managers and owners, the "lay-away" system is proving a great success, and is an indication of the marked uptrend in seasonal buying that will, if present indications prove correct, mark 1940 as one of record business activity on the part of the merchants and an increased seasonal satisfaction on the part of the buying public.

GAYDA CLAIMS 'AGENTS' AT WORK

Fascist Editor Says They Have Been Trying to Break Morale of Italians

Rome, Dec. 12 (AP). — Virginio Gayda, Fascist editor, alleged today that "agents" had been discovered at work in Italy trying to break the morale of the people. He claimed they were failing in the face of Italian "firmness".

Gayda complained Britain had marshalled "unusual armed forces to break Italy" and had added to them an "insidious" propaganda attack.

"This insidious operation," the editor declared, "which the British would like to carry out today with the aid of foreign radio and some agents more or less known inside the country breaks again in face of the firmness of the Italians."

Gayda asserted Britain's "exceptional concentration of forces" against Italy was for three reasons, which he listed as follows:

1. "Because Britain needed good news badly."
2. "Because she needed to increase American faith in Britain's chances of victory."
3. "Because she wanted to impose a war of nerves on Italy."

The Gayda statements, an editorial in Il Giornale d'Italia, did not say whether by "agents" the editor meant foreign provocateurs or Italian "pessimists," against whom other editors have written.

Silent On Fall of Sidi Barrani.

Rome, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Italian high command today reported fierce fighting in the Buqbuq zone of western Egypt, west of Sidi Barrani, but its communique did not state whether Sidi Barrani had been evacuated by the Italians.

(The British command yesterday announced Sidi Barrani, seventy miles inside the Egyptian border, had been taken by British forces. Buqbuq is 35 miles west of Sidi Barrani.)

On the Albanian front the Italians claimed they repulsed sporadic Greek attacks with the capture of prisoners and arms.

POLICE COURT

Two of three Thurlow Township residents who had been summoned into county police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., at the court house Thursday, failed to answer to their names. Following evidence adduced by Bruce Martin, township tax collector, convictions were registered in the cases and fines of $2 and full costs were levied despite the absence of the accused persons who had been duly notified and failed to observe the summonses issued and charging them with failing to procure their 1940 dog licence.

Convictions were registered against James Donovan and George Fleming in their absence, while Earl Green, also of Thurlow, paid the same amount of fine and costs prior to the opening of court when charged with harbouring a dog without first having obtained a dog tag.

Failed To Secure Licence.

E. Scott, Wooler trucker, paid $24.65 fine and costs after being convicted of operating his truck without having procured the necessary public commercial vehicle licence.

Gordon Sanford, Belleville, pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving and was fined $10 without costs. Sanford's driving privileges were suspended for three months also. The charge arose out of an accident which occurred near the Belleville Cemetery crossing on Nov.
"This car never should have been permitted on the highway in the first place," testified Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch, who preferred the charge.

A non-support case, which was heard in camera, concluded the morning's proceedings.

EXPECT FEW CHANGES IN COUNTY ELECTIONS

Municipal nominations in those Hastings County communities who did not select their reeves and councillors in early December, will be held on, Monday, December 30 and elections on the following Monday.

Prospects point to very little excitement however, as the greater part of the reeves who attended the county council sessions earlier in the month stated that they had "heard nothing as yet of any elections".

If earlier nominations can be used as a criterion there will be few changes if any in the remaining municipalities, although elections may be held in one or two of the southern municipalities. Tyendinaga electors will get a chance to vote as Deputy Reeve W. A. White has announced his intention of contesting the reeveship held at present by Reeve Stewart Dies, Thurlow, and Sidney officials are ominously silent, and anything might happen .

The new county council will select the 1941 warden at the January session.

Gardiner Believes It Unwise to Ask Higher Cheese Price

Mr. F. R. Mallory, Secretary-Treasurer of the Belleville Cheese Board has received a letter from the Federal Minister of Agriculture, Hon. James G. Gardiner. This is in response to resolutions forwarded to Ottawa by the Cheese Board dealing with the question of increased cheese production and suggestions of higher prices for cheese to offset greater production costs caused by the war. The letter follows:

F. R. Mallory, Esq.,
Secretary,
Belleville Cheese Board of Trade,
Stirling, Ont.

Dear Mr. Mallory:—

I have yours of November 28th, and appreciate greatly the tone in which it is written, and also the manner in which the Belleville Cheese Board of Trade has put the whole question.

I have no doubt that you have the whole picture in mind but it will do no harm to recall one or two of our past experiences.

Without going into detail I think it is correct to say that we did in Canada put forth an effort toward the end of the last war to maintain a very high price for cheese. Our main competitor of that time, who shipped considerably less cheese to Britain than we, namely, New Zealand, was not so much concerned about price for the time being as we were. They stepped into the market and supplied a very much larger percentage than they had been previously supplying. The result of their actions coupled with our own was that from that time down to very recently there had been a constant reduction in the amount of cheese supplied from Canada, and a constant increase in the amount supplied from New Zealand. It is not our desire to take anything away from another Dominion, but I felt ever since coming to Ottawa, that we should put forth some effort to get back our fair share of that market.

We have, therefore, been encouraging production in every way possible, including the payment of a premium on the best grades of cheese and payment on part of the cost for placing better equipment in these factories.

We did, also, put on, through the Department of Trade and Commerce, a very strong advertising campaign in Great Britain. Our efforts have resulted in cheese production being constantly upward for the last four years, until today we are producing one-third more cheese than we were five or six years ago. Not only are we producing one-third more but we are marketing a great deal more in the British market.

When the cheese producers approached me last year they asked the price of 18c a pound. I pointed out to them at the time that it would not only be unreasonable but unwise to submit any such price to the British Government. It would put us right back where we were at the end of the last war. I felt that in the end this would result in our losing the British market.

The year has demonstrated that the position taken was a wise one. We finally accepted 14c and increased production and increased marketing in Britain has been the result.

When we went over this year we suggested to the British Government that we were prepared to supply them with cheese in at least the volume of last year, and would like if possible to increase that volume. We ask them to work out for us the best possible price and suggested that it would be helpful if they increase it by 1c net at Montreal, making the price 15c instead of 14c.

The officials in Britain spent a day or two upon the matter and eventually came back and said the most they could give us was 14.4c which placed us on an equality with others who are delivering cheese to that market, after taking into consideration the fact that we received a premium on our cheese in Britain over the price which New Zealand receives. We thought it wise to accept that offer which, I think, taken from the British point of view, is all that we could ask for, more particularly at a time when Britain is faced with such difficulties as are confronting her.

If more must go to the farmer for cheese in order to provide for production, then it will have to come, as you suggest, from the Treasury of Canada. That is why I appreciate the tone of your letter.

I do not think that those who are criticizing the agreement which was made with Great Britain are helping the cheese industry in Canada. If there must be further consideration it should not be on the basis that 14.4 is not the price that we ought to have under the circumstances, but on the basis that the farmer can not produce in Canada at that price owing to conditions which exist here. If something must be done in relation to labour in order to make delivery at 14.4 a possibility, then that is a matter which should be dealt with in Canada, and not given as a reason for criticizing the agreement.

If we are permitting unreasonable things to happen in connection with labour as a result of our desires to get greater production of something else, then that is a matter which should be met here. I would therefore, suggest that the proper approach to a question of that king is a compilation of fact dealing with the situation existing on the farm brought about by something which is happening in other direction which has nothing directly to do with agriculture itself.

I do not think that anyone can establish a case for a higher price on cheese on the basis of present feed costs, unless it be mill feeds.

I would, therefore, suggest that organizations which are interested in helping with the present situation might do so by getting all the facts related to other activities, and can assure you that we will be cooperating in every way toward that end.

I am asking my officials to secure all available information in order that we can have it presented in proper form at the right time. We would welcome any assistance from you in that direction.

Yours Sincerely,
James G. Gardiner.

Traffic Interrupted At Busy Intersection

Traffic was slightly inconvenienced at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets at the noon hour on Thursday when a rear axle of a truck owned by Mr. R. B. Hamilton, of Foxboro, broke and left the truck stranded almost in the centre of the intersection. The truck, loaded with coal, was proceeding north on Front Street and had just passed the centre of the crossing when the axle broke off just inside the wheel, allowing the truck to drop to the street. A hurry-up call to the wrecker was necessary in order to have the truck removed.

YOUTH TRAINING SCHOOL DAMAGED

Loss by Fire in Building in Regina Variously Estimated Between $90,000 and $170,000

Regina, Dec. 12 (CP)—Fire which started in an airplane wing in the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training School here yesterday swept the building in which the school was located and caused damage estimated variously at between $90,000 and $170,000.

A spark from an acetylene torch settled on the fabric of an airplane wing in the school's air engine shop. Students fought the blaze with extinguishers but, after they apparently had the fire under control, the flames suddenly burst into new life and quickly spread.

The 225 students attending classes left the building in orderly fashion. Several lost hats, coats and overshoes. Other occupants of the building also left safely when the alarm sounded.

Lost in the blaze were the equipment and fixtures used by the Training School; stock of the Provincial Government Book Bureau; stock and equipment of the Regina Tent and Awning Company; stock and equipment of the Western Knitting Mills. The top floor of the warehouse was gutted and the other two floors damaged.

Smoke and water damage was caused in an adjoining one-storey building, owned by Smeed's and occupied by the Regina Kik Beverages and a garage.

Thurlow Twp. Conservatives Elect Officers for Coming Year

Geo. H. Stokes, Member for South Hastings, Gives Principal Address at Meeting

VARIED PROGRAM

The vitally important part which the township political organization plays in the governmental circles was stressed by Mr. George Stokes, M.P. for South Hastings, as he spoke at the annual meeting and election of officers of the Thurlow Conservative Association at Cannifton on Wednesday evening. Mr. Stokes urged that in view of the changed order which is almost certain to exist in this country at the close of the present war, the Conservative organizations will have a duty to perform and the party can ill-afford to let them drop.

Other speakers to take part in the evening's program which followed the election of officers included Dr. W. C. Morgan, Rev. F. C. Beazer of Roslin, Reeve Roscoe Robson of Thurlow Township and Deputy Reeve George MacDonald. The two scheduled principal speakers, Hon. George Challies, M.P.P., and Dr. Harold Welsh M.P.P. for East Hastings, were unable to attend.

Congratulates Officers.

Claiming it his first opportunity to meet the Conservatives of Thurlow since his election last spring, Mr. Stokes took this occasion to thank his supporters for their efforts on his behalf and, continuing, congratulated the newly-elected officers of Thurlow Conservatives upon their election.

Mr. Stokes attacked the Liberal government in their heretofore apparent laxity in prosecuting Canada's war effort, stating that it was only recently that government heads had realized Canadians were behind the war effort to the utmost and were now beginning to make things move. He likewise claimed a great deal of camouflage in government contract lists published, saying that although parliament had been called admittedly to acquaint the Canadian people with our war effort, the speeches by members "quoted many figures but gave out little information". "We are now in the second year of the war and the government is just waking up to what people expect of them," he charged.

Referring to the apparent plight of the agriculturists in the matter of prices which they are forced to accept, Mr. Stokes stated that according to the way in which the government were using the farmers it would appear that "they were a very wealthy class". With prices for farm produce such as they are, we cannot expect the farmer to continue as the first line of defence. Farmers cannot compete in the labor market with the wages paid to industrial workers. It appears as though "the government is helping industry to help in our war effort, but they are not helping the farmer to help in the war effort," Mr. Stokes charged.

Speaks For Soldiers.

Mr. Stokes charged the government as refusing to give soldiers on leave any special consideration in regard to railway fares other than what is in effect at the present time. "Any man willing to fight for his country is entitled to, and deserving of, the best consideration in such matters," said Mr. Stokes.

In conclusion the speaker stated that the Opposition were pressing the government for a more comprehensive phase in Canada's war effort. The Conservative leader, Hon. Mr. Hanson was making a great effort toward this end, he said. The possibility of an early national convention of the Conservative party for the purpose of choosing a new leader was forecast by Mr. Stokes, as he concluded with a regret that Dr. H. Welsh was unable to be present at the meeting due to illness.

Rev. C. F. Beazer in a rousing patriotic address urged that every Canadian put forth their utmost effort to bring victory in the conflict in which the British Empire is now engaged. "It is the duty of the Conservative party to show a better program. We as Conservatives need to be more patriotic in the future than we ever have in the past. We must do our level best in order that we may be victorious," urged Rev. Mr. Beazer.

The speaker reiterated Mr. Stokes' utterances in that soldiers were deserving of better treatment by the government. "The men who enlist to fight for their country so that democracy might stand, and for the pittance which they receive, are deserving of encouragement," he stated.

Must Be Taught Something Else

Referring to the war situation, the speaker claimed that "until the rising generations of Germans are taught something else beside causing bloodshed, we will be facing a new war every 25 years." "To rally around democracy is the only solution to a new world. Once democracy is killed, you kill Christianity," said Rev. Mr. Beazer. "Let us concentrate every effort, every energy to win the war so 'Britons never shall be slaves,'" he concluded.

Reeve Roscoe Robson, in a short talk, welcomed Mr. George Stokes and expressed his regret that Hon. Mr. Challies and Dr. Welsh were unable to be present. Referring to addresses of Rev. Mr. Beazer and Mr. Stokes, Mr. Robson claimed that Britain was now paying for planes and pilots which she needed desperately at the present time, but said that food was also a vital necessity and advised the farmers to take their present setback with a grin and to keep up their herds and production in preparation for the time when a shortage of food may commence.

Mr. Fred Mitchell acted as chairman for the evening's program which was opened by singing the patriotic number, "The Maple Leaf Forever." Other items on the program consisted of solos by Rev. Beazer, who sang several patriotic numbers, a solo by Mrs. W. Insley and a reading by Mrs. Harry Harrison who also acted as pianist. Mrs. Harold Beatty, Past-President Thurlow Ladies' Conservative Club, and Mrs. W. R. Juby, 1st Vice-President-elect, also spoke briefly expressing a vote of thanks to those taking part in the program. Mr. Jas. Bunnett, President-elect, spoke briefly, moving a vote of thanks to the speakers and promising to devote his best effort in his office of President.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The capture by British troops of the Italian advance base of Sidi Barrani in Egypt need not cause acute surprise but the incidental capture of three Italian generals should.

The three generals and upwards of 10,000 troops surrendered after three days of British motorized attack, an astonishing performance for soldiers who were picked to fight their way through Egypt to the Suez Canal.

The cause of their surrender, however, probably is roughly the same cause which has sent the Italians sprawling backwards from their attempted invasion of Greece.

Italian Adventure

The fact appears to be that the Italians undertook an adventure in the belief that they might make hay while the sun shone and without having to pay for it. It looks now as if they jumped into the war last June when France was collapsing in the belief that it was all over but the cheering.

Whether they made real preparations for a fight has never been clear. They seem to have accumulated considerable stores, judging from the quantities which have fallen into British and Greek hands, but these stores are always described as "war materials" and the question of what they did about food reserves has never been answered completely.

Whether they were adequately supplied with oil and other fuels also has not been determined with any definiteness, but the inactivity of their navy indicates they were not.

Were Supplies Lacking?

Lack of supplies may ultimately be shown the cause of the Italian collapse. Italy had a huge army—"8,000,000 bayonets," Mussolini used to shout—and it had a navy which, with its original six fast battleships and numerous other craft, should have been able to maintain itself in the Mediterranean while British ships were busy elsewhere.

Why that navy was unable to maintain adequate contact with Marshal Graziani's force in Libya and Egypt has not been made clear. Nor has it been made clear why no Italian ships showed themselves when British vessels shelled Sidi Barrani the day before yesterday to conjoin with a mechanized land and air attack.

All these factors, combined with obviously low morale at home, may explain the surrender—or capture—of three Italian generals. They may have been as fed up as the troops who have surrendered in Greece or the bedeviled citizens whom the Italian press proposes to beat as defeatists.

Italian Press in Lather of Sweat

The Italian press, incidentally, has burst into such a lather of sweat over defeatism as to indicate it is even more prevalent than outsiders expected at this time. It contains threats for civilians who are faint-hearted and soldiers who don't win battles and uses extravagant and unparliamentary language in denouncing them.

Virginio Gayda so-called "Mussolini's mouthpiece," continues to shout victory in his editorials and other papers fulminate of vengeance, but they can't shout down the editor of the minor sheet a couple of days ago who complained about the cost of clothing and amenities and remanded the Fascists that "man does not live by bread alone."

Strife Seen Afoot Within Italy

He suggested that the Fascist administration was fostering profiteers, noting that prices, but not wages, rose.

This anonymous gentleman gave the outside world the best tangible evidence so far that strife is afoot within Italy. He bucked the trend of the Italian press and perhaps has paid the consequences, but at least his friends can say the spirit of Garibaldi lived within him.

1942'S RUNNING CUP AND SAUCER LISTS NOMINEES

Owners Across Canada Name Horses For Rich Thoroughbred Stakes

Toronto, Dec. 12 (CP)—Willie Morrissey, Toronto breeder whose thoroughbreds Bunty Lawless and Willie the Kid have won King's Plate renewals, is among the 107 leading Canadian breeders who have nominated 57 fillies and 50 colts for the 1942 renewal of Mrs. Orpen's Cup and Saucer.

Morrissey's stable has yet to win a Cup and Saucer race, now Canada's richest thoroughbred event, exceeding in value the King's Plate. Only four years old, this race for two-year-olds named for the widow of the late Abe Orpen is ranked with the best on the continent. Owners from Calgary to Montreal have nominated.

In 1940, 88 nominations were received and for the 1941 race, 82. But 1942 will be the biggest of them all, for the field of approximately 15 which will be chosen from the 107 nominees for the sixth running of the race probably will be the most representative of Canada's breeders than entered in any Canadian race before.

The first year of the race, 1937, only 41 juveniles were nominated with the $5,000 purse and added moneys totalling $6,310. Last summer the $5,000-added event was worth $9,650. The race is held each Otober at Long Branch race track in suburban Toronto.

Nominates 13

For 1942, W. H. Wright of Barrie, Ont., owner of one of Canada's largest breeding establishments, tops the list of nominators. He has named 13, and 11 of these are sired by Worthmore, "daddy" of Archworth, who won the Cup and Saucer in 1938.

Among those who had nominated foals for the 1942 event, besides Wright, when nominations closed at the Toronto offices of the Long Branch Jockey Club recently, were: R. S. McLaughlin, Oshawa, Ont.; George M. Hendrie, Hamilton, Ont.; H. C. Hatch, Toronto; R. James Speers, Winnipeg; K. Inamasu, Calgary; C. L. Jacques, Calgary; J. Frowde Seagram, Waterloo, Ont.; Hon. Donat Raymond, Montreal; Col. J. E. Smallman, London, Ont., and Willie Morrissey, of Toronto.

Although not more than 15 are expected to go to the post, breeders generally name all their foals, taking no chances on leaving out an ill-considered "ugly duckling" which may develop into a winning thoroughbred.

WARTIME BATTLE FOR FIGHT CROWN TO KID TANNER

London, Dec. 12 (CP)—Johnny Best, Liverpool boxing promoter, is trying to arrange a British Empire featherweight championship match between Nel Tarleton, the present titleholder, and Kid Tanner, British Guiana champion.

Popular among British fight crowds, Tanner recently dropped a close decision to Jim Brady of Dundee, in a hard-hitting 10-round bout. Tarleton, 34 year old veteran who intends to join the Royal Air Force next month, won the decision from Sergeant Tom Smith of Sunderland in his last fight.

Rugby Booms In the West

Vancouver, Dec. 12. — Canadian football (or Canadian rugby, as it is known in the east) is rounding out one of its most successful years, both competitively and financially, here on the coast.

Weeks before the season opened sport was taking it on the chin so roughly hereabouts, grid officials were ready to duck for cover. On the verge of folding up their Big Four League, mainly because the University of British Columbia was ready to scrap its entry, officials suddenly decided on a plan of retrenchment and compromise. It worked beautifully.

At U.B.C. students were obliged to put in their Saturday afternoons doing military training, thus preventing them from scheduling any afternoon games. At first this appeared to be the kiss of death, for the Varsity entry was acknowledged right back in the sports picture.

Ferraro Back Coaching Cagers

Johnny Ferraro, former king-pin of Montreal gridirons, who retired from the football wars prior to the start of this season, is right back in the local sports picture as playing-coach of Nationals in the senior section of the Montreal Basketball League.

The big fellow played with Nationals last year and wound up at the top of the league's scorers for the second time since going to Montreal in 1936. He's not a new hand at coaching either, having handled the Dominion-Douglas two years ago The club made the eastern final that season.

Paul Thompson Is Voted The Ideal Hockey Manager

Paul Thompson, voted last season the outstanding manager in the National Hockey League, is rated by his own Chicago Black Hawks players as one pilot who has made pleasant and interesting the usually tiresome work of training.

Thompson employs many unusual forms of ice-work to give the players variety. One of these is a drill designed to teach men to watch opponents rather than the puck at close quarters. The defenders have no sticks, and thus can use only blocking and body-checking to halt rushes.

* * *

In another training "stunt" Thompson lines up his players, veterans and rookies all mixed together into two files, gives the front man a huge medicine ball, blows a whistle and launches a relay race, down the long ice to the opposite end, touch the wall, wheel, race back to hand the ball to the next man.

In still another, two squads go to either net end begin, one at a time, executing figure eights around the cage, wreathing themselves 'round and 'round the iron edges. Thompson claims that's what made Eddie Shore strong in his day. "He worked out that training stunt for himself years ago, and did it hours a day, over and over. It gave him those great legs of his, the legs that kept him going long after the rest of his body was through," said Thompson.

* * *

Groups of fours, one group with a puck, the next with none, but trying to capture the other quartette's rubber is another Thompson stunt. And one of the training stunts the players enjoy most is "chase the puck". It is given to Johnny Gottselig, one of the greatest of sleight-of-hand puck jugglers in hockey, and the whole team tries to get it away from this wheeling, circling, elusive puck-ragger, who, after thirteen years of brilliant service, is still going strong.

Chicago Hockey Crowds Increase Each Season

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Chicago, a great sporting city, was one of the last to be invaded by professional hockey, a game that was entirely new to that teeming mid-west metropolis. Yet, has come to be big business, in so great was the appeal of Canada's glittering winter game, that hockey capital letters, in the City of Breezes.

In the ten-year period from the 1929-30 season, the Blackhawks, Chicago's representatives in the National Hockey League, played to 2,298,204 people, an average of almost 230,000 per year. Last winter close to 280,000 fans paid more than $240,000 to watch the 34 home games and an additional 15,000 saw the one playoff battle with Toronto.

These figures are worth noting in view of the fact that the Hawks have an even better campaign ahead of them in 1940-41. The Hawk offices were opened two weeks ahead of scheduled time to take care of mail, seeking reservations. Nearly all of the 800 odd box seats were immediately snapped up before the season ever dawned, and a record advance demand for all seats was recorded.

BRITISH SOCCER HOPES TO SPURT AFTER NEW YEAR

Football Managers to Discuss Means to Overcome Handicap of Raids

London, Dec. 12 (CP)—London football managers are meeting to consider plans for continuing play during the second half of the season, starting after the New Year.

Poor crowds, the result of the uncertainty of games being played to a finish, have made football this season a financial loss for every London club and at a preliminary meeting of managers a committee was appointed to investigate the possibility of having the Ministry of Home Security lift its ban on play during air raids.

Also studied, and received favorably by most managers, was a suggestion by Tottenham Hotspurs that the London teams stage a cup series after the New Year. It was believed all-London games might draw larger crowds than those with out-of-town teams.

Need for some scheme to revive interest in the game was stressed by George Allison, manager of Arsenal, who said that "if London isn't doomed, it's in a bad way." Arsenal, current leaders of the South Regional League and one of the wealthiest clubs in the country, recently had to cancel a game with Brighton because they couldn't raise a full team.

TROUBLES IN THE AXIS

We read of bombings of Britain, of losses at sea, and we say that the war is "going badly."

We overlook the reverses, the difficulties, of the enemy.

Yet the enemy is having his reverses and difficulties, too. Some of them fairly vital.

Let us look at the picture.

Italy, thus far, has been defeated and humiliated by Greece.

Mussolini's drive through Egypt, once regarded as grave, has been topped by British naval guns and Egyptian sands.

The Italian navy has been partially crippled; with British supremacy maintained in the Mediterranean.

Meanwhile Germany's "new order" in Europe has trailed off into doubt.

Spain has not joined the Axis.

Bulgaria has not joined it.

Yugoslavia has not joined it.

There has been no attack on Gibraltar.

No attack on the Suez Canal.

No drive towards the oil fields of Iran and Iraq.

Meanwhile reports come of differences between Hitler and Mussolini; of defections from Vichy in the old Empire of France.

Seen as a whole, the picture is not so black. It is well that we should be clear about our own troubles; clear about the task we have on hand. It is equally important, if we wish to be realistic and maintain a sense of proportion, to look at the position of the enemy.—Ottawa Journal.

SKIING'S GREAT IF SET-UP GOOD

Montclair, N.J., Dec. 12 (CP). — "Get in shape before you ski!" That is the advice of Nancy Reynolds, United States open and amateur women's slalom champion.

Half the aches and pains which follow the winter's first excursion to snow covered slopes could be avoided, says Nancy, by simple knee bending and rotation exercises directly connected with the sport.

Muscular co-ordination, balance, poise, complexion—all benefit from skiing, but it takes preliminary set-up and practice.

COMISKEY HEARING OFF

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 12.—Pendin the settlement of inheritance taxe a hearing on Mrs. Grace Reidy Comiskey's petition for a $100,00 widow's award from the estate o' her husband, J. Louis Comiskey late owner of the White Sox, was set back, November 25, when Probate Judge John F. O'Connell continued the hearing to December 5 Comiskey died July 18, 1939.

The estate was listed at $698,18 in the inventory filed for tax purposes. The First National Bank of Chicago is executor.

ANOTHER BROTHER ACT

Squee Allen, rookie forward of the New York Americans, is a brother of George Allen, of Chicago Black Hawks, so that another brother-act comes into the National Hockey League to add to the Patricks, Jacksons, Conachers, Metzes, Carses, Colvilles already performing.

DURABLE TEAM

Showing remarkable individual durability, New York Rangers played their last National League game, last season, with exactly the same line-up they presented on opening night.

BIRMINGHAM'S BIT

Birmingham, Dec. 12 (CP).—This city's "War Weapons Week" held before the recent severe blitzkrieg on the city raised more than £8,000,000 ($35,600,000) for defence purposes.

DEBUNKS POLAR BEAR

Colorado Springs, Colo., Dec. 12 (CP).—The polar bear does not like cold weather, Edward W. Clark of the Mountain Zoo, reports. The warmer it is the better the polar bears like it if they have plenty of water, Clark says.

ART WIEBE MOST STITCHED-UP PLAYER

One of the cleanest-playing defence men in the National Hockey League is Art Wiebe, right defence of the Chicago Black Hawk team. Yet he's had more stitches placed in various parts of his anatomy than the average player in the strenuous winter sport, where stitches are a regular part of the proceedings.

Curiously, practically all of the wounds which necessitated stitching of the Wiebe face or body have been quite accidental. In the Hawk-Toronto playoff game of 1938, Wiebe was sitting on the bench, as the second period ended.

* * *

The biggest single job of stitching, in hockey circles, is believed to have been done on Helge Bostrom when he was a Black Hawk. A skate caught him over the instep and it required 148 stitches to pull torn muscles back together. Although this record is held by a former Black Hawk, Wiebe isn't at all anxious to excel it.

Black Hawk Trainer Is a Busy Man

One of the busiest persons in, also out, of the National Hockey League is Eddie Froelich, trainer of Paul Thompson's Chicago Blackhawks.

He looked after the aches and pains of Kansas City ball players in the American Association during the past season. Froelich has had a hectic career in the world of sore muscles and charley horses.

One year he worked in turn as trainer of the Chicago Cardinals in pro football, the Blackhawks in hockey and the Brooklyn Dodgers in baseball.

BOWLERS HELP WAR

Cobourg, Ont., Dec. 12 (CP) — Cobourg Lawn Bowling Club officials said they will propose to the Central Ontario Lawn Bowling Association that all prizes in association tournaments take the form of war savings certificates.

This policy has already been adopted by the Cobourg club, and at the annual meeting and banquet awards for the season's rink games were in war savings certificates.

Other clubs in the Association will be informed of the proposal so that it can be discussed at the annual meeting next Spring.

HELPING HAND

Too much cannot be said for the generous gesture on the part of the bowling alley owners and operators in and around Toronto in donating the use of their equipment for five days, from Dec. 26 to 31, inclusive. The proceeds of this bowling week will go to the Sports Service League. Now that the tickets are ready the Canadian Bowling Association will take upon itself the soliciting of every league in the city, and Harry Tobin, C.B.A. president, will find little time for Christmas shopping until this week of bowling is over.

TRAINING CAGE OFFICIALS

Columbus, O., Dec. 12 (CP)—A training course is being conducted here for women basketball officials. Sponsored by the Central Ohio Board of Women's Officials, the course provides demonstration of rules violation, proper officiating methods and instruction in rules interpretation. Written examinations will conclude the studies.

CHANGE HORSES

Baltimore, Dec. 12 (CP)—A pair of binoculars belonging to a German officer in the first Great War—and used in the intervening years by a Baltimore man—soon may be scanning English skies for German raiding airplanes. It was one contribution to a committee collecting weapons for "defence of British homes."

MARLBOROS WIN IN OVERTIME OVER LONDON 4-0

Teams Deadlocked Without Score at End of Regulation Time

GAME QUITE ROUGH

Hamilton Undisputed Leader of Senior Race by Beating St. Catharines 4 to 3

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton's return to the position of undisputed leader of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" series last night was overshadowed by the last 10 minutes of the game between Toronto Marlboros and London Streamliners.

For while the top-rung Dofascos were subduing St. Catharines Saints 4-3 the Marboros had to go into overtime to beat London 4-0. And what an overtime it was!

Marlboros climbed into second place with the victory but they had to fight to do it—fight in more ways than one. When Ed. Shamlock finally broke up the scoreless deadlock with his goal after 18 seconds of overtime, London tempers, frayed by 60 minutes of furiously fast hockey, reaching the breaking point. Before the game was over three major penalties were handed out in the stopping of two separate fights. In the general disorganization following the fistic sidelights, the Londoners cracked and Toronto ran in three more goals.

The first fight was between Dunc Galbraith, London right winger from Strathroy, and Shamlock. Both were penalized. Then Smack Allen of London and John Inglis of Marlboros started swinging and Allen was penalized. That ended the more lethal activities of the game.

The Hamilton game was rough, too, although the penalties were comparatively few. Hamilton had to come from behind twice before the spirited St. Catharines club went behind for good.

George Hastie scored his first goal for St. Catharines early in the first period, but Woodward got it back. Then Kit Massey put Saints out in front again, but Ab Conick equalized. Quick successive goals by Doug Fritz and Barlow in the second period were followed by Massey's second goal of the game and ended the scoring.

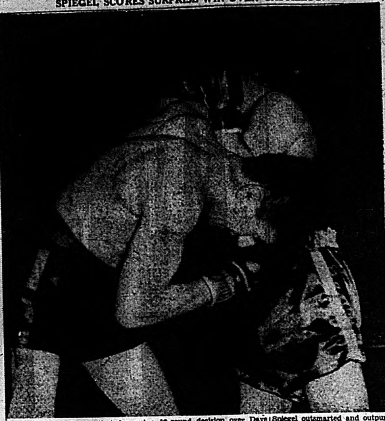
LOUIS AND GODOY MAY FIGHT IN LOS ANGELES

New York, Dec. 12 (AP) — The third heavyweight championship meeting between Joe Louis and Arturo Godoy was tentatively scheduled today for next April in Los Angeles' Gilmore Stadium.

Los Angeles Promoter Tom Gallery and New York Promoter Mike Jacobs talked over the bout at a meeting with Godoy's manager, Al Weill.

SPIEGEL SCORES SURPRISE WIN OVER CASTILLOUX



With a fighting heart that far outweighed his handicap of a crippled leg, Tommy Spiegel, LEFT, of Uniontown, Pa., whacked out a 10-round decision over Dave Castilloux, Canadian lightweight champ, in their non-title bout at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto. Spiegel outsmarted and outpunched Castilloux and won the unanimous decision of the referee and two judges.

CANADIENS MEET MAPLE LEAFS IN THIRD CONTEST

Former Coach of Leafs, Dick Irvin, Would Like Victory for His New Team

IN SIXTH PLACE

Canadiens Starting to Click as Veterans Return to Form

(By The Canadian Press)

Nothing would give Coach Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens greater pleasure than a victory by his team over Toronto Maple Leafs the club he coached for a good many seasons up until this one, and although the Montrealers haven't been able to do it in two meetings this season they get another chance tonight.

By all accounts the National Hockey League-leading Leafs should win, for they found no trouble with Canadiens in their first two games and while the Leafs occupy the loftiest position in the league the Montrealers are in sixth place. There's no comparison in the goals scored and goals against records of the teams, for Leafs are ahead of everybody but Boston Bruins in the first department and have had less goals scored against them than any other club.

But there have been signs lately that Canadiens are improving, after a slow start, under the patient Irvin. So far the numerous rookies on the team have been getting most of the goals and Irvin figures that once veterans like Hector (Toe) Blake start to click everything will be all right.

As a salute to Irvin, Toronto officials and players have contributed to a silverware presentation to be made to the former Leaf mentor before the game tonight.

Only one other game is scheduled for tonight with Chicago Black Hawks playing Americans at New York. Tomorrow night New York Rangers play at Detroit against the Wings.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with
Ken J. Colling

Railbirds taking a gander at the candidates aspiring for positions with the R.C.A.F. "Flyer" seniors were anything but impressed the other night. "Surely from a military base where over 2,000 young Canadians are training there is better hockey material than was seen at the Hume Arena on Tuesday" was the general consensus of opinion of the railbirds. Undoubtedly there are some good hockey players training at the local air base, but the problem is to induce them to play hockey when prevailing conditions demand their undivided attention. Ken McAdam, former McMaster University star who turned professional with the Toronto Maple Leafs and was farmed out to Syracuse last season, is in charge of Y.M.C.A. physical directorate at the Airport and it is rumoured Ken will line-up with the "Flyers" after organizing some intermural winter sports at the base. With one or two well-known hockey names on the squad it should not be long before others of prominence will follow in line.

However, both the Air Force and the Reliance Aircraft had better do some early pre-season shopping for players and not depend too much on Santa Claus dropping star pucksters into their lap. It is understood that both Peterborough and Whitby are girding their loins for a tough, hard group struggle, while Kingston is sitting back with several aces up their sleeve. Ardent hockey fans who watched the Reliance seniors work out on Tuesday agree Skipper St. Louis has the nucleus of the best team to represent Belleville in some years but here all seem to feel the chances of the "plane-makers" would be considerably enhanced by the assured presence of two additional forwards, who can score [illegible], and a good sturdy defenceman. Incidentally Harry "Hot-dog" McCreary will be available to the local senior team when he returns from military training camp. Harry sailed the Great Lakes all summer and is in splendid physical condition and also assured this corner he was looking forward to his best season on the ice lanes.

"Beware of Greeks bearing gifts" is an old proverb handed down since the days of the Trojan Horse. In the same light we marvelled at the pious and sanctimonious attitude of Coach Longwell of the Bowmanville High School football team. Coach Longwell registered the highest of indignation when he protested that the Belleville Collegians were using "naughty words" on the football field during the Belleville-Bowmanville series. As a matter of fact Coach Longwell assumed such a pious attitude one would take him for the man Diogenes failed to locate. Now it appears there was a method to Longwell's assuming such an aloof and mightier-than-thou attitude, because it just leaked out that two of the Bowmanville Interscholastic football squad were allegedly over age so no wonder Coach Longwell was assuming such a goody goody attitude as he was apparently covering up his own sins. No, there won't be any protest, but it was an apt lesson.

The O.H.A. is giving the referee-linesman system of officiating a trial in the senior circuit presumably as a trial, but it is to be hoped the provincial puck moguls do not go further and introduce such a system into the lower brackets. Clubs in the smaller communities could not meet the additional expenses entailed in the two-arbiter system. As a matter of fact some clubs find it difficult to meet operating expenses as it is without adding further financial burdens. As it is the O.H.A. is stepping in to scoop off 15 percent off the top in regular group play-offs this year, so don't be surprised to see the conveners clamouring for shorter schedules and more group playoffs. (Orders from the control room, we hear.) On the other hand the individual clubs could out-smart the "big bugs" by merely extending their schedule and casting the group play-off system into the discard.

Do you remember when Nels Stewart, veteran hockey battler, ended a brief retirement a year ago tonight by scoring a goal for New York Americans 15 seconds after stepping onto the ice for his first N.H.L. game of the year. It was the 318th goal of his career. Stewart retired for good this season.

Sixteen teen-aged lads answered the initial call for junior O.H.A. practice at the Hume Arena last night of which only one was a left-over from last year's squad. Bonnie Gerow was the only player on the ice with previous O.H.A. experience, although Francis McCaw, former Barry's Bay senior goalie, was on hand to add more experience. Ross Clare and Arnold Ethier are two other veteran juniors yet to answer the call. In the meantime Coach Holway's squad will have to depend primarily upon the material developed in last year's Juvenile set-up.

And all this reminds us that the Juvenile moguls met last night and selected the players for their four clubs, 48 players having registered to date. The Juvenile loop will usher hockey into Belleville with a double-header at the Hume arena next Tuesday night when Belleville puck fans will get a squint at their earliest hockey since artificial ice days.

Just as they were about to leave for Kingston last evening, the Reliance pucksters received a long distance telephone message informing them their game with the Vimy Signals had been postponed. In the meantime Queen's beat the Perth-Smith's Falls "Combines" 9 to 2.

SPORT SLANTS — And don't forget 1940 was the banner year for the National League. . . . The senior ball loop won the Spring all-star game in Florida the mid-summer all-star tussle and went on to win the world series and really humble the American League for a change. . . . Now the Cincinnati Reds have been named the best team in the sport annals of the U.S.A. for 1940. . . . It marks the ninth consecutive year the world series winners have dominated the poll. . . . Somebody had a pipe dream when they suggested the Winnipeg "Blue Bombers" be included in the Eastern Canadian football set-up. . . . The local puck moguls are confronted with a serious problem: to wit—If the players in the City Juvenile loop play two games with the City Junior squad, they're ineligible for O.J.H.A. competition. Some fun, eh?

KIMBROUGH TURNS PRO

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Douglas G. Hertz, President of New York Yankees of the American Professional Football League, announced that John Kimbrough, all-American full-back of Texas Aggies, had agreed to play with the Yankees next season.

JIMMY WILSON WINS COMEBACK HONORS OF YEAR

Catcher for Reds, Who Played Under Difficulties, Easily Outdistances Other Contestants

STANFORD COACH NEXT

Coach of Stanford Given Credit of Lifting Team to Pinnacle of Success

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Six times this fall 40-year-old Jimmy Wilson strapped himself up with adhesive tape, buckled on his harness and ambled out on the field to do the catching for Cincinnati Reds in the World Series.

For six games, he handled the Reds' pitchers flawlessly, batted at a .353 clip, and climaxed that startling performance by getting the only stolen base of the series.

That was hailed today as the year's outstanding competitive comeback in an Associated Press poll of 78 United States sports editors. Twenty-three put the new Chicago Cub manager at the head of the list. He got 102 points on a 3-2-1 scoring basis.

Wilson qualified on all counts under the heading of "comebacks in individual competition." The same doesn't apply to the runner-up, Coach Clark Shaughnessy of Stanford, who was only six points back. Undoubtedly Stanford's football team made a fine comeback under Shaughnessy, and undoubtedly the record of the 1940 Shaughnessy Stanford team was far better than that of the 1939 Shaughnessy Chicago team.

Choice of 24 Experts

Shaughnessy was first choice of 24 experts and piled up 96 points, enough for a comfortable margin over Schoolboy Rowe. The schoolboy was a disappointment in the World Series, but it's doubtful if Detroit Tigers could have got into the series without him.

Lawson Little for winning the United States open, his first national golf title since he left the amateur ranks; Max Baer for his K.O.'s of Tony Galento and Pat Comiskey, and stout Freddy Fitzsimmons of Brooklyn Dodgers for having the National League's best won-and-lost pitching record (16 and 2), took the next three places.

Shaughnessy's strong showing wasn't the only oddity in the poll. Seabiscuit got four points for coming out of retirement to win the Santa Anita Handicap and thus top all race-horses in money-winning.

JUNIORS HOLD INITIAL PRACTICE

Sixteen Teen-Aged Candidates Seek Berths With Local O.H.A. Squad

Sixteen keen candidates skated out to the initial junior O.H.A. practice at the Hume Arena last night of which only one was a veteran of last year's ice lane campaign. Bonnie Gerow was the only hold over from the 1939-1940 season to don his skates and work out in the season's first junior O.H.A. practice last night although President Bill Cook announced that Ross Clare and Arnold Ethier — the remaining two players left over from last year's squad, were busy at employment last evening and could not attend practice. They will be out with the Belleville juniors later in the season.

Starting at the goal-mouth Francis McCaw, former Barry's Bay senior goalie, was between the gas pipes minding the twine and looks to be a sure starter in front of the hemp. The majority of the aspiring candidates were forwards although Bill McBride, Fitzgibbons and Hall were three rear-guardsmen to show promise. Others seeking berths were Vern Goyer, Keller, Glen Robertson, Davis, Gene Rosebush, Vince Guay, Mike Powers, Maracle, Jack Hull, Hall, Gerow, Dick Barret and Hibbard.

The junior squad will practice again next week while the R.C.A.F. and the Belleville juvenile clubs work out at the Hume Arena this evening and Friday.

Montreal Royals In Second Place Of Quebec Loop

Montreal, Dec. 12.—(CP)—Montreal Royals moved into undisputed possession of second place in the Quebec Senior Hockey League last night, defeating Verdun 6-1 after Concordia had pulled a surprise by defeating Quebec Royal Rifles 7-2.

The win put Royals within two games of the league-leading Ottawa Senators, while Quebec dropped to third spot two points ahead of Cornwall Flyers. Concordia moved up into a sixth-place tie with Verdun as a result of their victory.

The lowly Concordia squad, with only four points to its credit in 12 games pulled the surprise of the season out of the hat in trimming Quebec in the opener.

The civies banked in two goals in the first period, from the sticks of Jotkus and Archambault, after Quebec had opened the scoring when Stahan, Smith and Hamel combined. It was in the second period, however, that the Montreal squad really started to click, and they rammed in four straight goals without a reply during the frame.

Gaudette bagged two of the counters, one of them unassisted, while Carroll and Jotkus contributed the others. Cormier added another for the winners in the third, after McClelland had tallied Quebec's second goal of the night. Both counters came in the last two minutes of the game.

Royals were slow in starting in the nightcap, but they left no doubt of their superiority when they began to roll. After a scoreless first period, Desroches put Royals ahead to start the second. Red Devils got that one back on a goal by Bourcier, but Royals went ahead again two minutes before the period ended on Raymond's goal.

The third period was all Royals, with Heffernan, Groghan, Mahaffy and Desroches scoring in order, the last two goals coming in quick succession in the last minute of play when Verdun were attempting to storm the Royal net.

Desroches took scoring honors for the night with two goals and two assists.

Newest Lamps Designed For Eye Comfort as Well as Eye Appeal—Ideal for Gifts

"I knew what I'm going to give Mother for Christmas—that lamp with the large wattage for reading and sewing. They make them beautifully today, and they're a real decoration in the home."

That's part of the gift refrain at Christmas, when members of the family get together in out of the way corners of the house, the discuss what is to be given father, sister, brother, and granddad for the greatest holiday festival of the year. Today, with such a wide choice of lamp types, there is a definite one for every member of the family, from the youngest member of the household to the oldest.

Moderately Priced

Yes, and the styling and designing are so appealing, and the prices so extremely moderate, that it is within the buying power of anyone to purchase lamps for Christmas. Lamps have always dominated the Christmas buying scene, now more than ever, since they have been so improved in eye appeal.

What are we going to give? Well, to start with, there is the swing-arm reflector lamp, finished in bronze and with a perfectly adorable silk shade in eggshell, the ideal portable for mother because it may be swung close to her when she is working, reading, sewing or bending over the table doing some task requiring maximum light. It is equipped with a reflector which brings light down from the ceiling. Also, as practically all utility lamps have today, at has a bulb with three stages of light which are adjusted at the turn of the switch. From 50 watts one may go by steps to 150, or from 100 watts to 300. Here also, is the ideal lamp for card foursomes.

Lamps for reading; that's the greatest single duty any lamp performs in the home. This, and of course study, knitting, sewing, mending, pasting-up the stamp collection, and a whole host of other after dark activities, call for light. Six-way floor lamps affording reflector and candle type illumination continue to be the most popular type. These usually provide 300 watts of light by adjustment for reflected illumination and three candles, equipped with small wattage bulbs, to be used when there is no need for brilliance.

While we are still on the subject of the boudier, we will discuss dresser and vanity lamps, tall sticks of sparkling crystal with pastel shades, or slim china shafts with tiny floral decorations with silk or acetate shades; these latter trimmed with lace or dotted Swiss in various colors. Then there is the night table lamps, set between twin beds, and frequently used for reading. These may be of china, pottery or glass and now come equipped with reflectors, with 40 to 100 degrees of light.

Our living room, is the meeting place for the family the year round. Here may be found the bulk of one's lamps. Thus, this centre of the home must be liberally provided with lamps. It is now the accepted practice to place a lamp in back of every large chair, and also on occasional tables at either end of the couch in the living room. These latter may be of the purely decorative type in end table heights. On the radio may be placed a small novelty lamp, in corners or niches, a delightfully Dresden type figure lamp with a figure of a shepherdess or maid and swain, or a larger group. Similar figure lamps and these, give a touch of color to the room. There is nothing so softening as a small decorative lamp.

High Style For Gift-Giving

All of the new flannelettes are designed for the specific type of woman who will wear them . . . college girls, young career women, suburban housewives, and larger women.

The college girl group of "Toasts" includes several butcher boy pajamas, created to serve a dual purpose, for lounging and for sleeping. A new broad blazer stripe in dramatic combinations of black and watermelon pink and black and sleeping blue has been designed with the pattern of the stripes themselves forming the trimming. The stripes are carried across the shoulders horizontally to give a broad look, vertically on the blouse and trousers for slender lines.

The tailored coat pajamas have been designed to appeal to young career women. They have been created in new and more attractive color combination, with trimming details picking up the background color. A blue and white striped style has the deep blue on its reverse and forming the fringe on the tie bolt. A watermelon pink and blue pajama has pink fringe and binding.

In the nightgown group, all "Planned For Living," there are many functional designs. One nightgown which would be perfect for sleeping porch addicts has an attached hood, the entire garment in a dainty floral print, with braid trimming the multicolor of the floral. There's a smart scroll floral print gown with matching booties, designed for the young mother who has to get up with the baby several times a night. The outsize woman is provided for in a small floral print, with perfectly straight lines and a button front, the buttons the same color as the background so that they give the effect of fading in.

OPEN UP ANOTHER NO-WOMEN'S LAND

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 12 (CP).—A long-standing masculine tradition at U.S. Naval Academy is going by the boards. This season, for the first time, women will be allowed to take part in a play presented by the midshipmen's Masquerade Club. Heretofore, middies have played the feminine roles.

If the presence of women in the play proves successful, said Professor Royal S. Pease, in charge of production, the practice may be continued.

THROAT PENDANT

New York, Dec. 12 (CP).—Several "best-dressed" women are varying their bejeweled appearance by wearing one great stone pendant at the throat and a ring set with the same kind of stone.

Ask Clerk To Assist In Choice

"Men are last-minute Christmas shoppers, and less likely than feminine purchasers to quibble over costs." This sums up the opinion of clerks whose duty it is to sell Christmas merchandise meant for wives, sweethearts, and sisters, to gift-minded males.

First in the choice of the male shopper come the various catalogues of jewelry, with sentimental locket and bracelet sets heading the list. Boy friends who make such purchases are prone to emphasize the need for something conservative. The girl friend is described as a small "dainty" creature whose sensibilities must not be offended. In many cases the sales clerk is asked to slip on the articles in question while the potential purchser makes a careful appraisal.

Second in preference to locket and bracelet sets come compacts. A heavy seller this season is a gold-colored powder container, designed in the form of a heart. Its surface is also inscribed with a tiny heart-shaped space to hold any specified initials.

Children, Too, Appreciate Wearable Gifts

WEARABLE GIFTS FOR GIRLS.

Jewelry More Important Than Ever For Men's Gifts

Masculine jewelry has been definitely tumbled off its perch among the luxuries and is now to be found on the "must" list. With the sweeping new interest in color and high style for men, jewelry steps into its own place to complete the fashion picture. Matched jewelry sets that have always been so popular with the ladies, has now taken hold in men's furnishings. Why not give him a matching gold or silver set of cuff links, tie clasp and collar pin. Many sets come with matching belt buckle. For evening wear there are matching sets of cuff links and studs. Cuff links are heavier and bigger this year, making a stronger accent at the end of the sleeve. Formal studs are being shown in jewel tones, picking up the colors of the new dinner jackets and for a very formal, dashing note—silver-headed canes are being swung from the most style-wise hands. Semi-precious stones are being used to a great extent in both formal and informal cuffs and links. For the sportsman there are leather cuff links. Or a jewelled ensemble of cuff links, money clip and tie clip in two-tone gold finish. Initials give that personal touch that every man likes and these come in matching sets too—personalized cravat chain, key chain and cuff links. Just a key chain alone with his three initials, would make a nice "extra" gift. There is a noticeable return to watch chains, and fobs this winter, which is quite in keeping with the increased interest in fashion jewelry for men.

Suspenders and belts are ideal items for gifts this year. There's a distinct western influence apparent in both. Something quite new is the braided leather suspender, in a bright natural color. Pigskin is also extremely popular. Belts are being shown with more intricate designs and engraving, and with modern initials if desired. An attractive gift package is a full grain cowhide belt with handsome English type square buckle. Or a special combination gift set of braces and garters in matching webs.

PUTS BUILDING UNDER CONTROL

Sydney, N.S.W., Dec. 12 (CP).—Latest of the many financial and economic restrictions in Australia caused by war needs and conditions is the control of building by the Australian government.

Regulations have now been issued under war powers providing that no building to cost £5000 ($18,000) in value may be undertaken without the permission of the federal treasurer.

In the meantime it is reported that in the metropolitan area of Sydney alone there is a shortage of 25,000 small homes for workers and middle classes. Similar shortages exist in other capital cities.

Local Stores Now Ready With Complete Collection Of Gifts for Children

Not so very long ago, toys were considered about the only and best Christmas gift for children. Today, however, wearable gifts are fast becoming the "most wanted" of all Christmas gifts by our youngsters. Take your own school age daughter or son, for instance. They've probably told you already that among other things they want "something new to wear" this Christmas. Your daughter's heart may be set on a new skating jacket or skirt or possibly a new party dress or furred winter coat. And if your son's a sports dynamo (which he probably is) hasn't he been after you or dad for a new ski suit, or a leather jacket? Personally, we're all for wearable gifts for the children. And if you reminisce a bit yourself, remember how thrilled you were when you received something new to wear for Christmas? How proudly you "showed off" in it? We do! We've just come back from an extensive shopping tour of the local stores and we're really amazed at the big collection of wonderful wearable clothes they've in stock for the children this Christmas. For girls, all the way from two years up to sixteen, we saw the most enchanting little party dresses, adorable pinafores and jumpers, scores and scores of jackets and skirts for school and skating fun. Remember too that many of these fashions are direct copies of mother's (although mother stole the pinafore from her daughter!) . . . and there are just as many that are direct steals from big brother and big sister. High up on the list are the boyish fashions however. We mean the covert cloth coats with zip in reversible linings, the corduroy jackets, shirts, skirts and corduroy porkpie hats, the covert cloth jackets in the new longer length. Prime favorites, too, are the sports jackets in tweed, plaid or monotone woollen. Matching skirts in gored, pleated, box-pleat and suspender styles are also available and can be mix-matched as you please. A jacket and skirt would make a grand gift for any little girl and one she'd wear right through the school year. AND DON'T FORGET to see the reversible coats! Your local stores offer an excellent choice of these in tweed, plaid, monotone and herringbone woollens, all of course, with showerproof reversible gabardine linings. Many come with hoods with detachable or little matching sports hats. Well tailored to go comfortably over her winter coat, these make ideal gifts. Coming back to the party dresses, why not treat your daughter to one—or give one to your favorite little niece? Choose a full-skirted velveteen, a smocked rayon taffeta, a dressy rayon crepe—choose it in her favorite color—see how happy she'll be when she sees it under the tree on Christmas morning. Styles are adorable, especially the little pinafore frocks with the ruffled shoulders, the princess and dirndl frocks. In velveteen, ask to see the little princess frocks with lacy collars and cuffs.

Choose Gifts for Their Favorite Winter Sports

Does she love ice-skating? Is she practically a professional skier? Or an up-and-coming bright beginner? How about your beau? Is he the uncrowned king of winter sports? Then give them something to wear for their favorite winter sports fun! Among the gifts that would receive a warm welcome are ski suits, skating outfits, or a separate skating jacket in plain or quilted velveteen. If she can really cut figure-eights, why not delight her with a velveteen skating dress with brightly contrasting hem? (Incidentally this is an excellent gift even if she's not as smooth on ice as she'd like to be.) Coming back to the ski suit, they are smarter, brighter than ever before. Expertly tailored of snow cloth, all-wool, corduroy or covert cloth (new this year!) . . . they feature hooded zipper jackets, single or double breasted jackets, side-buckle jackets. All of the jackets are warmly interlined.

Mix-Match Gifts.

You can mix-match your winter sports gift! And your local stores have all the "extras" for snow fun too! Newest are the pretty wool plaid skirts with french cuffs, convertible collars, two big patch pockets. How about some winter sports accessories? For instance goggles for storms, sun and snow. Or felt Tyrolean suspenders gaily embroidered or you can have them in solid gabardine with ric-rac trim. The new open top visor cap in poplin with warm flannel ear flap or the two-color reversible cloud-cap, are smart practical gifts. Ski booties with knit tops and leather toes and heels are seen, as well as cable-knit knee high socks, short ski socks that are extra soft, warm and pliable. There are wonderfully warm lingerie gifts too—for instance she'd love a pair of vivid red panties for skating or some "daddy long legs" trousers and long-sleeved shirt. Of 50 per cent cotton and 50 per cent wool, these undies are chill-chasers, because they're snug and warm yet comfortably lightweight.

Had Weak, Nervous Stomach Limbs and Back Ached Badly

Tobacco Grower Says "Unbearable" Pains Tortured Him Day and Night. Couldn't Sleep. Became Nervous and Rundown...Describes How Syntona Herb Tonic Relieved Pains and Improved His Health.

MR. JAMES GANDER

When the stomach is out of order and food fails to digest, but ferments, forming gas and causing a full, bloated sensation; when the back aches and the kidneys do not function properly; when the bowels are constipated and you have headaches, dizzy spells, tired feelings and nerves are on edge, take a treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound and the chances are that you, too, will find that your suffering can be relieved without the aid of harsh drugs or depressors. Read here, the interesting experience of Mr. James Gander, Chatham, according to his recent report:

"My stomach had been giving me no end of trouble with gas, cramps, acidity and heartburn. I was subject to dizzy, bilious spells, headaches, and backache. Then, the pains began to spread through my limbs and my joints ached so badly it was unbearable. I couldn't sleep nights, my nerves were tense, and I was losing strength.

"I read about how Syntona had helped others who suffered similarly, so I began taking it, and sure enough I soon began to get the same good results myself. Now, after taking it for a few weeks, the pains have all left me. My food digests well without all that stomach misery, my nerves are relaxed, and I get a good sound night's sleep. I have regained some of my lost weight and I am able to do a hard day's work in comfort once more."

If you, who read this, suffer like like Mr. Gander did, go to "DOLAN THE DRUGGIST", Belleville, and find out how Syntona may help you.

Check These Sportswear Gift Items!

Give them something to wear for their snow fun! She'd love a parka and scarf set, or a pair of woolly mitts or gloves, gay with peasant embroidery. Or a pair of those fun-to-wear "boxing gloves"! And wouldn't she love to find a pair of those new knee-high wool socks in her Christmas sock? Or a pair of woolly anklets with her own initials? We'll say she would! Or how about one of these? Say a little black velveteen hood or furred cap—a vividly embroidered peasant cardigan or twin sweater set?

Accessories For Sports And Dress Wear

Generally speaking, all women love lots and lots of accessories and they look forward to receiving them for Christmas gifts. Your local stores have a brilliant collection of accessories ready for you, featuring for sports, daytime dresses and evening wear. For the active sports girl, why not give a pigskin or a very new looking natural saddle leather bag, with expensive saddle stitching, and they've belts to match. Alligator leathers are always popular and can be had in slim envelopes or dressy top-handles in black and the new amber tones that are so smart with blacks and browns. A real leather bag in calf or kidskin is every woman's desire, because they look so shiny and sleek and wear and wear. For real luxury give her a rich, soft suede in draped or tucked style with brilliant gold trim. Or a suede envelope with huge gold initials. Initials are seen everywhere, the bigger the better, and they give that personal touch that every woman loves. How about a soft black or brown suede bag with glittering frame inside zipper, and fitted with comb and mirror. Or a broadcloth bag that looks just like soft suede, but doesn't rub off, and can be had in new shades to go with any costume. And the bag that every woman wants in her wardrobe is a muff bag seen in suede or fabric with zipper pocket, they're accents to untrimmed coats. And for dressier moments a sculptured capeskin bag that's soft and cushiony but still has plenty of room. A popular bag that's sure to please is a fitted vanity that has a place for everything a woman carries in her handbag. For those gay evenings when she puts on her best finery, she'll want a glittering evening bag that is sparkling with rhinestones or gleaming with gold and embroidery.

Gloves Popular Gift Favorites.

She'll clap her hands with delight when she sees what you've given her to cover them. Popular pull-ons in leather and fabric that "go with everything" or leather inserts with smart tuckings and bows. And don't forget matching sets — gloves and bags in bright colors and gay plaids that brighten up any costume and satisfy every woman's desire to have things that "go together".

Furred Accessories.

Furred accessories give that accent of elegance that is so important to every woman. They lend an air of luxury to any costume and make every woman feel glamorous. Why not give her a muff bag in beaver, silver fox or leopard, a furry touch to a furless coat? Match it up with fur trimmed gloves, for they complete as well as give a "dash" to the fur trimmed costume. They are seen with pompoms of silver fox, beaver, Persian lamb or leopard and with cuffs of fur. Pick a fur trimmed belt to match. One of the newest ways to get that "befurred" look is with hatpins of fur—to pin on a plain hat. For that extra little gift, pin a fur hatpin on her Christmas tree.

BUSINESS GIRLS AS GOOD WIVES

Melbourne, Dec. 12 (CP). — Dr. Minnie Varley told the annual convention of the Australian Women's Christian Temperance Union that a "girl who does a business course and works in an office makes a mighty poor wife". Soon every business girl in Melbourne, apparently, was writing to the press in protest. Hundreds pointed out to Dr. Varley that a girl who had never seen anything outside the four walls of a house was poor company for any man.

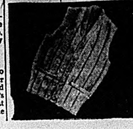
Sweaters Are Welcomed As Gifts By Most Men

The other Saturday afternoon, your reporter was out with his small son for a walk across the hills. The sky was clear and out of it, Sonny said, "Gee, dad, you could use a new sweater". And upon close inspection, I certainly agreed with him. Your reporter is like most men about such things as sweaters. He buys one or two and expects them to last for ten years. And they will unless someone does something about it.

Why not do something about it this Christmas and get dad one of the many smart new sweaters for an afternoon with the children, golfing, driving and for all outdoor wear. Particularly recommended are the brushed wool sweaters in sleeveless slip-over, sleeveless button-up styles and long-sleeved slipover models. They range in colors from soft pastels up through the more practical darker tones.

Then there are many good looking heavier sweaters on display in local stores styled particularly for skiing, skating and more active winter sports.

Most of the new sweaters are pretested for washability, color-fastness and shrinkage, and many novelty weaves enhance their eye appeal. Make it a sweater Christmas not only for dad, but for every man on your list, and you'll go a long way toward providing "your favorite" with a gift strictly utilitarian but with an eye toward his comfort and handsome appearance.



FINED FOR BAD WORK

London, Dec. 12 (CP).—An aircraft-fitter was fined £100 ($445) for deliberately doing his work badly when he wanted a discharge to take another job.

A Sugar Plum Tree

Smiles — happy laughter — loud chortles of delight—

That's what you'll get for Christmas from the child you love best if you take St. Nicholas' suggestion and plan a Sugar Plum Tree.

How To Make.

APRICOT ROBIN — Flatten two dried apricots. Cut another slightly smaller; cover with glace syrup (see recipe for Glaced Walnut Meats); place between first two. Using syrup to fasten, insert apricot pieces for head and tail. Add currants for eyes. Decorate with frosting put through plain tip of pastry tube. For feet, spear gumdrop on toothpick.

ROSY PEAR—Stuff dried fig with peanut butter. Shape like pear. Insert wire holder. Dip in melted fondant, tinted pale yellow. Insert artificial stem for leaf. When hard, tint one side pink with vegetable coloring.

BLUSHING APPLE—Stone prune, stuff with walnut meat. Shape like apple. Insert wire holder. Dip in melted fondant tinted pale green. Insert stem for leaf. When hardened, tint one side pink with vegetable coloring.

WALNUT ROSETTE—Cut serrated circle from colored foil paper. Press warm glaced walnut meat in centre.

GLACED WALNUT MEATS — Combine one cup sugar, 1/3 cup of light corn syrup and ½ cup water. Heat to boiling point stirring constantly. Continue to cook over low heat, without stirring to 300 F (hard crack stage). Set syrup in pan of boiling water. Drop in the walnut meats, a few at a time. Remove singly to the greased cookie sheet. Make 36.

SNOWBALLS — Partially melt marshmallows over hot water. Add moist-pack cocoanut. Stir quickly. Drop by teaspoons on waxed paper. Shape.

DATE PENDANT—Pit date. Stuff with Brazil nut. Insert wire holder. Dip in melted fondant. Roll in candy shot.

PEPPERMINT CANDLES—Insert peppermint sticks in centre of:

Crystallized grapefruit stars: Wash two grapefruit. Grate lightly on fine grater. Halve; remove pulp. Cut peel in star shapes. Cover with cold water; bring to boil; boil five minutes. Drain. Combine two cups each sugar and water, ½ cup light corn syrup, one teaspoon glycerine; tint green, cook to 220F. Add stars. Cook 25 minutes; drain. Sprinkle with sugar.

SILVER TREES — Thrust small broomstick through hole drilled in bottom of inverted wooden bowl. Made three cones of graduated sizes by cutting circles from cardboard covered with silver paper. Cut from centre to edge of cone; overlap cut edges; fasten with brads. Cut three doughnut-shaped shelves from heavy cardboard; fasten to cones on inside with Scotch tape. Thrust broomstick through apexes of cones, nailing cones in place. Paint base and "trunk" of the tree silver. Decorate with homemade sugar plums.

MARSHMALLOW CHERUB—Cut gold paper in shape of wings. Add cellophane bow. With knife tip spread confectioners' sugar frosting on the back and top of marshmallow. Sprinkle top with silver candy shot. Press marshmallow frosting, side down, on wings. Make holes for eyes and mouth; insert larger silver condy shot and cinnamon drop.

Gifts for The Home Will Receive Warm Welcome

Dress up your own home this Christmas! Give "home gifts" to the people you're fondest of. They'll receive a warm welcome from career girls, young marrieds . . . and from the gentlemen who keep bachelor quarters. If you know exactly what they're hoping for—good. If you don't, visit your local stores for some exciting new ideas. Their stocks are wonderfully complete and manufacturers have literally outdone themselves in creating home gifts that are good looking, practical, long-wearing . . . gifts that are decorative . . . accessory home gifts. And whether you're gift-hunting for a two-room apartment or a twenty-room house and whether it's modern, period, regency or colonial design . . . they've exactly the gifts you want. The "little" furniture gifts are especially attractive and make marvellous gifts. We mean the smartly designed end tables, magazine racks, nests of tables and the twin tables that are so fashionable for either side of a sofa or studio couch. There's a wide choice of coffee tables too, many with removable glass tray, marbleized or stain-proof tops. In maple, walnut or mahogany finish, these make excellent gifts—and they all belie their low price tags. See the accessory home gifts too, especially the attractive candlesticks, console sets, ash tray and cigarette box sets. And if they've a fireplace, they'd love a set of new andirons, or electric logs or a fire screen. . . . Pictures make perfect gifts and your local stores have one of the best collections ever this year. We noted some excellent reproductions of famous artists, really "works of art" and they're popular priced.

Closet Accessories.

Make her closets the show place of her home! It's easily and inexpensively done and these are the little things she just doesn't get around to buying for herself. Irresistibly pretty as they are practical, we saw some perfectly co-ordinated closet accessories in shelf boxes, shoe shelves that hold eight pairs of shoes, little combination chests for lingerie, shoes and accessories. Small and compact, they fit easily into regulation size closets. In flower-sprigged and vivid striped designs, they've lots of new "old-fashioned" charm and they'll keep her closets in apple pit order long after Christmas is over!

Flowers At Christmas Origin of Custom Told

Masses of flowers are ready for Christmas and Yuletide festivities. Hostesses can have their choice and will find practically anything they want in the way of bloom and color to suit their taste without taking the season much into consideration. If real flowers are beyond the reach of amateur decorators artificial ones are so well made now that under certain lighting it is scarcely possible to detect the difference. They are sometimes even mixed successfully with real flowers.

Hostesses who are planning parties will welcome suggestions and ideas about using flowers for table decoration. Fine linen is revived for the dinner table with lace insets demands the best attention for the decoration that will make the table spread for guests a delight for the eye. Miniature shrubs and plants as well as trees are liked. Canadian shops have a wonderful array of new receptacles in glass, porcelain and metal of which choice can be made to add beauty and distinction to the whole effect of the table.

Individual flower receptacles are fashionable and some hostesses like to place one before each guest. Then there is the single bloom often put beside the service for each person. What a chance for a clever hostess to look up the meaning of flowers and trees. She can express some special wish to each one of her guests if she takes the trouble to give just that novel individual touch to her decoration.

Holly is the emblem of the season and is always introduced freely into any decorative scheme. "Foresight" is the inner meaning of those sparkling red berries among dark green leaves. What better wish could be conveyed for 1941 than that every woman could have the foresight required to meet present day circumstances.

Wonderful Gift Suggestions Are Ready in Local Stores All for Practical Use

Come the holidays and all turn to more home entertaining, to planned impromptu parties, to festive big dinners and such. What then could be more appropriate and incidentally more practical, than hospitality gifts for your own home or for your favorite hostess? We've just seen some sparkling gift ideas and we'd like to tell you about them. All are smart, good-looking, practical . . . all are designed to be time-saving, efficient . . . to make entertaining more fun. (With "Open House" the rule around holiday time, consider them for your own home as well as for gifts!) Electrical gifts include the chrome-plated waffle iron with easy-to-read heat indicator that tells you exactly when the iron is ready for use; the two-slice, flip-door toaster . . . all chrome plated with wood handles and feet; the chrome-plated electric broiler that broils steaks, fish or fowl; the six-cup electric percolator which makes delicious coffee right at the table; or why not a silex coffee maker, preferred by America's smartest hostesses? Made of heat-resistant glass, it's a sure-to-please gift! All of these electrical gifts come complete with cord. For your entertaining friends, we suggest a cocktail set—an ice bucket and tongs—a syphon bottle that makes sparkling soda water in a jiffy . . . in fact use it for all carbonated drinks! Does she have lots of luncheons, buffet suppers? Then toast your hostess with a set of attractive gift dishes—or a sizzling steak platter—or dress up her dinner table with sparkling glassware. Open stock is generally the rule for glassware and you can choose water glasses, stemmed goblets, cocktail glasses, sherbets, champagnes. Very Christmas-y and gay is the colored glassware in jewel tones such as ruby red, emerald green, violet, golden yellow, turquoise blue, crystal-clear white. These, too, are seen in tumblers, water glasses and cocktail glasses. Why not consider gift linens? Say for instance a filet lace cloth, a gay luncheon set complete with napkins, a lustrous damask dinner cloth with napkins to match?

Silver-plated Gifts Beautiful.

No finer expression of your Merry Christmas greeting than a gift of silverware. For your own home or for your favorite hostess, it is definitely the luxurious yet practical gift that is sure to please. And you needn't think you must spend a fabulous sum for these new silver-plated gifts. Your local stores have delightful little silver-plated gift pieces.

When a Child Becomes a Poor Loser

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

In terms of what is expected of him, a child must enjoy a certain measure of achievement in order to be happy and want to co-operate.

Dear Dr. Myers:

My husband and I have been reading your column for quite a long while. We have a daughter eleven years old and have tried not to spoil or pamper her.

She is in perfect health, not selfish, has a happy disposition, and her school work is above average. She has always had proper food and medical attention.

But she loses interest quickly in all things, work or play, and is a poor loser at play. And she has never been fond of reading. She does not deserve punishment for things she does do, but rather for things she should do and doesn't. Regardless of how often she is told or reminded, she carelessly neglects her duties. Our efforts to correct the child have been spanking, logical talks and discussions, overlooking, denial of pleasures and sending her to bed.

My Reply

Most of all your child needs to enjoy more achievements at work and play. Since she is not fond of reading she, almost surely, reads poorly. Induce her to read books much easier than those of her grade.

Attract more children to your home and encourage her to go to their homes to play with them. Help her gain skill at certain games so she can make a good showing with the other children. Don't shame her when she is a bad sport. Help her gain courage to be a good sport and then celebrate her successes. Read aloud a great deal to her. Keep trying till you find the kind of story she likes to listen to.

Praise Child

Praise her more for her successes, however small. Quit lecturing to her or explaining so much. Stop appealing to her feelings. Encourage her to talk more in the family and listen attentively when she she does. Make her feel she amounts to something. You and Dad should be more generous with affection toward her.

Don't spank her. Instead when you are sure she should be punished, assign her to sit doing nothing for exactly 30 minutes where you can see her. Don't scold and don't send her to bed to punish her.

Assign her a very few definite jobs which come at a regular time daily, jobs she never can escape. Then let her be free the rest of the time to do as she likes, so long as she is safe physically and morally.

SHE'LL LOVE A FUR COAT.

At Christmastime Fire Hazards

Christmas is and should be a season for unmarred happiness. It should not be depressed with tragedy caused by fire. So today the Belleville Fire Department listed a few suggestions to merchants and householders of the city to guide them in assuring themselves of a holiday free from disaster.

Merchants must take the precaution to keep their aisles and exits clear at all times and especially during the Christmas rush. When they are bringing in heavier stocks for the Christmas trade, they should be careful to remove all excelsior and waste material which would be tinder for a fire. Electric circuits should not be overloaded to give special lighting effects. No combustible stock should be allowed to come in contact with light bulbs.

Merrymakers at parties should observe the same precautions. If balloons are being released, they should not be attached to any electric cord. Particular care must be taken at all times when smoking is done near highly inflammable decorations and Christmas trees.

Fire extinguishers should be checked periodically. If you are not sure how long ago yours was replenished, the firemen will gladly check it for you. If it was examined more than a year ago, it should be recharged if it is to be effective.

Care In the Home.

The fire department is probably more aware of the danger to human life than most civilians. For this reason they issued a list of suggestions in home decorations at Christmas, designed to prevent disastrous accidents which have actually occurred here or in other places.

The dangers are highly varied, from the cotton board on Santa Claus to the celluloid comb given as a gift. One of the main danger points is the Christmas tree itself. This is especially true when lighted candles are mounted on natural fir trees. The tree dries out quickly in the warm house, and within a few days will burn like tinder. Electric lights are much safer, and even more pretty. Just be sure that the wire on which they are strung is in good condition. If it is worn or kinked, the insulation may fail and a fire result.

Another dangerous practice is to hang celluloid decorations on the Christmas tree. If they come in contact with a flame or a hot electric bulb, they will burn with a fierce, hot flame. When a Christmas tree burns, the heat given off often communicates the fire to curtains or other articles in the room and the damage high.
candles in the windows during the
The custom of placing lighted holidays is also unwise. Electric will not set the curtains on fire.

Protect Kiddies.

Some of the toys offered this year candles are preferable because they are made of celluloid. There have been many instances of small children being seriously burned when these toys were carried too close to a fire or heater. This hazard is increased when the fires are lighted in open fireplaces. A screen to keep kiddies away from the fire and flying sparks away from the carpet is a good investment.

BRICKS FROM COFFEE

Rio Janeiro, Dec. 12 (CP).—H. S. Polin, an American physicist in Brazil, has discovered "cafelite" a plastic substance made from coffee cheaply enough to use for construction blocks, furniture or buttons.

Fashionable Budget Furs And Luxury Furs in Demand

Remember when giving furs for Christmas sounded fabulously expensive and wonderful and impossible? Once upon a time it was—but not today. More and more, furs are becoming the most popular of Christmas gifts—certainly the most wanted—definitely the most lasting and most wearable. For this, we bow to our skilled American furriers who have worked wonders in workmanship and style and the dyeing of furs in the budget price range. Fashion and goo dAmerican common sense have played an important part in making furs THE Christmas gift too.

Wide Choice of Fur Gifts.

The American woman makes furs the practical Christmas gift as well as the luxury gift. That's because she has made furs practically a year round fashion. Your Christmas fashion reporter refers to the smart fur jackets, scarfs, capes and fur accessories that add so much elegance to the simplest costume. Highlighted for Christmas gift-giving in the luxury fur class, are sheared beaver, persian lamb, black caracul and of course magnificent mink or sable. Can you just imagine the indescribable thrill of receiving a mink coat on Christmas morning? We can almost—it must be heavenly! Nevertheless the budget fur coats make equally exciting Christmas gifts—and are they beautiful! Seen in local stores, we were downright amazed at their moderate prices. In many cases, we guess their price tags to be much higher! See the mink or sable-dyed muskrats . . . they look for all the world like the real thing. Their skins are expertly dyed to match the beauty and richness of mink or sable, their rich brown tones are wonderfully flattering and luxurious looking.

Also budget priced are rich raccoons, persian paw, black or grey krimmer, Chinese kidskin, tipped skunk greatcoats, leopard cat (wonderfully fashionable and so versatile!) . . . and of course mouton lamb that looks like real beaver, civet cat (another spotted fur that is in the fashion limelight!)

To the Gentlemen.

A word to wise men this Christmas! Whether she's your wife, daughter, mother or sister . . . give her furs this Christmas! Like nothing else, gentlemen, it will make her think you're the most wonderful man in the world. If you know the kind of fur and the style she wants, good. But even if you don't—your local stores are ready to help you. Their stocks are complete on this season's fashionable furs and authentic styles. They'll help you select the fur coat she wants most . . . at the price you want to pay..

SAVES WHITETAIL DEER

Including October, Sweden's merchant marine losses in the war total 89 vessels, totalling 195,000 tons.

Army of British Tailors

The United States are now getting £2,000,000 ($10,000,000) worth of Savile Row tailored men's wear from Britain a year. One New York house, famous as "outfitters to gentlemen" has just received in a single order £20,000 ($100,000) worth of British tweeds, suitings, ties and shirtings. The crate, marked "Britain Delivers the Goods", is displayed in the middle of one of their windows in Madison avenue. The suits are selling at anything from twelve to twenty guineas (fifty-eight to one hundred dollars).

The demand for British men's wear grows so strongly from month to month, despite Hitler's "total war," that a special retail export group is now being formed by British tailors, bootmakers and saddlers. The vanguard of an invading army of fitters from 300 British tailors are already on their way to the States, complete with samples of next spring's suitings and taking their tape measures with them.

American men continue to look to London as American women used to look to Paris.—R. Williamson, London.

Until March 2 the normal time of closing for shops in England, Scotland and Wales will be 6 p.m. with an extension to 7:30 p.m. one evening a week.

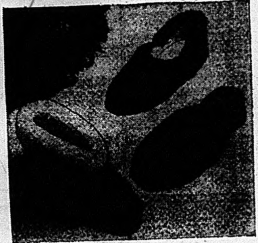
Gift Slippers for All



One of the most practical and appealing gifts to give this Christmas is slippers. Your local stores have the newest models for every member of the family. Whether you want to give a glamorous "frou frou" slipper with lots of satin ruffles or fur trimmed slipper, or a warm wool slipper, your choice will be easy. Some of the newest slippers feature fashionable platform soles that are very wonderfully comfortable as they are smart-looking. New sueded fabrics that look like soft, luxurious suede are used to make your feet look pretty and feel grand. For the lady of the house, no matter her age, why not a satin mule with ruching in bright colors, or a new lounging slipper with gay open toes and bow trim? To keep her feet warm and cozy, she'll love a pair of scuffs or booties in cuddly lambskin or fur.

"Something to Wear" Desired By Women This Christmas

Really now, wouldn't you like to find some wearable gifts under your Christmas tree? We think we can safely say that wearable gifts are on the "Preferred List" of all women. And this does not necessarily limit you to accessories, either, although the latter are extremely popular gift items. Check over your gift list now. Isn't there someone on it who simply loves blouses, or jackets and skirts? How about the sweater-collectors? And for the fashionable miss who loves the 'new'—how about a jumper? Speaking of gift blouses, your local stores have a wonderful collection of them including the long-sleeve shirt classic with new French cuffs, stunning "accessory" blouses with suave high necklines that are perfect for all her costume jewelry. See the shining satin blouses for dress-up, the feather-soft sheer wool jerseys, the rich rayon crepes and rayon failles, the lame blouses. Cleverly tucked, shirred and draped, these dressy blouses feature twinkling buttons, up-puffed long or three-quarter, or short sleeves, beautifully high or low neck lines. In white, vivid colors, black and stripes, each of these blouses is a gift gem. Prime favorites for the sweater collectors are the classic twins, the gay peasant embroidered cardigans, the new longer cable-stitch cardigans, dressmaker slip-ons. And don't forget please to see the glamor gift sweaters. These sparkle with gold thread, sparkling jet, bead and multi-color sequin trims. Ultra-fashionable, they're gala for daytime and evening wear—and sometimes can substitute for a 'little" evening wrap. The new gift skirts are stunning. Beautifully tailored of rich tweeds, sheer woollens, velveteen, rayon crepes, plaid and monotone woollens, there are styles for sports, daytime and evening wear. (An evening skirt would make a luxury gift—because it's something she probably wouldn't buy for herself.) Your Christmas reporter notes too, that your local stores have every new skirt style including gored, flared, box-pleated, kick-pleat or all-around stitched pleated skirts. Their color and size range is complete and includes skirts for misses, women and juniors.

GIFT WRAP.
Glamorous white fox evening wrap—thrilling Christmas gift! Note the new bow-tied waist.

MAKE IT A SPARKLING CHRISTMAS

AT THE CAPITOL

"Under Texas Skies"

Bob Livingston and Bob Steele, who appear together for the first time in the Three Mesquiteer picture, "Under Texas Skies," have been pals since the two helped each other with their homework at Glendale High School. Both cowboy actors hail from Glendale and they learned to ride their first horses on the ranch of Steele's father in San Fernando Valley.

The two lost track of each other during their divergent careers and were reunited again when Steele was signed to play the role of a mesquiteer in the popular western series.

Coincidentally, Steele is the boyhood friend that Livingston has not seen in a number of years in their first film together. Livingston's big job in "Under Texas Skies," which is now playing at the Capitol, is to clear Steele's name of the murder of his father. Rufe Davis, well-known radio comedian, adds to the complications in the picture, which includes Lois Ranson, Wade Boteler, Rex Lease, Jack Kirk, Curley Dresden, Henry Brandon, Yakima Canutt and Jack Ingram. The added attraction is.

"The Escape"

Gangsters never kill doctors, which is the only reason why the story of "The Escape," can be revealed. The doctor tells this gripping drama of New York's East Side, of an ex-convict who rejoins his gang, of his sister who loves a cop and is torn between two most thrilling climaxes ever to be screened. Kane Richmond, Amanda Duff, June Gale, Edward Norris, Henry Armetta and Frank Reicher are featured in the 20th Century-Fox film.

To close this double action bill there is the Universal News and the 10th chapter of "Tim Tyler's Luck."

AT THE BELLE

"THE SAINT TAKES OVER"

A strange romance between a mysterious girl who is determined to wipe out a ruthless gang of crooks and a suave gunman whose life is dedicated to avenging crimes the law cannot touch, is knit into the plot of "The Saint Takes Over", now on the Belle Theatre screen.

Based on the well-known detective novels by Leslie Charteris, the new offering, which is fifth in the popular series of films concerning the exploits of The Saint, again presents George Sanders in the title role of the debonair crime buster. Wendy Barrie has the feminine lead.

When his friendly enemy, Inspector Fernack, is framed by a group of race track crooks and is suspended from the police force, the Saint decides to expose the gang and bring the mombers to justice. But in his efforts to round them up, he finds that a beautiful woman of mystery systematically is killing off the criminals. When he learns that she is avenging the murder of her brother, he joins forces with her, and during their exciting adventures together a strange romance develops.

Said to be one of the most thrilling in the popular series, "The Saint Takes Over" features in additional roles, Jonathan Hale, Paul Guilfoyle, Morgan Conway and Robert Emmett Keane.

"Anne of Windy Poplars."

The homespun charm, the sweet, down-to-earth sentiment contained in L. M. Montgomery's well-loved book, "Anne of Windy Poplars", now unfolds on the screen with presentation at the Belle Theatre of a picturization of that famous story.

Anne Shirley gives a gay and brilliant performance as "Anne Shirley", a role she created six years ago in "Anne of Green Gables", an earlier Montgomery story which zoomed the young actress to stardom and inspired her to adopt the heroine's name.

In the current "Anne" story Miss Shirley is a young school teacher. Her appointment as vice-principal starts a bitter feud with the powerful Pringle family, which rules the small community, trying to oust Anne so that one of the Pringles, also a teacher, may have the job.

Around Anne's desperate efforts to win the respect and love of the Pringle family through kindness and generosity the absorbing story principally revolves. Counterpointing this is Anne's tender romance with Patrick Knowles, a medical student, her glorious days at Windy Poplars, a quaint mansion where she boards, and her efforts to bring happiness to a little orphan girl next door.

In addition to the romantic leads, finely etched characterizations are contributed by James Ellison, Henry Travers, Slim Summerville, Elizabeth Patterson, Louise Campbell and little Joan Carroll.

"The Magic of Sound", a clever MGM screen novelty will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Lone Wolf Keeps a Date"

The escape provided audiences by action pictures, with lots of excitement and plenty of thrills, was recently prescribed as one of the best antidotes for a jittery world by 750 polled motion picture exhibitors. The questionnaire, prepared and presented to exhibitors in widely divergent parts of the country, was the result of three major studios' interest in just what it is that the public wants most in present day film fare.

Those polled were unanimous in the opinion that good, well-constructed mysteries are today being held in the highest esteem by moviegoers. Among the mystery thrillers dear to the public's heart, the survey revealed, are the "Lone Wolf" pictures produced by Columbia. Audiences take keen delight in following Warren William as he makes his way in and out of practically hopeless situations, such as those confronting him in his latest adventure, "The Lone Wolf Keeps A Date," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

Sensing their popularity and the way in which they help to alleviate the troubles of a jittery world, Columbia Pictures is to be commended for extending the series. In the newest Lone Wolf hit, William has lovely young Frances Robinson as his romantic lead, while other prominent members of the talented cast include Eric Blore, Thurston Hall, Bruce Bennett, Jed Prouty and Fred Kelsey. Sidney Salkow directed the thrilling film.

John Wayne, Western

Thrills from the first flash, the ambush in Suicide Pass, bursting the bucking broncos, steer wrestling, the race of the stage coaches, bandit camp raids, all the action that the screen can give is shown in John Wayne's newest western entitled "Somewhere in Sonora" which is also now playing at the McCarthy Theatre as co-feature to "The Lone Wolf Keeps A Date." The last chapter of "Terry and The Pirates" is also presented.

Canadian Soldiers Play Santa Claus

Somewhere in England, Dec. 12 (CP).—Canadian soldiers played the role of Santa Claus today for more than 200 school children evacuated from London's bomb-battered east end.

The troops loaded the youngsters into twelve trucks and drove them from their country refuge to the nearest town so they could buy a Christmas present for the parents still living in London.

The Canadians are practising driving heavy trucks in convoy to learn the correct speed and spacing. The vehicles usually travel empty, but not so on this occasion.

Later the Canadians plan to stage a Christmas concert for the kids in the area where they are billeted.

Major Samuel Hepburn said the bills were numbered consecutively. He did not disclose the total amount.

The old proverb: "Waste not, want not," was exemplified by a Bluejay on Saturday as told by a lady resident, who is in the habit each year of putting out crumbs for the birds. This lady usually places crusts of bread in a basket and suspends it from the clothesline on her back porch. On Saturday the lady noticed a Bluejay come and take a crust of bread and retire to a neighbouring tree. He immediately returned and replaced the bread in the basket, picked up another morsel and flew off.

New Leather Made By British Research

The world has now a new shoe leather discovered by technicians and chemists in the English Midlands.

The leather suede hog calf gives the particular "feel" and appearance of peccary hog which, for a number of years, has been popular for gloves. Its silken touch made it unsuitable for shoes and after many experiments the new leather which is stronger and harder wearing has been produced.

Shoes made from it are now being shown in the latest shades—Congo brown, powder blue, Varsity green, desert tan, California beige and new vintage. The favourite style is a whole-cut semi-sports shoe with pastel shade pipings, and fittings and a sole of crepe.

LOST SUNRISE

by KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 7.

"Who from?" Dick asked.

"My uncle. Dad's brother-in-law. Uncle Elmer. . . ."

Gwen launched into the story of Uncle Elmer, hurrying along at first with some embarrassment. It would be horrible if Dick fancied that her immediate mention of her financial prospects was meant as a sort of supplement to his! Gwen made her description of her late relative as touching and amusing as she could; she ended on safe ground, observing that when the mortgage was paid and the family bills settled, she had hoped that she might travel.

"Get married and travel?"

"Well," she said, flushing and laughing. "I hadn't thought of the getting married."

"But you will now."

"I'll think over what we've been talking about. I don't see how I'll think of much else," Gwen answered quite simply.

"There are some awful nice fellows here in Kenthill," Dick said.

"Not any that I like."

"You mean that?"

"Yes, I do. There are some nice boys; we all went to high school together, we had fun then. But afterward all the interesting ones went off to college somewhere. Including you," said Gwen, with a sudden smile for the blue eyes opposite her own.

"You'd never remember seeing me. I don't ever remember seeing you, specially," Dick confessed. "And you're not going with anyone?"

"No."

Dick mused upon this with a thoughtful expression. His serious, appraising glance made Gwen's color rise.

"I should think they'd all want you," he said simply.

Yesterday she might have answered him differently, flippantly. Today she had grown from girlhood to womanhood in a few hours. She answered as unaffectedly as he had spoken, suddenly drawn to him: "They don't."

"I've never been able to afford taking a girl around," Dick confessed, on the same honest note. "But you—I should think—"

A silence. Gwen looked up. "I go to movies and dances with boys," she said. "But I wouldn't go with any boy—any man—unless I liked him."

"And how soon will you know if you like me?" Dick demanded with a boy's exultant laugh.

"I wish he'd always be the way he is sometimes," she thought. "I hate him when he acts high-schooly." Aloud she said, "I know now that this is fun, that we like each other. I mean—why not just let it go along naturally, and take care of itself?"

"Oh, well, because I'll be thinking—well, anyway, we'll have to make it definite. I mean, write each other," Dick began, looking at her for encouragement. "I won't have an awful lot of time off, in this service. We'll have to write."

She loved letter writing, as any good letter writer does. "Let's write?" she said, warning.

"Once a week, huh? About what we're doing and reading—all that. I'll write once a week if you will."

"Well—"

And my mother'll write you and ask you to come over to the city, and you'll see the hospital and we'll go to movies."

Gwen wondered why she had ever fancied herself in love with him. He was like all men; he wanted everything exactly his way and he didn't care what she thought. She assented with seeming enthusiasm.

"And a year from today, Gwen, we'll write each other the honest truth, huh? This is July first. On July first next year we'll write each other exactly what we feel. And if it's off, well, then it's OFF."

"But suppose one says 'on' and the other says 'off'?" Gwen said with an outward smile, but with inward coolness.

"Well, then I'm out of luck, for I'll be the 'on' one," Dick answered promptly. She couldn't but like his attitude. He seemed in no doubt of his own position ,even though he was so careful to assure her that love wasn't an element in the situation. "We'll mail our letters just at midnight," he went on, and Gwen laughed out suddenly with a pleasant sound of unexpected bells.

"Will you do it?" he persisted. And Gwen, with a sudden bright flush, nodded. It seemed a rather ridiculous thing to say in words somehow. However—"

Her mood changed so rapidly that she felt confused and exhausted with emotion. At one moment the nearness of this big, gentle affectionate male would flurry her senses and she would remind herself that she could marry, could be Mrs. Richard Latimer, could enter the mysteriously initiated ranks of wives, discover what they felt and talked about, and how their status changed so quickly, so entirely from that of girlhood. At another moment, she felt bored—profoundly bored by all this. Trial engagement, that was what it amounted to, and she and all the other girls had decided years ago that any such arrangement was an insult to a girl.

Yet here she was at the Arcades having lunch with Dick Latimer and consenting to what was practically that, and confused in spirit because she was really in love with him, and in no position to make terms with him. This was all very different from the beauty and dignity of Sheila's affair, and somehow it made her face feel flushed and uncomfortable.

However, she mused on, her spirits suddenly rising, there was no harm done. This compact with Dick was their own secret, and his mere presence in her scheme lent a certain novelty and excitement to life. If at the end of a few months they parted, it wouldn't kill her, for she might very easily, by that time, have come to the conclusion that she didn't like him at all—

"What are you smiling about?" he asked.

"I was just thinking that this is—a funny sort of thing for you to do."

"What? Wanting you to like me?"

"And wanting to like me yourself." Gwen was silent a moment, laughed. "I always thought I'd like to marry a writer with a British accent."

"I always thought I would like a girl with yellow hair."

"Well, that makes it all the funnier that you should see me, on the very day Sheila was married, and like me!"

"That WAS funny," he agreed. "It sort of stayed with me. The kitchen, and you giving me sandwiches. And it all began to slip and slide around in a mind, so that I'd wonder why on earth I was thinking about you so much."

She liked this better; she was suddenly having a good time. "By the way, are you a doctor yet?" she said.

"Oh yes. My mother gave me my cards for graduating day. I've not used one yet."

"Dick, tell me, just for fun, if you could do exactly what you hope to do, what would it be? What kind of home would you like to have, and where?"

"I'd like to live in a queer place, would you? Say Peiping. Or Nome. Or Madeira. Places where you have big advantages and big disadvantages. Sunsets, you know, but no movies. Mail twice a week, but all the native servants you want for almost nothing? See?"

"It does sound fascinating. Instead of doing exactly what everyone else does. And would you want a house or an apartment, or live in a hotel or a club, or what?"

"Married people can't live in a club!"

"I see. I forgot that."

"Well," said Dick with a glance, "from now on you might keep it in mind."

And this was one of the remarks that she was destined to remember with a warm little thrill of excitement and pleasure, when the long strange Sunday ended, and Dick was gone, and she had time to straighten out her feelings and decide what was good and what was bad in the situation. While he was with her she had no such opportunity. She was alternately attracted and repelled, chilled and warmed by him.

Before three o'clock they had to start for home. Dick had the long drive to the city before him, and must report at the hospital tonight. When they got to the house various members of the family were drifting about or idling in repletion after the day's heavy meal, and Dick talked to Peter and Gwen's mother, and sustained a casual-caller manner with them all that diverted Gwen, so thrillingly aware of the compact between them. When he said anything or did anything that seemed to her smart or impressive, she felt a sudden pride in him; when he expressed any opinion that might grate on her father's or mother's prejudices, she looked in quick appreciation from one to the other.

At about four o'clock she went out to the car with him, and they had a few words in parting. They would be friends, anyway. And in just a year, after a twelvemonth of friendship, they would write the truth to each other. And they promised mutually to abide by what those letters said.

"If I want you and you're sick of me, that's that," said Dick.

"And suppose I'm madly in love with you and you want to end the whole thing?"

"Well, that's that, too."

"Promise now, Dick."

"Sure I promise. It's a pipe for me. The thing is that if you—if you did like me, you'd probably go feminine on me and be afraid to say so!"

"I wouldn't. I'll come right out with it whatever it is, and you can show the letter to your wife some day and say, 'Look how girls used to write to me!'"

"I'll marry you or I'll not marry," the man said, very low. He got into the car and started the engine, and with only one more look, with a somewhat rueful smile on his dark face, he was gone.

"Well!" Gwen ejaculated, standing alone in the shade at the gate looking down the country-town street under the maples and elms, suddenly seeing the fences and gardens, the plain houses and the background of California street's encroaching warehouses in a new light.

With an almost solemn sense that things were happening, and that to have things happen was all she asked of life, Gwen went back into the house. The domestic round could go on for a long time without seeming dull, now. No more lying on one's bed on a Sunday afternoon worrying because week-ends were not bristling with dates!

The events and conversations and moods of the day began to revolve in her memory, without order or sequence. At this moment he had seemed such an odd, unpolished boy. At this other he had taken complete possession of her, flooded her senses with that breath-taking, slow moving ecstasy that is life itself to a woman.

"Maybe I love him but don't like him," Gwen mused, as she set her bookcase in order, rubbed up her white shoes for tomorrow's office day, changed her dress for a fresh faded cotton, ran a wet comb through her thick dark hair and descended the stairway cool, comfortable and more than a little complacent, at half past five o'clock, to set a charming supper table as a surprise for her mother. Mother did not like kitchen meals.

"Did you have a nice day?" Mrs. Washburton asked at supper.

"Well, really it was lovely," Gwen said in a tone carefully surprised.

"He's all right, Dick. I shouldn't wonder if he was going places," Peter said. Gwen did not comment. She returned to her own thoughts.

5 ITALIAN GENERALS AMONG CAPTIVES TAKEN

ITALIANS WITHDRAW FROM TEPELENI REPORT

Offensive May Become Counter-Invasion of Libya

British Forces Still Progressing To Libyan Border

Security for Suez Canal Counted One Of the Major Accomplishments of The Offensive

Cairo, Dec. 13 (AP)—The number of Italian captured troops has been "increased by several thousands" over the 20,000 previously announced, a communique from the western desert front revealed today.

Five Generals are among the captives, the communique said.

There was no indication how far the British command intends to press home the advantages it has won or whether it will try to push across the Libyan border into Italian territory. But the British forces were still progressing, taking an ever-growing amount of material and captives.

Security For Canal

Security for the Suez Canal was counted as one of the major accomplishments of the offensive. In three days British forces have smashed what Marshal Rodolfo laboriously built up in as many months.

The blow, coupled with Greek victories in the Albanian campaign, was expected to have resounding effects throughout the Middle East.

Why, it has been asked here repeatedly in the past three days, did not Graziani rush reinforcements to the front when his first camps were taken on the opening day of the British offensive?

Graziani Did Not Have Time

The answer is that he simply did

Attacks on Subs Believed Having 'Very Good Toll'

By HAROLD FAIR,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 13—(CP Cable)—A high naval source said today he was convinced that attacks which are taking place on U-boats almost daily are "having a very good toll."

He emphasized, however, that unless such factual evidence as prisoners can be obtained, it is difficult to give a perfect assessment of damage.

At any rate the British authorities are not issuing detailed reports on submarine sinkings because such information would be of value to the enemy.

The source added that there was evidence that Royal Air Force attacks on German submarine bases in France had destroyed or seriously damaged U-boats.

The British authorities are sparing no pains in applying various methods and devices in tackling the menace of U-boats.

LEGION PRESIDENT DESIRES ACTION

Urges Definite Steps to Cover All Men Discharged From Armed Forces

Vancouver, Dec. 13—(CP)—Alex Walker, Dominion President of the Canadian Legion, last night wired Pensions Minister Ian Mackenzie at Ottawa stating that the legion desires immediate and definite action to cover all men discharged from the armed forces.

The wire was sent in response to a previous telegram received from the Minister by Mr. Walker, in which Mr. Mackenzie expressed "deep regret" that the legion national headquarters had issued a public statement saying there was "widespread apprehension" over the treatment of men discharged. The Pension Minister's wire asserted that Mr. Walker made the statement when he knew the government had measures under way to meet the situation.

Speaking before the executive of the Lower Mainland Legion Branch here last night, Mr. Walker said that "We shall continue the fight for these men."

"Surely the government knows that something different must be done for these men," he added. "Men were discharged to fend for themselves and the only place to turn was to social services and relief. Relief is stupid, and wasteful, and as far as we are concerned, we are determined to see that these boys get something better.

"If we can find enough money for all this destruction, I think we can find enough to settle these men properly."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 13 (CP)—The weather has become much colder over Ontario with rain and snow in southern districts and light to moderate snowfalls in northern and eastern sections. It has been fair over the Prairie Provinces, decidedly cold in Manitoba and Saskatchewan with moderating temperature in Alberta.

Rockets in war! Right after the World War, it was proposed that rockets be used to explore the atmosphere. If they could be used to enable us to get a true picture of the air circulation, they would be indeed valuable. They were used extensively in war in the early 19th century and were considered effective although they were not develepod to same degree of efficiency as at present. Can one imagine their taking the place of parachutes? One thousand rockets, each loaded with a well-equipped soldier, well-directed so as to land the soldiers at a strategic point and properly deployed, might turn the tide of a battle

DUKE OF WINDSOR LEAVES MIAMI FOR IMPORTANT TALKS

Transported by U. S. Naval Plane to an Unannounced Destination

MANY CONJECTURES

Governor of Bahamas May Meet President Roosevelt on Cruiser Tuscaloosa

Miami, Fla., Dec. 13—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor flew from Miami in a naval plane today for an undisclosed destination, amid spreading reports he would confer with President Roosevelt and might become British ambassador to the United States.

"I am sorry I am unable to make any statement," he told newspapermen before shoving off in the launch that took him to the four-engined naval patrol plane, "but I am in the hands of the navy for the day and I'm sure they'll take good care of me."

Speculation on possibility the former king might represent his nation officially at Washington was stirred afresh early today when the Duke's aide de camp, Captain Vyvyan Drury, disclosed through a press associate that the Duke was flying in a naval plane today to "an undisclosed destination on important official business." It was added that the State Department wished all details withheld at present.

Capture of 2 Towns In Albania by Greeks Mere 'Matter of Time'

London, Dec. 13.—(CP)—British military circles declared today that Greek capture of the Albanian towns of Tepeleni and Klisura was "merely a matter of time".

(The towns are on the southern front, in the path of the Greek drive in the direction of the Port of Valona.)

These circles said 14 Italian divisions—about 175,000 men— were in the lines against the Greeks. Some of these, they added, had been "severely handled". Bad weather was said to be slowing operations in Albania.

Student is Found Dead in Bedroom

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 13.—(CP)—John Clifford Parry, 23, Queen's University Medical student, was found dead in his bedroom yesterday by his 12-year-old cousin, William Soper, shot through the heart with a rifle bullet.

Chief Coroner Dr. Jaces M. Young said there would be no inquest.

The youth suffered a breakdown about one year ago but after a rest was able to continue his studies. He suffered another breakdown about a month ago following an automobile accident

Parry was a fifth year medical student at Queen's. He was prominent in athletics, including wrestling and track. He won several scholarships.

He lived with his uncle, J. Dave Soper. His father, George Parry, died four years ago and his mother died seven years ago.

British Sub Sinks Nazi Supply Ship, Damages 4,000-Ton German Tanker

London, Dec. 13 —(CB)— The submarine Sunfish has sunk a German supply ship of about 4,000 tons close to the Norwegian coast, the Admiralty announced today.

The Sunfish also attacked a German oil tanker of about 4,000 tons, hitting and damaging her.

The submarine's commander, Lieut. G. R. Colvin, sent two torpedoes crashing into the first ship, which was believed to be carrying a large cargo of ore to Germany.

"The ship broke up and sank immediately," it was announced.

British Drive May Cross Frontier of Libya As 'Fascists Are on the Run'

By LARRY ALLEN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Aboard a British Destroyer Off Egypt, Dec. 13—(AP)—With British sea, air and land forces combining in an attempt to blast the Italian expeditionary force off Egyptian soil, British sources declared today that the offensive might be turned into a counter-invasion of Italian Libya.

The British forces appeared to be turning their victory into a complete route of the Fascists and some said there was a good chance that the drive would stop at the Egyptian-Libyan border "while the Fascists are on the run."

The order to take the offensive against Marshal Graziani's legions, 70 miles inside Egypt, was a shot in the arm for the whole British and Imperial Army of the Nile, it appeared from advices reaching this destroyer participating in the naval offensive.

For weeks, desert-hardened troops—Britons, Australians, New Zealanders, Indians, Poles and Frenchmen have been chafing at inactivity.

Hour for Grand Offensive Near?

Now, with the initiative in British hands, their hour for a grand offensive may have come.

The navy is co-operating fully. British warships have hurled tons of high explosives into Graziani's advance bases, forcing thousands of soldiers to flee in disorder toward Libya.

TWO HUNDRED JEWISH REFUGEES DROWN IN OCEAN

Ship Broke to Pieces in High Seas Near Istanbul

GOING TO PALESTINE

Istanbul Dec. 13—(AP)—Approximately 200 Jewish refugees, among nearly 400 bound from Bulgaria to Palestine, drowned when their ship broke to pieces in high seas near Istanbul, Turkish newspapers reported today.

Seventeen of those drowned were children, the morning paper L'Orient declared.

The disaster was said to have occurred in the Sea of Marmora, west of Istanbul when a motorship flying the Uruguayan flag, ran into heavy seas and broke up near the shore.

Approximately 380 passengers, including many children and their mothers, were thrown into the sea without an opportunity to take to lifeboats, the newspaper Cumciyet reported.

The captain of the boat succeeded in swimming ashore and called government rescue crews to the scene. The sea was said to have been dotted with struggling refugees and debris.

About 180 survivors were picked up and taken to hospitals.

Rickenbacker Sees Some Difficult Years

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 13 —(AP)—"England cannot defeat Germany alone, Germany cannot defeat England with America in back of her—If Britain can hold out until the spring, I don't see anything that can stop us from declaring war." Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker said at the Deleware Safety Council dinner last night.

"We are facing some difficult years," said the American air ace of the first Great War.

If Britain should switch the scene of war to Canada, and three-by ally the English-speaking nations into the western hemisphere, Rickenbacker predicted "a 30-years war of attrition and starvation."

GENERAL EXEMPTED

Vichy, France, Dec. 13 —(AP)—Lt. Gen. Darius Bloch was exempted today from the Vichy Anti-Semitic law by a special decree after intervention on his behalf by War Minister Gen. Charles Huntziger.

Otherwise Bloch would have been compelled to leave the army as a Jew. Bloch was the second Frenchman of Jewish ancestry to be offered exemption from the law for services to the nation. The philosopher and academician Henri Bergson refused and resigned his honorary chair in the College de France.

TURKEY A LOSER IN GREAT WAR YET A WINNER

Out of Conflict Emerged a Glowing Nationalism Under Kamal Attaturk Who Died in 1938

PULLED OUT OF PAST

(By C. A. Farnsworth)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Turkey was a loser in the First Great War—and yet a winner.

Out of that conflict emerged a growing nationalism, under the leadership of the late Gazi Mustapha Kamal Pasha, who changed his name and Turkey at the same time. He died as Kamal Ataturk (Father of the Turks) on November 10, 1938, at 58.

Ataturk left to the guidance of his successor in the Presidency, Ismet Inonu, a nation changed from Oriental to Occidental. Ataturk's rule was dictatorial under an exceedingly democratic constitution.

His reform pulled Turkey up out of the past. Ataturk's goal and the vision of his followers were that Turkey should become a self-sufficient, industrialized state.

The reforms almost destroyed the basic fabric of Turkey's Oriental culture as Turkey borrowed whole

W Griffiths, K.C., and Mrs. Griffiths, Niagara Falls, has been awarded the Military Cross of Czechoslovakia, the decoration being conferred personally by Dr. Edouard Benes, former president of the Republic. Wing Commander Griffiths was placed in charge of Czechoslovak flyers in July, but now has been assigned to other work. The decoration is in recognition of his services in that capacity.

$14,500 DONATED TO FUND

London, Dec. 13 —(CP Cable)—Lord Iliffe, chairman of the executive committee of the Duke of Gloucester's Red Cross and St. John Ambulance Fund, announced today receipt of a gift of £10,000 ($14,500) from J. W. McConnell, publisher of the Montreal Star, for the relief of air raid victims.

Last Aug. 24 Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production announced that Mr. McConnell had given $1,000,000 to aid the British cause and that it had been decided to use it to provide aircraft which would be known as "McConnell's Squadron."

Prime Minister Churchill a few days later publicly thanked Mr. McConnell for the gift.

Landon and Pepper Agree Help Should Be Given Britain

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Alf M. Landon and Senator Claude Pepper (Dem-Florida) agreed today that the United States should give Britain outright help in supplies, equipment and finances rather than see her defeated.

The two men stated their positions in independent statements. Landon, however, implied the gifts should not be long delayed. Pepper advocated that Britain exhaust her liquid assets and turn over key naval bases to this country before any gratis help was considered.

Landon, Republican presidential nominee in 1936, took this stand yesterday on credits for Britain:

"No matter how the war turns out Great Britain will never be able to pay us. If it's to the interest of America, and I believe it is, to help the British, let's subsidize them and charge it up to the cost of national defence."

Pepper, a staunch New Deal supporter, said that when the British need financial help they should agree to turn over to the United States naval bases this country might find useful in any part of the world.

Pepper was asked whether his naval base reference included the British stronghold at Singapore.

Yes, he replied, if its acquisition would benefit this country.

But suppose the Japanese should object, a newsman inquired.

Twelve Italian Airfields in Egypt Bombed Out of Existence by RAF

London, Dec. 13—(AP) — Royal Air Force bombers and fighting planes blasted Italian bases, ammunition dumps, troops, communications and grounded aircraft in the five-day-old battle of Egypt, the Air Ministry News Service reported today. More than twelve Italian airfields were said to have been bombed.

Striking throughout last night and yesterday, the Air Ministry said, the R.A.F attacked Italy's main war base of Tobruk, on the Libyan coast, and "completely gutted" hangars at El Adem airdrome near Tobruk.

"Many tons of bombs were dropped on the town of Tobruk and harbor," the Ministry said.

"Fires were observed burning fiercely in many places and violent explosions and fires near petrol dumps were seen from Salum Bay by our aircraft on the return journey. There were also heavy explosions in the vicinity of ammunition stores."

At El Adem airdrome, "aircraft on the ground were heavily machine-gunned by our reconnaissance machines."

Heavy Raids on Bardia

Heavy raids were also made on Bardia, about 15 miles inside the Libyan border, the Ministry said, and bomb-hits set off a violent explosion in a "stores dump which resulted in flames rising to a thousand feet."

The Ministry said Italian aircraft on the ground were machine-gunned and three CR-42's destroyed.

"At El Tmimi one S-79 was shot and other aircraft badly damaged. In all, over a dozen enemy airdromes or landing grounds were raided and considerable damage done." the Ministry continued.

"Fighter aircraft patrolled throughout the day, covering our troops who were pursuing and harassing the retreating enemy. Much mechanical transport was destroyed and troops on the lines of communication were demoralized.

"Aircraft of the Royal Australian Air Force added to their previous successes by shooting down three CR-42's. One of our eight-gun fighters attacked two S-78's single-handed, despite the fact the enemy bombers were escorted by a large number of CR-42's. One of the S-79's was shot down and the other is believed to have been destroyed.

"Two of our bombers and one fighter have failed to return to their bases but in view of the intensive operations it is possible that they are safe."

Replacing Troops No More Successful In Checking Greeks

Captured Italian Officers Express Doubt of Italy's Ability to Continue Struggle After the Likely Fall of Klisura Pass

London, Dec. 13—(CP)— Italian forces, after a fierce fight, have started withdrawing from Tepeleni, Albania, Exchange Telegraph News Agency reported today from Athens. The Italians were said to be suffering heavy losses.

Athens, Dec. 13.—(AP) —Fresh Italian troops thrown into the battle in Albania were reported today to have failed to halt the Greek advance against heights surrounding the coastal town of Chimara, north of captured Porto Edda.

Here and elsewhere the Greeks said the Italians were replacing large units with new troops but that the latter were no more successful in checking the Greeks. Especially large Italian concentrations were declared thrown into the fight along the coast in a desperate effort to halt the Greeks.

Older Forces Unfit For Further Services

One dispatch from the front said that after the Greeks repulsed Fascist counter-attacks at various points "the initiative along the entire front passed once again to Greek troops and the enemy is continuing to retreat".

"At many places the Italian command replaced entire units with fresh forces at the cost of many sacrifices because the morale of the older forces was seriously impaired and they were considered unfit for further fighting", this dispatch went on.

"But even these new Italian forces received serious blows and there already are many prisoners from the new units".

Doubt Italy Able to Carry on if Klisura Falls

Captured Italian officers were said by the Greeks to have expressed doubt of Italy's ability to continue the struggle after the likely fall of Klisura Pass, where they had hoped to check the Greek advance toward Tepeleni, Road Junction 20 miles north of Greek-held Argirocastro. Klisura is ten miles northeast of Tepeleni.

Roses Picked by Queen On Way to Canada

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP)—A bouquet of roses picked by the Queen for a convalescent Canadian soldier in an English hospital is expected to reach Mrs. Pierce Hudson of Ottawa soon. Gnr. Pierce Hudson of Montreal has written his wife to expect them, wilted perhaps, or possibly pressed, but nevertheless flowers picked by the Queen.

The Royal Canadian Artillery gunner wrote his wife that he suffered a concussion when a bomb fragment struck his helmet and while he was in hospital the Queen visited his ward.

Gnr. Hudson told the Queen how he enjoyed the roses he could see in the hospital grounds from his window. The Queen said goodbye and a half hour later, according to his letter, she returned with roses she picked in the garden and these are the flowers he's sending home.

COLD WAVE MOVES ACROSS DOMINION

Will Reach Maritimes Saturday and is Now Lifting Grip on Prairie Provinces

(By The Canadian Press)

A cold wave, originating at the mouth of the Mackenzie River on the edge of the Arctic, moved eastward steadily today as it began to lift its grip on the Prairie Provinces.

Moving east on the heels of warm air masses from the southern United States that gave Eastern Canada mild weather early this week, the cold snap began to settle on Northwestern Ontario and Northern Quebec today. The Dominion Meteorological Office said the cold would extend into the Maritimes tomorrow.

Canada's coldest reporting point early today was the northern railhead of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, Moosonee on the Moose River near James Bay. It was 26 below there at eight o'clock, one degree lower than that registered at Kenora.

Cold Easing at Winnipeg

West of Kenora, the cold appeared to be easing off with Winnipeg at 16 below, after hitting 22 yesterday, Prince Albert 11 below from yesterday's 22, and Calgary, Edmonton and Medicine Hat all reporting temperatures above zero. On the Pacific Coast, residents enjoyed comparative warmth.

Doucet, Quebec, was 21 below. Other sections of Ontario and Quebec had not yet felt the full effects of the cold snap with the weatherman promised "will not be too severe."

Strong winds approaching moderate gale proportions were forecast for the Maritimes tonight and tomorrow.

New Plant Under Construction Here by C. N. R., Will Provide Work for Many Local Men

Will Manufacture Switches and Frogs Used by Railroad — 30 Skilled Mechanics and Families to be Moved From St. Malo, Que. — Plant in Production Within Six Months

PERMANENT INDUSTRY

Construction of a modern plant which will be used exclusively for the manufacture of frogs and switches and the servicing of these important cogs in the railroad transportation machine over the Central Region comprising 8,000 miles of right-of-way was announced today by Canadian National Railway officials here.

The new building which will be 160 feet long, 50 feet wide and 22 feet in height will be erected east of the Canadian National Roundhouse. Groundwork of the new plant has been nearly completed and tenders for construction of the building proper closed today.

The building will be constructed of a cement foundation with a steel framework and sidings of brick, and will be one of the most up-to-date of its kind in Canada.

Actual work on the erection of the building will be started immediately and completion is expected at the end of four months. Up-to-date machinery will be installed and it is expected the new plant will go into production six months from now.

Centralizes Manufacture

Decision of railway officials to centralize the manufacture of frogs and switches, and servicing work formerly done at St. Malo, Quebec, and Leaside, Toronto, resulted in the construction of the new plant here. Thirty skilled mechanics and their families will be brought here from the Quebec centre while a large number of local men will also gain employment when the plant goes into production.

As has been before stated groundwork for the new building is proceeding rapidly. Railway sidings to the site have been laid, and actual construction will be rushed as soon as tenders are awarded.

While the plants at St. Malo and Leaside have been devoted to war work, officials here stated that the new industry to be inaugurated here is definitely not a war one. Belleville was found to be the most practical central site for the Central Region of the railway which comprises territory from Armstrong, Ontario, a short distance east of Port Arthur to Mont Jolie, Que.

The new industry will be a permanent railway facility especially designed for the purpose for which it is intended. A second rail-saw plant will be erected in conjunction with the new activity.

Men's Club of Bridge Street United Church Holds Meeting

On Wednesday evening the regular supper meeting of the Men's Club of Bridge Street Church, was held with R. D. P. Davidson, President, presiding and Dr. W. T. Brown, Principal of Victoria University, as guest speaker. Dr. Brown's subject was "Some Aspects of Education." In his view education should teach the students to think his own problems through and successfully master them. In so doing he becomes master of himself and therefore a better citizen. For this purpose, Dr. Brown said the student should choose a really difficult subject, which would train him to think logically. He divided men into three classes. Those who were like the old fashioned car and needed a crank to get them started and to make them go, were one class. Others needed to have some person show them what to do and how to do it and the third class could see what problems needed solving, knew the solutions and proceeded to solve them. In training the latter class, he made a plea for the use of the "humanities" in education. He said "A man may have all the technical and practical education in the world, yet it would not train him in dealing with his fellow man because man's thoughts and ideas were intangible and technical education alone could not deal with ideas. He thought that the ideal education would be to combine the two as far as possible. Let education be practical, but don't forget to balance it with the intangible theoretical subjects.

The following officers were elected for 1941: President, W. J. Morrison; Vice-Presidents, J. B. Findlay, Vic. White; Secretary, Taylor Franklin; Treasurer, Russel Woodley; Conveners of Committees: Reception, J. Howard Clarke, Walters, Dorland Houston, Tables, Colonel Bonisteel, Refreshments, William Leslie, Programme, Alec Gordon.

Worthy Matron and Patron Tender Banquet

The very sumptuous banquet was put on by the ladies of Holloway Street Church.

After the banquet cards were indulged in with very fine prizes being awarded the winners who were as follows: ladies' first, Mrs. Rhoda Sager; second, Miss Mary Carmichael; men's first, Alex McGlashon; second, Alex. Thompson, with the consolation prizes going to Mrs. Muriel Smith and Mrs. Lillie Law, equal, and to Everett Liddle.

Contests were then engaged in, with the prizes being won by Miss Mary Carmichael, Alex. Thompson and R. D. Adams.

This was a most enjoyable evening and Mrs. Elliott and Mr. Baragar were voted ideal hostess and host by those fortunate enough to be present.

POLICE COURT

Friday the 13th failed to take its proverbial toll in city police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., this week, as no cases were disposed with during the court procedure.

Prior to the proceedings, however, seven persons paid the costs of the court after being summonsed to appear for having failed to procure their 1940 radio licences contrary to the Department of Transportation regulations. Originally 25 such delinquents had received summonses charging them with radio licence delinquency. At the time of service the radio inspector in charge stated that providing the quota of radio licences for the Belleville area reached the peak level of 1939 no further action would be taken, but otherwise additional charges would be preferred.

U. S. Press Unanimous in Praising Skill of Lord Lothian

Boston Herald Says "No Other English Ambassador Ever Understood Us So Well"

New York, Dec. 13 (CP)—Regret at the untimely death of the Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States who died early Thursday at the age of 58, was widespread today and the press, unanimous in praising his skill in handling Anglo-American relations in his 15 months in office, also agreed that the vacancy would be difficult to fill.

Most United States newspapers, in paying editorial tribute to the late ambassador, touched at length upon Lord Lothian's wide knowledge of the country and his tact and diplomacy in placing Britain's position before Americans. As the Boston Herald put it, "No other English ambassador has ever understood us so well."

Seldom has the death of a personage received such attention in the press of the country. The story of his unexpected death was displayed under banner headlines and the front pages of most papers were covered with pictures of his career. The New York Times and Herald Tribune each devoted full-page layouts to his obituary.

Representative editorial comment follows:

Boston Christian Science Monitor—"Probably no British ambassador ever spent such a successful year in Washington to witness such a drawing together of Britain and America.... The ambassador's frankness, friendliness (many Americans, including the President, called him by his first name) and diplomatic skill contributed greatly."

Boston Herald—"As no other English ambassador has ever understood us so well, both nations are the poorer by his death.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat—"The sudden death of the Marquess of Lothian plucks from his nation's service a man who may be ranked as Britain's most capable and distinguished diplomat. Lord Lothian was a super-salesman for the British cause.

Washington Post—"In a very real sense Lord Lothian was a casualty of the war.... Whatever the cause of his sudden death, the fatigue occasioned by overwork undoubtedly played its part.

Chicago Tribune—"Lord Lothian's strength—a strength common to British diplomacy—was that he never ceased for a moment to be a British subject whose sole object was to advance the cause of his country by every legitimate means. He was respected and admired even by those who do not agree that it is to the interest of the United States to take all the measures he urged upon us."

Baltimore Sun—"Lothian's character was a complex one, with curious cynicisms and sardonic humors, sometimes breaking through his prevailing affability and optimism. But it had also a basis of faith—mystical faith if you will—in the essential dignity of the human individual and in the obligation of government to uphold that dignity.

"It was on the basis of this faith that he made his final appeal to the people of the United States. It was not impossible that in that one speech he made in the most dramatic way possible, his greatest contribution to the empire he served."

Many Names Mentioned

London, Dec. 13.—(CP)—London morning newspapers asserted editorially and in their news columns today that the selection of a new ambassador to Washington to follow the Marquess of Lothian would be a difficult task.

A great number of names were mentioned. They included—Anthony Eden, Secretary for War; David Lloyd George, First Great War Prime Minister; Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Information; Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production; Lord Chatfield, former Minister of Co-ordination of Defence; Viscount Cranborne, Dominions Secretary; Sir Robert Vansittart, Chief Diplomatic Adviser to the Cabinet; Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary; Sir Gerald Campbell, British High Commissioner in Ottawa; and Richard Casey, Australian Minister to the United States.

REGINALD LEAL GIVEN MENTION FOR BRAVE ACTION

Tweed — Petty Officer Reginald Leal, son of Mrs. Douglas Leal, Hamilton, and grandson of Mrs. William Leal, Tweed, distinguished himself when the Canadian destroyer Saguenay was hit by a submarine's torpedo. He helped cut down the shattered fore-topmast which was hanging on guy wires and threatening to crash on the forecastle. Petty Officer Leal has been mentioned in dispatches for his bravery. Word received by his mother states that he arrived at a British port and is safe and well. His father, Douglas Leal, was educated in Tweed and will be remembered by many people in the village. Mrs. Wm. Leal, his grandmother, who lives in Tweed, states that Reginald has been a member of the Canadian Naval Forces for some time, having been in Hamilton R.C.N.V.R. before being called up for active service. His father was killed overseas in the first Great War.—Tweed News.

Christmas 'Pot' Of Salvation Army Will Make Appearance

The familiar Christmas "pot" of the Salvation Army which appears annually at this time of the year in an appeal for funds to bring seasonal cheer to poor and needy families of the city will be seen on the city streets on Saturday. A jovial Santa Claus, tinkling bell drawing attention to Christmas shoppers, will be on hand in the familiar scarlet and white uniform.

The Army once again launches its appeal to the public to assist them in this humanitarian cause. Every nickel or dime donated to the "pot" will assist in bringing to those people less fortunate than others, the comforts and cheer that is part and parcel of the joyous festive season.

The "pot" will be located at various parts of the city between Saturday and Christmas Eve and the public is asked to contribute generously to the cause. Members of the Army are devoting their time and efforts to the alleviation of distress of needy people and any contributions received will be gratefully appreciated.

Three Motor Vehicles Damaged in Crash

Property damage to two parked automobiles and a truck resulted at Holloway early Thursday evening when a truck driven by Erving Potash, 122 West Bridge Street, Belleville, swerved to avoid a head-on collision with another car and in so doing crashed into the rear of a parked automobile in the village of Holloway.

Potash told Provincial Constables Burton and Grayling, who investigated, that he was rounding a curve when he met a north bound automobile, which forced him to swerve his truck sharply to the right to avoid a headon collision. In his effort Potash's truck struck the rear of a parked car owned by Gordon Kennedy, of Holloway, the latter vehicle bounding ahead as the result of the impact and striking another car owned by Clifford Elliott of the same address.

The steering apparatus and chassis of the truck were damaged to such an extent that a tow truck had to remove the larger vehicle. Mr. Kennedy's car, the middle vehicle in a three-vehicle crash, was damaged both in the rear and front to the extent of several hundred dollars.

DOMESTIC AND SKILLED HELP VERY SCARCE

Domestic help is very scarce in the city at the present time according to officials at the local employment service office. Seasonal work in stores and factory positions are responsible for the scarcity, it was pointed out.

Skilled tradesmen of almost every type are much in demand by local industrialists, however, it was stated, with men from outside districts being brought in whenever possible to meet the demand. Through the efforts of the local employment agency a tool and die-maker from Swift Current, Sask., was placed in a position with a district industry, while only recently fifteen machine operators from Northern Ontario were brought in to work in local plants.

CHRIST CHURCH A.Y.P.A.

The weekly meeting of Christ Church A.Y.P.A. Wednesday night was opened with a hymn and prayer followed by the business for the evening.

The remainder of the meeting was given over to a "Parliamentary Debate". As chairman of the House George Dickson declared the House open for business. The leader of the government, Mr. Les Lennox, ably assisted by Mrs. Jean Jackson asked that $150,000,000 appropriation be set aside for the development of the St. Lawrence Seaway and endeavoured to show the great advantages of the project.

The leader of the opposition, Mr. Ray Lennox, efficiently assisted by Miss Mary Moult brought forward many good points showing that the project was an expensive and unprofitable proposition. The members of the different parties keenly debated the project and many times the chairman of the House had to demand order.

When the vote was taken the opposition proved the appropriation of that amount of money was not practical.

A light lunch was served and a short sing-song followed by the National Anthem completed the evening.

DESPITE WARNINGS CHILDREN USE ICE

Despite the repeated warnings of members of the local fire department that the ice on the Moira River between the footbridge and the upper bridge is not safe, children continue to cross the river at this point, stated firemen today as they pointed out that the recent mild spell had made the ice treacherously thin in places with open stretches of water showing in others.

"Children coming home from school, and after school hours, persist in crossing the river at this point, but with the volume of water and current which runs at this point, should anyone break through they would immediately be drawn under the ice," warned firemen.

WOOLER RESIDENT KILLED INSTANTLY NEAR TRENTON

Maynard Sharpe, Driving Car, Crashes Into Rear of Rathbun Bus Stopped to Discharge Passenger

STORMING AT TIME

Trenton, Dec. 13 — Maynard Sharpe, life-long resident of Wooler and well-known salesman in the district, was instantly killed Thursday night when his car came into collision with a Rathbun bus about six miles east of here. The bus was driven by Clarence Brooker.

According to Traffic Officer J. Hatch, who investigated the accident, Mr. Sharpe was following the bus on the highway, both being driven in a westerly direction. The bus stopped to allow a passenger to dismount and the Sharpe car collided with the rear of the bus. Considerable damage was done to the Sharpe car and little damage to the bus. All the passengers in the bus escaped injury.

The highway was icy at the time of the accident due to a sleet storm that covered the pavement with slippery ice.

Mr. Sharpe was killed instantly from severe internal injuries. An inquest was ordered by Dr. E. A. McQuaid, of Trenton, which opened last night and was adjourned to Thursday night, December 19.

He was born in Murray Township 47 years ago, being the son of Mrs. Sanford Sharpe and the late Mr. Sharpe of Murray Township. A resident of the district throughout his life, he was prominent in community affairs, in the Wooler United Church and in the Masonic Lodge.

Surviving him are his wife Margaret, one son, Malcolm and one daughter Lois, all at home; two sisters, Mrs. C. Gainforth and Mrs. M. Gerow of Wooler.

MRS. EMILY IRELAND

Following a short illness, Mrs. Emily Ireland, of Glen Miller, died at her home last night. She was in her 91st year, having been born in England, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Phipps.

Coming to Canada over a half a century ago, she has resided in this district most of the time and is very well-known in the district.

The funeral will take place from the home of her son Francis W. Ireland of Glen Miller. Interment will take place in the Carrying Place Cemetery and Rev. M. Robinson will officate at the service.

SOOT ACCUMULATION CAUSE OF BLAZE

A blazing smoke stack at the plant of the Houston Co. Ltd., St. Paul Street, caused the local fire brigade a run to that address on Friday morning. Soot accumulation in the stack as the result of burning shavings was the cause of the blaze, firemen stated, although only the usual fire had been built in the furnace.

Company employees had applied water to the blaze before the firemen arrived on the scene, but a hose line was run from a nearby hydrant to cool the smoke stack off. No damage resulted.

SAFETY CAMPAIGN IS ANNOUNCED

Toronto, Dec. 13.—(CP)—A safety campaign to keep down Toronto's rising traffic toll, was announced today by police. One thousand signs bearing the imprint of a pair of feet and the question, "are your feet killing you?" will be erected on posts in the city. In addition 10,000 safety stickers will be distributed to motorists.

The police board is raising a flag of safety at the city hall which will fly as long as no pedestrians are killed in the campaign.

WEST FOOTBALL UNION WITHDRAWS FROM THE C. R. U.

Also Announced J. T. Thompson, President of C.R.U., Has Resigned in Protest Against C.R.U. for Not Allowing East-West Game This Year

STATEMENT GIVEN.

Calgary, Dec. 13 (CP)—In protest against the action of the Canadian Rugby Union regarding the East-West football final and the general attitude of football's governing body toward the western game, officials of the Western Interprovincial Football Union today notified the C.R.U. that it was withdrawing its affiliation.

At the same time the President, John T. Thompson of the Western League also announced that John M. Bannerman, Calgary, President of the C.R.U., had sent his resignation to Bobby Hewitson, Toronto, C.R.U. Secretary.

Bannerman had no comment to make regarding his resignation.

In a 500-word statement President Thompson said refusal of the C.R.U. to give even passive approval of the proposed exhibition game between the East and West for the benefit of war charity can only be construed as "a disciplinary measure" against western football.

"The deliberate scuttling of this war charity game cannot be condoned or approved by the W.I.F.U." said the statement.

The statement added that due to the "lop-sided representation" of eastern representatives on the executive and the rules committee the W.I.F.U. found little good would come from its continued affiliation with the C.R.U. The statement continued:

"The Canadian Rugby Union will recognise that fact sooner or later and will remold itself from a dictatorship into a union that will act as a clearing house for rule preferences that give a uniform code of rule and at the same time permit divergent sectors to furnish their Canadian fans with that particular style of play they desire to see and pay for."

Secretary Non-Committal

Toronto, Dec. 13 (CP)—R. W. Hewitson, Secretary of the Canadian Rugby Union, said today he had not heard of or received the reported resignation of John M. Bannerman of Calgary, C.R.U. President.

At Calgary, John T. Thompson of the Western Interprovincial Football Union said Bannerman had sent his resignation to Hewitson.

"I've heard nothing yet about the Western Union's withdrawal from the C.R.U. and nothing at all about any resignations," Hewitson said.

Canadian-Made Trucks Probably Being Used In Egyptian Campaign

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP)—Canadian-made motor trucks probably are being used by the allied forces in their offensive against Italian troops in Western Egypt, a spokesman for the Department of Munitions and Supply said last night.

This official said that "quite a few" Canadian trucks had been shipped to Egypt to increase the mobility of allied units there, but he declined to say when the shipments were made, or just how many vehicles were sent.

"I don't think any definite word has come in that the trucks actually are being used," he said, "but it seems a fair assumption that, in an operation of that size, at least some would be in service."

He said the Department will be interested keenly in any reports that may come from Egypt telling how the Canadian trucks stand up under the difficult conditions of desert warfare.

Restrict Travel Across Frontiers Of Switzerland

Berne, Switzerland, Dec. 13 — (AP)— Restrictions on travel across Switzerland's frontiers with Germany, Italy and France were tightened today by a decree authorizing the High Command to increase military control at certain frontier posts for "urgent" reasons.

The decree gave no official reasons for the new measure. It was believed to have been inspired, however, by efforts to keep refugees from crossing secretly into Switzerland."

Among the new frontier regulations to go into force December 19 is one requiring special cards issued by military commanders for crossing Rhine River bridges in Eastern Switzerland near Liechtenstein and the old Austrian border.

Passage of freight and merchandise of all kinds across Swiss frontiers is authorized only during the working hours of full border control staffs. Trucks, automobiles and horse drawn vehicles are limited to specified frontier roads while others are reserved for pedestrians and cyclists.

ONLY SHORT DELAY

Creighton, Ont., Dec. 13.—(CP) — A Canadian Pacific Railway ore train moving east side-swiped a box car standing on sidetrack today, knocking the leader wheels of the train off the track. No one was injured and after a short delay the ore train continued its journey.

Italian Debacle In Egypt May Destroy Duce

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP).—Steel-shod jaws of a carefully prepared British trap have sprung shut to bite off the head of Italy's boasted army of attack in Egypt, and rock Rome anew with tidings of disaster.

A grim story of defeat, more crushing perhaps in its potential effect upon the course of the war than the Greek rout of Italian invading hosts, awaits official telling in Italy. It will test rigorously Mussolini's boast that his war bulletins to his people are 'documentations of truth."

British estimates of the number of prisoners taken are soaring into high figures. Each new Cairo bulletin steps up the aggregate. Prime Minister Churchill prepared Parliament for announcement that three or more Italian divisions had been gobbled.

That would mean substantially a sixth at least of Marshal Graziani's once powerful striking force. Add probable Italian casualties and stragglers and a quarter or more of his entire army seems to have been put out of action in four days.

Cream of Army Gone.

Authoritative figures on Graziani's full strength are lacking. It has been estimated at from 150,000 to 250,000 men. The cream of its unquestionably was posted at the now-lost Sidi Barrani spearhead and has been destroyed.

Those divisions were the cutting edge of the Italian thrust at the Suez Canal. They were shock troops, native and Italian. Their loss is irreparable because replacements cannot be sent from Italy to Africa through Britain's tightened Mediterranean blockade.

British press reports of a general retreat by remnants of the Italian advance forces in Egypt sound plausible. Thousands of troops unquestionably were scattered westward from Sidi Barrani to the Libyan border along the slender but exposed 75-mile Italian supply line. The bulk of them necessarily were work troops, however, not fighters. They were there to maintian essential and difficult service for the front.

Prolonged resistance to a westward lunge by the victory-flushed British forces and their Free French allies seems impossible. The Italian retreat route probably is badly cluttered by wreckage of the shattered advance army and its supporting service. To bring up fresh shock divisions against that morale-breaking situation and under fire of British bombers and long-range naval guns would be difficult, even if Graziani has such fighting units to call upon.

Touched With Apathy.

There is still lacking, however, a vital piece in the picture puzzle of Italy's new defeat. There is as yet no adequate explanation of Italian surrenders mounting into big figures.

Months of inactivity under difficult desert conditions may have eaten into the Italians' fighting spirit. If the British troops succeeded in achieving a complete surprise, then disruption of the Italian organization would be a contributing factor. Yet neither explanation could cover all the ground.

It is also improbable that Britain could have brought an overwhelming superiority in numbers into action. What seems far more likely is that the Italian army in Egypt was touched with the same apathy that obviously marked the Fascists in Albania.

As reflections of public war morale, the Italian disasters in Albania and Egypt could be of more importance than can be measured by military yardsticks. They could mean the beginning of the end for Mussolini, if not Hitler.

CANNIFTON W.A.

The Women's Association of Cannifton United Church held their annual meeting on Tuesday, December 10th.

The morning was spent in quilting the twenty-ninth quilt of the year and at noon the regular monthly dinner was served with Mrs. Clapp and Mrs. W. Brenton in charge.

Rev. W. J. Davis took charge of the election of officers. It was generally felt that members should not occupy the same office for a very long term but that different ones should have the privilege of the experience and share in the responsibility of the work.

However, due to local conditions, all officers were re-instated for another year with Mrs. H. Empson as President, and Mrs. Chas. Mills as Secretary.

The association has enjoyed a successful year. It has among other things contributed considerably to the expense funds of the church, supplemented the kitchen equipment to the extent of over fifty dollars and sent many cards and flowers in cases of illness and bereavement.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The Italian press, seeking simultaneously to conceal and explain away Italian reverses in Albania and North Africa, rapidly has approached a state bordering on hysteria.

Obviously the Fascist party feels itself in some peril as a consequence of its miscalculations and vainglorious bungling, for the trend is to place the blame on the military command and accuse it of letting down the political command —in a word Mussolini.

Roberto Farinacci, editorial writer for Regime Fascista, is leading a campaign of calumny against the resigned Marshal Pietro Badoglio. Said Farinacci today: "It is infantile to try to put the responsibility on the political command when it is more than clear that the military conduct of the war solely concerns technical organization."

Farinacci is right, of course, when he talks of conduct of the war, but he neglects to mention who declared the war and to recall that Italy already had fought two long wars without startling success and almost undoubtedly was in no shape to fight another for a while.

The campaign appears launched, however, to make Badoglio the goat for what already has shown itself to be a flop and what, apparently, the Italians expect to become a major disaster.

Both in Albania and North Africa the Anglo-Greek Allies are forging ahead, the Greek slowed a bit by difficult terrain and bad weather. The British Middle East command has been unable to keep its communiques up to date with developments, so fast have the Italians been running or surrendering. Prisoners possibly are in the neighborhood of 40,000, but there has been no time to count them accurately.

Perfectly Timed

When the current desert battle is over it probably will be revealed as one of the most perfectly timed and coordinated offensives in modern military history. When the storm broke, after brewing for about three months, it deluged the Italians with fire from land, sea and air.

The Royal Navy shelled Italian bases from offshore, Royal Air Force planes bombed them furiously and the swiftly-moving mechanized British desert forces rushed them across many miles of sand and rock.

The Italians, almost undoubtedly, were in bad shape before the attack was launched. They had been squatting at Sidi Barrani for three months while the British Mediterranean fleet prevented supplies from reaching them. They had previously advanced to Sidi Barrani against small and withdrawing British desert fighters who ruined the water sources as they retired.

Lack of water probably is one of the chief causes of Italian suffering. The daytime heat in the land where they are fighting is terrific, soaring above the 100-degree mark. Men who work must drink far more than in a moderate climate.

In this respect British troops had a decided advantage. They possessed the main water supply sources.

Apparently the British plan was to let the Italians sit out and stew in the desert until they became soft and then pour over them a concentrated and unrelenting fire from all the three services.

A GREAT DIPLOMAT PASSES

Filling one of the most important posts in the world in these days of war, the Marquess of Lothian, British ambassador to the United States, who died on Thursday morning, is mourned throughout the democratic world. News of his death came as a great shock to the people in Britain and to the people of the United States, and there were everywhere expressions of sorrow in the passing of the man who has been serving his high office in a manner so eminently fitting. In the British Empire his death is felt as a national loss.

Like so many men in high place in war days he has labored incessantly in the performance of his duties and it was pointed out at Ottawa by Sir Gerald Campbell, British High Commissioner for the United Kingdom, his name can be inscribed on the casualty list of the war. It was only a short time ago that he flew to London and he returned after a short stay in England.

Lord Lothian inspired confidence in all those with whom he came in contact. The importance of confidence is of the utmost value in circles of diplomacy and Lord Lothian's performance of his duty was pre-eminently satisfactory and pleasing. His sincerity is shown in the fact that he once believed that Hitler was "earnestly" desirous of peace but the later course of Hitler's actions convinced him that Hitler and his associate Mussolini were to be dealt with only by exercise of superior power.

He came to the United States on the eve of the war. arriving in August 1939 an his many previous visits to the United States had given him an advantage in his knowledge of the American people. He had a long training for the office for he came to the fore in the days of the last war with an office under Prime Minister David Lloyd George.

Lord Lothian had openly brought forward the question of financial aid to Britain from the United States.

He was a noble representative of a great Empire and handled with the perfection of his good nature, wide knowledge of men and affairs, courtesy and diplomacy, situations as they arose. He possessed a genial disposition and was direct and plain in his methods. Those who heard or read his speeches and those who have seen and heard him in brief interviews in the motion pictures rightly gathered the impression that he was the type of man who by his sympathy, fairness and wide knowledge could build up goodwill between nations. His intellect was keen and he could cut through red tape and through arguments to the core of a problem.

Britain will miss this diplomat who gave himself wholeheartedly to the office in the most important time in history. He impressed his personality and character upon the office in his own kindly way.

'DESERT MARCH' TO VICTORY

The march of the British troops to the Mediterranean Sea across 75 miles of desert and the capture of Sidi Barrani with the capture of thousands of Italians who have been taken prisoner, perhaps to the extent of at least the best part of three divisions as Prime Minister Churchill suggested is the greatest achievement in the African campaign in the Middle East. At present there are indications that it means a general retreat of the Italian forces.

This blow adds to the manifest discomfort of the Italian Fascist regime which has suffered in the past month reverse after reverse on land, in Greece and Albania, and now in Egypt and on the Mediterranean. Added to these griefs of Mussolini are signs of trouble with Italian officers resigning important posts and evidence of a growing attitude on the part of at least one publication in Italy to speak out (and it was not Gayda's familar Fascist newspaper, which has been the outstanding exponent and mouthpiece of the dictator.) It was the editor of a magazine which attacked the rise of prices in Italy.

The south end of the Axis has shown it is no match for the fighting qualities of the British, the Greeks and Free Frenchmen who are taking their part in the British army of the Nile.

Napoleon could have told Mussolini of the dangers of attempting to invade the land of the Nile and the Pharaohs and the desert sands. To drive an army through the desert requires immense stamina in the men and the most perfect mechanism and communication lines. How strong Italy was and is in this regard is not known. The Italian drive on Egypt bogged down some time ago.

The outlook must be very disconcerting to the regime regime of Mussolini, while from the standpoint of the British, Greeks and their Allies, the developments are of the greatest importance because they may be the herald of a series of events of this nature and because of their invigorating influence upon the non-Axis nations and even upon the peoples of lands under Axis influence or domination. The influence upon the attitude of the masses of the people of Italy must be profound despite the attempts of Gayda and others to explain to the people whatever is disclosed of the new trend in the Mediterranean area.

British forces in Egypt have achieved a great victory, called by Mr. Churchill one of the "first order." The desert sands, shifting and intensely hot, were an obstacle to the Italians but the British have triumphed over them as their long march over the desert reveals. They have conquered the desert and the enemy.

It will be remembered that the British Prime Minister not long ago while pointing out the situation in the Middle East made the statement that Egypt would be adequately defended. Thursday he was able to say in the light of the victory of this week, "The whole episode must be judged upon the background of the fact it is only three or four months ago that our anxieties for the defence of Egypt were acute.

"The anxieties are now removed and the British guarantee and pledge that Egypt would be effectively defended against all comers has been in every way made good."

Mr. Churchill said that the pursuit of the enemy to the westward was continuing with the greatest vigor. He highly praised the command and the troops who performed this remarkable feat of endurance and daring which accompanied it.

Rome Declares Battle Proceeding In Desert Sandstorm

Rome, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The Italian High Command asserted today that a battle is proceeding between British and Italian forces in a desert standstorm between Sidi Barrani, Egypt, and the Libyan frontier.

A communique claimed the Italians had shot down 18 British planes and lost only 12 themselves since the battle began last Monday.

(The Royal Air force shot down more than 20 Italian planes on one day alone.)

On the Albanian front action was said to have been limited to small, localized attacks by the Greeks, which the Italians claimed they had repulsed.

The communique gave no details concerning the battle on the Egyptian front except to say that Italian forces were "fighting with great gallantry" against "enemy armored columns".

The action was said to be centred in the 65-mile coastal area between Sidi Barrani and Salum, just across the Egyptian border from Libya, and to be spreading into the desert to the south.

The Replanning Of Old London

(Letters to the Editor of the London Times)

Sir:—The Bressey Report on the highway development of Greater London turns out to be a most happy instance of prescience on the part of the Government which ordered its preparation. It stands as a magnificent foundation on which the more complete detail planning of special areas could be based. The City Corporation and the London County Council are alike sympathetic to the suggestion that the machinery for replanning and rebuilding parts of London should be established at once.

May I suggest that a preliminary conference, under the chairmanship of Lord Reith, should be called to discuss the setting up of the necessary organization for survey and planning, and, still looking ahead, the special legislative and executive powers which must be given a replanning authority? Such a conference should have representatives of the town-planning authorities I have named, of the respective institutes of architects, engineers, surveyors, and town planners of finance and commerce, transport, and any other interest thought fit. The difficulties ahead, which are not new, would at any rate be made clear, the first step towards surmounting them.

Dr. Lanciani, the Italian archaeologist, writing a few years ago of the Neronian fire of Rome, said: "As the metropolis was crowded at every corner with shrines and altars, and small temples, which religious sentiment made absolutely inviolable, and as the slightest work of improvement was fiercely opposed by private owners of property, and gave occasion to an endless amount of lawsuits, appraisals and fights among the experts, Nero rid himself of all these difficulties in the simplest way. He ordered his architects, Severus and Celer, to draw a new plan of the city according to the best principles of hygiene and comfort, and then arranged the fire. He even provided booths and food for those whom the fire had made homeless."

A harsh fate has compelled the rebuilding of parts of London, but in so doing has provided an opportunity for improvement unexampled since the Great Fire of the seventh century. What Rome did, London can do.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,
W. H. ANSELL, President,
Royal Institute of British Architects.

London Undestroyed

Sir:—A letter on the subject of replanning London, made august by the signature of the president of the Royal Institute of British Architects, appears in the Times this morning. A foreigner, nay a bluff British provincial, might infer that London today resembles Rome after Nero's holocaust. He certainly would never suspect that, notwithstanding eight weeks of intensive Nazi exercise in the arts of explosive destruction, one has to drive through miles of London streets to find the ruins.

This the president certainly never intended. But as one interested in British publicity abroad, I submit that while truth in our writings is essential, we must guard against a presentation that gives the unsophisticated alien a mistaken idea of our state, and the sophisticated enemy occasion to blaspheme. There is no wholesale laying low of localities, such as would clear the way for the rearing of a new London. Or is Piccadilly, in its impressive length to be peaceably pulled down and rebuilt because a church and a tailor's shop have been wrecked?

If Dr. Goebbels knew his job he would make some play with this honest and well-meant presidential pronouncement.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,
(Sir) RODERICK JONES,
Reuters, 5, Fleet St., E. C. 4, Nov. 7.

The New London

(From The London Star)

The Bressey Report on London's road chaos showed us how we might remould our city nearer to the heart's desire. Now that Hitler is trying, though unsuccessfully to "first shatter it to bits" we should take that majestic plan for a fairer London out of the pigeonhole to which it had too inevitably gone and set to work with it. We can, at any rate, get through the blue-print stages even while the war is still on. It is lucky indeed for the Empire that we have already in our hands a plan which at the time it was published was widely hailed as a masterly solution of the capital's transport problems.

Under the German Heel

"A shrewd conqueror" genially observes Adolf Hitler in Mein Kampf, "will always enforce his exactions on the conquered only by stages, so far as that is possible. Then he may expect that a people who have lost all strength of character—which is always the case with every nation that voluntarily submits to the threats of an opponent—will not find in any of these acts of oppression, if one be enforced apart from the other, sufficient grounds for taking up arms again."

In accordance with this political philosophy Germany is imposing rations on occupied countries in varying degree. On the one hand, Germany cannot sell her "new order" to occupied countries if she smashes living standards too suddenly. On the other, German occupation itself has made the food situation in occupied countries considerably worse for it has exposed them to the British blockade. And German soldiers are buying goods in occupied countries with worthless money, which is another name for loot.

Here are food rations as imposed in occupied countries:

Poland And Bohemia-Moravia

Rations in general are below and in the case of Poland far below those fixed for Germany. Black markets are active in Bohemia-Moravia.

Denmark

Sugar (5 lbs. a month), coffee (1 1-2 lbs. a month), and tea (3-4 lb. a month), were rationed at the end of 1939, but there was at that time no question of bread, and especially of fats, being restricted.

After the occupation the manufacture of margarine was drastically curtailed and only consumers in the lowest income group were allowed to buy margarine, the ration being about 115 grs. (4 oz.) weekly. Other consumers had to buy butter. The Minister of Trade has given an assurance that there is no intention of rationing butter. The manager of a large cooperative dairy, speaking of the marked fall in milk receipts, expressed the view that butter ration would soon be unavoidable.

Bread was rationed from September 1940, rye bread from October. The ration of white bread in September was 600 grs. but since October 1 has been only 500 grs. a week, rye bread 1,500 grs. The total of 2,000 grs. compares with the "normal consumer's" ration of 2,500 grs. in Germany.

From October 1 the coffee ration has been cut by half. It had previously been cut by nearly half in July.

Norway

Sugar and coffee were rationed early in the war in order to safeguard supplies. The basic sugar ration was 250 grs. a week and the coffee 80 grs. Imports did not cease and it was expected that these commodities would be decontrolled in 1940. From October 1 both rations have been reduced, sugar to 2000 grs. a week, coffee to 50 grs.

Bread was not rationed before the invasion, but shortly afterwards the ration was fixed at 390 grs. a day, i. e. 2,730 grs. a week, or rather more than the ration for "normal consumers" in Germany. As from October 1, the bread ration has been reduced to 325 grs. a day, almost exactly the German level. Consumers have the option of taking part of their bread ration in the form of flour.

Butter was not rationed before the invasion, but from October 1 a ration of 300 grs. a week has come into force. Other fats do not appear to be rationed, but supplies are said to be short and irregular. The butter ration of 300 grs. which has to serve for all purposes, including cooking, puts the Norwegian only slightly above the "normal German consumer's" level for all fats.

A reduction of the bread and sugar rations is said to be under consideration.

Netherlands

Sugar, coffee, tea and certain kinds of peas and beans were rationed before the invasion, but from July onwards bread and farinaceous foods, butter, margarine and edible oils have been rationed as well, and meat rationing was introduced in September. The sale of cream is prohibited and fats are rationed on a scale which gives a somewhat smaller ration for children and additional rations for heavy and very heavy workers. Margarine is available only to consumers in the lowest income group whilst others must buy butter.

The original extremely scanty ration for coffee and tea has been increased, and the bread ration, originally 2,000 grs. a week irrespective of quality, with an extra allowance for heavy workers, has been altered to 2,000 grs. of white bread, or 2,500 grs. of rye bread a week. The basic fats ration has not altered.

Belgium

Before the invasion no rations had been brought into force, though cards covering a wide range of foods had been distributed as a precaution in case of emergency.

Soon after the occupation, bread, coffee, fats, sugar and potatoes were rationed, while whole milk was restricted to children, old people and invalids. Meat has not yet been rationed.

The bread ration is the lowest noted in any of the western occupied territories—1,575 grs. a week compared with 2,250 grs. in Germany. The sugar ration of 210 grs. is below the German level. The fats ration is remarkably high and better than that of Germany or any of the occupied territories.

It is reported that the Belgians are not taking kindly to the rationing system and that a black market for rationed foods is active.

France

There was no rationing system by cards before the invasion, but consumption was regulated by restrictions on the buying of meat, cakes, pastries and chocolate; the prohibition of the sale of fancy breads and fancy chocolates, of the sale of spirits and aperitifs three days a week, and of the serving of more than two main dishes, including 1 meat dish, in restaurants.

The economic dislocation following the collapse made it impossible to introduce a comprehensive rationing plan at once. The food supply situation varied greatly in each part of the country, though generally speaking, it was more favorable in occupied than in unoccupied France.

Local authorities endeavoured to bring some order into the retail supply of food and there were some local and temporary rationing schemes. In July the French Food Minister announced his intention of introducing a system of card rationing at an early date. A beginning was made in August with sugar, farinaceous foods, rice, margarine and vegetable oils, though the system does not appear to have been uniformly applied throughout France. Whole milk was restricted to children and nursing mothers, but skimmed milk was allowed to other consumers without restriction. In September, butter and coffee were added to the list of rationed foods. Only coffee mixture containing not more than one-third of pure coffee to be offered for sale. The sale of rice was prohibited.

As from September 23 a comprehensive and uniform food rationing plan was introduced for the whole of France, including bread and farinaceous foods, sugar, coffee mixture, rice, cheese, fats and meat.

Bread, which was in August subjected to a rather loose form of rationing in Paris and some other places, is now rationed somewhat more liberally than in Germany.

The fats ration, which was 200 grs. a week in August in occupied France, is now only 100 grs. a week throughout France, little more than one-third of the German ration.

The sugar ration, at 125 grs., is remarkably low. An extra ration of sugar is allowed for children, which may be compared with the extra ration of honey and jam for children in Germany. In France, as in Germany, mothers of families are given "priority cards" giving them priority in food queues.—Director of Information.

Churchill's Words Move All Hearers

A phrase in Mr. Churchill's latest speech has caught the imagination of his hearers. This was when he referred to the "banshee wailings" of the air raid sirens, which have now become such an accepted feature of our lives.

The banshee is a ghost, usually of the family variety, and peculiar to Ireland. It is noted for its mournful howlings, particularly before the death of some prominent Irishman.

Mr. Churchill's oratory is remarkable for the fact that he combines an almost eighteenth century rotundity of style with the effective use of striking colloquialisms.

It is also remarkable that Mr. Churchill, although he is now, without doubt, the greatest living British orator, was not naturally gifted as a speaker when he first entered public life.

• • •

A story is told of how he first acquired self-confidence on a public platform.

He was driving—so the tale goes —with the late Lord Salisbury to a public meeting in the Free Trade Hall at Manchester, then perhaps, the most important "platform" in the country.

It was a big occasion and as their carriage clop-clopped its way to the venue, Lord Salisbury turned to Mr. Churchill.

"Feeling nervous, Winston?" he asked. England's future Prime Minister admitted that he was. "My boy," said the veteran statesman, "don't be nervous. Just do as I do. Whenever I get up to speak I always make a point of taking a good look round my audience. Then I say to myself, 'My God! What a lot of silly fools,' and then I feel better."

This advice is probably as heartening as any that could ever be given to a public speaker. Certainly, since those far-off days, when his oratory was a halting, faltering affair, Mr. Churchill has more than profited by the lesson.

• • •

Incidentally, we have opportunities of contrasting the oratory of the leaders of the British and the German nations. Herr Hitler's technique is well known. Even the most impartial critics must agree that to some extent it resembles the auto-intoxication of an African witch-doctor, working himself and his audience into an ecstatic frenzy.

Mr. Churchill, on the other hand, speaks with even good temper. He reviews the situation calmly and with judgment. The House of Commons—and the country—feel that they are being taken into his confidence, and asked to review with him the past, present and future.

Threats are no substitute for resolution. Mr. Churchill's level sentences, informed by a strong, unshakeable resolve, and lit by flashes of a skilful, controlled irony, exhibit the typical British qualities of sanity, tenacity, and a confidence based on the incontrovertible fact of an ultimate victory

Herr Hitler has promised us a war of nerves. It needs no expert or neurologist to diagnose whether the German or the British patient is more sorely in need of treatment!—Montreal Star.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

A Nourishing Diet Costing Thirty-Four Cents a Day

In my student days we learned that there were three main classes of foods — proteins (meat, eggs, fish, cereals), starches (bread, potatoes, sugar), and fats (butter, cream, fat meats). Two other foodstuffs, salts—iron, lime, phosphorus, and water, were considered "necessary" foods.

Today foods are not considered entirely from the standpoint of fuel or heat, but from the standpoint of the building of the body and maintaining the various body processes in proper condition to do their work. The minerals and vitamins whose value was formerly unknown are now known to be absolutely necessary for life and good health.

In days when foods necessary to maintain health are of the utmost importance to a nation, adults, children and children of the future, not only must these foods be acquired but they must be within the reach of those with low income.

That the expectant mother must have an excess quantity of foods containing all the food essentials —proteins, starches, fats, minerals and vitamins—is agreed. It is a source of surprise and satisfaction therefore to learn that research workers at Columbia University have found that the expectant mother can live on a diet costing as little as 34 cents a day and still get generous amounts of all the food substances she needs.

This diet, as announced by Dr. Clara Taylor, Columbia University, assistant professor of nutrition, is rich in minerals and vitamins.

A sample day's menu consists of:

Breakfast:

Four prunes; one cup of oatmeal with a little sugar; two slices whole wheat toast; one tablespoon butter one glass of milk.

Lunch:

Cream of tomato soup made with one half cup of tomatoes, one-fourth cup evaporated milk, one teaspoon flour and one teaspoon fat; salad of one egg, lettuce, mayonnaise; cheese sandwich (three ounces of cheese and teaspoon butter) on whole wheat bread; one glass of milk.

Dinner:

Three ounces broiled beef liver; one baked potato; one cup kale or cabbage; two slices whole wheat bread; two tablespoons butter; one banana; one glass milk.

Sugar allowance for a day is one ounce.

As we look carefully at this diet it will be seen that all classes of foods and the vital minerals and vitamins are present in abundance. Also that the "protective" foods — dairy products and raw vegetables —are present in adequate amounts.

Blood for Air Raid Victims

British research workers have revolutionized the technique of blood transfusion and in London blood is now being stored under proper scientific conditions ready for use after air-raids.

Formerly, donors of blood had to be available at an instant's notice because a patient's life may have depended on fresh supplies of blood and there was no known way of preventing its deterioration if it were not made use of almost at once. Today, thanks to the work carried out in British laboratories, blood is being stored away without loss of its vitalizing properties either during storage or after transfusion into the patient's system. It lasts almost as long as his own.

The advance has been brought about by filter mats which sterilize and clarify the blood, preventing bacterial contamination and consequent decay.

The result is that London's Blood Supply Depots have now got adequate supplies of blood stored against casualties from air raids which very often stand in need of immediate aid.—R. Williamson, London.

Two Million Steam Traps

What is believed to be a world record has been set up by a British firm which has just sold its two-millionth steam trap.

A steam trap is an authentic valve which gets rid of water condensing from steam in pipe lines and steam-heated units.

There are many types and many ways in which they work. Some contain a float which lifts in the water that comes to it, so opening a discharge valve. Others have a bucket which sinks as it fills with this water and pulls a valve off its seat. Yet others carry a thermostat which closes to steam and opens to cooler water, automatically draining it off.

Traps are to be found in whaling ships in the Antarctic, in the oil refineries of Iran, in the woollen mills of Scotland, and cotton mills of Virginia, on machines for polishing oranges, ironing shirts, and peeling nuts; in breweries, battleships and Buckingham Palace; in Westminster, Washington, Ottawa and Canberra.—R. Williamson, London.

German Messerschmitt Shelled to Bits in Air By Plane With Cannon

London, Dec. 13—(CP)—The Air Ministry related how a British fighter plane, newly-equipped with cannon, shelled a German Messerschmitt raider which "exploded into little bits in the air . . . like a bursting anti-aircraft shell."

A 21-year-old Royal Air Force pilot, the Air Ministry said, scored the first victory with the new armor-piercing cannon in an attack with three other R.A.F. planes against 10 to 15 Messerschmitt 109's.

"At 15 miles over the channel, I got them within range with my cannon," the pilot said.

"I fired a few rounds at one, but missed—perhaps because I was overtaking him so quickly.

"So I turned my attention to another German. This time, from dead astern, I fired very deliberately with my cannon.

"What happened was like nothing I had ever seen before——not even in the pictures. I gave him two short busts. The cannon shells went boom-boom and one must have struck his petrol tank.

"The Messerschmitt 109 exploded in front of me like a bursting anti-aircraft shell. There was a quick flash, a cloud of black smoke and bits were flying through the air. The stuff was simply dripping out of the sky.

"I broke away and looked around. The smoke quickly dispersed, and of all the pieces falling around me there wasn't one I could recognize as any part of an airplane.

"It was the most amazing sight I have ever seen."

Christmas Program At W. M. S. Meeting In Tweed United Church

Tweed—The December meeting of the W.M.S. held in the United Church parlors was opened by Christmas carols and prayer by the President, Mrs. W. S. Gordon. The first part of the program consisted of the reading of the Christmas story by Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. S. G. Way, Mrs. Geo. Geraldi, Miss C. Meiklejohn and Mrs. H. Francis and a duet sung by Mrs. H. Grier and Mrs. Ed. Rath.

Mrs. Gordon in a short address referred to Christ as the centre of the comradeship of the Holy Church as six hundred million people today bow in homage before him. This was followed by a solo "Gentle Mary laid her child" sung by Mrs. M. G. Dales.

Mrs. T. E. Moffat spoke on present day conditions in Germany and reminded her hearers that the spirit of Christ and of Christmas has not been extinguished in that land despite the evil spirit of war. Martin Luther the founder of Protestantism had written many years ago one of the best loved of all Christmas hymns "Away in the manger." This was sung very sweetly by three year old Carol-Ann Connor.

Mrs. F. B. Foster gave an illuminating talk on Africa and the work of the Christian Missionaries among the people of that continent. Mrs. Davis followed with a solo "O Little One Holy." Interesting talks were given by Mrs. M. Bradshaw, Mrs. P. C. Barnett, Mrs. J W. Kingston on India, China and Japan. The progress of Christianity has been steady in these countries since its introduction.

A sale of articles by the Mission Band was held by the leader, Mrs. Wallace I. Johnston.

The Evening Auxiliary met on Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Marion Newton. An excellent program had been prepared by Mrs. M. G. Dales and Mrs. S. H. Connor.

The following took part: Mrs. C. R. Porritt, Mrs. Ed Way, Mrs. J. Colgan, Mrs. H. Francis and Miss L. Richardson. Mrs. H. Grier and Mrs. Ed Rath sang a Christmas duet.

A reading "The Pilgrims to Bethlehem" was given by Miss McQuarrie and Mrs. H. Emerson. Prayer was offered by Mrs. H. L. Morrison.

President Roosevelt "Shocked" by Death Of Lord Lothian

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt said in a message to King George that he was "shocked beyond measure" at news of the death of the Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States.

The President's message, which originated aboard the U.S.S. Tuscalossa, in the Caribbean Sea, said:

"I am shocked beyond measure to hear of the sudden passing of my old friend and your ambassador, the Marquess of Lothian.

"Through nearly a quarter of a century we had come to understand and trust each other.

"I am very certain that if he had been allowed by Providence to leave us a last message he would have told us that the greatest of all efforts to retain democracy in the world must and will succeed."

The United States Government offered, through Secretary of State Cordell Hull, "all facilities at our disposal," to the British Government in connection with the death of Lord Lothian, British ambassador, and it was believed in some quarters that an American warship might take the ambassador's body home.

Hull also sent the following message, in part, to the British Prime Minister, Winston Churchill:—

"My country mourns with Great Britain the loss of this distinguished statesman who, with patriotic courage, wise counsel and unfailing devotion, rendered outstanding service to his nation and to humanity."

Other Comment:

Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior—"He knew America as few Europeans do. He was thoroughly democratic, knew our American habits and psychology and was very popular here. His death is a very severe loss."

Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts, Speaker pro tem of the House—"His straightforwardness, together with his ability, made a profound impression in America."

Senator Warren Austin (Rep-Vermont), the Acting Minority Leader—"I hope his death will not disturb the equanimity of the relations between this country and the United Kingdom."

Trade Board Looking For Material to Help Canada's War Work

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP)—Belief that Canada's four-man trade mission to the West Indies and Central and South America is keeping an eye open for sources of material to be used by Canada's War Industries was expressed here last night.

Before the mission, headed by the Trade Minister, Hon. J. A. MacKinnon left Ottawa at the end of last month, it was said the members would be interested principally in extending Canada's exports, thus providing foreign exchange for war purchases.

But it was said also that the mission would see what products of the nations visited could be used to advantage by the Dominion.

For the most part, Canada has copious supplies of minerals, but an official of the Mines and Resources Department said last night the tin deposits of Bolivia and chromium deposits of Brazil perhaps could help fill the needs of Canada's expanding aircraft industry.

He said further that Venezuelan oil might "come in handy," and Brazil would be valuable as an alternative source of supply for the Malay States from which most Canadian rubber now comes.

The Canadian mission now is at Balboa, Canal Zone, where Mr. MacKinnon is in Gorgas Hospital for a "check-up". The party is scheduled to leave Saturday for Peru.

Besides Mr. MacKinnon, its members are L. D. Wilgress, Deputy Trade Minister; Yves Lamontagne of the Trade Department and G. B. Smith, Private Secretary.

Prime Minister Sends Message Of Sympathy to King

Ottawa, Dec. 13 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King sent messages of sympathy to the King, Prime Minister Churchill and the British Embassy in Washington on the death in Washington of Lord Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States.

In a message addressed to the private Secretary of his Majesty, the Prime Minister said:

"Will you please convey to his Majesty the King an expression of the very sincere sympathy of my colleagues and myself in the sudden passing of his Majesty's Ambassador at Washington. . .

"At this very critical time we can only trust, as indeed we believe, that by a loss so greatly shared, all parts of the English speaking world may be brought still more closely together."

Lord Lothian was to have come to Ottawa next Saturday to be a week-end guest at Government House and to confer and dine with Mr. King.

Only yesterday Mr. King received a telegram indicating Lord Lothian was indisposed and would have to postpone his visit but was looking forward to visiting Ottawa at a future date.

Church to Be Known By Its Former Name

The rector of Emmanuel Church, Rev. D. R. Chatreau, made known today a change in the official name of his church. Since the amalgamation in 1930 by which the First Synod in Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church was merged with the Free Church of England, the Canadian churches have been known by the latter name. But due to technicalities relating to the charter they will in the future be known by their original name, the Reformed Episcopal Church.

Rev. Chatreau pointed out that the charter granted in 1886 makes it necessary for the churches, notwithstanding their union with the Free Church of England, to retain as a part of their name, the Reformed Episcopal Church. The official title, therefore, of the denomination in Canada will be "The Reformed Episcopal Church affiliated with the Free Church of England." This technically, the rector said, "does not affect the status of the Canadian Synod as an integral part of the Free Church of England. It enjoys all the privileges of the Convocation, and recognizes the Bishop Primus in England as its own head."

"SPAT" CALLED OFF

Hollywood, Dec. 12 (AP)—Johnny Weissmuller said yesterday he and his wife have called off their "spat" and she has given up the idea of suing him for divorce.

"It didn't amount to anything," said the movie Tarzan. "I forgot to tell her I was going hunting. (Johnny went goat hunting on nearby Catalina Island and stayed overnight.) She was a little mad about that, but its okay now."

Beryl Scott Weissmuller said through an attorney yesterday that she was going to sue Johnny for divorce.

Possibly your gas bill is unusually high because you allow food and water to boil furiously, although they would cook just as fast with the burner turned down saving gas.

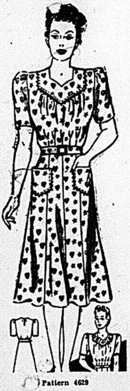
Fresh, Becoming Cotton Style

By ANNE ADAMS



Pattern 4629

This Anne Adams housefrock, Pattern 4629, is so charming and gay a style that it makes grand under-coat wear, too! A bright highlight is that nicely shaped yoke which makes an especially lovely frame for your throat and face. If you prefer the yoke in a contrast fabric, then you might add contrast cuffs to match. The decorative optional pockets would be effective in the contrast, too. Ric-rac or ruffle edging gives a colorful finishing touch. Speaking from a practical angle, see how the yoke holds in the splendid softness of the bodice, aided by darts just above the waist. And notice, too, the flattering, slim lines of the two front skirt panels. All in all, here's a frock you'll enjoy both wearing AND making!

Pattern 4629 is available in women's sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 36 takes 3 3-4 yards 35-inch fabric and 2 1-2 yards ric-rac.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Marriages May Come and Go, In-Law Problem Goes on Forever.

A couple of weeks ago this column published some don'ts for In-Laws which have resulted in many helpful suggestions from correspondents. In the hope that some of these suggestions concerning what should or should not be done may straighten out domestic tangles, extracts from letters are given:

Veteran Father-in-Law Still Fights His Battles

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"My husband is twenty years older than I am, and his father seems a hundred years older than my husband. The old gentleman, who fought on the side of the North during the War between the States, spends his time refighting his battles. It nearly drives me crazy, particularly as I'm of Southern birth and ancestry.

"Southern Girl".

Dear Southern Girl:

Don't overlook the fact that these reminiscences may have distinct financial value. A lady, cousin of the author who wrote "Gone With the Wind" told me she always ran out of the room when the old Confederates discussed the war. Margaret Mitchell, who remained and listened to these tales, produced a masterpiece and made a fortune. In fleeing from the old trooper, perhaps you're passing up valuable material.

Nosey Mother-in-Law

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"My mother-in-law makes a daily visit to our home and wants to know what we had for dinner yesterday and what it costs what we're going to have for dinner today, and what it will cost. She is always prying into the sideboard and refrigerator, and talks of her son's digestion as if her spying didn't ruin my digestion. Sometimes I feel murderous. She thinks I don't know how to cook. I'm wildly in love with my husband.

"Rampant Bride".

"Dear Rampant Bride:

Yours is real trouble and there's no getting 'round that. But as you are wildly in love with your husband, you don't want to start anything in the way of a split between him and his mother. I'd make a game of the whole business. Put down in black and white what is spent. If she thinks the meals aren't good enough or skimpy as your complete letter implied, you might simply suggest that she contribute the materials for the pies and dessert, make them and bring them over to your house.

Married Widower With Children

"Dear Miss Fairfax

"There is no peace in my household. I married a widower with three children. They are young barbarians who should be climbing trees like their arboreal ancestors. When I try to make them behave, they go sobbing to their father and their grandmother, my husband's mother, who tells me they're poor motherless children with whom I should have sympathy. I'm going to have a baby of my own, and I've decided to quit and go back to my mother.

"Martyr".

"Dear Martyr:

It might be a good idea for you to go back to your mother for a little visit, but I'd go home before the baby is born. Husbands should not have a holiday when their wives are having babies. It's good for them to take that walk up and down the floor, we hear so much talk about these days. And don't forget that a baby is a healer of many domestic battles.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN.

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and father are celebrating their Golden Wedding anniversary this month, and we are planning to have Open House all day. Will you please be so kind as to answer a few questions about this?

1.—Is it necessary to send out invitations? Would putting a notice in the newspaper be the proper thing to do?

2.—We are planning to have all the foods, and the plates, napkins and silver on the table, so that the guests can help themselves. Is this proper?

3.—Also—and this is very important to us—is it proper to use paper tablecloths, paper napkins, and paper plates? (We are planning to serve sandwiches, cakes, cookies, olives, and tea and coffee.) The paper tablecloths would be in a golden design.

4.—We thought also of having the wedding cake in the centre of the table. Is this correct?

P. A.

1.—Everyone, I'm sure you'll admit, enjoys having an individual invitation to a party. It gives us more compliment and honor to receive an invitation specially sent to us. You might send to the newspaper the news that the party is to be given.

A Golden Wedding Anniversary is too tremendously important that we should honor this significance by issuing appropriate invitations.

If you do not wish to go to the expense of having the invitations engraved, you can just write them on plain white cards, and space them like this:

1890—1940
Mr. and Mrs. William Grant
At Home
Friday, the twentieth of December from twelve until six o'clock

Or, just as proper, you might write little notes of invitation.

2.—Yes, buffet service would be just the kind to have. You might ask some relatives or friends to preside over the coffee and tea services, at prescribed hours during the day—one co-hostess presiding over the tea-service at one end of the table and the other over the coffee service at the opposite end.

3.—I'd rather suggest that you use your very best tablecloth for this important setting, achieving the gold-motif in your decorations of the table. Perhaps use golden-colored roses (Talisman, for instance) or small or large yellow chrysanthemums in vases on each side of the bride's cake. Use paper napkins only if you really must. And please don't use paper plates Your neighbors or other friends will be only too happy to come to your aid and lend you such accessories as plates and napkins. Or you can buy very inexpensive ones, simple and plain, at the five-and-ten.

4.—Yes, the bride's cake (a white cake with white icing, is a feature of a wedding anniversary party. And the "bride" cuts the first slice, as she did at the wedding.

Heredity, Continued

I have always stressed the advisibility of young people giving consideration to the type of family they propose marrying into.

Marrying into a family that shows a continuous history of good physical and moral health means a great deal, not only for your own happiness but for the happiness of your children as well.

I have practised in this community for over thirty years, and during that time I have seen too many cases of blind marriages, too many instances where a little observation would have shown the youth that the family strain he or she were linking with was not a sound one because some of its members were in the asylum, some were odd, some were diseased.

Of course, it is difficult for a youth to be so objective in choosing a life partner. The normal person is attracted by a feeling of personal liking to someone of the opposite sex. At first it doesn't mean anything, and by the time things have gone so far that a marriage is looming on the horizon neither party is in a frame of mind to care much what the other's family history is, unless they have been brought up by their parents to look beyond personal attractiveness in sizing up persons.

Just before we were graduated from college, one of our professors gave us a lecture about the girls we would marry when we got out into the world. He warned us that some of us would make bad marriages and some would make good ones. He warned us, too, that the only safe thing for us to do was see to it that we never went around with any girl whose background was such that she mightn't make us a good wife.

He said something to us that I have never forgotten and that I often repeat to youths today—that if we married a girl of our own level or above that she would help us to greater things. But if we married beneath us, then instead of bringing her up to our level, we would be dragged down—and remember, I'm not talking about social levels now.

One thing I've noted in the modern generation and that is a growing tendency to examine their associates with a critical mind. So far as the ordinary persons is concerned, there isn't anything he can do about his ancestory. That was all arranged for him. But if he is willing to face facts he can adjust himself to his environment, and lesson any disadvantages he may have inherited.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, December 14

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

RATHER adverse and perplexing astral influences may dominate on this day. While there should be lively situations, with leaning toward the fresh, new and novel, yet there are obstructing and frustrating circumstances which might prove difficult to manipulate. It is probable that the endorsement or constructive support of superiors or those whose co-operation is vital may be withheld. Have regard for their esteem and guard your reputation.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year in which the strange, new, original and all manner of innovations may claim the attention and energies. Cherished plans in this direction may meet impediments and frustrations, particularly through the want of approval and support of those in influence and authority whose endorsement and good will are indispensable. Cultivate and placate these, having a care for the soundness of unusual or novel propositions, largely by building up their faith and confidence.

A child born on this day will have talent of an unusual or creative character, the practicality and merit of which it may be difficult to sell for promotion or recognition of those in prestige and power.

BACKACHE NOT DUE TO AGE

Many people think that backache is a trouble that comes naturally with advancing years, but this woman of 71 proves that it is not.

"I suffered for a long time from backache," she writes, "but put it down to my age (71). Reading your announcement, I thought I would try Kruschen Salts. I have been taking it for some time and have found great relief. I thought you would like to know it has done me a world of good."—(Mrs.) E.R.

When pains in the back are caused by inactive kidneys and failure of the digestive system to throw off poisonous impurities, Kruschen Salts will give real help in setting the matter right. Because Kruschen has a diuretic action which helps to flush your kidneys and liver. After that, your blood throws off all impurities; you get happy relief from pain.

Leafs Defeat Canadiens 4-3 With Dave 'Sweeney' Schriner The Big Gun in Toronto Attack

Scores Pair of Goals and Now Has Registered More Than Any N.H.L. Player

AMERKS EARN TIE

Spring Into Two-Goal Lead but Black Hawks Come Back to Tie up Contest at 2-2

By JACK MITCHELL,

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

There is nothing about silvery-haired Dick Irvin, the noted pigeon fancier and hockey coach, to suggest a modern Frankenstein, but the quiet-spoken Montreal Canadiens mentor must have his own ideas on the matter today in the face of the National Hockey League havoc created by Toronto Maple Leafs.

For the Leafs — the team that Dick built before severing a long term with them to switch to the Canadiens this season—have taken on all the appearances of a monster among hockey machines. They have won 11 of their 13 starts and, true to Frankenstein traditions, have not spared their former master in the doing.

For the third time, Irvin sent his Canadiens up against the monsters last night, and for the third time Coach Happy Day's club took the decision with a 4-3 victory. It was one of two N.H.L. matches, Chicago Black Hawks moving into a third-place tie with Boston Bruins by playing a 2-2 tie with New York Americans in the other.

A note of the ironic was added to the proceedings as the Leafs moved six points ahead of the second-place Detroit Red Wings by whipping Canadiens in Toronto. The Leafs presented Irvin with a silver tea service after the first period in honor of his long association with their club, and then tried to beat the pants off his new boys.

Thirteen Penalties in Period

If Irvin's sentiment was touched at all by the former gesture, however, he failed to show it in his answer to the second. Thirteen minor penalties and one misconduct were handed out as the Canadiens fought right back in a brilliant display that just fell short of holding the flying Maple Leafs.

It was not until late in the third period before a crowd of 9,969 Toronto fans that the Leafs made certain of victory on an unassisted counter by Billy Taylor, their starry young centre. The goal gave Toronto a 4-2 lead and although Joe Benoit got one back, the Canadiens were unable to rally for the other in the remaining minutes.

Big gun in the Toronto attack was the veteran Dave (Sweeney) Schriner, who scored a pair of goals to make his season's total nine, the most of any N.H.L. player. Syl Apps bagged the Leafs' other tally, with Toe Blake and Tony Demers helping Johnny Quilty score one for Canadiens and Ray Getliffe setting up Charlie Sands for another.

Fail to Hold Advantage

Sands put Montreal into a 2-1 lead in the second period after Schriner had scored for Toronto and Quilty for Canadiens in the opening frame. But the Canadiens failed to hold the advantage, Schriner bagging his second goal before the middle session ended and Apps and Taylor both counting in the next. Benoit ended the scoring at 12:25 of the final period.

The loss dropped Canadiens into a last-place tie with the Americans who moved up by drawing the Black Hawks before a slim crowd of about 5,000 in New York. The injury-riddled Amerks sprang into a two-goal lead but Chicago opened up to score a goal late in the second period and another early in the third.

Cully Dahlstrom figured in both Chicago counters, getting the second himself on passes from Earl Seibert and Bill Thoms and helping Johnny Chad bag their first. The veteran Buzz Boll scored the first New York goal on a pass from Bill Carr, while Murry Armstrong and Johnny Sorrell set up rookie Norman Larson for the other.

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—Welterweight champ Fritzie Zivic, who used to be a newsboy, will hustle papers in Times Square Monday when his home town, Pittsburgh, observes "old newsboys' day"......Three of the teams performing in the four major bowl games Jan. 1 will be from Jesuit Colleges — Fordham, Georgetown and Boston College.....Ken Overlin's recent 'flu attack has made tonight's bout with Steve Belloise one of those 6-5-and-take-your-pick affairs.....Patty Berg is putting the finishing touches on a golf book.

Here's an iron man to end all iron men......In three years of Varsity play at Arnold College, Tom Scarso of South Norwalk, Conn., played tackle 60 minutes in every one of the team's 23 games, or a total of 1,380 consecutive minutes without relief.

They're Off

Pitcher Thornton Lee and Catcher Tommy Turner of the White Sox have returned their contracts unsigned and are the first to tee off in the holdout league......Tom (and the angels sing) gallery will front for Mike Jacobs in staging Louis-Godoy in Los Angeles......One of the deals the Yanks are supposed to have tried to make at Chicago was to trade George Selkirk to Cleveland for Hal Trosky.

Names in the News

Papper Martin, new Sacramento manager, is the baseball rave of the coast. A Los Angeles paper, 600 miles away, gave the old boy a half page spread...... The N.Y. football Yankees' told Tom Harmon they'll not only better any offer he gets from the National League, but fix things up so he can broadcast on the side......If the specialists decide Billy Jurges can't shortstop for the Giants this year, he's all set, with plenty of backing, to open a recreation centre.

Mebbe this is one of the first results of the football de-emphasizing program—"Yale, Dartmouth to clash at chess."

HOGAN, LOVING LEAD GOLFERS AT MIAMI, FLA.

Both Shoot Three-Under-Par in First Round of Miami Open

WIND TROUBLESOME

Top Flight Players Kick Away Fine Chances Through Heavy Wind

Miami, Fla., Dec. 13—(AP) — A couple of guys named Ben paced the field into the second round of the $10,000 Miami Open Golf Tournament today—each with a three-under-par 67.

One of them — Ben Hogan of White Plains, N.Y., tightened his grip on the year's money-winning title. The other, Ben Loving, of Springfield, Mass., began his strongest bid for a tournament victory after years of campaigning.

Close in pursuit of the two Bens came Ed Dudley of Augusta, Ga., and Clayton Heafner, of Linville, N.C., with a pair of 68's.

Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., still hopeful of wresting the money title and the Vardon trophy from Hogan, trailed by two shots at 69 with six others.

Chief of those was Harold (Hug) McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., pre-tournament favorite whose chances were hurt by a penalty stroke. McSpaden inadvertently touched the ball with his putter on the green and took an extra shot that gave him a five on a par three hole.

Even with Snead and McSpaden were Byron Nelson, of Toledo, O., the P.G.A. champion; Jimmy Thomson of Chicopee, Mass.; Jim Turnesa of East View, N.Y.; Claude Harmon of Orlando, Fla. and Tommy Wright of Knoxville, Tenn.

The real story of the first day was the number of players who kicked away chances on the last few holes in the high wind. Nelson was four under par going to the 15th, then bogeyed three in a row. Hogan himself was six under with five holes to play, but he, too, slipped.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Syl Apps of Toronto Maple Leafs was the only one of the National Hockey League's leading point-gatherers to advance last night, scoring a goal as Toronto beat Montreal Canadiens, 4-3, to climb into a fourth-place tie with Phil Watson of New York Rangers. Sweeney Schriner scored two goals to take the lead in actual goal-scoring with nine, but has only one assist to miss placing in the big seven. Roy Conacher, Boston, has been credited with a goal which had been credited to another player two weeks ago, and is tied for third with Bryan Hextall, Rangers.

Cornell's Defeat Greatest Upset In Sport Year

New York, Dec. 13—(AP) — This being Friday the 13th makes it an auspicious occasion to announce that the sports editors of the United States, having checked back over a year full of the customary surprises, have chosen Dartmouth's "fifth-down" defeat of Cornell as the most surprising of all.

The football game the Ithacans won by 7-3 and then gave back to the Indians by a 3-0 score when they found they hadn't won it after all became upset No. 1 in the Associated Press annual poll with 72 points.

However, the unexpected determination of Cornell's 18-game unbeaten streak was only little more startling to the experts than Detroit's victory in the American League pennant race. The Tigers got 64 points and second place.

There was a tie for third place. Stanford's climb into the Rose Bowl from the 1939 coast conference cellar was good for 31 points, the same number awarded to the fact that Gallahadion won and Bimelech was beaten in the Kentucky Derby. Close on the heels of these occurrences came Texas Aggies' 7-0 loss to Texas and Notre Dame's defeat by Iowa by the same score; Ed Oliver's disqualification for starting his last round in the United States open golf championship ahead of time (his medal score gave him a first-place tie with Lawson Little and Gene Sarazen); New York Yankees' slow start and third-place finish in the American League, and Fritzie Zivic's victory over Henry Armstrong that brought the Pittsburgh ring veteran the welter-weight boxing title.

STEVE BELLOISE TAKES ON OVERLIN IN N.Y. TONIGHT

Bronx Fighter Given Another Shot at Middleweight Crown

CHAMPION FAVORED

In Last Meeting Belloise Floored Overlin but Could Not Keep Him There

By GAYLE TALBOT

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—Having been chosen "most likely to succeed" by the fight critics after his first experience with Ken Overlin six weeks ago, young Steve Belloise of the Bronx will have another shot at the middleweight champ tonight at Madison Square Garden.

Steve earned the respect of the fight crowd by knocking Overlin flat in the sixth round of their first meeting and then whaling the tar out of Overlin when he got up. It was a tribute to Overlin's gameness that he weathered the beating and came on to win the decision at the end of 15 rounds.

That was Belloise's first 15-rounder, and he said the only reason he let Overlin get away in the sixth was that he was afraid of wearing himself out early in the evening and not having anything left for the late stages.

From the ringside, though, it looked as though Steve punched himself out.

So that is the set-up as the veteran champion and the kid with rocks in his fists try it again. Belloise, having bounced Overlin off the floor once, is sure he can keep him there this time and win that portion of the 160-pound title which the New York State Athletic Commission is privileged to parcel out.

Overlin, on the opposite hand, frankly regards this one as an advance Christmas gift. He has reserved a table at his favorite deadfall for right after the fight, which he looks upon as a mere formality. The champion is something of a card.

He says he learned all he needed to know about Belloise the other time, and that the kid will never, never pop him again like that.

Defeat Providence Reds 7-3 With Louis Trudel Pacing the Attack

BUFFALO WINS

Bisons Within Point of Fourth-Place Capitals by Defeating Them 5-2

(By The Canadian Press)

Earl Robinson, veteran playing coach of New Haven Eagles, had little to be sorry about today for the switch that saw one of the leading scorers of his American Hockey League club go up to the majors with Montreal Canadiens.

In one of their first dips into their farm club, the Canadiens recently took Paul Drouin, who had been going great guns with the Eagles, and sent down Louis Trudel as replacement. Trudel celebrated his return to the Eagles last night by scoring two goals and helping in another to pace New Haven to a 7-3 triumph over Providence Reds.

The triumph lifted the Eagles within four points of the leading Springfield Indians in the Eastern Section, while holding a game in hand. It was one of two league matches, the cellar-dwelling Buffalo Bisons of the Western Section beating Indianapolis Capitals, 5-2, in the other.

Other former National Hockey League stars played a major part in New Haven's victory at Providence, with the veteran Earl Roche bagging three of his team's tallies and Allan Shields, former Montreal Maroon, getting another. Centre George Patterson bagged the Eagles' final tally.

Game All New Haven

Trudel, who figured in five goals with the Canadiens this season, scored the first New Haven goal at 5:13 of the opening frame. Ab Demarco got this one back for the Reds and Jack Shill sent them ahead in the second frame, but Shields tied the count for the Eagles at 8:13 of the middle session.

The remainder of the game was all New Haven, with the Eagles outscoring the Reds 5-1. Roche and Trudel both scored for New Haven before Hal Jackson tallied for the Reds and then Roche bagged two more counters and Patterson added another in the final frame.

At Buffalo meanwhile, the Bisons moved within a point of the fourth-place Capitals in the Western Section by their victory. Buffalo opened up a two-goal lead before Indianapolis tallied once and then outscored the Capitals 2-1 in the final frame after getting the only goal of the second period.

Bill Cunningham and Art Simmons scored the Bisons' first period-goals with Art Herchenratter counting for the Caps. In the second frame, Paul Runge tallied for Buffalo. Cunningham and Morey Rimstad both scored for the Bisons in the final frame after Jud McAtee had got one back for Indianapolis.

When the Kingston puck delegates move into town over the week-end to discuss the type of schedule to be drafted for group No. 1 in the Senior O.H.A. "B" series the other delegates had better prepare themselves for a verbal blast from the Kingston mentors. Not satisfied with having the pick of all military camps adjacent to Kingston, Queen's University and the cream of the crop from all Frontenac County, the Kingston delegates intend to protest vigorously the admission of the Whitby Red Wings into the district senior puck loop. After glancing over Scribe Bill Walshe's recent sports notes comment on the Kingston angle, we're thoroughly convinced the Limestone City moguls would be quite willing to play all of their group games at home—and that's a tone of sarcasm. The Kingston team is angling for a new coach, who it may be remains a secret at this writing, but don't be surprised if it isn't either Flat Walshe or Senator Powell. The Kingston delegates will meet with plenty of opposition to their proposals from Peterboro' or we'll miss our guess.

Here is a frank admission of the strength of the Kingston Seniors as penned by Sports Scribe Bill Walshe of Kingston recently. Bill says: "When the Kingston hockey talent is assembled a team almost good enough for Senior A competition should be formed. Walt Gerow, the brilliant forward of the Battery team, has promised to join the Kingston Club, while some of his soldier mates will also try out if they remain in Kingston for the winter. Norv Williamson, Mel Williamson, Bobby Neilson, Buck Burrows, George Hood, Len Lane and Jim Nelson of Queen's would be welcomed by any senior team and some of them have promised to help the combined squad. Glen Udall, Yip Radley, Hugh White, Red Stoness and Ray Smith are four of the Kingston club players in the Van Horne series who class with good seniors.

"The players are here, there is the club and crowd interest, and all that is needed is an organization to keep harmony and cooperation to give Kingston a good hope for hockey honors and the most interesting puck season in many years."

Although they finished fourth in the league standing in 1940, the Baltimore Orioles had the highest club batting average in the league when the team hit .286, but like the Cincinnati Reds the Newark Bears were the best fielding team and therefore it may be a coincidence, but the Bears went on to win the 1940 Governor's Cup. In the pitching feats of the International League for 1940, Ontario's Phil Marchildon, who was sold to the Philadelphia Athletics this fall proved the wildest moundsman as he issued 116 walks, according to the league statistics. The league batting record, which was established in 1887 by William H. Wright when he batted .422, is still tops, but it must be remembered that a base on balls counted as a hit in the official averages in those days. In modern days Dennis Brouthers with a batting average of .415 has the best batting record and even this was established in 1897. Willie Keeler and Dale Alexander both led the International League batting at one time and then advanced to the majors to become league leading batters later.

Convener Art Black dropped in to tell us he's having difficulty in lining up the Port Hope juniors along with Cobourg, Trenton and Belleville. The group meeting will be held early next week when all troubles will be aired. Art says the roof of the rink to collapse under the weight of snow in Cobourg was not the rink where O.H.A. games are played, but rather a second rink they boast of in Cobourg. Regarding the Trenton juniors, they are being sponsored by the Trenton Rotary Club this year and one of the executive heads is none other than Fred "Ripper" Collins, former manager of the Peterboro' ball club. We received a letter from Fred the other day and he resents very much announcement of the Canadian Rugby Union in naming Ottawa Dominion football champions. "The Grey Cup was won by the Blue Bombers and will remain there until some team slaps them down, as championships are not won in committee rooms but on the gridiron," contends Fred, which may be the thoughts of a Westerner, but in the records Ottawa will be accredited Dominion champions of the C.R.U. for 1940, regardless, Eddie.

Do you remember when Joe Louis, Detroit's Brown Bomber, flattened Paulino Uzcudun in four rounds at New York five years ago tonight? It was the first time the Basque was knocked out in his 13-year ring career.

Joe Benoit, one of the National Hockey League newcomers with Montreal Canadiens this season, plays at right wing on his team. He shoots right-handed. But he writes left-handed. Gordie Drillon, star right-winger for Toronto Leafs, shoots right-handed but writes left-handed.

It was with regret we learned of the death of Vernon "Lefty" Lougheed, who died in a Toronto hospital last night after sustaining a head injury while playing hockey for Ed Wildley's young Rangers. Vern Lougheed was well known in Belleville sporting circles, having played rugby, hockey and basketball with Pete Beach's Albert College squads.

SPORT SLANTS—They do say the Ottawa Senators are the team to beat for the Allan Cup this year of 1940 A.D....... The Americans and Canadians of the Belleville juvenile league practiced last night, while Herb Morris' Black Hawks skate out at seven tonight to be followed by Alderman-elect Follwell's Maple Leafs ...... Don't be tardy boys...... Looks as though the Cleveland Indians got the best of a 3-way player deal with the Boston Red Sox no matter how you look at it ......Col. E. R. Bradley, veteran turfman, celebrated his eighty-first birthday this week and is pinning his hopes on Bryon Station to win the 1941 Kentucky Derby, after Bimelech failed last spring...... Don't be surprised if Jim Farley completes the deal for the New York Yankees as a Christmas present gesture.

N.H.L. Stars

(By The Canadian Press)

Sweeney Schriner, Toronto, whose pair of tallies paced the Leafs to a 4-3 victory over Montreal Canadiens.

Johnny Quilty, Canadiens, who scored one goal and was strong defensively as the Canadiens were edged out in Toronto.

Cully Dahlstrom, Chicago, who figured in both goals, scoring one and helping in the other as the Black Hawks played a 2-2 tie with Americans.

Norman Larson, Americans, whose second-period tally forced Chicago to fight from two goals down for the draw in New York.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of letting these conditions become chronic. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hem-Roid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk a chronic pile condition when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

Slippery Streets Cause of Accidents

City streets were turned into virtual glaring and slippery glass-like traffic arteries late Thursday as the result of rain, which froze almost as rapidly as it fell. Several motor accidents resulted as the icy street conditions made motorized travel exceedingly hazardous.

A truck driven by Donald Moncrieff, of Kingston, skidded into the rear of a parked automobile owned by William Haslip, 61 Albion St., late Thursday. Moncrieff told police his truck skidded into an icy rut from which he could not move before the collision occurred. Damage to the extent of $40. resulted to the motor car.

Automobiles driven by Arthur Lucas, Station P.O. and Hartman Deline, 20 Reid St., sideswiped on Front St., early in the evening resulting in fender damage to the vehicles, P. C. Arnott investigated.

In an effort to minimize the toll of damage from accidents on the slippery city streets, sanding trucks of the Department of Public Works labored all night Thursday spreading sand and cinders on the more hazardous streets, curves and hills.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Under Texas Skies"

Republic's popular Three Mesquiteers series may have changed their personnel, but they haven't lost an iota of their two-fisted, heman appeal. "Under Texas Skies," which is now playing at the Capitol Theatre with Bob Livingston in his usual role of Stony Brooke, with a new duo, Bob Steele and Rufe Davis, filling the other two roles, is highly satisfying screen fare from start to finish.

Rufe Davis injects a hillbilly flavor into the western series, something admittedly new and revolutionary. And, it appears, judging from the enthusiasm of last night's audience, that hill-billies are here to stay, even in the traditionally wild and wooly westerns.

Bob Steele gives a good account of himself in his highly dramatic role of Tucson Smith, who has been wrongfully accused and convicted of murder. Bob Livingston, who needs no introduction to local "Three Mesquiteers" fans, turns in his customary dashing performance as Stony, the romantic member of the trio.

Lois Ranson, who won her first claim to cinematic fame in the Higgins Family series, is winsome and charming in the leading feminine role and Wade Boteler, Rex Lease, Henry Brandon and Jack Kirk are convincing in supporting roles.

The story, which was directed by George Sherman under Associate Producer Harry Grey, deals with Stony's efforts to bring to justice the murderer of his father, Sheriff Brooke. Tucson Smith, Stony's boyhood friend, has been wrongfully accused of the murder, and Stony's initial task is to prove Tucson's innocence, against overwhelming odds.

George Sherman directed "Under Texas Skies," which was produced by Associate Producer, Harry Grey of Republic Pictures. The added attraction

AT THE BELLE

"Down Argentine Way"

Boasting eight torrid songs, a 6,000 mile whirlwind romance, a sensational new star, as well as two of the biggest names in movies, the greatest musical extravaganza of all time opens next at the Belle theatre. Ten months in production, 20th Century-Fox technicolor "Down Argentine Way" was conceived on a lavish scale far surpassing that studio's widely acclaimed "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Don Ameche and Betty Grable are paired in this latest picture, while the sultry Carmen Miranda makes her screen debut, singing four of the distinctive songs that have made her famous on two continents.

In the planning and filming of "Down Argentine Way" many precedents were smashed and astounding studio records were set. Geared to meet the most exacting entertainment taste, "Down Argentine Way" out-distanced all other productions both in amount of time taken to complete and in distance covered. In the ten months of shooting location companies covered approximately 35,000 miles by plane, train and automobile. A special crew was dispatched to Buenos Aires, where most of the film's action is set, for exterior and atmospheric shots. The crew returned to Hollywood with some 20,000 feet of technicolor film.

But that was just the beginning, for another group of technicians flew to New York to spend five weeks photographing sultry Carmen Miranda, the "Brazilian Bombstell" who catapulted to fame with her torrid renditions of South American songs in the Broadway production, "The Streets of Paris."

Carmen Miranda, incidentally, boasts the distinction of being the only celebrity in recent years to appear in a lavish screen production without stepping foot in Hollywood. This was necessary because of previous commitments in New York which made it impossible for her to travel to the film capitol.

Four of the eight songs in "Down Argentine Way" were composed by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren. These include "Two Dreams Met," "Down Argentine Way," "Nenita" and "Sing to Your Sonorita."

They are matched in brilliance only by the songs which the incomparable Miranda renders: "South American Way," "Bambu," "Mamae Eu Quero" and "Touradas Em Madrid."

Irving Cummings directed the huge cast which includes Charlotte Greenwood, Henry Stephenson, J. Carrol Naish, Katharine Aldridge, Leonid Kinskey and C. Martin.

On the weekend matinee a thrilling and gripping chapter of the "Green Hornet" serial will be exhibited.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Lone Wolf Keeps a Date"

In Hollywood, the saying goes, "Don't order the office boy around . . . because tomorrow he may be your boss!" And by the same token, a girl playing bits today may be next year's Academy Award winner.

Lovely Frances Robinson, currently appearing opposite Warren William in Columbia's "The Lone Wolf Keeps A Date," is the lady in question. Only a short time ago, Miss Robinson was being cast in small roles wherever the studio throught she might be used to gain experience.

Then came a featured role in Joe E. Brown's "So You Won't Talk," and now, the beautiful, young actress is receiving the whole-hearted acclaim of critics everywhere for her fine performance in the latest Lone Wolf adventure, which is playing at the McCarthy theatre.

Born in New York, Frances made her screen debut at the redoubtable age of four when her mother succeeded in getting her the job of portraying Lillian Gish as a child, in "Orphans of the Storm." That brief experience marked the end of her acting career until, at the age of twelve, the girl was chosen to play Irene Rich's daughter in "The Climbers."

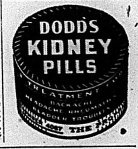
Returning to Hollywood again after another lull, Frances landed small parts in a number of pictures including "Tower of London," "The Invisible Man," "Double Alibi" and many others. She won a long-term contract with Columbia when she was screen-tested for "The Howards of Virginia."

Miss Robinson's role in "The Lone Wolf Keeps A Date" is by far the best she has ever received and she plays the part to perfection. Besides Warren William and Frances Robinson, the cast also includes Eric Blore, Thurston Hall, Bruce Bennett and Jed Prouty. The Louis Joseph Vance story was directed by Sidney Salkow.

One of the fastest, action-loaded westerns of the year, John Wayne in "Somewhere in Sonora" is the second feature now playing at the McCarthy theatre. The closing chapter of "Terry and the Pirates" is also presented.

LENGTHEN BLANKETS

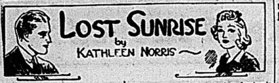
After several washings you may find your woollen blankets too short. Buy a piece of matching sateen as long as the width of the blankets. Cut it down centre fold and sew one-half on one end of each blanket. By tucking the sateen over the foot of the mattress the blankets become full length.



Show-stopping new personalities are just one of the many features in "Down Argentine Way," gorgeous musical extravaganza in techgicolor, coming next to the Belle Theatre. Betty Grable, Don Ameche and torrid-voiced Carmen Miranda (shown with her band) head the cast of the new hit.

LOST SUNRISE

by KATHLEEN NORRIS



INSTALMENT 8

Dick's first letter reached Gwen a day or two later. Enclosed with it was a note from his mother, written somewhat uncertainly in pale green ink on lined tablet paper, hoping that Gwen would come to them either that week end or the next, and "promising your Mama that Richard and I will take good care of you." It was signed "Mrs. T. Latimer."

Gwen felt a little dashed at the sight of it. Was—well, a little flat, somehow, to have a beau whose mother was so obviously unsure of herself. The Washburtons were quite as poor as the Latimers, and lived in a part of the town that had been, for more than a generation, socially deplorable. But still, Gwen's mother knew enough to sign checks and letters, even when they were sent to complete strangers, with her firm strong "Fanny Ashe Washburton."

Dick must have seen this letter, as he had enclosed it in his. Why hadn't he said: "Mother, don't you want plain white paper from the five-and-ten, and won't you sign it 'Mary Latimer'?" Perhaps he didn't know, either.

His letter was delightful, however, and much to restore her equilibrium. He wrote her a minute account of just one hospital day, from the time his alarm clock went off at half past six every morning until the last emergency call was answered at night. He tried to have dinner with his mother every night, but if she was tired he took her out to dinner instead. There was a cafeteria they liked, over on Mission street. If he telephoned the hospital at eight, and wasn't needed, then he could take his mother to a movie. His mother worked in the linen room in the hospital, and sometimes it was pretty hard work.

In return Gwen amused herself by sending him a careful account of her own day. "I get up at seven," she told him, "and go downstairs at once and light the oven and start the percolator. Dad and I usually have coffee together, and Mother comes in in time to take care of Kip and Peter and clean up. At eight I go upstairs and put my room in order, and then have my bath. I'm at the office at nine, usually walking downtown, it's only seven blocks, and then I have the rare excitement of taking Mr. Graham Keane's letters, and correcting the grammar of those of his promising son, Art Keane. Nobody in the office can stand Art.

"Madge Parsons, who is in the inner office, usually goes to lunch with me at the Saddle Rock. We have oyster stews all through oyster season, and tomato salads all summer. We may not be bright, but we seem never to tire of them. Oyster stews are thirty cents, and tomato salads fifteen, so winter is our splurging season."

She explained to him that she could not come to the city for the next two week ends. On one Sheila and Link were coming down to spend the night; on the second Mary Pearsall was getting married to a Marysville doctor she met when her car turned over driving up to Oreville, and he set her leg. His name was Leonard Lillie. Did Dick know him? If it was agreeable to his mother, however, Gwen would be delighted to come to San Francisco on the eighteenth.

Dick answered at once that he loved her swell letter, and that he would surely see her before the eighteenth, and Gwen lived in a nervous tremor for fear he would deliberately come when Sheila was there, and the home atmosphere become one of secrecy and strain.

But he did not come at all. On the night that she expected him he sent her a telegram that he could not come, would come on the following night. And on the following night there was another telegram. They were crowded and shorthanded at the "County." It was a rotten break; he felt terribly sorry. He wrote quite a letter explaining the situation, and assuring her that he would be at the station to meet her on Saturday, but Gwen felt that some of the glamour had departed from their relationship nevertheless, and the whole arrangement began to seem silly.

However, when the appointed Saturday came she found herself packing her bag with an enjoyable sense of adventure and the train trip delighted her. She had a magazine, but she did not read it; it was more exciting to sit and think of herself and Dick, and wonder what sort of an experience lay ahead of her.

But instead of Dick, his mild little mother met her at the station in the late afternoon light. Mrs. Latimer was a small, faded wren of a woman with a tired voice. She explained that Richard had been delayed and could not get away from the hospital. Presently they reached the drab little apartment house on a Mission side street.

Dick arrived in a rumpled white suit a few minutes later, apologetic but not particularly ruffled,, and announcing regretfully that he had to go back to the hospital after dinner, as Wasson, a name he pronounced as if it stood for one of the immortals, had asked for him in the surgery tonight.

They dined at a small restaurant some four blocks away. Gwen heard Dick ask his mtoher in an aside if she had plenty of money, before he left them to their apple pie and coffee. After dinner she went to a poor movie with Mrs. Latimer before going back to the cramped little apartment to stretch herself gingerly on the couch in her hostess's bedroom.

Street lights shone in the windows and street noises kept her awake. Despite her most courageous determination she could not make this visit seem a successful adventure. It was shabby and narrowly and disheartening.

The sparse poverty of Dick's mother was unlike the wasteful plenty of the Washburton family. Somehow there was always an effect of comfort at home, though it might only be that the remains of a fire were turning to gray ash in the sitting-room stove, and that the cracked old icebox contained cold biscuits and jam.

Here in the city it was different. Mrs. Latimer snapped off the lights in one room when she went into another; there were but four rooms anyway, and they were all small. Only the kitchen was bright; the bedroom window opened on an airshaft, and the sitting-room shades were drawn to conceal the view of a particularly unappetizing side alley. Gwen was conscious of pangs of irrational disillusionment and homesickness.

In the morning matters looked a little brighter. The kitchen was pleasant with timid sunshine that was bravely attacking the onmoving battalions of the fog, and Dick came in while the two women were peacefully talking over their toast and coffee and lent his own note of vitality and enthusiasm to the hour. He wanted some coffee too, and Gwen could not but like the sight of the hearty kiss he gave his mother and the brisk accustomed way that he set about attending to his own wants; she liked the way he teased the faded, forlorn little woman, and his obvious affection for her. On the mother's part there was of course blind adoration. Her son, her marvelous doctor, the vital, vigorous, enlivening element of her world, her reward for years of loneliness and sacrifice, was the very light of her eyes.

"Mom, how about taking lunch out to the Cliff? I've got to go back at ten, and after that I'm free. Gwen, ever been out to the beach?"

"Never."

"Richard, I have to be on duty today," his mother said mildly. "We are moving from Ward Eleven, you know. They're going to paint in there and cut a door through and I don't know what all."

"Well, then Gwen and I'll go," Dick said, and it was arranged that Gwen should go with Dick and his mother to the hospital at ten; that if he could get Jordan's car, well and good, and if he couldn't, he and Gwen would use the streetcars for their picnic; that since Mrs. Latimer might not be able to get back to the house before Gwen had to leave at five, they would say goodbye now.

"And you're awfully kind to have had me," Gwen said, gratefully. She told herself inwardly that the words were sincere. "If I lived in a burrow like this I wouldn't ask any strange girl to come sleep in my room," she reflected.

They walked a block or two to the enormous building. Shabby-looking hallways and shabby-looking, rattly elevators were characteristic of the older part, into which they went, but everything was very clean and sharply scented with carbolic and ammonia, and everyone they met was very cheerful. A very pretty nurse stopped Dick.

"Bad news for you, Doctor. Wally's in bed up in G for observation, and Brubacher is hopping, and that he wants you upstairs right away."

"Oh hell, I was up all night!" Dick said with a sigh. His mother had disappeared. He took Gwen to a waiting room and left her there. "I'll be down pretty soon," he said. "I'm sorry!"

Gwen listened to the conversations and occasionally glanced stealthily at the speakers. She looked between times at an old magazine, and at the room, with the dim, foggy sunlight coming in at the high, clean, clean-curtained windows. It was a room of tragedy; there had not been much joy in this room.

Then the lunch wagons were going the rounds! Gwen went to the doorway and wandered about a little. It was quarter past one o'clock when Dick reappeared. He made no apologies, had changed from his doctor's white to an ordinary suit, and observing that he was starving, caught at her elbow at once and steered her to the Potrero street car. They went to a downtown restaurant for luncheon, a delicious dollar luncheon.

"Too late for a picnic, and I couldn't get Jordan's car, and it's so damn foggy out there you couldn't see your hand before your face," he said.

"Dick, that's a terrific atmosphere, that hospital atmosphere. I wonder you can ever get your mind off it."

"Some fellers never get used to it. I don't mind it. It's never cleared up; it's always like this," he said. "The minute I'm in it I forget everything else. I'd like always to be in it. I'm not so keen for private practice. This is where you get the cases."

She saw that he was very tired. Feeling herself something of a dead weight on his hands, she thought over suggesting that she take the three-o'clock train for home, but after all, Gwen reflected, that would be to remind him that her long-anticipated visit had fizzled out into failure.

"Suppose we go back and get my bag, Dick, and then slide into one of the smaller movies somewhere. The big ones will be so crowded we'll have to wait. And then you can take me to the train?"

She saw that the proposal was welcome. What he wanted was sleep, but the next best thing to bed would be the quiet and dark and comfort of a movie loge. Gwen felt deeply disappointed in her visit, but there was a sort of maternal satisfaction in watching two long pictures unfold themselves on the screen, in feeling Dick's shoulder heavy against her own, in hearing his snores. Presently he awakened and asked if he had been asleep and she whispered back that he had, and that she knew he was dead, and he gripped her hand in the dark as if he felt comfort in it.

That handgrip somehow saved the whole experience from utter flatness.

WALL ST.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—Leading stocks waded through tax selling in today's market and came out with rising tendencies predominating.

Prices, ragged at the start, did better near mid-day as steels began to attract bidders. While scattered issues were unable to make the grade, gains of fractions to a point or so were the rule near the fourth hour. A few wider advances were in evidence.

A small assortment of stocks went into new high ground for the year. Among these were Crucible Steel Common and Preferred, White Motors, Paramount and American Shipbuilding.

Getting support were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Loew's, Kennecott, North American, Montgomery Ward, Great Northern and Eastman Kodak. Rails, oils, utilities and aircrafts were sluggish.

McIntyre, Dome Mines and Canadian Pacific in the Canadian group, advanced slightly. Hiram Walkers, Distillers Seagram and Lake Shore mines held unchanged.

Wholesale Butter Firm at 34¼c.

Demand for butter was good and the market was quite firm. Offerings were light and sellers had no trouble keeping receipts moving. The odd sale of first-grade Ontario creamery solids was said to have been made at 34 1-2c, but the general market was not higher than 34 1-4c.

The egg market again was quiet. Local demand was weak, but out-of-town inquiry was good. The market improved in tone at the close of trading, with A-large eggs selling at 30c to 30 1-2c in the graded section and at 35c to retailers. No quotations were available on Grade B eggs in the graded section, as none was offered, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Montreal Produce

Weekly Livestock Report

Toronto, Dec. 13 — (CP) — Cattle trade opened firm at the Livestock Market here this week but following deliveries by truck were heavy enough to offset an early strength. The close was weak with a few hundred medium quality cattle unsold.

Veal calves lost an early gain of 50 cents.

Hogs were steady on live sales and 15 cents lower dressed.

Lambs gained 50 cents while sheep held about steady.

Choice weighty steers sold at $9 to $9.25 with other steers downward to $7.50. Butcher steers and heifers closed at $6 to $8.25 after making $8.50 on Monday's tops. Fed calves were $8.50 to $10.50. Butcher cows sold up to $6 on Monday but closed at $4.25 to $5.75. Canners and cutters were steady at $3 to $4. Butcher bulls sold at $5.25 to $6.25, with bolognas at $4.50 to $5.25. The few stockers offered sold steady at $5 to $6.80. Good milkers and springers brought $85 to $95 each with others downward to $45.

Calves opened at $12 to $12.50 for choice and closed at a general top of $11 with a few at $11.50. Common to medium vealers sold from $6 to $10. Grass calves were $5 to $5.50.

Hogs dropped 15 cents on dressedweights in the face of a heavy run. The close was $10.75 dressed for the basic grade. Live sales were steady for the week at $8.15. Sows sold at $4.75 to $5.50 on a dressed basis.

Lambs held an early gain of 50 cents at close at $10.50 for good ewes and wethers with other grades from $7 to $10. A few choice Southdowns sold up to $12.60 for the holiday trade. Sheep sold mostly at $2.50 to $5.50 with some good light ewes at $6.

BRITISH DRIVE

Six to 16-inch shells pouring into the Fascist ranks shattered attempts to reinforce advance troops. The Italians steadily fell back under land, sea and air attacks and the retreat appeared to be wast developing into complete rout.

The destroyer on which this is being written and other units of the Royal Navy swept over minefields to within half a mile of the hastily prepared shore batteries and threw heavy fire at the Italians.

Naval Shelling Destructive

The Fascist army moving along the Egyptian seaboard underwent what British naval authorities declared to be one of the most destructive naval shellings in history.

The warships turned their big guns first upon Maktila, 15 miles east of Graziani's advance base established at Sidi Barrani when he moved across the Egyptian border 90 days ago.

The fleet shattered that big armed camp making it easier for the initial land attack.

By the light of the red, dawning sun, and in broad daylight, British warships pumped shells for more than an hour into Italian positions wrecking motor transports, blasting troop columns out of existence, tearing big gaps in the macadamized road Marshal Graziani built from the Libyan frontier to Sidi Barrani in an effort to guarantee rapid movement of his army when the major fighting started.

Destroyer's Guns Fire on Fascist Columns

Guns of this destroyer flung high explosive projectiles at Italian advanced columns, started huge fires in many Italian bases, and then swept eastward along the coast to Salum, seven miles from the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, to deliver a fresh assault.

The Italian batteries at Sidi Barrani and Salum heavily answered the fire of the British warships but the closest shell dropped within 20 yards, sending heavy spray over the sides of this ship but causing no damage.

While this destroyer shelled Salum, advanced units of the British army smashed through Italian fortifications beyond Sidi Barrani, taking thousands of prisoners and forcing the rest of Graziani's legions into a headlong dash toward the Libyan frontier. Simultaneously Royal Air Force bombers loosed cargoes of death from the skies, the bombs falling among the retreating troops, tanks, armored cars and motor transport.

British Communique

London, Dec. 13 (CP)—Friday's joint communique of the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security:—

"During last night the enemy developed an attack on an industrial region in the north of England. The principal damage was done in one town where a number of buildings were destroyed and roads damaged or temporarily blocked.

"Large numbers of incendiary bombs were as usual employed but the fire situation was soon well in hand. Reports are as yet incomplete but do not suggest heavy casualties and elsewhere in the region casualties were very few.

"In the rest of the country there were some small scattered incidents involving little damage and few casualties. Two enemy bombers were destroyed."

FOR DRY BACON

If you like bacon dry and crumbly, try this method of cooking it. Lay strips in a cold frying pan. Heat slowly and pour off the fat as soon as it collects. Turn frequently with a fork. The bacon is done when it has a dull appearance and is dry.

The Superstitious Tread Warily Today Friday 13th

Followers of Dame Superstition will be more than usually careful today because it is again Friday the 13th and the superstitious will walk warily hoping to halt Misfortune's blows. Thirteen has long been regarded as an unlucky day, so when Friday falls on the 13th of the month it provides a double feature bill that leaves the superstitious overwhelmed by gloomy forebodings.

No doubt there will be a great many people who will have refused to start out on a journey, by land, by sea, or by air; start a new job or undergo an operation. Old superstitions never die—they never fade away.

Anyhow Dame Superstition's following would as soon see a drunk driver head for them as they would see a black cat trip across their respective paths on Friday the 13th. They will be more than usually careful handling mirrors, spilling salt, walking under ladders, opening umbrellas indoors, passing people on stairs and so on. There are a million and one things, insignificant though they may seem to the hard-boiled critic, are sufficient to shatter the morale of the superstitious.

TURKEY A LOSER

sale from the west.

In Ankara, where in ages past Crusaders, Persians, Mongols and Tartars had marched in a procession of wars and conquest, Turkey built a modern capital.

A Latinized alphabet was substituted for Arabic. Felt hats took the place of the fez. Family names were changed. The harem vanished and the women dropped the veil and some went to Congress. Factory chimneys rivalled the minarets.

From Switzerland, the Turkish Republic borrowed its civil code to supplant religious laws of Islam.

Borrowed Language From France

From France, Turkey borrowed her "second language". French plays dominated the Turkish stage. Three French newspapers were established in Istanbul.

From Germany, Turkey got the model for her army.

From Britain, she learned how to build her small navy.

From the United States and others, she took planes and tips on how to fly them.

From every industrial country, she borrowed ideas on how to industralize Turkey.

The strides toward industrialization, of course, have been great but not complete. Turkey remains essentially an agricultural country.

Even so Turkey, once "the sick man of Europe", has become a vigorous young republic which has turned strongly to national defence. Every man and women between 11 and 60 is subject to military call and a standing army was established. One-thousand planes became Turkey's goal in the air. The army is of good fighting material.

Turkey Straddles Straits

With one foot in Europe and the other in Asia Minor, Turkey straddles the Straits of the Dardanelles which, with the sea of Marmara and the Bosporus, link the Black Sea to the Mediterranean —Russia's only outlet to the Mediterranean, by the way.

Control of the Dardanelles has been a strategists' headache for centuries. Britain wanted to get through in the last war to strengthen Imperial Russia. Now the Germans want to cross to get oil.

German and Russian rivalry over Turkey's Dardanelles is deep-seated.

So much are the two powers concerned that Turkey has blandly played one against the other for preservation of her own hold.

Traditionally Soviet Russia is Turkey's big friend. The Red revolutionists who toppled Imperial Russia when she was defeated by Germany in the last war would have nothing to do with Allied plans for carving up Turkey and thus won the Turks' friendship.

DUKE OF WINDSOR

Wore Blue Serge Suit

The Duke wore a blue serge suit and yachting cap when he boarded the plane. He carried no luggage and Captain Drury told reporters "I expect you'll be seeing him again soon," bolstering belief that he might be heading for a meeting with Mr. Roosevelt who is cruising in nearby Bahamian waters. The plane took off at 10 a.m EDT.

Terence McGrath of the Nassau Development Board, who has been the Duke's press representative during his visit to Miami, issued the following statement for Captain Drury:—

"His Royal Highness, the Duke of Windsor, accompanied by Captain V. Drury, his aide-de-camp, will leave at 8.30 a.m. in a United States naval plane for an undisclosed destination on important official business.

Unable to Furnish Details

"Captain Drury said upon making the announcement that at the special request of the State Department he much regretted that he was unable to furnish any details whatsoever of the destination or purpose of the flight, but that he expected that His Royal Highness would soon be back in Miami.

"The Duchess of Windsor will remain at the St .Francis Hospital until the return of His Royal Highness".

Reporters asked McGrath if he could confirm or deny that the Duke would meet the President. "I can make no comment on that," McGrath replied.

May Become Ambassador

The Miami Herald said "It was learned in Miami Thursday that the Duke" will be given the opportunity of accepting or declining appointment as British Ambassador to the United States before the post left vacant by the unexpected death of Lord Lothian is offered to anyone else.

"His Royal Highness, former monarch of the British Empire, now a Miami visitor, may fly to President Roosevelt for a conference today on general matters, in which the ambassadorship would be bound to be a topic, it was learned", said the newspaper.

SHEFFIELD AREA

From early last night until early today, large formations of raiders scattered incendiary, high explosive and delayed-action bombs on the city.

Exchange Telegraph News Agency said raiding planes machine-gunned firemen as they fought the blazes. Most of the fires were extinguished quickly, but some larger ones burned for hours.

The total killed and injured, Exchange Telegraph said, "while considerable, was amazingly low considering the consistency and weight of the raid."

A number of bodies have still to be taken from widespread wreckage in commercial, shopping and residential areas.

"Large number of incendiary bombs were as usual employed," a communique said, "but the fire situation was soon well in hand. Reports are as yet incomplete but do not suggest heavy casualties and elsewhere in the region casualties were very few."

(Sheffield, a city of about 500,000 population, has been famed for its cutlery for six centuries. It is 140 miles north of London.

Birthplace of Industry

(Often it is called the birthplace of the modern steel industry, since Sir Henry Bessmer pioneered there 75 years ago in the steel manufacturing process named for him.)

Other parts of the Midlands were hit and London had an alert which lasted most of the night, but there was little air activity in the capital after a mist developed midway in the night.

There were no reports of damage in London but a church and a furniture factory were destroyed in a Midlands town. The southeast coast and other areas also reported raiders overhead.

The Royal Air Force cancelled all its bombing operations last night because of unfavorable weather.

NORWAY LINER STRIKES A MINE

18,673-Ton Oslofjord Completed in Bremen in 1938 and Was Used in Cruise Service Before War

New York, Dec. 13—(AP)—Authoritative shipping circles said today that the 18,673-ton passenger liner Oslofjord, Norway's largest and finest ship, struck a mine and sank two days ago off Newcastle in the British Isles.

Chartered by England after seeking refuge here from the war, the Oslofjord sailed secretly last Oct. 26 for an east coast Canadian port.

No information on the Olsofjord was available in London nor from British and Norwegian officials in New York.

Flagship of the Norwegian-America Line, the vessel was completed in Bremen in 1938. She was equipped to carry 800 passengers and operated in the New York-Norway trade and the West Indies cruise service.

She was noted for her appointments: her Finnish baths and her decorations, done by leading Norwegian artists.

Before being chartered by the British, the liner was laid up at Bayonne, N.J., last January 3, to await "a more favorable" time to resume service.

Italians Surprised By Quick British Move in Egypt

By EDWARD KENNEDY

With the British Forces in Egypt, Dec. 10 (Delayed) (AP)—The advance British troops who opened the great Egyptian offensive against Marshal Graziani's forces took the Italians entirely by surprise after skilfully executed preparatory moves had carried them undetected across seventy-five miles of desert.

The fighting started early Monday and has been going forward ever since. The British have been routing the Fascists at numerous points in the great sun-drenched arid stretches, inflicting heavy casualties and taking prisoners by the thousands.

We left Cairo at dawn and by mid-afternoon we were settled in a camp established for newspaper correspondents some 300 miles out in the desert, but still considerably behind the advancing British columns

Dash for Mediterranean

So far correspondents have seen no combat in this big drive, but we have heard accounts from those back from the combat area, and from airmen who have flown over it, and here is what has happened:

On Monday morning the British army attacked outposts of the 70-mile-long "beach" of desert which the Italians occupied just three months ago—Maktilla on the coast, fifteen miles east of Sidi Barrani, and Nibeiwa, fifteen miles south of Sidi Barrani, taking both in a few hours' fighting.

Four hundred prisoners were taken Monday morning and, as the British pressed forward, the number ran well over 1,000.

Through all that night the fighting went on, the British troops rounding up Italian units cut off from the main force.

On Tuesday the British shot forward again, principally in a big wheeling movement south of Sidi Barrani, then in a swift dash to the Mediterranean. This was highly successful.

General Pietro Melletti of the Italian forces was killed in the first hour of the drive.

Encircled in the Sidi Barrani area was a Fascist Blackshirt Division. (Sidi Barrani was taken by the British forces Wednesday.)

Caught at Breakfast

So great was the surprise of the British operations that ordinary movements of provisions were intercepted in some of the Italian camps, and the men were surrounded while they were eating breakfast.

More than 200 cars were captured or destroyed. Britain is using heavy tanks, armored cars and artillery forces.

The land forces have had extensive support from sea and from the Royal Air Force.

Our camp is adjacent to an R.A.F. airfield and since the British drive started no Italian plane has appeared overhead.

The heaviest R.A.F. raid in the Middle East since the war began was on the Benina Airfield Sunday night, when bombs were dropped for twelve hours straight.

Many of these raids were carried out in desert sandstorms which made it difficult for the raiders both to see their targets and find their home bases.

Planned to Marry At End of the War

Toronto, Dec. 12.— (CP)— AC. Johnny McNally of Minaki, Ont., one of three Royal Canadian Air Force men missing after a bomber from the Fingal Bombing and Gunnery School vanished over Lake Erie Sunday, planned to be married after the war, his fiancee revealed today.

Miss Muriel McGrath, his Toronto fiancee, said she first met AC. McNally when he was stationed at the Manning Pool here.

(Yesterday, wreckage believed to be from the bomber was washed ashore at Port Bruce, 15 miles east of Port Stanley.)

BUTTER RATIONING AT PRESENT ONLY A PROBABILITY

Wartime Prices and Trade Board Keeping Sharp Watch on Situation

CAN FIX PRICES

Ottawa, Dec. 13 —(CP)— Any rationing of butter in Canada at this time should be considered a future possibility, not a probability, and at that it might apply only to icecream and candy making, a wartime Prices and Trade Board spokesman said last night.

With butter stocks decreasing and wholesale prices at 34½ cents a pound, this official said the Board was keeping a sharp watch on the butter situation in the Dominion.

But, he said, if and when a shortage occurs it probably will be before dairy cattle go out to spring pasture.

Canada normally produces less butter in the winter than the country consumes. Thus, if supplies got low before spring production got under way, some restrictive action on consumption such as rationing butter for luxury use, might be called for.

This official said rationing was frowned on unless absolutely necessary because it involves the setting-up of complicated machinery.

However, the Board has power to fix prices of all necessities of life in Canada and has taken note that current prices are four or five cents over last year and higher, except for one brief period, than at any time since 1934.

During February and March in 1938 butter reached 34½ cents wholesale.

At Nov. 30, the Dominion's stocks of butter in store totalled 41,768,020 pounds, some 7,700,000 pounds less than stock at the same date in 1939.

Three Factors in Situation

At the same time the Bureau of Statistics reported November domestic butter disappearance increased approximately 2,800,000 pounds over November, 1939, to 24,700,000 pounds.

The present butter situation springs from three factors, it was said:

1. Increased Canadian cheese production for export, with consequent decrease in butter production.
2. Considerable increase in cream consumption because of a rise in purchasing power, which in turn is traceable to wartime stimulation given industry.
3. People are eating more butter because of increased purchasing power.

So far as the Board is aware, butter is not being hoarded unless it is considered that purchase of one or two cases of 54 or 55 pounds, enough to last a family for a number of months, comes under that heading.

There has been considerable buying of cases of this size, the spokesman said, families storing them at home. The Board considers this type of buying legitimate.

There are numerous possibilities of dealing with the butter situation but the spokesman suggested there is small prospect of any of them going into effect in the immediate future.

He said price fixing is complicated by the general situation regarding the price of mill feeds. Rationing entails the setting up of too great an administrative machine and even restrictions for luxury use would have this disadvantage.

BRITISH FORCES

not have time. The British forces already had reached the sea on the second day, blocking the main channel of communications between Sidi Barrani and Graziani's rear. The Royal Air Force had gained mastery of the air over Libya from the outset and kept it.

The possibility of sending reinforcements by sea from Bardia or Tobruk to Salum was blocked by the British fleet, which kept a constant patrol of the coasts and shelled the Italian ports heavily, harassing troops moving between them.

All these forces, according to the British, actually were moving westward—back toward Libya.

(Although scattered units of British troops were said in London to be mopping up in an area of about 500 square miles, there were indications there that the pace would slacken because of the strain on men and machines of more than a week at battle pitch over wide areas of desert.)

May Reach 40,000

(London sources estimated yesterday the total number of prisoners might reach 40,000.)

Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander of Britain's forces in the Middle East, announced today after a flying visit to advance headquarters in the desert that he was "deeply impressed by the enthusiasm and morale" of the men in the field.

Sir Archibald, who was accompanied by Air Marshal Sir Arthur Murray Longmore, commander of all British Air Forces in the Mediterranean, had a long conference with Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, commander-in-chief of the British Army in Egypt, and Air Commodore Raymond Collishaw.

British authorities emphasized that much of the success so far attained in the West was attributable to clockwork co-ordination between the army, navy and the Royal Air force.

The two latter arms were said to be keeping the Italians under a steady bombardment as they retreated westward along the coastal road.

Three Italian generals who were seized when British troops swarmed in to Sidi Barrani, main Egyptian outpost of the Fascist forces 70 miles from the Libyan frontier, were brought to Cairo by airplane today.

Great Enthusiasm

Amid great enthusiasm in Cairo there was considerable speculation on the effect which the British successes might have on Italian resistance in Ethiopia.

A military correspondent for Reuters News Agency wrote:—

"For months Italian morale in East Africa has been bolstered by empty assurances that Mussolini's army was ready to march to the Nile at any moment and open up the Suez (the most direct route by which supplies and reinforcements could be sent into Ethiopia).

"But if the British offensive continues as satisfactorily as at present, it is suggested that the Italian army in Ethiopia may have to throw up the sponge because of pressure being exerted by British forces already hammering at the frontier"

REPLACING

"This statement coincides with other reports of internal dissensions in Italy", the Greeks said, "and a situation has developed creating insurmountable difficulties for the Italians who are trying to find a way out.

"On the other hand bad weather hinders not only their activity but also Italian transport".

Greeks Hold Strategic Heights

Strategic heights northeast of Tepeleni were in Greeks hands in the advance towards the Port of Valona.

The drive toward both Tepeleni and the coastal town of Chimara, north of the captured port of Porto Edda, continued steadily, he said. Chimara is about 30 miles south of the same distance to the southeast, inland.

A reconnaissance pilot reported yesterday that Valona, second only to Durazzo in importance to the Fascists, had been made virtually useless for large vessels by bombs which smashed piers and jetties.

The spokesman acknowledged "stiff and sometimes desperate" resistance in the Italian retreat toward Tepelini but said it had been "crushed."

"Further to the right the Italians offered strong resistance," he continued. "They employed Alpine troops. Nevertheless our army was able to occupy one after another of the heights which select units defended, and we captured a considerable number of them."

He said there was an unconfirmed report that Colonel Sardo of the Alpine Division had been killed.

"Everywhere the Italians attempted to counter-attack they had failed," the spokesman said. "The news is very good from all sectors of the front."

The Greek High Command reported the capture of about 150 Italian prisoners, including a number of officers, by reconnaissance patrols while the Ministry of Home Security said Italian planes bombed Lefka, on Cyprus, inflicting "no casualties" but doing some damage to buildings.

DROPS DIVORCE SUIT

Los Angeles, Dec. 13.— (AP) — Micheline Chairel, French actress, yesterday dropped the divorce suit she had filed against John Loder, English actor.

Loder previously in a statement had blamed their estrangement on "war nerves" growing out of a British naval attack on part of the French fleet. Miss Chairel charged cruelty.

BRITAIN DELIVERS THE GOODS
ENGLAND FOR T. EATON Co LIMITED

YES, Britain delivers the goods. The T. Eaton Co. can testify to that. One of our most heartening experiences since the war began has been the increased and virtually uninterrupted flow of British merchandise to Canada. Our losses have been so small as to be almost negligible.

Just 2% of the merchandise purchased by us has been lost by enemy action. This, in spite of the fact that in the last four months we have purchased and received over $700,000 worth more merchandise from Britain than during the same period in 1939. Our own buying offices in London, Manchester, Leicester and Belfast continue to function smoothly and efficiently in their contacts with British industry.

The fact that British export trade is in a healthy condition adds immeasurably to the stoutness of the British war effort. It will be maintained all the more healthy if Canadian citizens, in their shopping, will keep in mind the help they can give Britain by purchasing British-made goods.

Eaton Stores in Canada are particularly happy about their extensive assortments of British-made merchandise. Look for the special displays of British-made merchandise throughout the store.

Picton, Dec. 13—(Special) — In appreciation of their help in extinguishing a fire which broke out in a building at the Bombing and Gunnery School here recently, Hill, Clarke, Francis Ltd., sent a cheque for $25 to Picton Fire Brigade. Rather than divide this among the fourteen members of the brigade, the men decided to donate it to patriotic causes. Five dollars was given each of the following: Picton War Emergency Committee, British War Victims' Fund, Salvation Army War Services, I.O.D.E. and Picton Post Legion Ladies' Auxiliary.

Had Hand Severed

Morley Rosebush had his left hand severed on Tuesday when it came in contact with a buzz saw which he was helping operate at the farm of John Cole at Milford. The accident was caused when he slipped on some ice. First aid was given by fellow workmen and he was rushed to Prince Edward County Hospital where he is a patient.

H. S. Colliver and T. W. Kinney were elected to the executive of the Canned Foods Association of Ontario at the annual convention in Toronto this week.

Open Chapter House

The Sir Thomas Picton Chapter and the following gentlemen, His Worship Mayor McKibbon, His Honor Judge McLean, Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman, Squadron Leader W. J. McFarlane, Flt. Lieut. Jarvis, Flying Officer H. Nester, George T. Tustin, M.P., Jas. deC Hepburn, M.L.A., Howard Weese, T. W. Kinney and the following members of the clergy, Capt. the Rev. J. F. Reycraft, Rev. J. A. Meehan, Rev. J. B. Creeggan, Dr. S. H. Roblin and the Rev. S. R. Foreman, will officially open the I.O.D.E. Chapter House at Mary and Ferguson Sts., Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m.

This Chapter House is for the benefit of the R.C.A.F. men in training at the local airport, of officers and officers of the army. Much planning and thought has been given this grand and worthy enterprise, the aim of which is to make these boys, many far from home, feel that while completing their training here, there is a cheery and friendly place where pleasant hours may be spent. To this end and objective the members of the Sir Thomas Picton Chapter, I.O.D.E. have worked steadfastly and now they can announce completed plans for the formal opening.

Sunday afternoon tea will be served by the members, daily thereafter and in the evenings refreshments may vary and change from time to time by the competent house committee. Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 4 and in the evening from 8 to 9 there will be open house to the public who have so generously contributed, who are and will be interested. Afterwards, of necessity, the Chapter House must be solely for the object for which it was planned.

The monthly meeting of the Sir Thomas Picton Chapter Tuesday, Dec. 10th, was a very interesting one, business and future plans made. Money was voted to several objectives: $25 from Chapter funds with private subscriptions being added, to the British War Guests Christmas Fund; $25 to the Lucy Morrison Educational Fund in memory of the late Provincial President; $15 to the salary of Mrs. Ball. Many new members were installed and 20 were ballotted on.

Again it was the unique experience of having three generations acknowledged by the chapter, Mrs. J. A. Wallace, Mrs. James Inrig, Miss Betty Inrig. Gardenia corsages were given to each and pinned on by the Regent.

Several resolutions of considerable interest were passed by Prince Edward County Council at their session here Wednesday. These were as follows:

Resolution Endorsed

"Inasmuch as Canada and the Empire are engaged in a total war; and inasmuch as there is every indication that the struggle to save our beloved democracy will be a long one; and inasmuch as farm produce and all food must eventually become a vital factor in guaranteeing victory; and inasmuch as the Canadian farmer has already contributed more dollars to the war effort than any other classification of our people by producing for less than cost since the declaration of war; and inasmuch as the production of cheese and bacon among other farm products, are of most vital importance in this county:

"Be it resolved by the County Council of Prince Edward that a demand be forwarded to the Federal Government requesting that such a control of price levels of Canadian farm produce be administered to guarantee the producer a price level comparable to the cost plus five percent basis which is provided to all essential war industries."

The above resolution was brought to County Council's attention by Messrs. F. J. Webster and James Bond, representing Prince Edward County's Advisory Agricultural Council. Mr. Webster referred to similar resolutions having been endorsed by councils of Peterborough, York and Middlesex. Mr. Bond said that there is only one way to have the increased production of cheese and bacon which the Old Country desires, namely by raising prices, which must at least cover production costs. Farmers could not pay competitive prices for labor and meet costs at current price levels, he said. This is indicated by the lack of market for little pigs, at the present time, he said.

"That in view of conditions that exist in Britain and the danger of a great shrinkage in bacon supplies owing to the lower price under the new bacon agreement this council recommends as follows:

(1) That the Dominion Government stabilize the price of bacon at a price that will guarantee the producer a fair return for his feed and labor.

(2) That the Dominion Government process all export bacon through the packers on a commission basis. In the opinion of this council this is the only way an unlimited supply of bacon can be maintained to Great Britain.

(3) That a copy of this motion be sent to all County Councils to the Federal Department of Agriculture, the Premier of Ontario.

Moved by Purtelle, seconded by Warren: That in view of the high cost of administration of justice we would respectfully petition the Dominion and Provincial Governments to discontinue all allowances for mileage and other expenses to Judges, Magistrates, Sheriffs and other officers connected with the administration of justice and to pay straight salaries to such officials without extras. Also that judges be required to contribute to their own pensions on the same basis as Civil Service employees.

May Offer Warship To Take Body of Ambassador to England

Washington, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The flags of the United States' Capital few at half mast in mourning for the Marquess of Lothian today as the British Embassy waited on word from London before making funeral arrangements for the 58-year-old bachelor diplomat.

With those arrangements still uncertain, much interest centred on whether the United States would make its customary final gesture of respect—offer a warship to take the envoy's body home.

At the State Department it was said unofficially that nothing definite had yet been done in the matter. The indications were that this decision probably would be left for President Roosevelt who was cruising in the Caribbean when a radio message informed him that the British Ambassador had died suddenly in the early hours yesterday.

Offered All Facilities

The fact that State Secretary Cordell Hull, extending the government's condolences, offered "all facilities at our disposal" led some to believe that the customary gesture would be made, regardless of the war abroad.

A few officials, however, expressed doubt, pointing out that any warship bearing Lord Lothian's body homeward would have to risk the mines, torpedoes and aircraft of a very active combat zone. They questioned whether Britain would accept the offer under such hazardous circumstances.

Messages of condolence and sympathy meanwhile continued to reach the red brick Georgian Embassy where Lord Lothian died. The Ambassador, who took up his duties in August, 1939, just two days before Hitler invaded Poland was one of the best liked diplomats to serve here in a number of years.

There was considerable speculation on the selection the British Cabinet would make for Lothian's successor. Diplomatic circles regarded the choice as a difficult one. The name of Anthony Eden, now Secretary of State for War in the Cabinet, was mentioned most frequently.

FEDERAL EMPLOYEES INCREASE

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Continued expansion of defence agencies, the Civil Service Commission reports, sent the number of Federal employees to 1,085,171 at the end of October. That was a net increase of 27,532 during the month.

Britain's Desert Fighters May Be In Italian Libya

Smashing Blow Against Graziani's "Invasion Army" Described As "a Christmas Present For People Back Home"

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 14 — (AP)—Britain's desert fighters, who described their smashing blow at Marshal Graziani's "invasion army" as "a Christmas present for the people at home," were reported wiping up the last Italian resistance in Egypt today—and possibly already wedged into Italian Libya.

Reports from the sand-swept battle zone said that fast-moving British advance units were keeping on the heels of retreating Italians while the main British force relayed truck caravans of prisoners to the rear and consolidated its position against any possible counter-attack.

Rumors that the Egyptian frontier post of Salum had fallen and the British had crossed the border and chased the Italians from Fort Capuzzo circulated here without confirmation.

A British spokesman declared, however, that there could be "very little" fighting still proceeding on the Egyptian side of the frontier. He added that British advance forces were "going very well."

Reliable British sources said last night that British casualties had been very light. Even the Italian casualties, it was said, were not Sunspots! Over 100 years ago an almanac-maker ascribed a frosty season to sunspots, and appeased his readers by saying that the tail of a comet will shortly pass over the sun's surface and brush off the spots. At the present day it is believed in general that the more spots the lower the temperature, which agrees with the old almanac-maker. But the spots are now known to be whirling storms in the outer part of the sun, hot gases within being carried upward to the surface. These storms, or spots, would be difficult indeed to remove by the simple whisk of a comet's tail especially since comets' tails are always directed away from the sun.

Week's Sinkings 10,000 Tons Less Than Average

The British Admiralty announced Friday that a 4,000-ton German freighter had been torpedoed off the Norwegian coast by a British submarine and went down, probably with a heavy cargo of ore. This was the only officially reported sinking in the week ended Dec. 13.

Neutral sources reported the sinking of the 18,673-ton Norwegian passenger liner Oslofjord. The ship was reported sunk by a mine off the British Isles Dec. 11 while under charter to the British Admiralty. The Admiralty, however, did not comment on these reports.

A dispatch from Stockholm said the Swedish freighter Daphne, 1,514 tons, was torpedoed off the Spanish Atlantic coast with loss of 18 crewmen. In addition a message from the British freighter Orari, 10,350 tons, said she had been torpedoed 750 miles west of France in the Atlantic, but it was not known whether she was sunk or managed to make port.

Reports from German-occupied Norway, coming via Berlin, claimed the sinking of five Norwegian freighters aggregating 21,187 tons, but they did not say when or in what circumstances the vessels were lost.

The Admiralty's summary of sinkings for the week ended Dec. 1 announced the loss of thirteen British, allied and neutral vessels totalling 52,229 tons, the lowest figure in a month and about 10,000 tons below the weekly average since the war began.

ONE OF THREE MISSING PLANES FOUND WRECKED

Body of Airman Located Near Plane Found in Swamp Near Camp Borden

FEW DETAILS GIVEN

Missing Plane Located from Air by Thirty-Two Machines Taking Part in Search

Toronto, Dec. 14—(CP)—The No. 1 Air Training Command of the Royal Canadian Air Force here announced today that one of the three Air Force planes missing from Camp Borden had been found wrecked near Camp Borden and that the body of an airman was located near the plane's wreckage.

It was not known immediately at headquarters here which of the three planes had crashed or which one of the five missing airmen had been killed.

The plane was found in a swamp five miles from the Camp Borden Air Station.

The wrecked machine was a yellow, low-wing monoplane. It was located from the air by one of the 32 R.C.A.F. aircraft which took off at dawn today to resume the search, started Thursday evening when a plane piloted by Lac. C. P. Hopton of Cabri, Sask., failed to return from a routine formation flight.

Search for Raider Fruitless So Far

Montevideo, Dec. 14 (AP).—An extensive British search for the unidentified German raider which fought and damaged the British armed merchant cruiser Carnarvon Castle off the Brazilian coast last week, has been unsuccessful, Commodore Frank Pegram, commander of the South Atlantic Squadron, confirmed today as his flagship, the cruiser Enterprise, docked.

"Had we located the raider there would not be a raider any more," Commodore Pegram said.

He declined to comment further on the general search for German raiders in the South Atlantic. Some naval men believe that at least four are operating there.

The Enterprise will be here about forty-eight hours, taking on fuel and provisions.

British citizens tonight feted the first anniversary of the great naval battle in which the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee was driven into Montevideo harbor by British craft, and was scuttled by her commander when the time limit for her stay in port ended.

Survivors of Two Torpedoed Ships Rope Boats Together Until Picked up

An East Coast Canadian Port, Dec. 14.—(CP)— Story of the sinking of the St. Malo was told here first hand today by five surviving officers of the former French vessel which was lost through enemy action after it was taken over by Canada.

One of the men told how the St. Malo men, after drifting about sixty hours, met up with survivors of an Australian ship sunk by the enemy. They pooled their resources and roped their boats together as one unit and hung on until they were rescued seven days later.

When the St. Malo, a freighter, was nearing the Irish coast, October 12, what the seamen said was an Italian submarine sneaked up in the darkness and launched a torpedo into her. Twenty-eight lives were lost in the blast but 16 who drifted about in a lifeboat for ten days were picked up by a tug. Eleven of the survivors are still in England while the five officers arrived here last night.

They are: First Mate G. A. Fidler Saint John, N.B.; Third Mate George Graham, Halifax; Second Engineer P. H. Dine, St. Catharines, Ont.; Third Engineer W. White, Saint John; and Chief Steward D. Lane, Victoria, B.C.

Given No Warning

"We could tell it was an Italian sub by the checkerboard on the side", said Graham. "We had no warning of the submarine at all".

Graham said Captain Charles E. Finlay of Thetford, Ont., who went down with his ship, saved the vessel's papers and destroyed the confidential papers of the British Admiralty. The third mate was the last man in the only lifeboat that was seaworthy. The others were wrecked by the explosion. He said he had intended to turn the boat back to the ship to get the captain but there were no oars and no sail.

Favor Sale to Britain Of Foreign Cargo Ships Tied Up in U.S.

Another Proposal is Sale of More First War Destroyers of Which U.S. Navy Still Possesses Seventy-Five

Washington, Dec. 14—(AP)—Various advocates of greater United States assistance in the British war effort were reported authoritatively today to have formulated plans for two new types of aid, one of which would involve use of United States naval escorts for supply ships.

The two proposals, which may be brought to the attention of President Roosevelt after his return here next week from his cruise in the Caribbean, are:

1. Convoying of supplies to the British Isles in United States ships protected by escorts of United States' war vessels.
2. Bringing about the sale to Great Britain of some or all of 143 foreign flag cargo vessels, such as those of Denmark, which were tied up in American ports to escape an uncertain fate after German occupation of the home lands.

Proposals in "Mulling Stage"

Informed persons emphasized that both proposals were still in the "mulling over" stage and, while under consideration, have not yet been placed formally before either the State Department or the President.

Authorities who have studied both plans said it would be necessary to have Congressional action before either could be put into effect. They explained that the convoy system would require amendment of the Neutrality Law, which forbids American shipping to enter European war zones, and the sale of foreign flag vessels would have to have special enabling legislation.

Sale of More Destroyers Also Favored

Still a third proposal much discussed here has been to sell or trade Britain more first Great War destroyers of the type exchanged for air and naval base sites on British territories in the western hemisphere. The navy still has 75 old destroyers of that type.

All these, of course, are aside from the question of giving Britain financial assistance.

Foreseeing the possibility of American ships being attacked should they transport cargoes into the war zone, several members of Congress already have warned against adoption of convoys.

Bren Gun Patrols Guard Against Possibility of Invasion by Parachutes

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press War Correspondent)

On the English Coast, Dec. 14 (CP). — Co-operating with motorcycle, tank and bicycle squads, Bren gun carriers manned by troops from Western Canada weave a maze of patrols over the forward defence positions on the coast.

It is one of the most active and vital duties carried out by the battalions from the dominion, now stationed along the sea. The heavily armed carriers can manoeuvre anywhere in the district and race over rough, muddy roads in this basic patrol to guard against the possibility that enemy parachute troops might drop within the Canadian lines.

Ride with the carriers on a lonely midnight patrol in the moonlight and get an insight into the work of these sharp-eyed men from the west. Bundle into the warmest clothing to meet the wind whipping in from the water which stretches towards enemy held territory.

The carrier is in charge of Cpl. C. H. McMurdo of Vancouver, with Pte. Fred Schultz at the guns and Pte Bob Webber in the driver's seat.

From a post by the sea the carrier speeds back into the countryside at anywhere from 30 to 60 miles an hour. It has a bobbing motion like a rocking chair but is the most comfortable riding of all armored fighting vehicles.

The crew keeps a watch on the whole area. Every 30 minutes or so the carrier stops at an outpost or lookout. The men listen for airplanes, bomb explosions or any sign of enemy action. The Bren gun and other weapons are ready.

At one stop a Nazi aircraft can be heard high overhead and Pte Schultz says: "If he just comes down a few thousand feet more he'll get a burst from this," pointing to the Bren.

But the hun stays out of range Later another plane zooms across the area, very low. "That's one of ours," says Pte. Webber. "I can tell by the motor." The Royal Air Force circles on the wings, visible in the moonlight, confirms his observation. It is one of the night fighters preparing to attack enemy bombers.

PRESIDENT SEES NEWLY-ACQUIRED OCEAN OUTPOSTS

Tells Press Conference Further an Attack Kept From Continent, Safer America Will be

TALKS WITH WINDSOR

Aboard U.S.S. Tuscaloosa at Sea, Dec. 14 (AP by Radio)—Rested and relaxed, President Roosevelt headed today for Charleston, S.C., after describing the newly-acquired Caribbean outposts he has been inspecting as stepping stones for United States defence.

Expressing satisfaction with some bases, dissatisfaction with others, he told a press conference yesterday that the further an attack is kept from the American continent, the safer the continent would be.

That meant, he said, that the United States wanted to be as far out as possible. Newfoundland, he pointed out, was as far as it could go in the north, and Bermuda as

New York, Dec. 14 (AP).—The results of the United States defence drive to date are "not satisfactory enough to warrant hopes that everything is all well". That is the estimate of William S. Knudsen, production chief of the United States National Defence Advisory Commission.

Knudsen sized up the situation last night in a blunt speech before the National Association of Manufacturers—the producers he termed "the front line of defence". He spoke frankly, said he was not trying "to paint the lilly", admitted that aircraft output is 30 per cent. below forecasts, questioned whether labor and industry have been "fully sold

BLOODY FIGHTING

Fierce Hand-to-Hand Fighting Leaves Battle Area Strewn With Dead

Athens, Greece, Dec. 14 (AP)—Italian resistance to Greek attacks in strategic mountain passes on the northern Albanian battlefront was reported crumbling today while Greek forces on the southern front were said to be edging steadily forward in a drive aimed at the important port of Valona.

(A dispatch from Bitolj, Yugoslavia, on the Albanian frontier, said the Greeks had launched a big push along the entire northern front and that the bloodiest fighting of the war was raging there.

(Fierce hand-to-hand fighting left the battle area—ranging over a wide arc from west to Moskopolis and to Udunista, on Lake Ochrida—strewn with dead of both sides, this report said, as the Fascist forces put up the sturdiest resistance yet seen in the north.

THREE VESSELS LOST BY BRITAIN

Armed Merchant Cruiser and Freighter Both Over 10,000 Tons Torpedoed and Sunk

London, Dec. 14 —(CP)— The war at sea continued on a heavy scale throughout Friday, with Great Britain reporting three losses, including an armed merchant cruiser, and one victory against a German supply boat.

The armed merchant cruiser H.M.S. Forfar was torpedoed and sunk, the Admiralty announced last night and the coal freighter Orari, 10,350 tons, radioed she had been torpedoed about 750 miles off the French coast.

Norway's largest liner, Oslofjord, chartered by Britain, struck a mine off Newcastle two days ago, shipping officials reported in New York. The information could not be confirmed at the Admiralty.

H.M.S. Forfar, Captain N. A. C. Hardy, R.N., commander, was torpedoed and sunk. No such merchant ship is listed in Lloyd's shipping register, but she may have gone under a different name before the war. The Admiralty gave no indication of losses beyond saying the

Ashes of Lord Lothian Will Repose Indefinitely in Arlington Cemetery

Washington, Dec. 14 —(AP)—The ashes of Lord Lothian, Britain's wartime ambassador to the United States, will repose indefinitely in a vault in Arlington National Cemetery.

This was announced late yesterday by the State Department, along with plans for an Anglican service in Washington cathedral, where Woodrow Wilson and other distinguished Americans are entombed.

The rites at the cathedral were arranged for 3:30 p.m. EDT tomorrow. An army caisson will bear the bachelor nobleman's body from the British embassy, where he died early Thursday after a short illness.

Seats in the cathedral were reserved for American and British officials, and the diplomatic corps.

Private cremation will follow the funeral. Then at noon Monday, an army bugler will sound "The Last Post," a firing squad will fire three volleys, and Lord Lothian's remains will be placed in the Arlington vault, located under the mast of the famous battleship Maine.

Remain for Indefinite Period

There, said State Department officials, the ashes will remain "for an indefinite period until arrangements can be made for final disposition."

Formal action in London toward appointment of a new ambassador was held in abeyance until conclusion of the religious rites. However, diplomatic sources there centred their attention on Sir Andrew Rae Duncan, British Minister of Supply, as a likely successor to Lord Lothian.

Brawny, 56-year-old Sir Andrew formerly was chairman of the British Board of Trade. He has headed a number of important commissions and went into the Cabinet when Winston Churchill became Prime Minister. A native of Scotland, he is married and the father of two sons, one of whom was killed at Dunkirk.

Bordeaux Sub Base And Nazi Airports Heavily Attacked

Bombers Detailed to Attack Railways, Factories and Warehouses, Adverse Weather and All Planes Return

London, Dec. 14 (CP). — British bombers blasted the German naval base at Kiel and attacked Bremen in intensive raids during the night, the Air Ministry announced today.

Heavy assaults also were launched, a communique said, on German airdromes and docks in the Netherlands and on the Nazi submarine base at Bordeaux, in the occupied region of France.

All the British aircraft returned safely from the raids which were carried out in adverse weather, the ministry said.

An Air Ministry News Service account of the R.A.F. raids said incendiary and high expolsive bombs were dropped on Bremen, despite heavy clouds. Bombers were detailed to attack the railway, factories and warehouses.

MAN IS KILLED IN HOBOKEN FIRE

Firm Active in Defence Orders Loses From $100,000 to Million Dollars

Hoboken, N.J. Dec. 14.—(AP)—Fire early today destroyed the plant of the Condensor Service and Engineering Corp., active in National Defence orders with a loss estimated by company spokesman at from $100,000 to $1,000,000. One man was killed.

The man was tentatively identified as George Jacobs, of Jersey City, night watchman, who discovered the fire with four other workmen, comprising the night shift at the plant.

The others said Jacobs apparently had been trapped by flames while making for the plant office to obtain papers. His body was found near the office.

Olaf Anderson, of North Bergen, plant executive, estimated the loss at $1,000,000 including valuable wood patterns and specially built machines being constructed to fill defence orders.

U. S. Navy Officer Sees British Cruiser Sink German Tanker

Key West, Fla, Dec. 14 (AP).—A United States naval officer's eye-witness account of the sinking of the German ship Rhein shed new light today on the fate of the tanker intercepted by Netherlands and British warships in the American neutrality one.

Shells fired broadside from the British cruiser Caradoc, the officer said, sent the Rhein to the bottom after fire started by her crew raged for fifteen hours.

The British Admiralty previously reported it believed that the crew of the Netherlands training ship Van Kingsbergen had extinguished the fire and taken the tanker as a prize of war.

The United States officer, who asked that his name not be used, was aboard the destroyer MacLeish, flagship of the Key West neutrality fleet.

He reported the American ship arrived on the scene in time for those on board to see the Netherlands warship close behind the Rhein.

"Suddenly flames shot from forward and stern and the German ship was a blazing inferno," he continued. "Life boats were lowered and the crew abandoned ship."

The Netherlands crew boarded the Rhein, he said, "but they did not remain on board long as they realized that it was impossible to extinguish the fire."

CHRISTMAS PARTY FOR BOYS' CLUB

The Brotherhood of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church held their annual Christmas party Friday evening in the Sunday School rooms where they played host to about thirty lads of the Boys' Club. The evening passed pleasantly in the playing of games organized by Mr. Chas Franklin. Singing of carols was led by Mr. Ted Gerow and several of the boys contributed to the evening's entertainment. Recitations were given by Russell Soule, Bobby Swayne and Ralph Hall while Ralph Neal sang a solo. A bounteous luncheon was served and heaps of sandwiches, cookies, cakes and ice cream disappeared like magic. Benediction was given by Rev. T. C. Olmstead.

CHILDREN TO ENJOY CHRISTMAS BANQUET

In addition to the customary program of entertainment provided by the Belleville Kinsmen Club at their annual Christmas banquet for under privileged teen-aged boys on Monday next, the boys will also be guests at the McCarthy Theatre following the banquet at the Queens Hotel, President Jeff Marvell announced today. To assure entertainment of the type more appreciated by children Professor Gardini, well known Canadian magician now connected with the R.C.A.F. at Trenton, kindly consented to perform a few of his tricks of magic to add to the entertainment of the evening. President Marvell also announced today that the annual Kinsmen Club turkey bingo would be held in the old Eaton groceteria commencing on Tuesday. All money derived from their turkey bingo will go directly towards the Kinsmen's free eye clinic fund and the club's additional work enterprises.

20 SUMMONS FOR ALL NIGHT PARKING

Continuing a city-wide drive against all night parking on the streets of Belleville, the police patrols summonsed twenty such violators to appear at the police station after a check-up of city streets last night.

"There have been repeated warnings regarding the refraining from all night parking on city streets by motorists. The streets must be kept open in order that the city snow plough can operate at night," warned Chief Kidd today after receiving a report from the night patrol that no less than 20 motorists had violated this city bylaw last night.

Child Brushed Off Sleigh As it Slides Under Motor Vehicle

Only the alertness of the driver of an automobile avoided what might have been a fatal accident at the intersection of Lingham and Emily Streets after school hours on Friday when ten-year-old Bruce Lapore, 6 Bettes Street, rode his handsleigh down the Lingham Street hill and underneath a motor car being driven westerly on Emily Street by B. F. Maidens, 167 Victoria Avenue. Only the expert manipulation and the fact Mr. Maidens was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed avoided a serious accident, as the lad's handsleigh was demolished, but the rider escaped with but minor injuries.

Young Lapore was sleigh riding down the Lingham Street hill with a number of playmates and he was unable to halt his handsleigh as it darted out into the Emily Street intersection on ice-covered roads. Mr. Maidens hastily applied the brakes of his car and stopped within ten feet even on the icy street. As young Lapore's sleigh continued beneath the automobile the lad was apparently brushed off, as the rear wheel of Mr. Maidens' car passed over the empty sleigh demolishing it.

The lad was removed to his home by Mr. Maidens and the family physician called, but no serious injuries were reported, Detective Fred Izard and Constable W. T. Evans reported after investigating the accident.

Christmas Concerts

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL

The beautiful Christmas story and well known nursery tales told in pageantry and music made up a splendid program at the concert given by pupils in the auditorium of Queen Alexandra School on Friday evening. The very fine performances of the pupils in their dramatic numbers, their dancing and songs reflected the careful training by the teachers. The large crowd in attendance at this annually successful event was delighted with the arrangement and presentation of the program. As each visitor entered the door he or she was given a program cleverly designed and colored, the cover depicting carol singers, and the name "Queen Alexandra" enscribed in gold lettering.

The junior pupils opened the program with an operetta "Mother Goose Island". This told of children of Miss Bright's school who were anxious to visit Mother Goose Land. They were granted their request and in the second scene the children and the audience were taken to this magical land. Against a background of starry sky stood the famous Shoe House an amusingly designed house with curtained window, door, colorful roof all part of a huge shoe. The folks who people the nursery rhymes were there to entertain their visitors, and the audience, with their song versions of Mother Goose Fables. The singing of the children was very sweet and they introduced in the first part as well as the last many pretty little songs.

Between acts of the operetta a Flower Dance by Grades 3 and 4 was received with great applause. It showed dainty little blossoms in pastel frocks being brought to life by the small gardener, perhaps Mistress Mary herself, dancing about in a dainty number and then being put to rest again by the snow fairy.

Equally appealing was the drill by pupils of the primary grades. The girls were in quaint Kate Greenaway frocks and the boys in matching costumes and they executed the drill in fine style.

The Christmas carol singing by Grades 5 and 6 was an interesting number. It took place under a street lamp before the red brick home of the man who didn't believe in Christmas. The boys and girls so enchanted him with their singing of famous carols that his heart was softened. The scenery in this number was very cleverly executed.

Mr. W. G. Anderson principal of the school, gave an address of welcome to the visitors, expressing pleasure at the large attendance. He thanked the parents and teachers who had assisted in making the concert a success and referred to the fine work of Mr. Fowler and Mr Wallace who had designed and made the scenery with the help of the boys. He wished all the compliments of the season.

The work of Miss Phyllis Clemence who acted as accompanist for the program was highly commended by Mr. Anderson in his words of appreciation to the teachers.

Presents Prize

Mr. Anderson called upon Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, member of the Board of Education, to present to Barbara Bews, the Board's gold medal which she won for the highest standing in the city at the High School Entrance examinations. Mr. Payne congratulated Miss Bews on her success and expressed good wishes for her future work.

A solo dance by Joyce Cooper, dainty in her yellow costume trimmed with black was greatly enjoyed by the audience.

Senior Operetta

The rest of the program was devoted to the work of the senior pupils who presented a charming Christmas story "A Christmas Waif". This operetta brought before the public the well trained choruses of the senior group whose musical accompaniment added so much to the atmosphere of the interesting drama. The story concerned a homeless lad on Christmas Eve who wanders into a house seeking food, dreams of the Christmas story often told him by his mother, and is adopted by the kind hearted family which discovers him when they arise on Christmas morning.

Jay Howard as the Christmas waif gave a splendid performance his voice being perfectly adapted for his difficult part. The singing of the boys and girls, particularly that of Ethel Smith, was splendidly done. All those taking part in the cast did so with remarkable ability and made the story of the operetta very realistic.

The success of this operetta depends largely, not only upon the acting and singing of those taking part, but in the tableau and scenic effects of the dream part of the production. This was a wonderful success in the presentation last evening. The scenery showed the little town of Bethlehem in the starlight and was very beautiful, making a perfect background for the little group of Mary, Joseph, the Infant, and their surrounding attendants, the angels. The arrival of the Kings made another effective tableau. This party of the play was introduced by the dream fairy and her group of dainty dancers. The Christmas story was told by Phyllis Trusdale, representing the voice from the past.

At the conclusion of the operetta the children all gathered on the stage for the singing of the National Anthem.

DUKE MAY VISIT UNITED STATES TO STUDY SCHEME

President Roosevelt and Windsor Meet for First Time in 21 Years

GENERAL DISCUSSION

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 14 (AP)—The first meeting in 21 years between President Roosevelt and the Duke of Windsor may have paved the way for the former British King to come to the United States next year for first-hand study of a New Deal agency.

While the two talked yesterday aboard the cruiser Tuscaloosa, anchored in Bahamian waters, the Duke said he asked the President "if after New Year's he could make arrangements for me to visit Civil Conservation Corps camps."

The Duke indicated the reply was a cordial invitation, and added he 'wouldn't be surprised' if he sees the President again.

The Duke, Governor of the Bahama Islands, has expressed deep interest in the C.C.C. program because, he says, he sees in it a possible aid for Bahama Islanders.

It was as governor that he flew from Miami in a United States naval plane to keep a rendezvous with the President, who is completing an inspection of naval and air bases leased from Great Britain.

"We discussed naval bases in the whole of the West Indies," he said in describing the visit. "We also talked about the economic future of the West Indies and how America might co-perate with Great Britain in their development."

Talk of the international situation was in general terms, the Duke added. He said he had no comment on a published report that he might become Ambassador to the United States.

DEPLORES CLAMOR FOR TERRITORY

New York, Dec. 14 (CP). — The New York Times today deplored editorially the "noisy and unthinking clamor" that has arisen in the United States for British "real estate" in the West Indies in exchange for more help to Britain.

Saying that outright sovereignty of the West Indies would gain the United States little, the Times said possession of the British West Indies "would be a material liability many times as great as the Virgin Islands have proved themselves to be."

Top to bottom are Kent Taylor, Robert Stanton, Virginia Vale and Dick Hogan, featured with Edward Ellis in "Three Sons" which opens next at the McCarthy Theatre.

BAPTIST MINISTER DISARMS YOUTH

Farm Hand Had Threatened to Shoot Residents Living Near Dunsford, Ontario

Lindsay, Ont., Dec. 14 (CP)—Constable Cecil Taylor of the Ontario Provincial Police told how Rev. Harry Butler, a Baptist minister of Scotch Township, calmly walked up to a youth armed with a shot-gun and persuaded him to surrender to a posse of 18 farmers who surrounded him in a field near Dunsford, Ont.

The youth, James McGrath, 17-year-old farm hand, was arrested on charges of theft and threatening to shoot residents of the Dunsford-Scotch line district. He had formerly been employed by Joseph O'Leary of Downeyville and later on a farm near Dunsford, 15 miles northeast of here.

Police said that yesterday, Nelson Thurston, a farmer in the district, phoned them that a youth threatened to shoot him when he was discovered in a shed.

Constable Taylor called all the farmers in the district into a posse and McGrath was arrested shortly after sundown following an all-day search.

Constable Taylor said that when Mr. Butler walked towards McGrath the youth pointed the gun at him and said:

"Don't come any closer or I'll plug you."

The constable said Mr. Butler did not hesitate however, and walked right up to the boy telling him it would be folly to shoot when he was surrounded by so many men.

McGrath's former employers complained to police that he had stolen clothing, money and a rifle.

Admiralty Announces Change of System

London, Dec. 14 (CP).—The Admiralty announced today a revolutionary change in promotions abolishing a system which has been in use for more than two centuries.

Under a new order-in-council captains can be selected from the upper five years of the list for promotion to the rank of rear admiral instead of the old method of selection by seniority.

The scheme starts with the next batch of promotions in the new year, when brilliant young officers will be given a chance at high commands. Before they just had to wait their turn.

The seniority system started in 1718 and the "merit school" has been trying to get it altered since 1747.

Ontario Farmers Will Produce to Extent of Their Power

Smith's Falls, Ont., Dec. 14 (CP)—Joseph H. Ebbs, President of Lanark County Cheesemakers' Association, said in an address here last night that "Ontario farmers will accept wartime sacrifices and will produce to the full extent of our power."

They would accept the fact that "farmers are being asked to make greater sacrifices than any other class of people" and "will smile that we are able to assist our country at the time of its need," he said.

Farmers were asked to produce cheese "at a price that will cost us money, asked to raise pork at a price that cannot bring anything but a loss," Mr. Ebbs claimed.

Rehabilitation of Discharged Army Men Will Be Discussed

Montreal, Dec. 14 (CP)—Brig.-Gen. E. De B. Panet, Officer Commanding Military District No. 4, has called a conference of Montreal business men for Jan. 7th to discuss rehabilitation of men discharged from the Canadian army.

In a circular letter, General Panet said the subject had been dealt with in preliminary discussions between Ottawa officials and headquarters here and it has been decided that a conference should be held between employers and the militia.

Trainee at Yarmouth Taken to Hospital With Spinal Meningitis

Yarmouth, N.S., Dec. 13. (CP)—A trainee with spinal meningitis at the military training camp here has been taken to hospital at Halifax, Col. U. G. Dawson, Officer Commanding, said last night.

The camp, housing 500 men under the compulsory military training scheme, has been under quarantine for the last few days because of a case of diphtheria.

AWARDED GEORGE CROSS MEDAL

London, Dec. 13—(CP. Cable)—Heroism in rescuing trapped victim's of last month's Coventry raid was recognized today with the award of the George Cross to Special Constable Brandon Moss.

Moss showed "super-human efforts and utter disregard for personal injury" in night-long toil amid debris, the citation said. He led a party which rescued three persons trapped in a demolished house and later tried to disentomb other victims, one of whom was saved alive

Adestes Fideles

O come all ye faithful,
Joyful and triumphant,
O come ye, O come ye to Bethlehem,
Come and behold HIM,

In the highest, glory!

Chorus:
O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him,
Christ the Lord.

This carol was written during the 13th century and translaed from the old Latin by F. Oakley in 1841. The original auhor is unknown. John Reading, an 18th century organist, is commonly credited with the music, although some declare that it was composed by a Portuguese chapelmaster.

A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring president, Mrs. McTaggart, who has served for the past three years.

Thomasburg Unit of the Red Cross sponsored a play entitled — "Governor Joe's Amen", presented by the Young People of Beulah United Church in the Oddfellows Hall here on Tuesday evening. The hall was filled with young and old folks who enjoy amateur entertainment.

The local president, Mr. Will Morton called the gathering to order and Mrs. Arthur Woods introduced the cast of characters as follows:—

Governor Joe Howard, a man who put business before his family and home, Mr. Arthur Woods; Bruce Howard, his young son, Mr. Malcolm McMillan; Morris Duke, a friend of Bruce's, Mr. Frank Palmer; Larry Davis, a criminal lawyer, Mr. Elmer Rollins; Mr. Blow, carpet cleaner, Rev. S. Delve; Mr. Best, another carpet cleaner, Mr. George Wood; Gale Howard, the Governor's attractive young daughter, Mrs. George Wood; Miss Alicia Howard, the Governor's spinster sister, Mrs. Phyllis Twiddy; Lellie Howard, the Governor's wife, Mrs. Frank Palmer; Mrs. Jim Connor, a heart broken mother, Mrs. Stanley Prest; Jennie, a maid, Miss Marjorie Prest; Maggie, a maid, Miss Gwendolin Reid.

The stage was suitably arranged and all three acts took place in the living room of the Governor's home. The play was well presented, though sad at times, had much humor also.

Between acts Beverley Palmer favored with a recitation and Rev. Mr. Delve delighted the audience with piano accordian music. At the close lunch was served for the cast.

'NO QUITTER'

"If you back us you will not be backing a quitter." These were words among the last written by the late Marquess of Lothian. They were used at the opening of the last paragraph of the address which was read for him at Baltimore the night before his death.

These were the words of a Britisher who, true to the spirit of his race, has toiled incessantly in the duties of his high office as ambassador to the United States. The Marquess of Lothian, himself "no quitter," placed his finger on the strength of the British people whose fortitude had won the Battle of Britain, the second battle of the war and the first defeat Hitler had sustained.

"With your help in airplanes, munitions, in ships and on the sea and in the field of finance now being discussed between your treasury and ours we are sure of victory."

He said he was not trying to tell the United States what to do but was presenting the essential facts on which to form judgment.

His words were words of confidence in victory of Britain, which has been doing her best for civilization. "With your help we can win and decisively win in 1942, if not before."

ATHENIAN MINES ONCE SAVED GREECE

Once the mines of Athens saved civilization from invasion from the east. In 490 B.C., Darius the King of Persia, came with his vast armies into Greece and at the great battle of Marathon, 26 miles from Athens, the invading armies were smashed and fled. Ten years later Xerxes, successor to Darius, brought over an army of vaster proportions. They fought against the gallant Leonidas and his small army and the immortal three hundred at Thermopylae and finally got around the pass by going over the mountain. On they came southward and there took place the battle off the Island of Salamis in which the Athenian fleet conquered forever the menace from the east.

This is the point. The money for Themistocles' Athenian fleet came from the city's silver mines at Larium, the New York Times points out. These had been leased out to private operators for a percentage. In the year 483 the city is said to have received the equivalent of $600,000 as its share. This money was used to build in the next couple of years, so history goes, 200 Athenian ships. It was this fleet built up by Themistocles which crushed Persia's advance into the west.

Today the mineral wealth of the world is playing a vital part in the war. Britain's resources are vast and are being used for the preservation of world democracy against tyranny. In precious metals, particularly gold, and in the base metals such as nickel, zinc, copper, the nations of the British Commonwealth are rich and are using these resources for the maintenance of freedom. Gold mines in Canada are producing a vast amount of wealth which will stand in good stead in the purchase or making of war munitions. The total mineral production of Canada is expected this year to reach a grand total of half a billion dollars.

Canada's wealth in her rocks is but one of the sources of her wealth whose potential is very great and is not realized by the people in its fullness. All these resources are playing a part in bearing the burden of the war. The full war effort requires these and every other source of national strength to be enlisted in the cause.

The Greeks in the time of the Persian invasions depended on the soul of their peoples and they used their wealth to fine advantage. Today the British Empire is utilizing all its resources of spirit and material to guarantee liberty and the right of nations to develop sanely along democratic lines and without enroaching upon the rights of others.

MUSSOLINI AND THE CARTOONIST

Mussolini's head, jaw and posture were made for the cartoonist. The cartoonist has had a parade of opportunity for years in the pompous figure who has for nearly two decades taken a large space to himself in the world's eye.

The contrasts between the boasts of the Italian Fascist leader and the defeats which his armies have sustained and are sustaining in Greece, Albania and Egypt are so pronounced that the cartoonist has infinite opportunity to play up the weaknesses of the Fascist dictator.

Mussolini's character is easily portrayed by the artist and cartoonist for the broad lines readily throw a flood of light on the makeup of the man. The cartoons can also be very cynical for if ever a man deserved to be ridiculed and satirized it is the Duce of Italy.

How different to the great figure Garibaldi who promised his men suffering and hardship and death is Mussolini who fed his Fascists on his brags and softened them with their campaign in Ethiopia and the overrunning of Albania several years ago.

One of Duce's most ridiculous moves was to adopt the German goose-step out of tribute to Hitler and the Nazis. The cartoonists seized upon that to exercise their artistry.

But the Greek and British victories in the Mediterranean area have provided portrayers of the weaknesses of the Fascist chief with the supreme opportunity. It is a fertile field for with the setting of Greece ancient and modern and old and new Egypt, the cartoonist can run riot in his details, suggestions and contrasts.

GENERAL DE GAULLE IS CONFIDENT

General de Gaulle is full of confidence in the French people that they will recover from the shock of the collapse of last June, and that they will achieve unity as the enemy of Hitler. Recently he said that he believed eighty per cent of the French people were with him (De Gaulle) as the Free French leader. De Gaulle has been winning over French Africa areas to the support of his standard and it is said he counts on the direct loyalty of no fewer than ten million persons. French Equatorial Africa is in a fine strategic position and as a supporter of De Gaulle is a very important factor in the Allied campaign in North Africa. It is a protection to Egypt and a threat to Italian Libya.

General de Gaulle advises the French to exercise patience. He foresees with progress of the British and Allied arms the awakening of his country.

Help for Duce Big Problem For Adolph

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Dec. 14 — Rumors that another personal meeting between Hitler and Mussolini is in the offing do not occasion any surprise.

Il Duce's plight is obviously so serious as to call for pocketing his pride and sending an S O S to his Axis mate. A crisis of some sort is shaping up for him.

The rumor that Mussolini was on the way to Berlin—subsequently denied in the German capital — was followed quickly by reports of Hitler's departure for an undisclosed destination. It may be Brenner Pass again. That setting for the telling of the sad story that Il Duce must relate would at least save him the ignominy of going hat in hand to Berlin for help.

And he needs help, quickly. Intimations of spreading defeatism in Italy seep through Rome's censorship. Fascist Party strong-arm squads are reported to have been mustered to deal with defeatists in third-degree fashion.

Just what Hitler can or will do is questionable. And direct military help for Italy might jeopardize Hitler's own war effort against Britain.

Rumania Vulnerable

Months of German air and sea attack on Britain did not prevent massing of men and material in Egypt for the expanding British offensive. Italian ill success against Greece has made the Balkans more of an unpredictable powder-keg than ever. If Hitler drops a war spark there it might blow up in his face and expose his Rumanian oil resources to British air attack.

British bomber forces aiding the Greeks are now in easy striking distance of the Rumanian oil fields. Bulgarian and Yugoslavian neutrality has served to keep them off thus far. It seems questionable that Hitler could consider sacrificing that protection just now.

Yet he would have to march through one or the other neutral states to outflank the Greeks pressing Italy toward a crushing disaster in Albania. There is no route save the air for German or Italian aid to the beleaguered Fascist army in Egypt.

A German invasion of Bulgaria or Yugoslavia would open an inviting door for British air attack from Greece on Rumanian oil wells, pipelines and rail and river routes to Germany. That, too, at a particularly disadvantageous time for Hitler.

The Danube River route will soon be ice sealed for months. Shipping the enormous stocks of gasoline and oil needed to feed the air and sea attack on Britain is even now a serious Nazi problem. Supplementing that to build up reserves for an intensified drive in the spring doubles the load.

It is 1,200 miles or more, air line, from the Rumania oil field outlets to such major Nazi U-boat bases as Lorient on the Southwest coast of France. It is still further to Nazi air and U-boat bases in Norway.

The rail distance is double or triple that in each case. Continental railroads were designed for the strategic needs of the various nations, not to handle a transcontinental mass oil traffic.

British Admiralty reports of German tankers downed off the Norwegian and even the French coasts show up the Nazi transportation problem. Despite all risks they are using the North Sea, even the English Channel, to move oil and gasoline, supplementing rail movement.

Helping Mussolini is no easy task for Hitler. What he decides to do may depend upon just how much of a war asset instead of a war liability he concludes Italy to be under present circumstances.

Livestock From The War Zone

Britain continues in the midst of war to send pedigree livestock across the seas to remote corners of the world.

Sheep from Romney marsh have recently been landed on the lonely island of Ascension. Bred for generations on these exposed marshes of the English Channel, they thrive where other sheep would perish. One ram of this breed was sold to Argentina last September for 210 guineas.

Red Poll cattle have been safely delivered as far from East Anglia as Nepal. They are the only hornless breed in England, sprung from a century of skilful mating of the Norfolk strain, with its red colour and beef production and the Suffolk with its excellent milking qualities.

A consignment of pigs has also just crossed the Atlantic and Canada to Vancouver. They are Large Whites, the breed which has a larger proportion of lean to fat than any other The sows are excellent mothers and very prolific, while their piglets are hardy and rapid growers, equally ready for slaughter at an early age where small joints of pork are required, or to be taken on to a very large size and weight.

Londoners Waited 17 Days For Battle of Trafalgar News

A valued possession of his family for more than 75 years, a copy of the London Times dated November 7, 1805, was brought into The Journal office by R. Philip Hughes, 5 Florence street.

The paper contains the official despatches of Vice-Admiral Collingwood to the Admiralty about the great Battle of Trafalgar as well as an editorial written on the death of Lord Nelson, "the darling of the British Navy".

Mr. Hughes pointed out that many interesting comparisons had been drawn between this war and that of 1914-1918 but that the 1805 Times showed in sharp contrast the manner in which war was waged then and now.

Reading the old Times, the first thing to draw the attention is the fact that the battle which is described was fought on the afternoon of October 21 and Londoners read the first official account of it 17 days later.

In the recent naval engagements in the Mediterranean the time which elapsed between the actual fighting and the account which Mr. Thomas Jones read over his morning cup of coffee was a matter of hours.

What the printers of that London Times would have thought of the Battle of the River Plate where reporters in an airplane followed the Graf Spee to her doom and the story telephoned or cabled thousands of miles away can only be imagined. It is interesting to speculate what Lord Nelson would have thought of carrying a foreign correspondent of one of the world's largest news-gathering agencies aboard the Victory as it lead the two columns of British "sail" into battle off the rocks of Cape Trafalgar.

The Times records that "Captain Sykes, of the Nautilus, and Lieutenant Lapenotiere of the Pickle schooner, arrived at the Admiralty together about half-past one o'clock yesterday morning (Nov. 6.) The former did not, as was generally understood, arrive from the scene of action; he fell in by accident with the Pickle schooner and on learning the intelligence proceeded immediately to Lisbon with the information from whence he was sent with despatches, by Mr. Gambrier, the British Consul, to England, and landed at Plymouth: Lieutenant Lapenotiere made the Port of Falmouth and by a singular coincidence met Captain Sykes at the gates of the Admiralty".

The Times goes on: "Immediately on the arrival of the despatches Lord Barham rose from his bed to peruse them and continued at business till five o'clock when a messenger was sent off to His Majesty at Windsor".

When that messenger arrived at Windsor "The King's own Militia being in the little Park exercising, fired a fue da joie on the occasion".

Editorially The Times commented "That the triumph, great and glorious as it is, has been dearly bought, and that such was the general opinion, was powerfully evinced by the deep and universal affection with which the news of Lord Nelson's death was received . . . There was not a man who did not think that the life of the Hero of the Nile was too great a price for the capture and destruction of 20 sail of French and Spanish men-of-war."—Ottawa Journal.

'Every Man's Book'

Popular Report (1939-1940) of British and Foreign Bible Society by Rev. J. A. Potter, M.C., M.A., Its Literary Sup't

The experience of war has deepened the intensity and conviction with which the Bible Society's story during "a troubled year" is told. Taking as a title the familiar words appended to Dent's Everyman's Classics, Mr. Patten unfolds the story of another year's work under the simple headings: "For Every Man"; "In the Language of Every Man"; "Taking the Book to Every Man"; "How Every Man Receives the Book"; and "The Price of Every Man's Book." As usual he brings poetry and prose to illuminate his tale. Writers as varied as Thomas Carlyle, Miles Coverdale, General Carpenter of the Salvation Army, The Bishop of London and Isaac Watts, furnish chapter headings. His own war experience and the fact that much of the report was written during the Battle of Britain make him particularly sensitive to the atmosphere of war, and to the need of the Scriptures for every man during these fierce and trying experiences.

Perhaps the most moving chapters in the book deal with the work of the Society in war-torn lands. Though the period from May 10th is not covered in this vivid survey, nevertheless there is a feeling of tension in all his descriptions, and the section on China is particularly thrilling.

Canada is not forgotten, and its scheme for presenting New Testaments to the Armed and Auxiliary Forces of the Crown receives honourable mention. "However long the war may last our Canadian friends will see to it that Canadians serving the Empire on sea, on land, and in the air receive as part of their equipment a copy of the Word of God." Similar efforts in other parts of the British Empire are recorded with pardonable pride.

The plea for support is finely phrased and deeply moving. A deficit of $65,000 "brings us down to earth, and to the hard fact that even this most blessed work of spreading the Word of God through the world must be paid for in hard cash."

Mr. Patten is again to be congratulated on another brilliant Popular Report, and the Society on the form and appearance of its lively record, printed and published as it is in England in time of war.

Stewart Says—

Benito Mussolini Flops Completely As a Militarist

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

Benito Mussolini

Washington—No matter in whose favor the war may end, the U. S. state department's conviction now is that the finish won't be a favorable one for Il Duce Mussolini.

In this belief officials find and express (sotto voice, in order to remain at least for the present, reasonably diplomatic) a certain degree of satisfaction.

For the fact is that they've developed an even poorer opinion of Benito than of Der Fuehrer Hitler. Probably they hate Adolf worse than they do his Axis partner, but they don't despise him as they do the latter.

It was the other way about when the Nazis were just getting organized. The Fascists, at that stage of the game, already had gained considerable momentum with their program. Mussolini wasn't liked from here, but he was regarded as a man of a good deal of a bad sort of ability. He took Italy in hand when it was in a condition of complete chaos and dictated it into pretty fair order. At the time he and Hitler met initially, the Fuehrer was a mere untried upstart in comparison with the Duce.

When Il Duce Led

In the matters of personal appearance and manner, too, the advantage was with Benito. Prior to his recent deflation the Duce was no joke to look at. Physically he was adequately dignified. He also could make an effective speech, and could yet, if it hadn't been discovered that it's pure bombast.

With his Charlie Chaplin mustache, Adolf, in a vicious fashion, always has looked simply funny. His oratory is unqualified yowling, as everybody's aware who ever heard him via radio.

So when the pair first got together the general impression was that Adolf's whole idea was to take lessons. Maybe, then, Benito thought so likewise.

But by the time Adolf took the warpath he was, individually, fully as big a man as Benito. Indeed, he was a lot bigger, Germany being so much more formidable a tail for him to wag than Benito's Italy.

However, while the Fascists stayed on the fence, the difference wasn't so noticeable. Presently, though, Benito realized that he'd got to get into the muss actively, in order to qualify himself for his share of the plunder, assuming any Axis victory. France being on the ropes, he picked a first-class juncture to do it. He didn't have anything to do with the Paris government's capitulation, but nominally he had a hand in it.

Stalled in Africa

To make good, he had to keep up his part, and accordingly launched his North African campaign. He's stalled there today. Hence that's an Italian fizzle.

To make sure of some place he certainly could conquer he jumped on little Greece. All the world's military authorities agreed that that poor little pewee would be easy picking for him. And (lo and behold) he can't even lick the Greeks!

As he said the other day, he'll break their backs yet. And neutral observers regretfully admit that they think the Greek back ultimately will be broken — but not by Italy. The dope is that Germany'll have to lend a hand in effecting the fracture. It ought to be mortifying to Italians to have to have help to overrun so small a country as Greece.

There are critics who contend that the Italians themselves are very capable scrappers. The critics' version is that the Italian rank and file didn't want to get into this war and that they're reneging on Benito.

Tough—Either Way

Perhaps it's true. If so, it'll be hard on Benito.

When the British win the war, it's a foregone conclusion that not much will be left of Signor Mussolini.

Suppose Germany wins. How much will Herr Hitler give him for the less than trifling assistance the Fascists have been to the Nazis—so little assistance that the Nazis have had to help the Fascists?

Why, in Spain the Italians spent twice the effort that the Germans did to boost totalitarian General Franco's victory over the Spanish republicans. And now Herr Hitler's trying to scoop in all the Spanish gravy without a bit of regard for Signor Mussolini.

Benito hasn't proved to be much of a military commander. Signs are interpreted as indicating that he won't prove to have been much of a diplomat, either.

CANADA ON GUARD FROM ICY NORTH TO SEMI-TROPICS

1940 Review of Dominion's Troop Movements Shows Maple Leaf Prominent in Many Wartime Climes

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Dec. 14 (CP)—Along the rocky, wind-swept coasts of Iceland, on sunny beaches in the West Indies, around a giant airport in Newfoundland and in the bomb-torn fields and cities of Great Britain, Canadian troops stood watch during 1940.

It was a year of travel, if not of fighting, for Canada's small but growing overseas army. The fortunes of war deprived Canadian soldiers of a chance to engage the enemy in battle although a few of them came close to it as France tottered to its tragic fall.

When the 1st Canadian Division went to England just before the start of 1940 the expectation was it would go on to a place on the fighting front in France after a period of training. A winter of quietness followed by the German blitzkrieg put an end to that and the 1st Division became an important cog in the defence machine set up to repel an anticipated invasion of the British Isles.

When the Nazi forces took the offensive in the spring, first on neutral Denmark and Norway, then on France by way of neutral Belgium and Holland, Canada's 1st Division was ready for action.

Ordered to Norway

Two battalions, the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and the Edmonton Regiment were detached to form part of a British force it was proposed to send against the Norwegian port of Trondheim. These units moved out of Aldershot Camp to a Scottish port and were ready to sail when plans for the expedition were abandoned.

Later as the Germans drove through the low countries and into France, Canadian troops were several times on the point of embarking for the scene of hostilities but did not move until towards the end when the 48th Highlanders of Toronto set out in advance of a cross-channel Canadian movement.

That unit actually landed in France and travelled some distance inland when orders came for a retreat. They got back to the coast, boarded ship and returned to England without contact with the enemy.

In the dark days which followed as the British Expeditionary Force came home from Dunkerque without its equipment, the Canadian Division, equipped and trained to good fighting form was on the alert for a German attempt to land troops.

While the British army strained to make up for the losses suffered in the retreat from France the Canadian Divsion along with other forces in the British Isles constituted the land defence force which would have been thrown against an invasion.

Comparatively early in the war Canada sent troops to the West Indies to relieve British garrison troops for duty elsewhere.

Canadian troops were despatched to Newfoundland when the danger of leaving that outpost of North America with its modern airport undefended became acute.

In the occupation of Iceland Canada shared the burden of garrison duty with Great Britain. Soon after Denmark, allied to Iceland through a common king, was occupied by the Germans, a British-Canadian Expeditionary Force landed on the island to make sure the enemy would not attempt to use it either for the further encirclement of the British Isles or as a stepping-stone to Canada.

The number and character of the troops placed in Iceland was never disclosed. Although changes have been made it is believed some Canadians are still there.

Prepared For Defence

The occupying troops spread themselves out and prepared the Island for a defence, setting up coastal defence and anti-aircraft guns and lookouts. They pitched their tents on the volcanic rock in lonely parts of the coast and later built huts for themselves

Throughout the year the enlargement, training and equipping of the forces in England went on. The arrival of the 1st Division was followed by the despatch of ancillary troops and the decision to establish a Canadian army corps was announced.

By midsummer units of the 2nd Division had arrived and Lt.-Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton was given command of an army corps which included the 1st Division and another Empire division. The movement of the 2nd Division under the command of Maj.-Gen. Victor Odlum to the British Isles was completed by early autumn and the entry of that division into the corps under Gen. McNaughton's command became a matter of bringing the division up to the standard of efficiency already attained by the 1st Division.

Railways Play Big Parts In Canada's War Effort

Day and Night Long Freight Trains Laden With War Supplies Rumble to the Coast — Belleville Division Very Busy

NO LET-UP

The thunderous symphony of steel on steel; belching clouds of smoke that merge into the inky blackness of night; stabbing shafts of light that pierce the velvety darkness like gleaming rapiers; the rumble of the snake-like chains of laden freight cars that appear out of the night and disappear into the darkness with a crescendoing monotony; hissing iron monsters that champ in anxiety to get away; minute figures of man, the master, rushing to and from their metal steeds; the steady monotonous roar of moving trains that are carrying the vital necessities of a country at war to the heart of the Empire. That is the picture of Canada's railroads today.

Day and night, every twenty-four hours, over the gleaming steel that spreads across a continent, rumbles the incessant monotone of moving stock. From coast to coast industry stepped up to war-time capacity, is exuding the necessities of war-time Britain. And in keeping with this huge production, the railroads are seething with an activity not dreamed of three years ago.

Analogous with this activity, divisional centres with their maintenance, repair and constructional branches, are likewise working at capacity. New men have been called to the "railroad" colors. Veteran engineers and other operating members of the staffs are experiencing consistent duties. All is rush and bustle with the whole maintaining a rising tempo commensurate with that of the wartime and commercial pulse of the dominion.

Belleville, one of the most important divisional centres in Ontario, is no different to the rest. Unknown to the laymen, railroad men and officials in this city are devoting time and efforts that are unheralded and unsung and unheard in the roar of traffic and increasing demand for their abilities.

Railway maintenance employment here has nearly doubled in some departments. One hundred and five men, an increase of 100 per cent are now employed in the rail saw department. Other branches have increased in proportion.

The central point of a spider-web of gleaming steel numbering 8,000 miles, that covers the central region of the railway stretching from a point near Port Arthur to Mont Jolie in Quebec, Belleville is the service centre for large numbers of the "iron horses" and cars that roar daily across a continent. Indicative of this important phase of railroad work is the fact that over ninety engines were serviced here in 24 hours.

Much Water Used.

In 1939 the Belleville branch of the company utilized 123 million gallons of water. Up to the end of October this year, 125 million gallons were consumed.

Behind the roar of rushing-trains, speeding across the country twenty-four hours a day, are the quiet, efficient workmen, officials and others, all important cogs of a transportation machine that is second to none in the world.

BRITISH PEOPLE LOOK FOR MORE EFFECTIVE AID

Hon. David Bowes-Lyon Says All Aid Received So Far Has Been Paid for

BRITAIN NOT BITTER

London, Dec. 14 (CP)—The British people hope for more effective aid from the United States, Hon. David Bowes-Lyon, brother of Queen Elizabeth, said last night on the British Broadcasting Corporation's "Britain Speaks" feature.

Britain had received some "very useful material" from the United States and the British people were grateful for it. The average Briton also was "very grateful" for the moral support received from the United States, "and the knowledge that it may take a more definite shape has cast shadows on the minds of those in Germany and Italy."

But the average Briton doubted that his country had received effective material aid from the United States yet.

He said that whatever material had been received from the United States had been paid for "in the usual way," and the deal whereby the United States made 50 destroyers available to Britain in return for defence base sites in the western hemisphere brought "full returns" to both countries.

So far it had been mainly Britain's manpower and Britain's own resources which had held off the Germans, and removed the Italian threat in the Mediterranean area.

"It is Our War" Claim

"That is as it should be," he said, "it is our war."

Then he added:-

"We are not bitter that more aid has not yet been given, since we realize that we stood inactive ourselves in the face of the German threat before the war.

"We are not too proud to ask for more and more effective aid from the United States in the future. We have already shown we can use it.

"What we want is a chance to get on with the war, unhindered and in our own way."

Mr. Bowes-Lyon said he would not deal with the question of economic aid, "although it is important," but he repeated statements he had made on previous broadcasts that the blockade of European countries should not be lifted, as was requested by former President Herbert Hoover in the United States.

Allowing food into the occupied countries would only aid the German war machine, he said. The problem of feeding the conquered populations should be Germany's.

"I don't see why we should help Mr. Hoover to do Mr. Hitler's housekeeping," he said.

4,914,713 Plurality Given Roosevelt in Final Returns

(Copyright 1940 by The Associated Press)

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—The United States electorate cast a new record vote of 49,808,624 last Nov. 5 and chose Franklin D. Roosevelt as the nation's first third term President by a plurality of 4,914,713.

Final returns as compiled by The Associated Press—official in 46 states and unofficial in Nebraska and Rhode Island—show the popular vote to have been divided this way:—

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat, 27,241,939.

Wendell L. Willkie, Republican, 22,327,226.

Norman Thomas, Socialist, 116,796.

Roger W. Babson, Prohibition, 58,600.

Earl D. Browder, Communist, 48,789.

John W. Aiken, Socialist-Labor, 14,861.

Others, 413.

The total popular vote was 4,161,507 above the previous record of 45,647,117 in 1936 and 9,992,102 more than the 1932 total of 39,816,522.

President Roosevelt's plurality was the smallest since Woodrow Wilson's 591,385 in 1916, and represented a recession from his 11,072,014 and 7,060,016 margins in 1936 and 1932, respectively. But his electoral vote of 449 to 82 for Willkie was exceeded only by his own 523 to eight and 472 to 59 victories in his two previous elections. Otherwise the closest approach was Hoover's 444 to 87 in 1928.

Roosevelt carried 38 states. Willkie's pluralities were in Colorado, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Vermont.

The President's percentage of the total vote was 54.7; Willkie's 44.8, and minor party candidates 0.5.

Texas gave Roosevelt the largest plurality of any state—640,999. Wyoming gave him the smallest, 6,654. Willkie's biggest plurality was in Kansas—124,435; his smallest in Michigan—6,926.

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating breakfist and ma said, Such an unpleasant uncomfortable dream as I had last night. You know how I detest wind, especially cold wind that blows frantically from all angles of the compass in the same breath. Well, I dreamed I was caught in the mist of the most outlandish gale with my helpless arms full of packages. Really, Willyum, I could just kick myself for a fool every time I think of it, she said.

Well for Peet sake you're not blaming yourself for something you dreamed, are you? pop said, and ma said, Of course I am, my skerts kept flaping against my legs with a sound like the cracking of whips, and my hat was flattened flat on my face. That's the kind of a wind it was. Really, Willyum, I mean really, there's no excuse for me, she said.

What the dooce are you talking about, do you mean to say you delibritly ate some unholy mixture late at night to give you nightmares? pop said, and ma said, Well certainly not, I hope I have more sense than that, with my nollege of my own constitution. And to add insult to injury, the other people in the street sauntered jauntily passed, seemingly oblivious of the slightest breeze and laughing maliciously at my predicament. It just makes me feel too silly for words, she said.

But yee gods why does it? pop said, and ma said, Because I was lying there shivering with the bedclothes slipping off onto the floor, and every time I woke up and realized it I was too sleepy to have the common intelligence to pull them back, that's why.

Oh, well(in that case a slite sense of shame is only naturel, pop said, and ma said, O is that so, well I'm sure you've done the very same thing in the very same circumstances, so you dont need to sound so holier than thou.

For Peet sake I thought you were asking for a conviction, not an acquital, yee gods get me out of here, pop said.

And he got himself out by quick folding up his paper and leaving for his office.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

To Terminate Affair With Undesirable

If you'll look about you, you will find that the surest way to make a son or daughter marry an undesirable is to abuse her or him. The following letter proves that if you pick on the young man you'd rather not have for a son-in-law, you are only keeping warm his chair until he takes his place in the family circle.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Our only daughter, for whom we have done everything in our power, is our problem at present. We gave her the best education our means would permit, and right now she is holding an excellent position. My husband and I had always hoped she would marry before we passed on. Any young man who has come to see her has been welcomed by us, and she has had some nice friends; but none of them ever seemed to interest her beyond friendship.

"About a year ago, one of the men employed in the same office with her lost his wife and was left with two small children. My daughter had great sympathy for the children and started taking them out—to the park on Sundays, to the movies, concerts, and even made some of their little dresses. The father had always seemed more or less of a failure to her. But pity seems to have done its fatal work —she has fallen in love with this man who really has nothing to recommend him.

"And to top it all, my husband and sons have started to abuse this man, saying all manner of things against him. Don't you think, if they had paid no attention to her queer fancy in the beginning, that her interest in him might have died out? "Mother."

It seems likely if no notice had been taken of your daughter's kindly interest in the widower's family, it might not have developed into a love affair. We are all given to spurring the newest of our hobbies which later on we take more calmly.

Let the family get busy knocking, and the most unpromising young man becomes a hero. Opposition is the first step toward the success of any cause—and it's practically the same thing with daughter's boy friends. If you don't like them and would rather not have them around as "permanents," go slowly on criticism.

If you don't, daughter's lively imagination will invest them with qualities they never possessed. Because of the curious, instinctive sense of protection that all women have, she becomes an ally and a defender.

If you're a really clever person, more can be done by lifting an eyebrow at the queer thing daughter has brought home than by all the abuse you can muster.

A well-applied dash of humor, a telling word of banter will make the most ardent love affair melt like a cake of ice left on the doorstep in August. Like tabasco sauce, the mockery must be applied with a miser's hand or it's going to have a contrary effect.

Christmas Wrappings Return to

I hope you're as pleased as I am to see that gift-wrappings this year are in the old-fashioned Christmas spirit. Back in predominance are the reds and greens and snowy whites which, in the past few years "modern" designers have been trying to persuade us to abandon. The traditional reds and greens and glistening whites are getting such a big hand that they have taken the spotlight away from novelty colors. Perhaps that's why these Christmas reds and greens seem brighter and more luminous this year, and why the white papers and designs seem more glistening!

Right up in front also this year are all the traditional and beloved Christmas symbols; heart-warming Santa Clauses, Christmas trees in every possible design. toy-filled Christmas stockings; stars, bright sprays of holly leaves and berries combined, as they should be, with mistletoe and pine cones; popcorn balls, jingle bells.

As if determined to make the return to tradition more dramatic and emphatic these symbols, especially the stars, are often used in very large scale. Christmas stockings of Cellophane or heavy crepe paper are enthusiastically recommended as the package itself for a small gift or gifts. Christmas candles, appealing in their form of Christmas trees or Santa Claus, are giant in size and in enduring quality. Christmas cord has become Christmas "rope" in cotton and in glittering gold and silver tinsel.

So we can have a joyful time this year, making our packages sing a greeting in the spirit of that "glorious song of old."

Advice on Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would appreciate very much your advice as to whether or not I should send a certain Christmas gift. The facts are these: I have been going very steadily with a man for about two years, but we are not engaged. Last year his mother gave me a Christmas present, but I didn't give her one. However, I did think that she might have sent me a gift to show me her appreciation for some flowers I sent her when she was ill in the hospital a few months before Christmas.

Do you advise me to send her and her husband something? If so, what? G. E.

Although of course it isn't necessary for you to send a present to your friend's mother, it would be proper and very gracious. I'd suggest a very simple gift; perhaps a box of flowers or a box of holly or other Christmas greenery. Address the gift to the mother, but on the enclosed card write your greetings also to the father.

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, December 15

SUNDAY'S horoscope is not an entirely propitious one, according to conflicting configurations. There may be much pleasure and even profit in social, domestic and artistic activities yet there are omens of deception, intrigue.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of fair promise and expansion, with much hope of gainful and pleasant contracts, especially with desirable and influential personages. Nevertheless there are portents of subtle or tricky situations.

A child born on this day may have much efficiency and ingenuity, with fairly sound ambitions, yet it may be subject to deceit and perfidy and also have personal psychological inclinations demanding supervision.

For Monday, December 16

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a very constructive state of affairs, with important projects moving to successful culminations under high pressure and at accelerated tempo. Practical, new and meritorious propositions if attacked aggressively, decisively and with wholehearted industry and determination, should win.

Those whose birthday it is may expect an exceptionally strenuous year with all sorts of matters moving ahead under high pressure. New propositions or major objectives should be heartily supported by elders or long-established organizations.

A child born on this day will have much creative and practical ability, with energy, determination, and persistency in the direction of important ambitions.

Trim Makes the Coiffure

Anne Nagel has a smart and attractive haircut.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WITH COIFFURES taking new forms and patterns, when many a girl rolls her own locks into tricky arrangements, the hair trim is of more importance than it has been since the bob came in.

It is not merely a matter of cutting the hair, but a matter of giving good lines to the feminine head. One can understand why a woman will tag her favorite tress-clipper from one shop to another. Of course, there is a great deal of poor work going on. All too often an operator will give the beauty client too much work for her money and there's little wool left to make into puffs and ringlets.

Get a Good Cut

There is the snipper who believes that he must thin the hair, even if it is already thin. And the one who does not do a neat tapering job. Correct tapering means that rolls will stay in place and ringlets will not string out.

It is just as well not to have the bob too long before the permanent wave is given. The undulation then does not extend very far up on the hair shafts, and that does not ringlet the ends as well as the croquignole method.

• • •

The small nose looks smaller if the lips are accentuated with cherry colored pigment applied so that the lips are widened. The woman with a large nose should not endeavor to paint a Cupid's bow, which throws her face completely out of form.

Consider harmony of features when applying rouge or lip stick.

Winter Clothing

We need to give more thought to the selection of clothing for Winter than for any other season. The problem is not one of dressing up so much as it is avoiding over-dressing. A great many persons do not seem to understand this, and over-dressing is very often the cause of colds.

We learned a lot about clothing children in Winter when the Dionne Quintuplets were small. Here in Callander we have very low temperatures in January and February. Often it stays below zero for days with no moderation in the temperature even when it is bright, sunny and comparatively windless. We wanted the children to be outside part of each day, and we bundled them up in layer upon layer of clothing. In fact, we put so much on them, they were like the knights of old. When they fell down, with all their paraphernalia on, they couldn't get up again without help.

We had to take notice that the effort of getting around with so much clothing on fatigued them. They perspired, too, and fell easy prey to colds. That is, they fell victim to the very thing we were trying to avoid. Then I realized our mistake, one that I know now a great many parents make with their children—over-dressing.

Children's clothing should fit properly. That is, it must not be too cumbersome or too tight. Putting several layers of clothing on children often has the effect of constricting the garments underneath, and there isn't ample room for arm and leg movements. When these movements are hindered by clothing that binds, not only is the left free to perform their work of easily, but circulation of the blood is interfered with.

An envelope of air next your skin is needed as an insulator. There is an old belief that the skin breathes and so you should give it air. Of course, this isn't true, but it is a fact that the sweat glands must be left free to perform their work of elimination without hindrance.

Underclothing for children in low temperature regions should be woollen and of fine texture. Coarse wools not only irritate the child's delicate skin, but they don't absorb the perspiration as well as the softer kinds. If the underclothing is properly chosen and the child has a warm coat with a hood or hat that protects his forehead, neck and ears, he doesn't need much else.

Of course, footwear is very important in Winter, both to children and adults. However, the overshoes that are available today have to a great extent made it unnecessary to wear heavier shoes in Winter than in other seasons. It is important, however, that stockings fit well, and don't bind or cause the feet to perspire.

It's my advice to parents that it is better to buy the cheaper garments for children, so that they can be discarded even if they are not worn out, when they are no longer a good fit. If the more expensive clothes are bought for children, economical parents may make the mistake of having the growing child wear them too long.

RUDYARD KIPLING

We knew thee of old,
Oh divinely restored,
By the light of thine eyes
And the light of thy Sword.

From the graves of our slain
Shall thy valor prevail
As we greet thee again—
Hail, Liberty! Hail!

Long time didst thou dwell
Mid the peoples that mourn,
Awaiting some voice
That should bid thee return.

Ah, slow broke that day
And no man dared call,
For the shadow of tyranny
Lay over all;

And we saw thee sad-eyed,
The tears on thy cheeks
While thy raiment was dyed
In the blood of the Greeks.

Yet, behold now thy sons
With impetuous breath
Go forth to the fight
Seeking Freedom or Death.

From the graves of our slain
Shall thy valor prevail
As we greet thee again—
Hail, Liberty! Hail!

Avoid Tragedy,—Tell Adopted Child

Repeatedly in this column I have urged adoptive parents to tell the child as early as possible that he is adopted. Here is a letter which pictures the possible tragedy when this fact is not revealed to the adopted child.

"Dear Dr. Myers:—Will you please write an article in your column about people who adopt children and later on in life when it is found out vigorously deny it?

"I am an example of one of these cases. I am in my late twenties now, but I found out when I was sixteen years of age. When I went to my mother and asked her, she denied it and told me how crazy I was to think of such a thing.

Wrong Way to Tell

"About eight years later, in a quarrel, she told me she picked me out of a hallway. If these foster mothers only knew the heartaches and silent suffering these children go through, they would reveal the truth to them. I have brooded so much all these years that it has reflected on my personality by making me a morbid, disillusioned soul who has lost all interest in life."

It would seem to me bad enough for an adoptive mother not to tell the child before he felt occasion to enquire about it after hearing other people "talk." But for the mother to deny the truth as illustrated by this letter is truly awful. Nevertheless, this mother only did what nearly every other person would do. She refused to face the truth.

Any person should know that the adopted child will discover the truth at some time, human nature being what it is, and so many meddlesome persons ready to reveal the secret clandestinely. When the adopted child long deceived discovers the truth at last, this child is not only disturbed by the fact but what is still more painful, feels that he has been deceived by the very one in whom he had put most faith and confidence.

Suppose you have an adopted child whom you have not told. Suppose, on reading this, you dread the consequences when and if the child discovers the truth for himself. Let me advise you to do this:

At a time when you feel well relaxed and self-controlled and here is a peculiarly fine relationship between you and him say:

"I want to tell you something which I should have told you long ago. You know I love you as much as any mother could love you. But, my Dear, I am not your real mother. Your adopted father and I wanted a little baby and because we loved you at sight we chose you as our very own. Then we adopted you, became your parents and will love you always.

"I hope you will forgive me for not having told you earlier. I thought you would be happier if you did not know. I see now that I was wrong. From now on I promise to hide no such matters from you."

Sense of Humour Can Be Misapplied

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

In almost every book one reads or speech one hears about building personality and getting along with people is the advice, "Cultivate a sense of humor." Youths who go a-courting and couples who have just been married are exhorted on the value of a sense of humor. Nor is this exhortation wanting in advice to parents.

Such is good advice, but often misconstrued and misapplied. Many parents, courting couples and married pairs make attempts at humor. But this humor is not always wholesome. Sometimes, indeed, it destroys personality, induces feelings of inferiority, and causes strained relations between child and parents, boy and girl, man and wife.

Making Fun of Others

About the most primitive sort of humor is that by which one person lords it over another, by which one person gets a feeling of importance by causing another to feel inferior, by which pleasure is acquired at another's pain.

Next time you are at a gathering of married and unmarried couples take notice of the efforts of humor by one member of a couple. Is it more often by the masculine member? Note the remark meant by the one to bring a laugh at the expense of the other. This remark may be a reference to some personal trait about which the other person is known to be keenly sensitive. Between married members a common subject by the husband is some matter of cooking or housekeeping of the wife. Wives joke about some irregularly in convention of the husband. More often than not, these efforts at humor centre around some mild or insidiously incisive criticism in the other.

If you are a teacher, observe carefully for a week what children and youths most often laugh at. If you are a parent or teacher, watch yourself for several days to see how often you laugh at your children or cause a laughter at the expense of one or more of them. In contrast, observe the number of times you have purposely invited laughter at your own expense. Likewise, look for the same in others, especially in young married couples.

Cultivate Real Humor

In order to avoid this type of humor and to cultivate a type of humor which won't harm, we must exercise great self-restraint and deep consideration for the rights and feelings of others, especially those dear to us.

Don't we want the child to grow hardened to the jibes and banter such as he will meet in life? Yes. But let us leave this hardening process to the contributions of the playmates and associates of his age. If from early childhood he plays and mingles with others of his age in the free-for-all fun of the neighborhood and school playground, locker room, gymnasium, stadium, camp, club, dormitory, fraternity or sorority, his hide will grow thick enough to take it. Yes; we all need to cultivate a sense of humor but it should be a kindly humor.

Preventing Stiff Joints

When an acute attack of rheumatism occurs with swelling of a joint or joints, the best form of treatment is to leave the joint alone and thus avoid increasing the swelling and inflammation. However, when the acute attack has passed and there is some stiffness in the joint, or in old or chronic cases of rheumatism with stiff joints, the best treatment is not to leave the joint alone but to move the joint a number of times daily and thus prevent it from becoming permanently stiff.

There are many cases of rheumatism or arthritis in which the cause of the acute attacks has been found and removed or corrected—infected teeth or tonsils, wrong diet, injury — but there remains stiffness, creaking and some pain in the joint. As the cause has been removed the patient cannot understand why he still has these symptoms, and because he finds the joint stiff and sore on movement he thinks he should keep the joint still so as not to set up further inflammation or swelling. By keeping the joint or joints so quiet the joint may become permanently stiff.

In these old cases, movement is really the best form of treatment but how to move these stiff joints without causing pain is sometimes a problem.

Just as rheumatism is perhaps the oldest disease known to man, so also is the application of heat the oldest known form of treatment of rheumatism.

One of the simplest methods of "loosening up" a stiff joint due to rheumatism, injury, or any other cause, is to apply heat for ten minutes—hot tub, hot shower, oven baker, heat cabinet—then work the joint slowly for one or two minutes and again use heat for five minutes. Where possible this should be done two or three times a day. If the pain is too severe or if there is any swelling following this method a rest for a few days is wise and a shorter period of exercise given each time. As the treatment continues, the full extent of the movement of the joint should be given even if it means a little extra stretching and causes a little more pain. As the amount of exercise increases, the length of time of applying heat before and after the exercise should be increased.

FOXBORO Y.P.U.

The meeting of Foxboro Y.P.U. opened with a poem given by the President Miss Muriel Milligan. Everyone poined in singing Negro Spirituals; hymn 356 was sung after which Lois Spencer read the Scripture lesson. Prayer was given by Nama Sine.

Prayer was taken in parts by Garth Sine and Reg Helliwell; Mary Helliwell then favored with a piano solo. The theme song "Living for Jesus" was sung. Mr. Cooke led in prayer with all repeating the Mizpah Benediction.

The recreation period was then conducted by Marjorie Tummon.

This Christmas Think of Lingerie For the Woman Who Loves Nice Things —And That Includes Them All

Of all the gifts calculated to make the feminine heart beat a little faster, lingerie is perhaps the most complimentary. For besides its actual loveliness that makes every female from sixteen to sixty catch her breath in rapture, there is an even more subtle flattery in its message that the donor recognizes the recipient as an individual of indiscrimination and fastidiousness.

This, according to Yolande, well-known designer of hand-made underthings, is the reason that lingerie tops the list of Christmas gifts that women cherish both for their sentimental as well as their intrinsic value.

Pure Silk
Gift Lingerie

"A gentleman may be known by the company he keeps, but as our grandmothers maintained, a lady is known by the lingerie she wears," Yolande says. "So, your true gentlewoman is more particular about her under-garments than she is about her outer appeal.

"That's why, even in this stream-lined age of hurry and bustle, well-bred women demand hand-made lingerie of pure silk. And since no woman can ever have too much of it—in fact, no woman ever has as much as she wants—a lovely hand-made gown or slip is the ideal stuffing for a favored Christmas stocking."

But it's a far cry from the be-laced and be-ruffled linen petticoats our grandmothers wore to the sleek, figure-flattering wisps of silk that are the slips and nightgowns of the present. For according to this designer, lingerie today is created specifically to conform to different types of figures and to enhance their best points and minimize their less-than-perfect ones.

"For the slim, smaller-than-average figure, the Empire slip will creation the illusion of well-rounded curves," she says. "While for the fuller figure, the diaphragm slip with its more spacious bodice and waist-whittling panel through the midriff, will subtract inches without benefit of diet.

Perfect-Fitting
Slips for All Figures

"Bravo for the lovely, normal figure! For this type can wear the sculptured top slip that eliminates the need of a brassiere and has a slide-fastened placket that insures slim-fitting through the middle.

"In fact, too much importance cannot be placed upon choosing the correct slip for the figure, for upon it will depend the fit of the frock that goes over it."

Fashion Flashes

THERE'S A SPARKLE about some of the new fur coats. A black Persian lamb coat is distinguished by its big baloon push-up sleeves banded with jet to match big jet-trimmed frog fastenings..

MILD WEATHER has brought out some very attractive three-piece suits. One very good model has a wine red tweed topcoat trimmed with gray fox revers. The suit is of silver gray and white checked tweed.

IT'S A CINCH this dressing for dinner, now that separate skirts and evening sweaters have come to town. With a knife-pleated black crepe, a good choice is a white angora sweater trimmed with scrolls and bands of jet.

NO WONDER those wearable little afternoon frocks are sold on sight. For they fit into the afternoon and informal evening scheme perfectly. Black crepe makes a useful street-length model with pleated skirt and pleated sleeves. High breast pockets are embroidered in black, coral and iridescent blue sequins.

IT'S THE FASHION this year to wear white under fur coats. A good model for present wear is a princess frock of white wool jersey, the full skirt trimmed with bands of red and red felt hearts embroidered on breast pockets.

If a Child Is Jumpy In Thought

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Within certain limits, concentration habits can be cultivated at an early age. Begin with the baby. Answer his questions. If he asks a second before he has heard your answer to the first prolong the answer purposely. Occasionally ask him to give you back your first answer before you give a second. But never weary at answering him.

Pay strict attention, as he tells you of an experience. If as sometimes happens with the child of six or older, your youngster talks on and on, set a definite time limit up to which you will pay strict attention. Help him pick out a few of the main items only.

Encourage him at play to "finish the job," praising him as he does. Try not to interrupt his serious creative undertakings. As you play with him, refuse to shift suddenly from one activity to another within a very few minutes. If he demands much of your time to amuse him set a schedule so he will have to wait. Then he will grow more resourceful and self-reliant.

Don't give the tot too many playthings at a time nor many toys that merely are mechanical. A few simple toys with which he can use his imagination to create are better to encourage concentration.

Best For Concentration

I can conceive of no other single instance so valuable for cultivating concentration in the baby and young child as reading to him as soon as he will look and listen even for a few minutes at a stretch. Choose first a book with a picture on practically every page. As he looks at the picture you read about it. The picture "talks" to him. He sees more and more as you read and hears more and more as he looks. His interests and concentration on the page widen and deepen.

If he wants to turn to the next page before you have finished the first don't let him. Don't read to him while he walks about or plays with toys. Let him learn to sit still and keep quiet until the reading ends.

Having read to him daily for several years before he enters school, you will have trained him to concentrate well at school when his teacher talks, tells stories or reads to them.

Concentration in School Children

The school child best cultivates good habits of concentration when he succeeds in what he is supposed to do. Sometimes, of course, he may have poor vision or poor hearing. Missing what others see or hear, which he also is supposed to hear, how can he concentrate? Then, if in reading or spelling or number work, he does not enjoy success his mind will be sure to go wool gathering. Also his daydreaming may keep him from concentrating at his work at school.

You can help the daydreaming child by making sure you have his complete attention when you speak to him at home, especially when you make a request or command of him; also by holding him strictly to routines and the few regular jobs assigned to him. As he plays successfully with toys and tools and adventures in cooking, he escapes daydreaming and cultivates concentration.

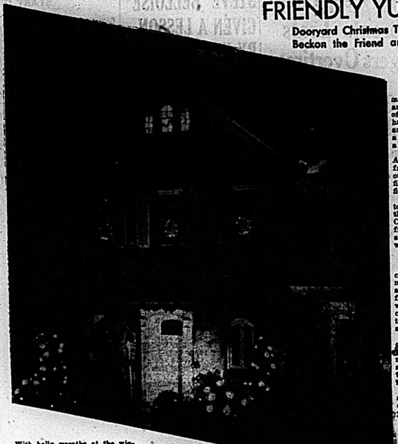
FRIENDLY YULE LIGHTS

Dooryard Christmas Trees of America Beckon the Friend and Cheer the Stranger



With holly wreaths at the windows, Christmas trees in the yard, this house is charmingly festive.

By PATRICIA MONTCLAIR

The custom of exterior Christmas lighting is one of the gayest and most charming expressions of the American way of life. Perhaps it began with the ancient and beautiful tradition of placing a lighted candle in the window as a beacon for a loved one.

Perhaps it was born of the American spirit of generosity, as families sought to share with others the Christmas joy that filled their own homes to overflowing.

Whatever the reason, the custom has now become universal throughout the land, as lighted Christmas trees in the nation's front yards shine out their message of "Peace on earth, good will to men."

Everybody Helps

In most communities nowadays civic groups offer prizes for the most effectively decorated homes at the holiday season. Mother, father and all the children enter wholeheartedly into the spirit of competition, and the results of their handiwork make residential sections into fairylands.

Sometimes a single huge spruce or fir or pine tree in the front yard offers an ideal living Christmas tree. Sometimes small shrubs around the front door are utilized to form a foundation for a pattern of lights.

The possibilities are endless—and nothing is more fun than decorating your home and your yard for the holiday season.

New Faces For Old

By HELEN FOLLETT

When a movie star does not like her nose, she goes to a plastic surgeon and has it trimmed to suit her. Not much of a job they say. All inside work. Plastic surgery has become respectable these last ten years; previously some of the men who did the work were under suspicion and were not permitted to operate in hospitals. Many of them were charlatans. Now surgeons of high standing in the medical profession remodel faces to order.

Face Lifting

It is not surprising that when a woman has a countenance bearing deep wrinkles that she flirts with the idea of a facelift. The hair at the temples is shaved, an incision made, tissues and fibers drawn up, the wound stitched. The likelihood of a scar depends somewhat upon the age of the patient and the character of the skin structure.

When a double chin goes in for reducing and a wattle appears, the doctor can snip that away. Hammocks under the eyes are treated. Certain kinds of birthmarks can be removed. Harelip can be corrected by surgery and no scar will remain.

Warts and moles are treated by X-ray or carbon dioxide snow. There is help for the afflicted and that makes the mad world a little bit better.

Women of thirty and forty need a certain amount of exercise; if they don't get it their body hinges may stiffen. One doesn't have to stand among the "ancients and honorables" to have that happen.

Outdoor sports offer help for muscles that need to be strengthened. They're all good — tennis, swimming, golf, skating, badminton, walking, baseball—sure; girls play baseball. Why not? It's good exercise.

For the indoor girl there is a leg swinging movement. Stand erect, with one hand on a table for support. Swing one leg high, wide and handsome, leaning closer to the table with each swing.

BAY OF QUINTE W. I.

The Bay of Quinte W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Jas. Sandercock on Wednesday last. The president, Mrs. R. Ketcheson was in the chair and opened the meeting by the use of the opening ode and Lord's Prayer in unison. Roll call was the exchange of Christmas gifts and business was then transacted.

Mrs. Ketcheson gave some more helpful hints on the meat cooking demonstration held at Stirling which she attended. A donation of $5.00 was received from the council through Reeve Wilson to be used in Red Cross work. It was decided to give this donation to the Hostess House at Trenton Airport.

It being the occasion of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Sandercock's forty-fifth wedding anniversary, congratulations were extended from the branch to them and "When you and I were young Maggie" was heartily sung.

Mrs. Moore, convener of the program, took charge. Mrs. C. Holmes prepared a wonderful paper on "What Christmas Means" and in the absence of Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Moore read the paper. All joined again in the singing of a carol — "Come all ye faithful". A reading by Mrs. Tucker "Willie's Position" followed by another short reading entitled "Little Brae Sheep" were followed by a duet by Mrs. G. Clapp and Mrs. G. Meyers. "Silent Night". Mrs. Moore put on a contest, prize won by Mrs. G. Meyers.

Mrs. Moore passed around her donation which was won by Mrs. T. A. Tucker. Mrs. Ketcheson again took charge of the meeting, when she moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Moore for her splendid program, also a vote of thanks was given Mrs. Sandercock for so kindly opening her home for the Christmas party.

The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem. Mrs. Sandercock and her committee served a sumptuous lunch.

Detroit Red Wings Keep Pace With Flying Toronto Leafs By Beating Rangers Overtime

Team Built by Jack Adams Firmly Established in Second Place

BUSY WEEKEND

Leafs Play at Home With Chicago and Make Trip to Chicago on Sunday

By JACK MITCHELL

This being the season for guesswork shopping, the trend may be carried fittingly to the National Hockey League where the pressing problem is to find the team, if any, with the best chance of catching the flying Toronto Maple Leafs. The logical answer on present performance appears to be Detroit Red Wings.

The Red Wings under astute manager Jack Adams have compiled a record in these early weeks of the season almost as impressive as that of the Leafs. With Toronto well in first place, the Wings are just as firmly entrenched in second and any sign of a Toronto crack would find them right on the heels of the leaders.

Have Game in Hand

Detroit gained a 3-2 victory in overtime over the world champion New York Rangers in the only N.H.L. game last night. The result left them a full five points ahead of the second-place Chicago Black Hawks and only four points behind the leading Leafs, although the Leafs and Chicago both hold a game in hand.

The Red Wings have lost only three games in their 14 starts—one more defeat than Toronto has suffered—but have drawn four matches while Toronto has turned in victories in all their other starts. Besides the Maple Leafs who beat them twice, Detroit has lost to only one other team and that, surprisingly enough, was to the lowly Montreal Canadiens.

An Untried Squad

Where the Leafs started the season with an established lot of N.H.L. performers and no rookies to break in to the lineup, however, Detroit was pretty well an untried squad. In front of Rookie goalie Johnny Mowers, the club has set a sensational pace that should grow stronger as the youngsters gain experience.

Manager Adams and playing coach Ebbie Goodfellow could have asked little more from their squad than the way they mastered the Rangers in Detroit. The Red Wings twice held a one goal edge and after New York rallied to tie the score late in the final period, they came through with the victory on an overtime goal by Don Grosso.

The game was a prelude to an N.H.L. week-end of four matches. Tonight, Chicago play the Leafs in Toronto while three games are scheduled for Sunday night, with Montreal Canadiens playing at Detroit, Toronto going to Chicago for a return engagement with the Black Hawks, and New York Americans meeting their intra-city rivals, the Rangers.

QUEBEC RIFLES IN SECOND PLACE

Defeat Cornwall Flyers 4-3 With Lee of Winners Being the Hero

Cornwall, Ont., Dec. 14—(CP)—Quebec Royal Rifles moved back into a second-place tie in the Quebec Senior Hockey League last night, defeating Cornwall 4-3.

Bobby Lee's two-third period goals gave Quebec the victory that tied them with Montreal Royals in the league standings, and left Cornwall in fourth spot four points behind.

The superstitious fans pointed to Friday the 13th, Cornwall's 13th game of the season, and their 13 points in the league standings as having something to do with the loss. Be that as it might, Royal Rifles showed superior polish around the nets, and the ability to come behind for their win.

Lee was the hero of the night for Quebec, scoring his tying goal from a pile-up, and sinking the winner on a small effort half-way through the third period. Harvey McClelland and Tondreau collected the other Rifles goals.

Jack Forsey was Cornwall's top man, scoring two of his team's three goals and assisting Jerry Brown in the other.

Flyers got off to a fast start when Forsey put them in front midway through the first period. Quebec came back with McClelland scoring before the period ended. They went ahead on Tondreau's counter in the second, only to have Cornwall tie it up on a power play.

Flyers opened up a brief lead in the third, but Lee's two tallies pushed Quebec back in front to stay.

The Big Seven

Alex Motter of Detroit Red Wings moved into a tie with three other players for last place in the National Hockey League's Big Seven when he earned one assist as the Red Wings defeated New York Rangers, 3-2, in the only game last night. It was the only change among the leading point-gatherers, with the second-place Syd Howe of the Wings failing to gain on the first-place Bill Cowley, Boston Bruins, when he was held scoreless.

CLOSE HARMONY

Tom Harmon, RIGHT, Michigan's all-American halfback, makes his professional debut on Eddie Cantor's program by harmonizing with Cantor in one of Michigan's songs. Harmon, who has been a star pupil in Michigan's radio school, demonstrated his talents as announcer and commentator, which cover his post college ambitions in radio. The fee Harmon receives from Cantor may be construed as ending his amateur status, eliminating any basketball or baseball he might have played before he is graduated next spring.

STEVE BELLOISE GIVEN A LESSON BY KEN OVERLIN

Middleweight Champion Had No Difficulty in Beating Bronx Bomber

A DULL FIGHT

Arthur Donovan, Referee, Votes for Belloise at End of Bout

(By Gayle Talbot)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Dec. 14—(AP)—Young Stevie Belloise now has had his second 45-minute boxing lesson from Middleweight Champ Ken Overlin, and the boy from the Bronx is not learning the finer points quite as readily as his admirers had hoped.

In fact, Overlin bounced him around in the Garden last night a good deal more easily than in their first session six weeks ago. Belloise not only didn't knock the champ down this time, but he managed to hit him only in the odd rounds Overlin was suffering with a cold and was forced to pace himself carefully, but even fighting in spurts he was able to roll up a tremendous margin over the lad with the Ethal punch. Belloise was suffering only from a frustration complex that came from throwing 438 rights at Overlin's chin and learning too late that Ken had moved.

The only thing approaching excitement was created in the press section some minutes after the action ceased when it was learned that Referee Arthur Donovan has voted for Belloise. It was decided that Arthur must have been preoccupied in earnest, for both judges gave it to Overlin—one of them conceding Belloise only four rounds—and the average of the experts was about 4 1-2 heats for the home town boy.

It was a little difficult to score at that, as the going was dreadfully dull most of the way and the crowd of 16,300 was booing to keep itself amused. One immortal said he called the first eight rounds even and then quit.

New York Yankees Voted The Year's Big Disappointment

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)— The problem for today goes as follows: Given an odds-on favorite which finishes third, and what have you got? The answer is that you have the No. 1 disappointment of the year.

At least that is the answer supplied by United States sports editors, who voted this doubtful honor in The Associated Press poll to New York Yankees for finishing the American League race back of Detroit and Cleveland.

While they were about it, the editors decided to make it good and decisive. So 40 out of 72 put the Yanks right up on top an most of those 40 didn't even bother to name a second or third choice. All together, the McCarthymen got 125 points.

The runner-up position fell to Notre Dame's football team. The Irish got 36 points for their slump from mid-season mention as the peer of Rockne's best to hardly any mention at all.

Ohio State, another gridiron "power" that somehow got short-circuited, was shaded only a point by Notre Dame. Cleveland Indians finished fourth, for reasons of personal behavior, while Cornell's football-playing seniors got 12 points for their late-season debacle and Johnny Paychek 11 for his shadow-boxing against Joe Louis.

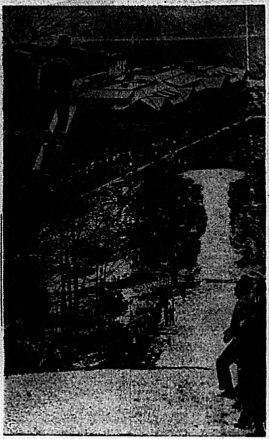
Baseball contributed nine out of 25 assorted disappointments, among the others being Schoolboy Rowe's failure to last three innings in his two world series appearances, Joe Medwick's showing after his sale to Brooklyn, and New York Giants' sixth -place finish in the National League.

TRANSFER FRANCHISE

Schenectady, N.Y., Dec. 14—(AP) — Transfer of the Ottawa Canadian - American League baseball franchise to the Village of Scotia, Schenectady County, was assured last night by V. K. Wagner, business manager of the Ottawa Club.

After a conference with village trustees, Wagner asserted that "All that is necessary now is approval of the league" which, he declared, was "a mere formality."

START OF A 145-FOOT LEAP



The ski season in the eastern American metropolitan district got off to a veritable "flying start" when Toger Tokle, champion ski-jumper, took off on this 145-foot leap at the Bear Mountain ski jump. The leap was within 26 feet of his record and was the longest jump of the day. Tokle represents the Norway Ski club.

TWICE PERFECT

William Mosconi, 27-year-old cue wizard from Philadelphia, Pa., is shown in New York City, after he had run off two perfect scores of 125 without permitting his opponent, defending champ, Andrew Ponzi, also of Philly, to score one in the world's pocket billiard championships. The feat had never before been accomplished in championship matches. Two fingers held in the air and the numbers 1, 2 and 5 on the balls tell the story of his victory. Mosconi, who is being hailed as a second "Greenleaf", is leading in the championship play with Ponzi in second place.

NIAGARA BRIGHTS DEFEAT SAILORS TO TIE HAMILTON

SAINTS WIN

Mundrick Scores Winning Goal in Third Period to Down Marlies 2-1

Supporters of the theory that Friday the 13th is an unlucky combination had better take the storm-shelters today, for Paul Munrick and the St. Catharines Saints squelched the superstition in a rather spectacular fashion last night.

Yesterday was the 13th day of December and St. Catharines met Marlboros in Toronto in Saints' 13th game of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" season. Saints used 13 players and in the 13th minute of the third period (too bad they don't have 13 periods, too) Mundrick scored the goal that beat Marlboros 2-1.

In the other game, Niagara Falls Brights beat Port Colborne Sailors 5-3 to go into a tie for top place with the idle Hamilton Dofascos. Marlboros are third behind the deadlocked leaders, one point back. St. Catharines is fifth, two points behind Marlboros, with Oshawa in between. Only three points separate the first five games, with Port Colborne a distant sixth and London last.

Roy Heximer scored in the first period for St. Catharines but Eddie King tied the score. The second was scoreless and so was the third until Mundrick scored the winning goal. Far from being unlucky yesterday, there was even an element of luck about that deciding counter.

Mundrick took a pass from Red Reynolds during a melee around the Marlboro goalmouth, shot, and the puck ticked defenceman Bobby Copp's stick to be deflected into a corner of the net out of the reach of Goalie Baz Bastien.

Bobby Walton and McQuade scored two goals each for Niagara Falls, with Cooper getting the other McKelvie, Laroche and Concessi scored for Port Colborne.

Byron Nelson Leading Golfer In Miami Open

Miami, Fla., Dec. 14 (AP).—Byron Nelson, whose eloquent golf strokes carried him to the National Professional Golfers Association championship last summer, kept his fingers crossed today—despite a six-under-par 134 that gave him the ostensible 36-hole lead in the $10,000 Miami open.

Nelson trimmed five strokes off par yesterday with a 65, but a cloud hung over his margin.

Still on the course, with a good chance of equalling Nelson's total was Clayton Heafner of Linville, N.C., the blunder belter who hammered out a first round 688 and was four under par on the second round when darkness halted play.

Heafner needed pars on two unfinished holes to tie; a birdie would give him the undisputed lead.

Nelson had another good reason to keep his fingers crossed, for no less than ten golfers still had a chance to overtake him before the tournament's end.

Among them was a little Ben Hogan of White Plains, N.Y., the year's leading money winner, who added 70 yesterday to his first round 67.

Sports Roundup

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Those who were key-holing say Larry MacPhail and Judge Landis' Secretary, Leslie O'Connor, flung the short and ugly word back and forth during that argument over Pitcher Rube Melton in Chicago . . . Doctors have ordered Eddie Meal, manager of Henry Armstrong, to a Hot Springs hospital for a 30-day rest.

"The complete Ski Guide", written by Frank Elkins of the New York Times, is four star reading for followers of the sport.

Walter Stewart, Memphis Commercial-Appeal: "Paul Christman, the chunking fellow from Missouri, doesn't care much for pro football, but says he'll give it a trial—for $10,000 . . . You just wait, Paul. . that offer will be along almost any year now".

Laddie Lucas, former British Walker Cup golfer, is in Canada training for the Royal Air Force. . . . New Jersey fans showed Boxing Commissioner Abe Greene how he rates over there by presenting him with a new car and a diamond ring at his birthday party . . . . With the current hockey season ready to push off with two games in the City Juvenile loop on Tuesday night at the Hume Arena, perhaps it might be the opportune time to review some changes in the hockey playing rules which have been handed down by the C.A.H.A. The parent bodies controlling hockey are anxious there should be as uniform an interpretation of the playing rules in the future as possible by both the officials and the players. With this thought in mind here are a few suggestions as handed down by the C.A.H.A. relative to the playing rules and penalties thereof:

In the future the timekeeper's whistle or bell starts and stops all play—not the referee's. However, in case of a dispute the referee's decision shall be final and also the referee has the power to over-rule the decision of a goal umpire. The penalty for throwing a stick in the defensive zone is to be rigidly enforced this season. Any defending player who deliberately throws his stick within the defending zone, goalkeeper included, the penalty is an award of a goal to the attacking team. Throwing a stick in other zones shall incur a major penalty.

Other playing rules stressed by the C.A.H.A. are:

Holding puck by goal-keeper.—A goal-keeper is offending by holding the puck with his hands or arms for more than three seconds or throwing the puck forward towards his opponents' goal, or deliberately dropping the puck into his pads or throwing the puck or batting it with his stick into spectators' seats and the penalty shall be a penalty shot.

Player with broken stick out of game. — A player whose stick is broken may not participate in the game until he has obtained another under pain of a minor penalty.

Picking up stick thrown from any part of rink. — A player whose stick is broken must obtain another but may not receive a stick thrown on the ice from any part of the rink under pain of a misconduct penalty. Sticks may be obtained from any part of the rink.

Molesting officials—Any player who touches or holds a referee or any minor official with his hand or his stick or intentionally trips or body-checks any of such officials shall automatically receive a ten-minute penalty for misconduct for the first offence and a match-misconduct penalty for a second offence in the same game. The use of a substitute for the player so suspended shall be permitted. The offender shall also be reported to the branch executive for further action.

Penalties to managers and coaches.—Any manager or coach who holds or strikes an official shall be automatically suspended from the game and reported to the branch executive for further action.

Throwing broken stick among spectators.—A misconduct penalty shall be imposed on any player who throws any part of a broken stick among the spectators at a match.

Penalty for gross misconduct.—The referee may order to the dressing room for the remainder of the game any player or manager guilty of gross misconduct. If a player so dismissed is taking part in the game a substitute shall be permitted.

Players must stay on bench.—During the progress of a match, all players taking part must remain on the players' bench when not actually on the ice or serving penalties in the penalty box. Any player who, while at the players' bench, gets on the ice, throws any article on the ice or molests or interferes with opposing players or the officials, shall receive a match misconduct penalty and the incident shall be reported to the president for further action.

Using over-size stick.—A match misconduct penalty shall be given to any player except a goal-keeper, using an over-size stick. A penalty shot shall be awarded against a goal-keeper using an over-size stick.

Do you remember when United States Open Champion, Byron Nelson, and Canadian shot-master, Stanley Horne of Montreal, scored two-under-par 68's at Miami a year ago today to share in the first round lead in the $10,000 Miami open golf tournament?

We paid a little social call to Group Captain T. A. Lawrence, commanding officer at the R.C.A.F. Thursday afternoon for the purpose of reminiscing. Group Captain Lawrence was the manager of the Flyers back in 1937 when they won the Intermediate "A" championship of the O.H.A. and brought to Belleville the first Allan Cup play-off ever played in these parts. Mr. Lawrence informs us that Eric McNeely, who was with the 1937 Flyers, is second in the scoring in the Ottawa Senior loop while elongated Johnnie Lalonde is having his best season since leaving the local ice lanes. Both are with the R.C.A.F. stationed at Ottawa. Queried regarding the possibilities of the Airmen in the current puck campaign, Group Captain Lawrence stated he had not had an opportunity to ascertain what hockey material was available at the Airport as yet. "We have over 2,500 men stationed here and it is rather difficult to ascertain who they all might be," explained Mr. Lawrence, as he warned us that studies came first in the Air Force under the present conditions. However, we feel inclined to imagine Group Captain Lawrence will ice another strong sextette.

Dave Tobe, skipper of the Deacon "Sportwear" trundlers, says he wishes his bowling team had to play the Belleville Golf more frequently. Actually the Deacons have taken three and four points respectively from the "dubs and duffers of the fairways" in their last two meetings and took over the Major League leadership at the Recreation Alleys the other night. "It's a darned queer game, this bowling business," lamented Evan Barlow, of the Belleville Golf quintette. "No matter what team we play they always bowl their best against us and invariably the lower bracket teams are over their heads to force us to the limit. There just ain't no justice on the alleys," added Evan as he shook his head after a tough loss Thursday. (They'll do it every time, Evan me lad.)

Now that part of the Collegiate campus has been cleared of snow there is a movement on foot to flood the barren ground and make an open-air skating rink. The matter was brought before the School Management Committee of the Board of Education for consideration last night, we were tipped off this a.m.

SPORT SLANTS — Understand when the Reliance Aircraft Seniors commence practicing for the O.H.A. campaign several new faces will be seen in the gold and scarlet uniforms. . . . It might be a good idea if Skipper St. Louis devoted all of his squad's attention to O.H.A. drills and abandon the Van Horne Memorial idea altogether, if for no other reason than keeping his unit intact, as newcomers aren't eligible in the Van Horne series. There is a lot of newspaper controversy over the east-west Dominion football charity games, which wasn't played, even Prexy Bannerman of Calgary resigned.

Flying Officers Hand Repair Depot A 26-19 Lacing

Trenton, Dec. 14 (Special)—Interunit basketball is holding the sport spotlight on the R.C.A.F. Station just east of here, and practically every night sees some of the teams on the floor.

It was officially announced yesterday by Flying Officer Brian Casey, officer in charge of basketball, that an application has been made for entry in the Ontario Basketball Association Intermediate League. The Air Force intends to floor a strong team this season and it is expected that the team will enter the league with Belleville, Kingston and Queen's.

The Central Flying School Officers handed the six A.R.D. Blues their first defeat last night by the score of 26 to 19, in a closely contested match. It was only in the final minute of the game that the issue was finally decided when F. L. Gutray and F. O. Smith teamed to collect four quick baskets.

C.F.S. took an early lead from their opponents in the first half through the efforts of F.O. Casey and F. O. Smith and led the Blues 13 to 9 at the end of the half. In the second half the Blues started on a comeback out were unable to keep up the pace. The teams:

"Three Sons"

How a man of power rests the whole foundation of life upon his faith and hope in his children, only to see his monument totter pitifully as each fail him, is deftly woven into a poignant new screen production "Three Sons" which opens next at the McCarthy Theatre.

Opening in the year 1871 directly after Chicago was destroyed by fire the absorbing story introduces Edward Ellis of "A man to Remember" fame, in a role of a merchant who with his loyal wife, treks to the demolished city to lay the foundation for their own little empire. Determined to errect a great mercantile dynasty that will grow with the future metropolis, they start out in a humble way and gradually see their dreams realized over a period of years.

Three sons and a daughter arrive and reach maturity..and it is these children for whom the father builds his gigantic department store, determined they shall reap the fruits of his toil, and sacrifce. But the same money that is supposed to underwrite the children's happiness paves the way to their downfall. One by one they squander their heritage.

In addition to Edward Ellis, the cast includes William Gargan, Kent Taylor, J. Edward Bromberg, Katharine Alexander, Virginia Vale and Robert Stanton.

"Three Sons" is a production recommended to every Son and Daughter and Parent, as excellent screen entertainment.

"Panama Lady"

A second outstanding feature "Panama Lady" featuring Lucille Ball, Allan Lane, Steffi Duna and Evelyn Brent, plus latest Fox News events will also be presented at the McCarthy Theatre next week in addition to "Three Sons."

"The Lone Wolf Keeps a Date"

Warren William and Frances Robinson in the newest adventure hit in the popular Lone Wolf series, "The Lone Wolf Keeps a Date" plus a new John Wayne western entitled "Somewhere in Sonora" and the closing chapter of "Terry and The Pirates" are now showing at the McCarthy.

Sunday Evening Concert

On Sunday evening the second band concert of the season by the Belleville Municipal Band. will be presented at the McCarthy. Plan to come and bring a friend.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Son of The Navy"

James Dunn, "America's boy friend," won that title when he and Sally Eilers were starred in a series of pictures depicting the loves, laughs and tears of Mr. Average American and his girl.

"Bad Girl" started this series, which included such films as "Jimmy and Sally," "Sob Sister," "Sailor's Luck," "Dance Team" and "Hold me Tight."

Dunn, who is appearing in 'Son's of the Navy" coming to the Capitol next, was born in New York where he attended public schools. From school he went right on the stage, acted in stock, and landed on Broadway in "Sweet Adeline."

After this first Broadway show, Jimmy went right into the movies, and his first picture, "Bad Girl," sky-rocketed him to the top.

Dunn, who is independently wealthy because his mother made him save his money when he was earning $5000 a week, makes only two or three pictures a year now, and is devoting most of his time to aviation. He is a stockholder in the Harrow Aviation Corporation in Pasadena. They make small streamlined planes for commercial use and for basic and primary training in the army.

In "Son of the Navy" Jimmy is seen again in the kind of role that made him famous. He is a wise-cracking, cheerful, straight-forward sailor man who gets into trouble through no fault of his own.

He is seen as Mike Malone, chief petty officer in the navy, whose life suddenly becomes very complicated when a runaway orphan "adopts" him for a father, and "adopts" for a mother the one girl Mike hates.

Jean Parker plays the girl in this sparkling comedy of navy life, and others outstanding in the cast include William Royle as Mike's commanding officer; Dave O'Brien and Gene Morgan as his shipmates; Sarah Padden as a nosey landlady; and little Martin Spellman as the runaway who causes all the commotion.

The added attraction.

"The Longest Night"

Brings to the screen an all star cast including Robert Young, Florence Rice, Ted Healy, Julie Haydon and Catharine Doucet. A mystery comedy that will thrill you and keep you in laughter and suspense throughout.

Outstanding attractions to be seen the remainder of December at this theatre are "No time for comedy," featuring Rosalind Russell and James Stewart; "Melody Ranch", Gene Autry's greatest picture; "Christmas in July" featuring Dick Powell, Ellen Drew and Raymond Walburn; "Dancing on a Dime", starring Robert Paige, Arace MacDonald and Lillian Cornell.

AT THE BELLE

"DOWN ARGENTINE WAY"

The biggest musical extravaganza since "Alexander's Ragtime Band" is now at the Belle Theatre, and in every respect this latest hit from 20th Century-Fox is even better. For "Down Argentine Way" has everything a musical should have—and more, for good measure. Songs—there are eight of them, all with a South American flavor that is definitely appealing. Stars—who could ask for more than a roster headed by Don Ameche, in a new and lively role; Betty Grable, fresh from her triumphant Broadway appearance and the sensational Brazilian star, Carmen Miranda, in her first appearance on the American screen. Produced in Technicolor with actual background shots from that South American dreamland, Buenos Aires, the picture blends Rhumbas, Congas, romance, glamour and laughter into a grand entertainment.

Keyed to the usual, "Down Argentine Way" is spectacularly unique. The romance between Don Ameche and Betty Grable covers 6,000 miles from the staid atmosphere of Westchester to the alluring Argentine. The story concerns the scion of a wealthy South American family who is sojourning in America, for the purpose of selling some of his father's choice horses. But horses become irrelevant when Don Ameche meets beautiful Betty Grable. Despite the fact that enmity exists between Betty's family and his, they fall in love and when Don returns to Buenos Aires, Betty hops a plane and follows him.

Then things begin to happen with startling rapidity. It would spoil your enjoyment to divulge the unusual climax, but suffice it to say that it is in keeping with the rest of the superb film.

The grand featured cast includes Charlotte Greenwood, J. Carrol Naish, Henry Stephenson, Katharine Aldridge, Leonid Kinskey and Chris-Pin Martin.

Mack Gordon and Harry Warren created four catchy tunes for the picture: "Two Dreams Met", "Down Argentine Way", "Nenita" and "Sing to Your Senorita", while Carmen Miranda renders, as only she can, "Bambu", "Mamae Eu Quero', "Tiuradas Em Madrid" and "South American Way"—the numbers she sang in "Streets of Paris."

Irving Cummings turned in a masterpiece of direction, working from a standout screen play by Darrell Ware and Karl Tunberg.

Excellent Shorts

"Midget Motor Mania" is the title of a splendid screen oddity to be presented on the same program with a funny Walt Disney Technicolor cartoon comedy, "Mr. Mouse Takes a Trip" and the popular Belle Newsreel with its latest World News Events.

LOST SUNRISE

by

KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALMENT 9

There was something in the firm touch of Dick's warm, hard hand there in the movies that stayed with Gwen all the way home in the train, and kept her heart beating with a new sensation. She wondered if Dick would write her; she knew he would. A great pity for him possessed her. It had all been so different from his plans; it had all been so drab and ordinary! Gwen thought she would ask him to come to Kenthill in a week or two for a real week end, and show him what a real picnic would be like.

Home again, she concealed everything except what sounded well, in recounting her adventures, and back in the office on Monday she made as good a report as she could to Madge Parsons.

"Seen this man Bellamy?" asked Madge, informative in her turn.

"What man Bellamy?"

"Dark, middle-aged, nervous kind of feller. He was in here late Saturday to see you. I think he married a girl from Falls Hill, who got killed."

"What does he want to see me about?"

"Well, it seems they're going to try to squeeze old Miller out of the primaries next year—whatever that means—and run Otto Linherr for Congress."

"Doctor Linherr getting into politics?"

"Seems so. And they want you to run this end."

"Who does?"

"This man—I have his card here somewhere; he left it for you. Bellamy. Something Bellamy. He's going to run Linherr's campaign for him."

"But elections aren't until next year!"

"I didn't even know that. But anyway, they're getting things started. They're going to have meetings and barbecues and I don't know what. They've got headquarters already in Sacramento."

"They'll never bump Miller," Gwen said slowly. "He's got a big machine behind him."

"That's what this man said. That's why they're starting early. Here's the card. N. Vandyke Bellamy — some name! He's cooking up the whole thing. He's a terror; you can see that. Snappy. He makes you feel as if you were in the witness stand."

"What about my regular work here, Madge?"

"Oh, that's all right. The old man" Madge said, in customary reference to her employer, "is in it up to his neck. He's put up a thousand for a starter. He's always hated Miller."

Link was the one that showed up Miller, you know. And they were saying Link might run against him. But he'd be the other party, of course. Linherr and Miller are on the same side. It's a primary fight, for them."

"I don't know what you're talking about," Madge stated, "but I know the old man picked you because you worked on that Frank Bell case, and he said you understood something about it. I can't do it; Archie'd cut my throat if I was away evenings."

"Would I have to go places?" Gwen demanded, stirred to sudden interest.

"Oh well, to all the little places round, making speeches and working up meetings, all that. You know, Willows and Butte and Colusa — places like that. The women get up dinners and decorate the tables, and the men talk."

"Fun!" Gwen ejaculated, her eyes dancing. "He may not get it. Miller's got a regular machine," she added, suddenly doubtful.

Gwen took the card and studied it thoughtfully. "My new boss, N. Vandyke Bellamy," she said. "He's an attorney at law. Offices National Building, Sacramento. Vandyke Bellamy, eh? It's a hard name to remember."

She could not know, in this idly interested, commonplace hour here in the too familiar, dull office in the heart of the too familiar quiet town, what this name was to come to mean to her, and how well she was to remember it and this day when first she heard it.

Three weeks later Gwen and Dick tried it again, the girl going to the city with a sort of mental chorus of "You're a fool and this is very silly" keeping time in her mind with the rattling of the train. She carried with her a jar of her mother's ginger-and-apricot preserve and a damp shoebox filled with glowing zinnias; bronze, cream color, orange, deep maroon. Surprisingly, the flowers stirred Dick's mother to actual enthusiasm.

Dick was free this time. He had borrowed Jordan's car, and he and Gwen drove on Sunday down the shining and sparkling coast, found a heathery shoulder of hillside just above the rippling blue Pacific, and shared fried chicken and cookies and a bottle of milk in the most complete harmony and pleasure they had ever known in each other's company.

Afterward they scrambled down among the rocks, his big hard hand always ready to help her on the steeper bit of the rough path. Flushed and laughing, with her soft dark mop rumpled, Gwen was at her prettiest; whether he looked his best or not she did not know, for Dick was Dick now, and his looks were no longer a matter of importance. His deep voice, his sudden little spurts of gruff laughter, the glow in his pale blue eyes when he talked of his work were all part of her world, and mere outside details were no longer of consequence.

"I can't look at you," Dick said after a silence "without wanting you. The shape of your hand lying on that rock, and your ankles crossed in the sun, and the sound of you laughing, and the way your hair grows around your forehead—"

He stopped. Gwen was silent for lack of breath.

"Don't think I don't see you," Dick finished quietly, and for a little space neither spoke.

But in Gwen's heart joy stood at full blood. This dark man in the old brown tweed suit was her world now. This companionship, so easy, so quiet, so infinitely satisfying, was like none other that she had ever known. The course of true love was going to run smooth for her and Dick. What could interrupt it now?

But a cloud had come over the sun, and a strange chilly little breeze ruffled her hair.

"Dick—" she said in a frightened tone, and stopped.

"What is it?" he asked quickly, with a half glance.

"Nothing. Premonition," she said.

"Premonition of what? He was driving carefully in the heavy Sunday traffic. His voice sounded amused.

"Nothing," she said again.

Time was singing and dancing for Gwen now as she had never dreamed it could sing and dance; life was too full of sweet. Every dawn was a burst of glory; every day swam in a new world of iridescence and joy. Trifles—but there were no trifles now!—loomed significant.

She could not brush her black silky mop now without thinking that Dick someday would love this tumbled hair, would perhaps put his lips against it and grip her shoulders with his big arm. And thinking this, her brush would stop, her very breath would stop, and she would stand dreaming, marveling at the eternal miracle of a man's love for his woman and a woman's love for her man.

"Not marry for four or five years!" Gwen would say half aloud, with a scornful laugh. Why, she was a moneyearner; she could manage. Once the great words were said between them she could make short work of this ridiculous talk of prudence and calculation and delay!

His mother knew that, if Dick didn't. Gwen had begun to like Dick's quiet, patient mother; had begun to try to win her affection. Gwen and Dick, the girl reflected, might talk about a year's friendship and a time of trial, but the older woman wasn't fooled. She knew these two were being drawn to each other with every hour and every minute that passed. Mrs. Latimer had said once, rather pointedly, that someday she could move into the hospital; there was a room for her there if she wanted it. But she had always felt she wanted to make a home for Richard and of course it was nice to have her own things about, and his father's picture in the parlor.

This picture, of a hard-looking man with a mustache and a turndown collar, had provided one of Gwen's first shocks and disillusionments upon meeting Dick's mother and seeing his home. It stood crosswise in a corner of the already crowded little parlor, and was embellished with a purple ribbon and a little stack of wheat, half of which had been cut down by a miniature scythe.

But when she found that Dick regarded this pious memorial exactly as she did, and when she saw that his consideration for his mother and loyalty to her included silence on this point as on a hundred others, the dreadful picture took on a new significance and became a monument to the son's character as well as to the memory of the father. Whatever Dick did was not merely right, it was infused with a sort of mobility and inspiration and bigness to Gwen; the mere sight of his square handwriting on cheap hospital stationery was enough to set her senses on fire.

He wrote her two or three times a week, enclosed newspaper and magazine clippings in every letter, sent her occasional presents that showed her that he was thinking of her, shared with her, perhaps half consciously, she suspected, every mood of his life.

Autumn turned slowly toward winter. Sheila and Link were coming down on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving, to stay until Sunday, and Sheila had written her that they had some news of the Wallbestos patent at last. On the following Saturday Gwen was to go to the city for her fifth stay with the Latimers, and she and Dick were going to the opera. To the opera — grand opera!

When Sheila and Link came, it was a bleak cold afternoon, and both the Bakers looked chilled and weary from their trip. Link was immediately relegated to the warm blankets of the spare room to have a good sleep before dinner, and Sheila had a cup of hot tea in the kitchen, and afterward went to Gwen's room for a gossip.

"Link didn't tell you, but we had an accident at the mine yesterday, and he drove all night. Took the man to Sacramento and left him at the hospital and then came back for me. "He's simply dead. But he'll get a good rest now. As for me," Sheila said proudly, "I've a reason."

"What reason?" Gwen demanded. And then, with an incredulous laugh, "Sheila Washburton! Oh, Sheila! I can't believe it!"

"It's true. Isn't it fun, Gwen?"

"Fun! Oh, darling, I'm so happy for you! And do you feel all right?"

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 14 —(CP)— While the Gold shares moved in sizable volume today on the Toronto Exchange, other groups were almost dormant. Prices were firm to strong throughout the list. Turnover in the first hour totalled 57,000 shares.

Gold shares advancing on good volume included Kerr-Addison, Upper Canada, Coniaurum and Siscoe. Coniaurum and Pioneer gained 10 cents. The market was a little higher on light volume for Wright-Hargreaves, East Malartic, Premier, Moneta and Malartic Gold Fields.

In dull action the Base Metals posted few changes. Sherritt gained 2 cents to 87 and Jack Waite was off a cent to 27. Senior issues were unchanged.

Burlington Steel advanced lightly and lower prices were boarded by Standard Paving Pfd. and Mercury Mills.

One-Cent Increase Shown in Butter

Toronto — Another one-cent increase was registered by butter on Friday on the Toronto open produce market. Eggs continued to decline in price, while dressed poultry was firm and cheese unchanged.

Butter offerings were very light. Early sales of first-grade Ontario creamery solids were made at 35c. At the close of trading the general price had moved up to 35 1-4c, with the odd sale reported at a slightly higher level.

Local demand for eggs remained only fair. Receipts had been gradually increasing all week, and the market closed on a weak note. Trading was quiet, buyers being satisfied to take on only enough new stock to meet day-to-day needs. As a result, top-grades showed a drop of about five cents for the week. A-large eggs closed yesterday at 29c to 30c in the graded section and at 35c to retailers.

The dressed poultry market was firm, receipts being about the same in volume as last week. A fairly good local and out-of-town demand caused an increase of 1-2c per pound on chicken.

BORDEAUX

Glow of Strong Fires Seen.

After the bombs were dropped, the "glow of strong fires penetrated and lit up the clouds," the news service added.

At Kiel, docks and shipyards were reported to have been raided and the news service said "Our pilots made certain that heavy bombs fell in the target area."

London meanwhile had a brief night alert, which ended before midnight. During the early morning hours a single Nazi raider glided in from the sea to drop a bomb on a northeast coast town. The bomb split a house in half but caused no casualties and gunfire drove the plane away.

The calm night followed a day in which, an official statement said, not a single bomb exploded in England, with the exception of a delayed action bomb which burst in London and killed several persons

Short Destructive Raid

The R.A.F. attack on the Bordeaux U-boat base was described as "a short destructive raid with heavy bombs" which started two fires and caused explosions.

"The first pilot to go in got a hit on the big quayside building," the Ministry said. "His observers saw a succession of brilliant blue flashes along the dock wall lasting for 15 seconds.

"The later stages of the raid were even more spectacular. A great explosion near the gates of the dock was followed by a dozen others along the edge of the basin.

"When the coastal command pilot turned for home the submarine base was lit up by two fires and overhung by swirling clouds of smoke."

Excited youngsters milled around the jovial gent as he dispensed toys and candy to them, while in the offing smiling parents kept a watchful eye on their offspring.

Turkeys, Geese More Plentiful On City Market

30 to 33c lb. Asked for Turkeys and 25c for Geese — Eggs Lower

BUTTER HIGHER

Butter took on a firmer trend with eggs again falling off three cents in price from last week's quotations as the Saturday market was featured with the appearance of Christmas turkeys and geese in greater quantities. The market generally took on a more Christmas-like appearance with numerous vendors offering Christmas trees as well as with other produce associated with the Yuletide season.

Grade "A" large eggs were quoted at 35c per dozen, the lowest quotation in many weeks with purchasers showing increased tendency to buy at this figure. Other grades were offered at 32c and 30c per dozen. Butter prices were stronger with this commodity being offered at straight 35c a pound

A rather liberal offering of turkeys led the fowl display with farmers asking 30c to 33c per pound. Prices ranged from $2.25 up to $4.50 each. Geese were more plentiful than on any market this season with 25c per pound being the determining figure asked by vendors. Prices asked ranged upward from $2.25 each Prices for chicken remained at the 25c level for milk-fed birds and 27c for Capons with prices ranging downward from $1.65 to $1.00 each. Broilers ranged from 65c to $1.00 per pair.

Vegetables Steady

Prices remained steady on the vegetable market with beets, carrots, turnips and parsnips selling at 30c per peck. Onions were 40c per peck, cabbage 5c each and sauerkraut 10c per quart. Potatoes remained steady at $1 per bag.

Spy apples and MacIntosh sold at $1.75 per hamper, Snows at $1.35, Talman Sweets at $1.50 and cooking varieties at $1 per bushel.

Pork, by the quarter, sold at 12c per pound for fronts and 14c for hinds. Pickled pork sold at 18c for pieces and 20c sliced. Headcheese was 15c and sausage 20c per pound.

A few vendors offered young porkers for sale at prices ranging from $3 to $3.50. Mixed wood sold at $7.50 per cord and hardwood at $10 per cord. Christmas trees ranged from 25c to 75c each.

Tons of Fowl Sell Readily

Napanee, Dec. 14 —(Special)— About fifty tons of turkeys and chickens were estimated to have been sold at the poultry fair market here yesterday to mark one of the best single days in recent years. Buyers paid 22 and 23 cents for turkeys, and chickens were 16 to 20 cents. Odd geese and ducks were 20 cents. Individuals selecting their turkeys paid 25 cents to 28 cents for choice 10 to 12 pound hen birds.

BRITAIN'S DESERT

Doing Very Well

comparable to the 30,000 or more troops reported captured.

The tally of prisoners mounted hourly, making accurate count still impossible. The number captured was described as so great that the British were confronted with a major problem in feeding them and transporting them back into Egypt.

British Navy Assisting.

Along with its continuing job of smashing at Italians fleeing along the coastal road past Bardia and pounding Fascist reserve and supply bases important to any counter thrust, the British navy helped in the transport of the prisoners.

British bombers kept at their work behind the Italian lines, and a correspondent for Reuters News Agency quoted returning pilots as saying that large fires were burning in Salum and long columns of trucks were hurrying back through Libya on the road from Bardia to Tobruk. The correspondent reported the Italian tenth army headquarters also was being moved hastily back from Bardia, only a few miles from the Egyptian frontier.

May Take "Breather".

Military observers believed British forces would be forced to pause for a "breather" after reaching the Egyptian-Libyan border to allow Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell time to strengthen his stretched supply lines.

The belief was expressed that the British would not attempt a full force thrust west of the frontier until reserves were organized, machines repaired and adequate preparation made to safeguard advanced positions.

Many of the Italian prisoners were described as hopeful that the turn of the tide of fighting in North Africa might mean an end of the war soon.

Gen. Wavell, it was disclosed, sent his troops to the attack with the statement:

"In everything but numbers we are superior to the enemy. A signal and crushing defeat of the Italian forces may shorten the war by very many months."

Winnipeg Football Club President Expresses View

Winnipeg, Dec. 14. — (CP) — Wallace E. Brown, president of the Winnipeg Rugby Club, said in a statement last night the Winnipeg Executive is "at a loss to explain" the announcement by John T. Thompson, president of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, that the W.I.F.U. is withdrawing from the Canadian Rugby Union.

Thompson announced in Calgary yesterday that the withdrawal is in protest against the C.R.U.'s "deliberate scuttling" of a proposed east-west game for war charities, abandoned when the C.R.U. refused its approval. Thompson reported all four W.I.F.U. Clubs—Calgary, Regina, Edmonton and Winnipeg—had voted to withdraw affiliation with the C.R.U.

Brown's statement, taking issue with Thompson, follows:

"At a recent meeting the executive of the Winnipeg Rugby Football Club voted unanimously to defer consideration of the withdrawal of the W.I.F.U. from the parent body until the annual meeting of the Western Union which takes place in mid-January.

It is our understanding that the Regina Football Club also voted to defer the matter until that time but that their vote was not in the hands of the W.I.F.U. secretary at the time the decision was made. With Edmonton non-operative two clubs constitute a majority and we are accordingly at a loss to explain President John Thompson's action".

Brown did not clarify his statement that Edmonton is "non-operative". Edmonton dropped out of active participation in the Western Union this year but earlier reports yesterday said Edmonton still held a franchise and was entitled to vote.

Leads Patrol Force

Recognizing the strength of air power for defence, the U. S. navy department has announced appointment of Rear-Admiral Ernest J. King, veteran in the navy's aviation high command, to lead the fleet's patrol force, relieving Rear-Admiral Hayne Ellis. Rear-Admiral King is shown here. His new command embraces the neutrality zone and helps link together the new bases in the Atlantic.

ITALIANS CRACK

(The Greeks apparently were striving to make quick work of drives on Elbasani and Berat in fulfillment of their battle cry: "Tirana by Christmas," the Bitolj dispatch said.)

The Greeks disclosed stiffened resistance around Pogradetz, which is about 70 miles southeast of the Albanian Capital at Tirana, but said the Italian defenders were beginning to give way under steady pressure.

May be Turning Point

In the south the stiffest fighting was reported around Tepeleni and Klisura pass and on the coastal road toward Chimara, as the Greeks pressed toward the vital port of Valona. Italian captives were quoted by Greeks as saying that there was doubt Italy could continue the fight if Klisura fell.

(British military circles said yesterday it was "merely a matter of time" before both Klisura and Tepeleni were taken.)

Th. Greek army headquarters communique today said only that "lively action by our troops at various points on the front" had "favorable results."

A government spokesman said the total number of Italian prisoners taken thus far—not including the most recent captures—was 250 officers and 7,000 men. Also taken, he said, were 130 guns, 55 anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns, a large number of tanks, thousands of automatic weapons, 250 vehicles, more than 1,500 bicycles and motorcycles, a large number of horses and mules and quantities of munitions.

(The Italians said only 731 men were "missing" in November on all Albanian fronts.

SURVIVORS

After the torpedo struck Graham rushed to the bridge to consult the captain on the lifeboat situation. "I told the captain I was going to see about the lifeboat. He said 'All right, Mr. Graham, do the best you can'. That was the last I saw of him".

When the men were in the boat the Italian sub came alongside and the seamen were hailed by the commander: "I've got one of your youngsters here", he said. It was Joe Hazel of Martin's Point, N.S.

Hanging Onto Sub

"He was hanging on for all he was worth to the rail of the submarine," Graham said. "He didn't want to leave but they picked him up and tossed him towards the boat. We caught him and pulled him in."

The men were adrift for 60 hours when they sighted a sail—another lifeboat. "It turned out she was carrying ten of the crew of an Australian meat ship that had been sunk."

They tied their boat to the stern of the Australian which was carrying a sail and Graham went aboard the other lifeboat as navigating officer. But little headway was made with a small sail doing double duty for two overloaded boats.

Food was pooled — the St. Malo men had biscuits, the Australians beef—while water was rationed out at three drinks a day.

The tug that picked them up 150 miles off the Irish coast was loaded down with survivors of other sinkings off the United Kingdom, according to Graham.

Two of the St. Malo survivors joined the free French forces of General Charles de Gaulle when they were taken to a haven by the tug.

PRESIDENT SEES

far off the coast with no island between Bermuda and Puerto Rico, he said, the next best thing was the Bahamas, which would serve also as a stepping stone for the maintenance of the southern end of the outer defence line in the windward and leeward islands.

The President said there would be no such thing as an American Gibraltar and that the United States must have many bases because a naval war in Caribbean waters would be more mobile than in a strait such as Gibraltar.

Sums Up Findings

He summed up his findings on the 11-day tour of the Island sites after conferring for nearly three hours with the Duke of Windsor, who flew from Miami in a United States navy plane, on the subject of the outposts protecting the Panama Canal and the mainland of the three Americas.

The Duke, Governor-General of the Bahamas, talked with Mr. Roosevelt aboard this cruiser while her destroyer escorts, the Mayrant and the Trippe, stood by off the British island of Eleuthera in the Bahamas group.

Following the discussion, the Duke told newsmen that the people of the Bahamas looked with great favor on establishment of the bases and said, "We are ready to do what the President wants when he gives the word."

THREE VESSELS

next of kin have been informed and no further details were given.

(Two Italian submarines, reported to have taken refuge at Tangier to repair damage, were said to have left the port of the international zone across the Strait tonight, it was reported by the British United Press from Gibraltar.)

The Admiralty in another announcement said that the British drifter Evening Primrose destroyed an enemy warplane which attacked her Thursday in the North Sea. The Air Ministry, in turn, said that while on patrol off the Netherlands coast Thursday night, a Coastal Command aircraft attacked an enemy supply ship and a direct hit was obtained.

Mackay Radio reported that the British freighter Orari, 7,350-tons, wirelessed a single word, "torpedoed" and her position Friday. She said she was about 750 miles off the French coast. The motorship had been trading between Canada, Britain and Australia.

A despatch from Key West, Florida, quoted a United States naval officer as saying that shots fired broadside into the German tanker Rheim, one of several Nazi merchantmen which tried to run the blockade from Mexico, sank the tanker after she burned for more than fifteen hours.

He claimed the shots were fired by the cruiser Cardoc. This was the first report that the Rheim sank. Her capture, disclosed in Washington, was confirmed by the Admiralty in London Thursday. The Admiralty said the crew of the Netherlands warship Van Kingsbergen extinguished the fire on the Rheim and averted its sinking.

A Reuters despatch from Stockholm Friday night said the Swedish steamship Daphne, 1,514 tons, was torpedoed off the Spanish Atlantic coast and eighteen of the crew of nineteen were lost. Lloyd's register lists two Daphnes, one Finnish and one French, but no Swedish vessel of that name.

British naval sources said Friday Britain's warfare against Nazi U-boats "is taking a very good toll."

Failed to Return

The other two missing planes failed to return from yesterday's searching operations. The crews of these machines are LAC. T. S. Bates of Guelph, Ont., Flt.Lt. P. Campbell, whose next-of-kin lives in East Preston, Sussex, Eng.; Sgt. L. Francis of Glamorgan, Wales, and LAC. M.L.O. Warner of Hampstead, London, Eng.

The tip that led to discovery of the wrecked plane came from a farmer living near Everett, southwest of the air station. The farmer, Cecil Gallacher, after hearing a broadcast asking for any information on planes seen in trouble in the last couple of days, telephoned R.C.A.F. officials last night and said he had seen a machine diving apparently out of control.

Camp Borden, Ont., Dec. 14. —(CP)—Disappearance of three Royal Canadian Air Force training planes and their crews totalling five from this advanced training centre proved a major mystery early today and airmen, assisted by police and civilians, began a widespread search throughout Central and Southern Ontario.

One of the planes disappeared during a routine formation flight Thursday when the formation ran into a snowstorm. The others failed to report back yesterday after they had been engaged in a search for the first plane.

The missing airmen are: LAC. C. P. Hopton of Cabri Sask.; LAC T. S. Bates of Guelph, Ont.; Flt.-Lt. P. Campbell, whose next-of-kin, a sister, resides in East Preston, Sussex, Eng.; Sgt. L. Francis of Glamorgan, Wales; and LAC. M. L. O. Warner of Hampstead, London, Eng.

Hopton was pilot of the plane which disappeared Thursday. When his squadron leader signalled the flight to return to the Camp Borden base, it is believed he did not see it because of the snow and later became lost and l[illegible] in some isolated place.

Twenty-seven planes were engaged in yesterday's search for Hopton and his plane, 15 from Camp Borden and 12 from the Malton Training Centre near Toronto.

Planes piloted by Flt.-Lt. Campbell and Sgt. Francis, both members of the Royal Air Force who have been instructing at Camp Borden, were due to report back here at 2 p.m. yesterday in case the missing plane already had been found.

When the two planes did not return, the search efforts were redoubled and airmen scoured the countryside over a large area.

Later in the day Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Ontario Provincial police were asked to assist in the search while the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation at the request of R.C.A.F. officials, broadcast an appeal for information of the lost planes.

LAC. Bates, whose wife, Mrs Ruth Grace Bates, lives in Brantford, Ont., and LAC. Warner were observers in the two search planes that disappeared.

Air force officials here said that each plane taking part in the search was equipped with adequate rations, warm clothing and other articles that might be required in case crews were forced to land. Barring a crack-up they felt no alarm need be felt for the missing airmen.

TRAFFIC SUSPENDED

Bucharest, Rumania, Dec. 14 (AP) —A communique issued by the Rumanian railroad said today all traffic in the oil district between Ploesti and Buzau had either been suspended or rerouted because of the destruction of railroad lines over a bridge as a result of an oil pipeline fire. The communique said the traffic will be interrupted five or six days.

LARGER MARKET FOR CANADIAN FUR FARMERS

Supplementary Trade Pact With U.S. Will be Beneficial to Canada

PACT IS SIGNED

Ottawa, Dec. 14—(CP)—A larger market in the United States for Canadian silver or black foxes and whole fox furs and skins is provided under a supplementary trade agreement between the two countries.

The new agreement, supplementing and amending the 1938 Canada-United States trade agreement, was signed at Washington yesterday by Loring C. Christie, Canadian minister and State Secretary Cordell Hull, it was announced by the Prime Minister's office.

The United States import quota figure of 100,000 is continued under the new arrangement, but it now applies only to whole furs and skins, and live animals valued at more than $250. Separate unallocated quotas have been established for part skins and articles made of fox furs and skins.

Unless otherwise agreed upon, Canada's annual quota will be 70,-000 pelts, instead of 58,300 heretofore.

Reduced Duty

"The reduced duty of 35 per cent ad valorem on silver or black fox furs and skins is contained in the new supplementary agreement," the announcement from the Prime Minister's office said. "The duty on live foxes remains at 15 per cent ad valorem, the rate fixed in the Tariff Act of 1930."

The agreement, "substantially similar" to a supplementary agreement signed Dec. 30 last year, takes effect Dec. 20. For the period from Dec. 20 1940, to Nov. 30, 1941 the total United States quota is 100,000 less the number imported during the period from Dec. 1 to Dec. 19, 1940, during which period the quota provisions of the original supplementary trade agreement remain in force.

Quota is 100,000 Units

Starting Dec. 1, 1940, the quota is 100,000 units in any 12-month period.

Re-allocation of shares in the quota was based on United States imports of foxes and furs during 1939. It was explained that in 1939 and previous years, part of the American imports came from the United Kingdom, and these included furs from Canada and other producing countries.

This indirect trade from the United Kingdom had ceased because of the war and to take account of the change in trade conditions, imports from Britain in 1939 were not included in total imports used to calculate the new import quotas for Canada and other countries.

He did not paint a completely dark picture, however. He saw signs that "the good old American ingenuity is coming into its own" and predicted that, after the "crucial" first half of 1941, "we are sure to be underway". He expressed confidence that labor, industry and all other groups would unite to "help to prove that a free people are capable of self discipline and of productive work superior to that of a dictator's subjects."

In stressing the need for speeded production, Knudsen raised the question whether defence should be put on a war basis.

"Friday night has become the big night in most of our industrial picture," he pointed out. "It used to be Saturday night—we have cut 20 per cent. off our time machine.

Bombers Down 30 Per Cent.

Elaborating on airplane production, particularly as to bombers, the former General Motors president declared:

"Frankly, we are not doing anything compared to the forecast of the manufacturers and the Defence Commission in July; and our hoped-for figures of Jan. 1, of 1,000 planes a month, have to be scaled down by 30 per cent. to be correct."

Big guns, machine guns and tanks faced better prospects, he said.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The question of how long the Italians can hold out against British and Greek forces in North Africa and south Europe appears to depend largely on the political fortitude of the officers commanding the troops.

In eastern Albania Italian Fascist troops were reported today to be resisting stoutly the Greek advance which eventually may shove them and the rest of their compatriots into the Adriatic.

On the other hand there was the story from Egypt of Italian Colonel captured with his troops. It said the Colonel was found with all his baggage packed, ready for captivity in a preferred treatment camp reserved for Italians with the ranks of Major and Colonel.

Presumably the troops in eastern Albania were loyal to the Fascist party and the Colonel was not a party man.

The Italian Fascist Press sought to minimize the extent of the British offensive in Africa and the Greek offensive in Italian-held Albania.

Of the British effort the newspaper Tribuna said: "Every offensive action, no matter who launches it, can always boast an inevitable initial success."

Generally such a statement is true, but it can also be an excuse, as it appears to be in this case.

The terrific whacking the Italians have taken in North Africa seems to be more lethal than "an inevitable initial success."

The British plan appears to have been laid a bit too well to be defeated by the forces the Italians have at the moment in Africa—forces which are not likely to be reinforced by ships running the gauntlet of the British Mediterranean fleet.

The Italians have been losing men, equipment, stores and arms, apparently because the speed of the British advance, accomplished through a co-ordinated thrust of motorized land forces, fierce assaults from the air and heavy bombardment from the sea. The thrust has left them no recourse but to flee or surrender quickly.

One feature of this campaign remains of outstanding interest. Suppose with pretty good reason, the Italian Libyan forces are driven to the utmost extremity. How are they going to escape? They cannot go by ship because the British fleet won't let them. Marshal Graziani could escape by plane and so could a few of his fellow officers, but it is doubtful if they would be honored if they returned to their own country.

Graziani is reputed a gallant soldier and a veteran of desert fighting. He appears to have been let down by his political commanders. But if that saves him from being the goat of the Egyptian fiasco it will surprise many observers.

Greece's Fighters Have Taken Nearly Half of Albania

Advancing Troops Expected Soon to Capture Tepeleni

By DANIEL DE LUCE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Dec. 16 (CP)—British military circles declared today that information from Greece indicated advancing Greek forces were expected soon to take Tepeleni, Albanian crossroads town midway between Argirocastro and the Port of Valona.

With the Greek Army on the Southern Albanian Front, Dec. 16 (AP).—Against odds of freeing weather and bitter Italian rearguard resistance, Greece's fighters reported today they had pushed their lines forward on a snowy front running half the length of Albania.

Tough Greek infantrymen, swathed in khaki woollens, carried the brunt of the attack, it was reported in front line military dispatches reaching this base.

The Italians continued throwing reserves into the scattered mountain battles, but all reports pointed to imminent Greek successes possibly surpassing those gained in the capture of Koritza and Argirocastron, main bases of the thwarted Fascist invasion of Greece.

Climate! The climate of a place determines more than anything else what people may live and what plants may grow there. Plants and animals if they survive at any given place, are adapted to its climate. Note the Eskimos of the Arctic, the Negroes of Africa, and the fairer-skinned people of the middle latitudes. All of them are adapted to the climates of their homelands. When a people move to a new land which is much different in climate, they do not survive or if there are survivals, they are the hardy ones, and the type changes slowly to an adaptable type. Plants and animals also die off if transported and are not adapted to the new climate. But all animals, including humans, and plants as well, may survive a moderate change in climatic environment.

PETAIN BARS WAY TO NAZI TROOPS TO HELP ITALY

Hitler's Sending to Paris Remains of Napoleon's Son Believed Factor in Crisis Leading to Ouster of Laval

FRENCH POSITION

Berne, Switzerland, Dec. 16 (AP).—The fate of conquered France's Vichy government and possibly even total Nazi occupation of her soil was believed today to depend on how the axis takes the week-end upheaval in the cabinet of Chief of State Petain.

Hitler's representative in Paris, Otto Abetz, was expected in Vichy today to talk to Petain, according to diplomatic reports reaching Berne.

Berlin's approval of the ouster of Pierre Laval as vice-premier and foreign minister, observers said, may hinge on what the French Chief of State tells Abetz.

Sources here said Laval, at first reported under guard in his own home, now was rumored to be a prisoner in Chateau de Pellevoison, along with the Republican leaders who face "war guilt" charges in the impending Riom trials which Laval himself advocated.

Authorized sources in Berlin said that the Laval dismissal came as a surprise and that, until the German government has been fully informed of what it means, the German press will not even report that Laval is out, succeeded as foreign minister by Pierre-Etienne Flandin.

Fears that Germany eventually might occupy all of France stemmed from Petain's reported refusal to let Germany send troops through unoccupied France to aid Italian forces in Libya and Greece. Nazi preference for a route through France, instead of through Italy, was said to be to protect Italian home morale.

Although France is a beaten nation, informed sources here pointed out, transit of troops through the unoccupied zone without Vichy's consent would involve elaborate precautions both to maintain secrecy and to protect the Nazi column from sabotage.

19 Members Oppose Proposed Alberta Provincial Bank

Edmonton, Dec. 16 (CP)—The 19 independent members of Alberta's Legislature urged abandonment of the Provincial Treasury Branches and the Alberta Social Credit Board and asked for a stop in governmental efforts to embark on "further dangerous experiments" such as the proposed Provincial Bank.

The Independent members and 72 official delegates representing 34 of the 49 Provincial ridings decided Saturday at the first convention of the Independent movement in Alberta that future status of the movement will be considered at the 1941 convention. Delegates deferred naming of a Provincial leader at the present time but agreed a House leader should be named at an Independents caucus here Jan. 11.

The Independent movement, a coalition of Liberals, Conservatives and others opposed to Premier Aberhart's Social Credit government, approved resolutions setting out in broad terms policies favored in regard to private debt, taxation, agriculture, education, economy and natural resources.

The convention condemned "the attitude of non-co-operation taken by the Aberhart government" toward the Rowell-Sirois report on Dominion-Provincial relations and unanimously approved a motion expressing "unqualified approval" of the report's recommendations.

A speedy settlement of the debt problem was asked with readjustment fair both to debtor and creditor "providing for probable fluctuations in the value of his (the debtor's) means of payment." Delegates declared the Social Credit government is using the private debt problem as a "political football for purpose of creating and fostering class hatred as between debtors and creditors."

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 16 (AP)—British forces starting the second week of their drive across western Egypt were reported smashing the Italians farther back today along the coastal sector of the Egyptian-Libyan border where heavy fighting has been going on for three days and nights.

Severe fighting raged last night around the Sollum area, five miles east of the frontier, where a force of Fascist troops were reported attempting to make a stand.

Details of the operations still were awaited in Cairo, but British headquarters said the drive was proceeding "satisfactorily."

Duce's Navy Suffers As R. A. F. Raids Cruisers, Destroyers

Two Italian Battleships Also Attacked but No Direct Hits Are Announced — Four Large Explosions Follow Hits on Smaller Warships

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 16—(AP)—Five direct hits on a concentration of cruisers and destroyers in a British air raid on the Italian port of Naples Saturday night were reported today in a Royal Air Force communique.

It said two Italian battleships also were attacked in the raid, but did not announce any direct hits on them.

The five hits on the smaller war vessels, the communique said, resulted in four large explosions.

(An Italian communique had admitted Sunday that one warship of medium tonnage was damaged and fifty of its crew were killed or injured and that a small motor sailboat was sunk in three British air attacks on Naples Saturday night.)

The R.A.F. communique said that one British bomber dumped its entire load close to a battleship and that bomb bursts caused fires on the jetty to which the big vessels were moored.

British planes also attacked Italian airdromes in the western desert yesterday and caused considerable damage in a raid on Bardia the communique said.

Sidi Barrani Deathbed Of Mussolini's Plan For Conquest of Egypt

By EDWARD KENNEDY,
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With the British Forces at Sidi Barrani Egypt, Dec. 16 — (AP)—Here lies the wreckage of Mussolini's ambitious plans for the conquest of Egypt.

In this village, where the desert meets the sea and the Italians made their main stronghold in the strip of Egypt they occupied as a starting point for their invasion, and for miles around it are strewn enormous quantities of Italian supplies.

Vehicles, from carts to five-ton trucks, some of them intact and some wrecked, are lined up through the desert. Guns of all sizes, tanks, armored cars, countless cases of munitions and machinery, vast food stocks—everything a modern army needs—are here and in British hands.

Officers Astonished

British officers said they were astonished at the amount of supplies the Italians had brought in. It greatly exceeded their estimates.

The total material captured in Egypt is more than double that used by the British to drive the Fascists out of the country, they said.

Much of this already has been put into service by the British, mainly for the staggering job of feeding and transporting the endless lines of prisoners (of which the British said Saturday there were more than 26,000.) The rest is being sorted out. On the shore are two plants for distilling seawater housed in tents big enough to cover a three-ring circus.

FORMER ITALIAN VESSEL 'BOMBED BY FOE AIRCRAFT'

Freighter Bic Island, Which Italians Tried to Scuttle, Was Taken Over by British Crown

SENDS OUT MESSAGE

New York, Dec. 16 (AP).—A former Italian freighter seized by a Canadian warship after the crew attempted to scuttle it in the St. Lawrence river, wirelessed today it was "being bombed by enemy aircraft" off the coast of Ireland.

The vessel, the Bic Island—once owned by the American Munson line —gave her position in a message picked up by Mackay Radio as "340 miles west by south of Tory Island". The call was heard at 7:23 a.m. E.D.T.

The freighter, a craft of 2,450 tons originally was the Munson Line Mundaran. In 1934 she was renamed the Capo Noli and placed in Italian trade.

On the day Italy entered the war, last June 10, her crew ran the vessel ashore in the St. Lawrence River near Big Island, from which her name was derived. Refloated, she was declared the property of the British Crown last November.

BERLIN IS CENTRE OF HEAVY ATTACK BY RAF BOMBERS

Kiel Shipyards and Port of Bremen Pounded in Slashing Overnight Raids

TARGETS SINGLED OUT

Direct Hits Also Scored on Enemy Merchant Vessels Off French Coast

London, Dec. 16 (CP)—Railways, factories and utility services in Berlin were bombed by British raiders last night, the Air Ministry said today.

The Royal Air Force also pounded the Kiel shipyards and the port of Bremen in slashing overnight raids.

Berlin drew the heaviest attack, the announcement said, with the raiders singling out numerous important targets for their bombs.

The inland port of Frankfurt-on-Main was attacked and a number of targets near that city were hit hard.

In still another attack, British bombers scored direct hits on two enemy merchant vessels off the French coast.

Three planes are missing from all the night operations.

Prior to the Air Ministry's announcement, British informants had described the Berlin attack as "prolonged."

German planes bombed the English steel centre of Sheffield last night, for the second time in a week.

Official sources in their first reports said only that bombs "fell in the Sheffield area."

Sheffield was attacked heavily last Thursday night and victims of that raid, buried alive in air raid shelters still were being rescued early today.

Royal Air Force planes struck at the Berlin area with "prolonged attacks" during the night, the Air Ministry reported, while what was at first identified only as an industrial region in the north of England was receiving Germany's blows.

Britain-Bound Canadian Mission Passengers on Western Prince

Ottawa, Dec. 16 —(CP)— An official report from London on the Saturday torpedoing of the liner Western Prince was expected hourly today, amid growing hopes that Munitions Minister Howe and three of his department officials were among the rescued.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King was advised during the week-end that most of the passengers and crew aboard the ship had been picked up safely. His information did not name any of the survivors, his office said.

In London, The Canadian Press heard reliably last night that Mr. Howe was safe. No information was available there about the Minister's travelling companions—E. P. Taylor of Toronto, Col. W. C. Woodward of Vancouver, executive assistants; and Hon. Gordon Scott of Montreal, financial advisor.

London, Dec. 16. (CP)— Three thousand tons of Turkish tobacco and 90 tons of Greek tobacco, the first of a consignment valued at £600,000 (about $3,560,000) which Britain is taking in payment of interest in British loans to her two near Eastern friends, has arrived in England.

This tobacco is to be mixed with stocks of United States leaf on hand to introduce a new blend to British smokers.

To conserve dollar exchange purchases of United States tobacco have been stopped and a change to Turkish is being made gradually.

HIT IN FACE WITH MALLET

Hollywood, Dec. 16.— (AP)—His love of polo has sent David Mdivani, last of the hard-riding brother Georgian princes, to a hospital yesterday.

His brother Serge died in a polo accident in Florida several years ago and the third brother, Alexis, was fatally hurt in a European auto accident.

Week's Sinkings 10,000 Tons Less Than Average

The British Admiralty announced Friday that a 4,000-ton German freighter had been torpedoed off the Norwegian coast by a British submarine and went down, probably with a heavy cargo of ore. This was the only officially reported sinking in the week ended Dec. 13.

Neutral sources reported the sinking of the 18,673-ton Norwegian passenger liner Oslofjord. The ship was reported sunk by a mine off the British Isles Dec. 11 while under charter to the British Admiralty. The Admiralty, however, did not comment on these reports.

A dispatch from Stockholm said the Swedish freighter Daphne, 1,514 tons, was torpedoed off the Spanish Atlantic coast with loss of 18 crewmen. In addition a message from the British freighter Orari, 10,350 tons, said she had been torpedoed 750 miles west of France in the Atlantic, but it was not known whether she was sunk or managed to make port.

Reports from German-occupied Norway, coming via Berlin, claimed the sinking of five Norwegian freighters aggregating 21,187 tons, but they did not say when or in what circumstances the vessels were lost.

The Admiralty's summary of sinkings for the week ended Dec. 1 announced the loss of thirteen British, allied and neutral vessels totalling 52,229 tons, the lowest figure in a month and about 10,000 tons below the weekly average since the war began.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

7 SHOPPING DAYS TILL Christmas

CATTLE IMPORTERS ACTIVE IN DISTRICT

New York and Pennsylvania cattle importers have recently made heavy purchases in the surrounding district, it has been revealed by the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada. Harry Greenburg and Son, Hoosick, New York, have recently purchased 25 head of pure-bred Holsteins from breeders in the Counties of Durham, Northumberland and Peterborough, while Leonard Knauff, Greencastle, Pa., purchased 34 head of purebreds from breeders in Ontario and Durham Counties.

'FLU IN CITY OF MILD TYPE

Belleville district has thus far been very fortunate in that it has so far been missed by the 'flu epidemic which is being reported in other districts, notably Kingston. Dr. G. S. Cronk, Medical Health Officer, stated on Monday morning that only a few isolated cases of 'flu had thus far been reported in Belleville. Adults were in the majority of persons affected, said Dr. Cronk, with all cases being of a mild type and patients in the main, only being ill for a period of three or four days at the most.

FEWER CHRISTMAS TREES OFFERED

Fewer Christmas trees will be offered for sale in Belleville this year than for many years past, it is claimed by men actively engaged in this annual trade. On Saturday only two vendors offered trees for sale on the city market, where ordinarily as many as six or seven would be engaged in the Christmas tree trade.

The dearth in tree vendors, which has marked the current season to date, is undoubtedly explained by the fact that with fewer men unemployed there has not been the usual activity among city men in handling Christmas trees this season.

WOODLOT OWNERS HAVE COMPLAINT

Once again the approach of the Christmas season is bringing grief to farmers and woodlot owners who have evergreens growing on their properties. Several complaints have already been received at Provincial Police headquarters here, to the effect that truckers and other parties who carry on a nefarious trade in Christmas trees, are robbing their lots and doing a great deal of damage to the woods. In many cases these truckers, who work in the dead of night, fell large evergreens, cut off a few feet at the top for Christmas trees, and leave the rest of the tree where it falls.

"We have already received several complaints of this nature and of where great damage has been done to woodlots by truckers working at night and any persons found guilty of this offense will be severely dealt with," warned Sergeant Thompson, this morning.

BELLEVILLE STORES OPEN AT NIGHT

Starting tonight December 16th., merchants of Belleville will keep their shops and stores open for the convenience of the shopping public. This service will be continued until Christmas Eve inclusive.

COL. B. C. DONNAN RESUMES DUTIES

After an absence of exactly six months, Col. B. C. Donnan, Commanding Officer of the 2nd Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, resumed his duties as Crown Attorney for the County of Hastings, when he appeared in Magistrate E. J. Butler's city police court here on Monday. Col. Donnan will continue to act in the capacity of Crown Attorney.

"Mr. Gordon Robertson has been officially named as Assistant Crown Attorney for Hastings County, Your Worship, and may be in court from time to time, when I am unable to be present owing to my military attachments and duties," Col. Donnan told the court today.

MOTORING CONDITIONS VERY HAZARDOUS

Although motoring conditions were exceedingly hazardous on Monday only one motor accident was reported in this area up until early today. At the intersection of Herchimer Avenue and Highway No. 2 shortly before midnight Saturday night, a motor car driven by Wesley Gerow of this city was in collision with a west bound automobile driven by Moore Sanford, of Sharpe's Corners. Gerow was making a left-hand turn off the highway when his car collided with the west bound vehicle. Considerable fender damage resulted, but Gerow was not at the scene when Motorcycle Patrolman C. E. Siple arrived for investigation, the latter revealed today.

ARRIVAL OF AIRMEN CREATES DEMANDS FOR APARTMENTS

The opening of the Picton Bombing and Gunnery School with the arrival of several hundred Air Force men has created a demand for apartments and furnished rooms for light housekeeping in that town, according to the Picton Times. With many R.C.A.F. officers and men bringing their families to Picton, the shortage is becoming acute, it is stated.

With all accommodation available now taken up, inquiries for apartments and furnished rooms are still being made. A great many Picton residents are taking advantage of the opportunity and are rearranging their home to make two or three rooms available to those seeking apartments.

C.G.I.T. VISITS HOMES SINGING CAROLS

Fourteen members of Bridge St. Church C.G.I.T. and their leaders Miss Grace Harris and Miss Marjorie Lashbrook, at the conclusion of the Sunday evening service, visited several of the homes singing carols. This project proved very interesting and was greatly appreciated by those who heard them.

BAND CONCERT MUCH ENJOYED

John Deacon, Tenor Soloist, Gives Group of Songs During Concert

The superb voice of John Deacon, one of Ontario's outstanding tenors was never heard to better advantage than last night at the McCarthy Theatre where the popular singer was a guest artist at another of the series of band concerts staged by the Belleville Municipal Band.

Mr. Deacon offered the well-known "Danny Boy;" "The Open Road," by Stickel, "O Holy Night," by Adam, and the Regimental Song from the operetta "The White Eagle." A near capacity crowd gave Mr. Deacon a splendid ovation at the conclusion of his numbers. Mrs. Deacon provided her usual piano accompaniment.

The band lived up to its reputation as being one of the best musical aggregations in this part of Ontario with its renditions of the several numbers on the program. Instrumental numbers were well received as were a number of the better known Christmas carols. The ever-popular "There'll Always be an England" received well-merited acclaim and demonstrated it is still one of the most popular war-time songs written thus far.

N. P. A. M. Members Called to Camp To Complete Training

Because officials of the National Department of Defence feel that they have not had sufficient training, 222 young, unmarried members of the non-permanent active militia are benig called to camps for the third period of compulsory training.

Notices in the three training centres of the district calling up men of the 23 and a few of the 24-year-old group have already gone out. Training of the 2,250 men will commence January 10 and continue for 30 days. While nothing official has been announced it is felt in militia circles that the next class will have its training period extended.

Decision to call up members of the N.P.A.M. was reached after officers of the Defence Department had investigated their training status.

A number of the men had indicated on their registration cards that they were members of militia units and as such were not subject to call. A check-up was made by the department to find if they were adhering to the training schedules of their units. Those who have not put in an equivalent of 30 days are being called to camps.

Police Blotter

An automobile was stolen off Front St. late Saturday night and had not been recovered at noon today. The vehicle was the property of Mr. J. Albert, 269 Front St., and had been parked in front of his place of business earlier in the evening. It was a 1940 model Dodge Sedan bearing licence plates number 17-N-47.

Police received several complaints from irritated citizens who contended they purchased Evergreen trees for Christmas decorations on the Belleville market on Saturday last, but the trees were not delivered after being paid for.

The plate glass window in White's butcher shop on the Market Square was found shattered by P. C. Taylor early today. It is believed a piece of ice was hurled through the window when struck by the tire of a passing automobile.

Only nine transients sought shelter at the police station over the week-end, five signing the register on Saturday night.

POLICE COURT

The prosecution of radio licence delinquents took up the majority of the time in Monday's city police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in Belleville. Twenty-two of the 25 originally summonsed into court admitted their delinquency in the purchase of their radio licence, contrary to the Dominion Radio Act. All persons charged paid the costs of the court.

"I suppose these persons charged have procured their radio licences before entering a plea?' queried Col. B. C. Donnan, K.C., as he made his first appearance in local police court in six months, having returned to his post as County Crown Attorney.

The charges against radio licence delinquents were preferred by Inspector V. J. Brister of the Department of Transportation. Only two ignored the summonses, one of which it was later disclosed, was in the Canadian Navy. "We'll withdraw that charge," Mr. Brister informed the court as he warned that unless there was a general influx in radio licences in Belleville, additional charges of a similar nature to those disposed of today would have to be preferred.

A woman appeared on a charge of vagrancy, but the matter was enlarged for one week while the authorities probe the accused person's character.

'Messiah' Music Is Presented at Bridge Street Church

Advent and Christmas portions of "The Messiah" by Handel were given at the evening service at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening, Miss Leona Riggs directing the large choir and Mr. Alec Gordon officiating at the organ. Impressively the organ portions "Overture" and the "Pastoral Symphony" were played by Mr. Gordon. Miss Riggs in the absence of Mrs. George Stobie took the soprano aria "Rejoice Greatly", with fine effect and Mrs. Kenneth Bird sang the contralto recitative "Behold a Virgin" and the aria "O Thou that tellest good tidings" in good form. The tenor recitative was effectively rendered by Mr. James Bankier while Mr. Harold Howard ably took the bases recitative "For Behold, darkness will cover the earth".

The ensemble effects of the choir were sung with fine feeling including "And the Glory of The Lord", "For Unto Us a Child is Born" and the world-famous "Hallelujah", all of which were much appreciated.

White Gift Service

At the morning service the annual "white gift" service took place with the presentation of gifts to be made through the church organizations at the Christmas season. Members of the congregation did not forget those who are in need of cheer at Christmastide. The service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Semple who spoke on "The Christmas Benediction". During the service Miss Betty Anderson recited a Christmas story "My Little Friend."

Theft of Car Brings a Year In Reformatory

Douglas Fothergill, 18-year-old Toronto transient youth, was sentenced to serve one year in the Ontario Reformatory by Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in Monday's city police court after pleading guilty to a charge of the theft of an automobile, the property of Bert High of this city.

Fothergill elected summary trial, told Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., he did not seek counsel and pleaded guilty as charged. "He stole an automobile in Belleville the other night, speeded east to Odessa, where he wrecked the vehicle as it struck a steel girder on a bridge," testified Chief Kidd.

Crown Attorney Donnan introduced the lad's list of previous criminal convictions, which also proved he had used numerous aliases in the past. "What is your right name?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"Douglas Fothergill," replied the youth, who was later heard to mumble: "Gosh, I expected a stiffer one than that," in referring to his sentence.

CAPITOL THEATRE ROBBED OF $150

Office Wall Safe Broken and Money Taken Some Time Over Weekend

Prying the entire combination front off a wall safe, robbers broke into the Capitol Theatre in Belleville over the week end and stole approximately $150.00.

The robbery was discovered by Percy Badgley, janitor of the theatre, as he entered the premises early Sunday morning to tend the furnace. Finding the door leading into the theatre office open, Mr. Badgely investigated and discovered the front of the wall safe lying on the floor and the wall safe exposed.

Detective Fred. Isard investigated and told The Ontario Intelligencer today that entrance had been made through a rear side window, shreds of cloth being found on the broken jagged glass. The window led into the boiler room in the basement from where the robbers reached the main floor and the office. A claw hammer was found in the office which police believe was used to pry the front of the wall safe out. The desk in the manager's office was also ransacked and company papers strewn about.

Manager Thomas Mascaro of the Capitol Theatre, stated the premises had been secured after Saturday's performances, while police made their final inspection of the rear of the theatre shortly before 4.00 a.m. Sunday and no disturbances were noted at that time. Mr. Mascaro stated that the money taken was the day's receipts. Police are still probing the matter.

One week previously the large safe at the Belleville Collegiate was entered a similar robbery successfully carried out. The amounts stolen in both cases were about identical.

POWER GRADER DOES FINE JOB

Ugly ruts and dangerous bumps were effectively removed from the surface of Front Street on Sunday when the City Works Department heavy power grader worked all day in an effort to dislodge the accumulation of ice that provided a treacherous hazard to traffic. While the heavy machine could not remove the rock-like corrugated surface, the upper part was smoothed out and tons of it hauled away by trucks. Twenty workmen and six vehicles were used all day to remove the debris.

Officials confined their efforts to the centre of the street alone as despite warnings and requests, many motorists insisted on parking their vehicles near the curb at many points.

ACCIDENT TOLL DURING WEEKEND NUMBERS NINE

Two Airplane Crashes Carry Two Officers to Their Death

BABY IS BURNED

(By The Canadian Press)

Two airplane crashes, two motor accidents, two shooting accidents, a drowning, a scalding and a fall accounted for nine deaths in Ontario during the weekend.

One of the plane crashes occurred Thursday when a Royal Canadian Air Force training plane from Camp Borden crashed five miles from the base killing LAC. O. P. Hopton of Cabri, Sask. The wreckage was not discovered until Saturday.

LAC. J. D. Bilkey, son of Paul E. Bilkey, editor-in-chief of the Montreal Gazette, was killed Saturday when his R.C.A.F. training plane crashed near Dunnville during a routine solo practice flight.

Mrs. Forsyth O'Neil, 83, of Camden township, was killed near Napanee late Saturday when the car in which she was passenger collided with a truck.

In Sarnia Thomas H. George, 60-year-old veteran of the first Great War, was killed when he was struck by a car. Police said George was kneeling in the middle of the icy road and a car operated by George Traxter of Mooretown, Ont., skidded into him.

Thought Man Slipped

They did not know why the man was on the street or why he was kneeling, but said they thought he had slipped on a sheet of ice.

One shooting took place at Espanola, 48 miles west of Sudbury, where 13-year-old Peter Frazuk was struck by a bullet from the gun of a hunting companion.

The other shooting occurred at Osgoode where Irving Sherman, 28-year-old cattle buyer, was struck in the head by a bullet from the rifle of a companion, James McCallum, 16, of Osgoode. The accident occurred during target practice.

George Declarke, 16, of Dover township, near Wallaceburg, drowned Sunday when he skated through thin ice on Mitchell's Bay near his home.

In Ottawa Barbara Schoenherr, nine-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Schoenherr, died Sunday from burns received when a kettle of boiling water was spilled over her accidentally.

Mrs. J. Vance, 79, of Toronto died Saturday of injuries suffered in a fall down stairs last September.

The third series of these hearings will be held at Kingston, Ontario, at the Council Chambers on Wednesday, December 18, where each fisherman or representative of a fishermen's association will be granted an opportunity of being heard. All fishermen or others interested in the fisheries are invited to attend.

Toronto, Dec. 16 —(CP)— Betty Theresa Boyd, 20, of Welland, first year student of the University of Toronto, died last night of spinal meningitis.

Entertainment of Airmen By Belleville Residents Praised by "Y" Secretary

The story behind the story of the fine work being done by Belleville residents, hospitality clubs and other organizations in providing entertainment and a homelike environment for members of the Royal Canadian Air Force stationed at the Trenton base was given Belleville Rotarians today by Ken MacAdam, Y.M.C.A. secretary at the air station.

The Sunday entertainment, that of the hospitality clubs and other organizations have been doing more in a definite tangible way to establish a better understanding between the men at the station and the community of Belleville, Mr. MacAdam said. "It is not a service but a necessity to assist these men to help bring to an immediate end, the hell of war."

Members of the force lack nothing in recreational facilities at the station, he declared. The men lack outside contacts which bring them the home and their own community environment. This will do a great deal in breaking down what might be termed a misunderstanding between the community of Belleville and the members of the station. In other words residents of the city should not judge the many by a few.

Reaction Pictured

Mr. MacAdam pictured verbally the reaction of a youthful recruit to the change from civilian life to that of the services. Discipline in the services, he said, caused some men to lose the sense of personality makes them hungry for outside makes the mhungry for outside contacts.

Facilities at the station were apparent in three phases, mental, body and spiritual. There is a fine educational system sponsored by the Canadian Legion through correspondence courses. There are study rooms, library and other aids, while recreationally the members have a fine athletic field, rinks, football fields, billiard rooms, bowling alleys and other facilities. A theatre has shows, movies and others five nights a week.

Protestant and Roman Catholic chaplains are stationed at the base and conduct religious services, while the Y.M.C.A. takes care of the men in putting their spare time to the best advantage. "The main job is to get the men to take their jobs seriously but not themselves too seriously," the speaker pointed out.

He closed with an appeal to the clubmen to maintain the Sunday entertainment phase of their activities, stressing the point that home environment and meeting people was of more importance to the airmen than a choice dinner.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Joe Shortt and thanks of the club expressed by John Deacon. During the luncheon, the annual collection for Christmas cheer was taken by the club. A feature was the installation of the newest member of the club Rotarian Clare Morgan, by Past-District Governor Owen J. Herity. President Percy McGuire was in the chair.

One Million Pairs Of Boots for Army Made in Canada

Montreal, Dec. 16—(CP)—Canadian shoe manufacturers have made "close to 1,000,000 pairs of boots for the armed forces" since the start of the war, Major Louis Daoust of Montreal said in his presidential address at the 22nd general meeting of the Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Canada today.

"The capacity of the Canadian shoe factories is ample for the production of much larger quantities of military boots," he said.

Higher prices for civilian shoes "cannot be avoided," Major Daoust said. Prices of hides and skins had advanced almost 60 per cent over pre-war figures and "most other materials and supplies required by the shoe manufacturers cost substantially more than before the war."

"With steadily increasing costs of materials, wages and taxation, prices of all manufactured products, including shoes, cannot be held at the present level."

Study Proposal Flags Be Flown on Buildings Under Gov't. Control

Toronto, Dec. 16—(CP)—Attorney-General Gordon Conant said today he has asked the Ontario Department of Public Works to consider an order directing flags to be flown on all buildings under the government's control or direction.

He suggested the move following receipt of a letter from Magistrate E. R. Tucker, President of the Cochrane Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, in which it was suggested that flags would be of educational value to foreign-born Canadians.

The War Today

(By Guy Rhoades)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The political demise of Pierre Laval and his replacement by a man of far less forceful character may be taken as an indication that all is not rosy in relations between conquered France and Nazi Germany.

Laval, the ambitious, has been replaced by Pierre-Etienne Flandin, pro-Nazi in sympathy but less a man of action. He is said to be almost as unpopular with the French people as Laval, but he is less likely to attempt a seizure of power, which is what Laval is believed to have done.

It is notable that Laval, violently anti-British, did practically all the running around in negotiations for a peace with Germany, and there was always a suspicion that he would not mind double-crossing his associates if such a course would advance himself.

Laval was reported in Swiss circles to have urged Chief of State Petain first to permit the Germans to use French naval bases in action against the British Royal Navy and latterly to permit German troops to sail from French ports to the help of Italy in Albania and North Africa.

The explanation for the latter scheme was said to be the belief that passage of German troops through the Brenner Pass and their embarkation at Italian ports would so demoralize the already poor-spirited Italians that it might defeat its own purpose.

Yet the military situation both in Albania and Libya, gave every indication that sooner or later the Italians will have to obtain German help. They appear utterly routed in Libya and unable to stem the Greek advance in Albania.

Continued Deterioration

The situation in Libya is likely to continue deteriorating as British forces advance along the coast, capturing ports and facilitating the landing of supplies.

The Italian campaign to invade Egypt and dash for the Suez Canal failed, for one thing, because the Italian navy never was able to take command of the Mediterranean. Despite its superior speed and heavy ordnance, it was never able to face units of the British Mediterranean fleet, and apparently, its anti-aircraft defences were so poorly manned that it suffered severely from aerial bombardments.

In addition the Italians were not able to take command of the air, presumably because of inferior equipment, possibly combined with inferior training of personnel.

Both these factors gave British forces a decided advantage. It enabled them to co-ordinate their attack from land, sea and air.

The Italians in Albania also appear to have been suffering from lack of supplies. They have lost vast quantities of war materials to the Anglo-Greek Allies and they have been unable to protect their Albanian ports from bombardment by the Royal Air Force.

The problem the Italians may face some day, unless German help comes, is evacuation of their forces from Libya and Albania. They may eventually find themselves in a similar predicament to that of the British army at Dunkerque after the French collapse.

FOOD STOCKS IN SHEFFIELD CITY COMMANDEERED

Number of Persons Killed in Air Raid Fewer Then Might Have Been Expected

MOBILE CANTEENS USED

Sheffield, England, Dec. 16 (CP) —All available food stocks and electrical cooking apparatus were commandeered today for canteens feeding Sheffield's homeless after last night's air attack, the second of large proportions on this heart of Britain's steel industry.

The number of persons killed was described as fewer than might have been expected, but destruction of many houses added to lists of the homeless.

Mobile canteens circulated through the battered areas, supplying meals.

Sightseers added to the difficulties. Police appealed to the curious to stay away to avoid putting extra burdens on traffic control

Hunderds of incendiary bombs were dropped in the raid, followed by high explosives in the customary pattern of air attacks, but quick work by the Auxiliary fire service was said to have reduced the fire menace.

Britain Settles Cases With Rio de Janeiro

Rio de Janeiro, Dec. 16.—(AP) —Three cases of British action involving Brazilian merchant ships apparently were settled satisfactorily today.

An official announcement said the Siqueira Campos case had been settled and informed sources reported the Buarque and Itape cases also were closed.

The Siqueira Campos, 6,456-ton cargo-passenger ship, was halted recently off Portugal and escorted to Gibraltar, a contraband control station, by British warships.

Capt. Juan Joaquin Moura of the 5,152-ton Buarque, said Dec. 7 that 32 cases of cloth and 38 cases of perfumed alcohol were removed from the ship's cargo at Trinidad because the consignees, two Venezuelan firms, were on Britain's blacklist for having traded with Germany.

On Dec. 2, the British auxiliary cruiser Carnarvon Castle halted the Itape, 4,978-ton coastal steamship, 18 miles off the coast and removed 22 Germans over the protests of the Itape's Master.

SOLDIERS HELP RAILWAYS DISPATCH CHRISTMAS CARDS

London Dec. 16—(CP)—Several thousand soldiers today began helping the railways dispatch Christmas cards and packages—their help sought because of public response to a "mail early" plea.

The soldiers will work eight-hour shifts at all main terminals and railway stations until the night before Christmas.

Besides thousands of volunteer wives and sweethearts of postal employees are helping sort the mail.

TRAFFIC IS RESUMED

Vichy, France, Dec. 16.—(AP)—German authorities permitted the resumption yesterday of passenger traffic on the Bellegarde-Geneva railroad line— only direct rail connection between Switzerland and Unoccupied France. The line passes through a narrow strip of German-occupied territory.

The line had been re-opened after the end of the fighting in France but service was suspended a few weeks later.

BRITISH REACTION TO BLITZKRIEG CALLED SUBLIME

A.P. Correspondent Tells How New Existence Begins for Many in Face of Stark Reality

(A series of twelve stories of what it means to live under the ever-present threat of death in England has been written by Milo M. Thompson, chief of The London Bureau of The Associated Press, who has lived there throughout the war and now is in New York on leave. He knows what it means to have his home and office building bombed. This is the first article.)

(By Milo M. Thompson)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Dec. 16—(AP)—Total war such as London is experiencing today is not all bad.

Something happens to people who, facing death have put aside all the normal and petty expectations and ambitions.

Their hope is not to have a better job, house, car or dress on some tomorrow, but to be alive.

Most trivial passions disappear when one faces as stark reality the possibility that all possession, all freedom, even one's country, may no longer be his own in a few short months.

There is something sublime in British reaction to lightning war.

A Common Link

The lady who wouldn't notice a woman of the "lower classes" even through a lorgnette now holds the slavey's baby in the shelter.

The limousine of the banker from "the city" loads up with Cockney workmen at a bus stop to speed them home.

The maid sits in the mistress' parlor for her cup of tea at night.

The high and the low find alike they are just people whose knees can quake, whose hearts leap to throats, whose kinfolk are equally precious and whose possessions, large or small, are slipping.

We have an aging maid-of-all-work whose case, I think, illustrates one side of what the war is doing to people.

She is on a small government pension, earned by years of cleaning government offices.

A New Existence

War made her a new existence.

With the first wave of bombs she fell heir to part of a family of refugees, two 'teen-age girls from a bombed-out family of 10 children. She grumbled at first at the disruption of her peaceful existence, but in almost no time at all found herself as absorbed in that family's scattered affairs as if it were her own.

Suddenly there were things to say beside "Oh, that hawful 'itler and 'is hairraids."

Thickening bombardment eventually made it undesirable for her to go home to her cottage at nights and she began staying with us during the night raids.

So it hurt our consciences to have her sitting alone in a corner of the kitchen, or below stairs in her own room, while we were before the fire in a strong room with battened windows. We asked her to come in and sit in the same room with us.

She began to spruce up her appearance. She showed her appreciation in innumerable little helpful ways. And when time for late night tea came, she was always first to suggest it, quick to rush off to make it and always held back her own cup until she was specially invited to have it in the same room.

The third step in her regeneration came, when our house was bombed. It was a horrid night when everything seemed to crash about ones ears and she lay terrified in bed amid debris, unable to find her slippers in order to negotiate the glass-strewn floor, bereft of light (for the power was gone), freezing cold as the gale blew through the gaps where windows and doors had been.

But she was the first one to stir at dawn and was found aternately wringing her hands at the appearance of devastation upstairs and earnestly attacking the hopeless-looking job of achieving a little order in the chaos.

A period followed when no one could live in our house until window spaces were filled in, doors reset, utilities regained, etc. So she went down the streets to spend her nights in one of the public shelters.

Finds New World

There she found a new world in which people like herself talking her own language, laid their cots and pallets side by side, listened to a common radio which drowned out the gunfire, held long conversations about the affairs of the whole neighborhood, traded bits of information about the effects of the bombs, played cards, in fact had a nightly tea-party until lights out time.

After that we could never win her back to staying in the house during the nightly raids.

She was almost gay as she packed her little basket and set off in the gloaming to reach the shelter before the siren sounded.

At the crack of dawn and after the morning "all clear" she would be back bubbling over with the news she had gleaned and repeating bits of conversation from the friends she had made.

For the first time in her life she had become a really social being and, for all her continuing moments of terror, she seemed to grow younger.

Typical Drama

I tell this story, not because it is great drama, but because it is typical. It has been happening all over the London area.

It illustrates one of the great gifts war has brought to the populace.

The aging maid is almost a member of our family now, more like a mothering aunt than the taciturn scrublady she used to be.

She is also an illustration of that catlike devotion to home surroundings which convinces one of the London people will die before they are frightened away from their home districts.

REGARD INCOME AS RECEIVED IN TRUST-ILSLEY

'The Liberty We Enjoy in Spending Income Increases Our Responsibility'

PLAN FOR THIRD LOAN

Toronto, Dec. 16 (CP)—No one can deny the seriousness of the situation, but with the help of the Dominions the Empire "can and shall survive this most trying of ordeals . . . weather this roughest of storms," Finance Minister Ilsley told the Canadian Club of Toronto today.

Mr. Ilsley's speech primarily was about the War Savings campaign, and the responsibilities it involved for all Canadians.

"We should regard our incomes as received in trust," he said. "We may legitimately use them for meeting our needs and those of our families, but we should not regard them as our own to spend as we choose.

"The nation has a claim upon them which ranks ahead of our personal claims for non-essential purposes. The liberty we enjoy in the spending of our income increases our responsibility for their proper disposition."

Any business man who permitted higher costs because the government bore most of them through losses of excess profits tax, "is, in my judgment, guilty of serious misconduct."

The Minister said the government would need to borrow next year a sum "likely to be much closer to $1,000,000,000 than $500,000,000." The objective for War Savings aside from war loans, would be $120,000,000 a year, more than double the original objective of $50,000,000.

War Savings Objectives

To reach this objective of $10,000,000 a month, he suggested, it would be necessary "to count on an average subscription to War Saving Certificates of about three times as much as is being paid in the form of the (two per cent) National Defence Tax."

"We must expect that some with smaller incomes will have difficulty in saving much more than the amount of their tax, while those shall we say, with more than $50 a week can probably save more than three times what they pay in National Defence."

Plan For Third War Loan

Mr. Ilsley urged his hearers to begin planning now so their subscriptions to the third war loan next summer would be as large as possible. "You should be saving already," he said. Many people who never had bought bonds before would have to be reached.

He reviewed development of the recent War Savings Campaign and said the objective of roughly $4,000,000 a month had been achieved. In the first six months, War Savings Certificates to a total value of $27,000,000 had been sold.

Objective Can Be Reached

Mr. Ilsley said he was confident the new objective of $10,000,000 could be reached. Australia already had reached a rate of $10,000,000 a month.

"Is it too much to expect that Canada, a larger and richer country, can do so?" he asked.

To save Mr. Ilsley suggested, Canadians might eliminate purchases of some fancy foods, be careful in their use of fuel, and prune expenditures for durable consumer goods and other items, "making the old ones do."

The War Savings Campaign could only succeed if the government had the full co-operation of employers, he said. The most important element in the campaign was the payroll plan, "under which employees instruct their employers to subscribe regularly out of their earnings for War Savings Certificates."

Personal Savings by Well-to-Do

Personal savings by those with substantial incomes was even more necessary than for those with small incomes, and "the nation expects the well-to-do to set an example in economy."

Economy also was essential in business itself. Mr. Ilsley said the Excess Profits Tax offered a temptation to business executives to be liberal in their business expenditures. He did not know to what extent temptation was being resisted. The tax was demanded "by the public opinion of Canada." The feeling was "and still is" that excess profits should not be made out of national necessities.

"There may be little profit motive for vigilance in economy. But we do not offer the soldier, the sailor, the airman, a profit motive for vigilance, at his post, a profit motive to risk his life. Nor should it be necessary to offer it to Canadian business for the prevention of inefficiency or waste."

Mrs. F. D. R. Advocates Outright Gifts of Cash to Great Britain

Washington, Dec. 16 (AP)—Outright gifts of cash to Great Britain, rather than loans, were advocated today by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Asked at her press conference where such gifts would come from, the President's wife said "From the government," but added that they "ultimately would come out of the pockets of you and me."

"A certain number of people," she said, "are under the impression that we are giving aid to England but we must face the reality that we are being paid." Cash gifts, she added, would be less likely than loans to involve this country in war.

CHARCOAL-BURNER AIRPLANE FLIGHT CLAIMED BY ITALY

Rome, Dec. 16 —(AP)— A flight by a charcoal burning airplane said to have been the first ever made, was claimed today by the newspaper Il Messaggero.

The newspaper asserted the flight was made by Constantino Mazza in a Breda plane powered by a "gasogene" motor yesterday over Taliedo airfield, near Milan.

A special apparatus said to have supplanted the plane's gasoline tanks was described as weighing 176 pounds—99 pounds of charcoal and a low temperature furnace to convert the charcoal into gas.

Inquiry Ordered Over Sentence Given 16-Year-Girl

Toronto, Dec. 16 CP)—Attorney-General Gordon Conant today ordered an inquiry into the eight-day jail sentence of a 16-year-old girl at Brockville, Ont., convicted of being drunk and disorderly.

"I would like to know the facts of this case," said Mr. Conant directing Magistrate G. A. Wright, who presided on the case, to make a report. The girl was sentenced Dec. 13.

Mr. Conant said he thought the statutes could be amended to make the present juvenile age limit of 16 more elastic. He said many boys and girls who appear in the courts might better be dealt with in juvenile court although they were past the juvenile age limit.

There'll Be Feasting At Point Barrow-Ice Brings Polar Bears

Even Saturday, it looked like a thin Christmas for the Eskimos who inhabit this valleg at the northernmost tip of Alaska. It had been the warmest winter on record —so warm that a mere 20 degrees below zero Friday night seemed like an unusually cool evening. It was so warm, in fact, that the Arctic Ocean was practically balmy, pounding against the beach.

Then the ice—last year's ice floe, to be exact—came back on the north wind. Hardy Eskimo hunters, who know what the old ice floes carry, paddled out. When they came back, they reported killing 11 polar bear, many seal, and a few walrus.

So there'll be feasting after all on bear meat, walrus steak, and seal blubber.

The charges of retaining stolen property were laid in connection with the theft of a large amount of property from schools and residences.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and ma was doing the bridge problem and I was counting the money in my bank by taking it out of the slot with a dining room knife, saying, G, I've got twenty 9 cents, how much is that from sixty five, pop?

It's exactly half way as an optimist flies, pop said, and I said, Well when I get 65 I'm going to buy a swell little combination tool with a little saw and a little hammer and a little corkscrew and about 6 other little things.

Well now let's look at the matter calmly and dispassionately, pop said. Are you quite convinced that you have enough use for a little saw and a little this that and the other to warrant lavishing the savings of weeks on them? You are quite old enough now to understand the true meaning of extravagance, to realize, in other words, that extravagance is only another word for useless buying, he said, and ma said, Your father is not talking from here, you'd do very well to profit by his words, because he knows exactly what he's saying, and he may be thinking of the time he brought home a combination cigar lighter and flashlight, wich he must of used at least twice.

Naturelly, experience is the best teacher, and your mother is correct in intimating that I know whereof I speak, pop said. In a few years you'll be big enough to handle a big saw and a big etcetera, or at least a middle size saw and a middle size and so on, and at that time such a purchase will not be an extravagance, he said, and ma said, Your father is not talking from here-say, I assure you, because I think it was only last week that he paid severel dollers for a razor blade sharpener that did even more than was promised for it, because it made 2 blades out of one by breaking them in half.

Oh, go and buy your confounded gadget and learn the hard way, pop said.

Wich I properly will if I dont get another idea first.

Nobel Peace Prize Will Not Be Awarded

Oslo, Norway, (Via Berlin) Dec. 16 (AP)—The Nobel Peace prize will not be awarded this war, it was announced today.

Before the war, Nobel Peace award winners were selected by a committee of five named by the Storting, Parliament of Norway, now Nazi-occupied.

The last individual to win it was Viscount Cecil of Chelwood in 1937. It went to the Nansen International Office for Refugees at Geneva in 1938 and was not conferred last year.

C.N.R. INDUSTRY LOCATED HERE

People of Belleville are pleased to know that because of its central location in the 8,000 miles covered by the Central Region of the Canadian National Railways, Belleville secures an important industry for the manufacture of railway frogs and switches and for servicing work in connection with the use of these. Six months hence the plant which will require thirty skilled mechanics and other workmen will be in production. It is a C.N.R. industry.

This work of construction indicates how closely Belleville is associated with the Canadian National Railways.

For many years the city has been a railway centre and to this fact the city owes a great deal in numbering among its citizens so many families whose heads have been engaged in the occupation of railroading. Centralization here of this department and industry of the Canadian National Railways will mean newcomers to the city to make their home here and will mean a steady occupation for quite a number of men.

As is known to everyone a municipality which is a railway centre has always an advantage industrially by reason of good railway facilities. Belleville in this regard is well located.

HITLER AND NAPOLEON

Something in Hitler led him to go to the Pantheon in Paris after the collapse of France to gaze down upon the tomb of Napoleon, the Corsican, who for twenty years devastated Europe, marched through Italy, tried his hand in Egypt and the Near East, marched up, down and across Europe from the Atlantic Ocean to the snows of Russia and yet ended as a fallen tyrant and dictator before unconquered Britain and a reviving Europe. Adolf had himself photographed. That he desired to stand in the presence of the bones of one of the world's great military geniuses and conquerors is readily believed for Hitler would doubtless like little better than to be seen looking at a man who had been mighty, because he, Hitler, was conqueror of much of Europe and the devastator of the country to whom Napoleon the Great owed allegiance.

Did Hitler's inordinate vanity prevent him seeing in Napoleon's tomb his own fate and the irony of history as it unfolded in the life of Napoleon? The German had no religious scruples to warn him but perchance he had a belief in fate, that sinister force, which it is said he has tried to read in the stars. He may have thought of himself as fate or destiny, the fate of France but if he did, he lacked the sense of judgment, for wisdom if he possessed it should have told him that he was in his warlike ambitions defying the process of life and civilization and that perchance even he had reached his pinnacle, never to be known as the equal or superior of Napoleon. For within a few miles of him was the English Channel and over that Channel he was planning to move with the terror of his might but he could not as the months have since revealed. Hitler really followed in Napoleon's path, even to Boulogne where the French dictator had in the early nineteenth century attempted in vain to launch a fleet that would conquer England.

But perhaps after all while the German was thinking only of himself in the light of Napoleon's reflected glory he was lured by destiny to look upon the remains of him who had also failed to conquer Britain.

The other day Hitler performed a gesture towards France. His mind still throbbing with thoughts of Napoleon he decided to send to Paris the bones of Napoleon's only son, the Duke of Reichstadt, Napoleon Second. This young man had a tragic career. Napoleon the First desired to found a dynasty and married the Austrian Archduchess Marie Louise. Their child was born at the Tuileries Palace in 1811 and was called "the King of Rome." The Napoleonic dynasty fell in 1814 and the tyrant abdicated in favor of his son, who never became the real ruler of France. The mother and the boy went to Vienna when Napoleon was sent to Elba. The boy was afterwards brought up in the court of the Emperor of Austria. Dying at the age of 21, the Duke of Reichstadt was buried with the Hapsburghs in the Capuchin Church with the Imperial family.

Hitler has had removed the bones of the young man, dead 108 years, and they have been taken to Paris to rest by the side of his father, the Great Napoleon.

Now this event is said to be a factor in the swift moving series of events in France.

Of course Hitler's gesture is typical. It cost him nothing to do what he did after devastating France and moving the capital from Paris. Yet the act shows the strange attraction of Napoleon for Hitler. Did he think that this gesture would wipe out the curse of Hitler upon fair France? Yet the act reveals the attraction which Hitler feels toward Napoleon, even though Bonaparte lost his wars. Does Hitler hope to be treasured in the minds of Germans ages hence as Napoleon is treasured in the hearts of French people? About his own fate Hitler now must have some misgivings after the failure of his blitzkrieg. to dominate the British people.

Fanatic, ruthless, callous, sentimental egoist, the German Fuehrer probably finds but one or two men, Napoleon and Frederick the Great, whom he can admire and envy.

How We Struck Italy

The crippling of the Italian fleet at Taranto is the second important British victory in the war, states Major F. A. de V. Robertson, V.D., the authority on aeronautics.

"The first," he says, "was the defeat of the German air attack on Great Britain. The credit for the latter goes to the Royal Air Force, that for the former to the Fleet Air Arm. Only the Fleet Air Arm could have struck the Italian warships so hard, because only that body could have brought torpedoes within striking range of the enemy fleet, and only torpedoes could have done such overwhelming damage.

"The type of aircraft used in the attack was the Fairey Swordfish, which is known in the Navy as a T. S. R. machine. The initials stand for torpedo-spotter-deconnaissance. As hangar space on an aircraft carrier is limited, the Fleet Air Arm cannot indulge in many specialist types of aeroplane The Swordfish and the Albacore are both of the T. S. R. class; the Skua and the Roc (both products of the Blackburn firm) have to combine the duties of fighter and dive-bomber. In addition, the wings of ship-borne aircraft (with the exception of the Sea Gladiator) have to fold back to save space in the hangars and on the lifts, and there are other requirements which detract from their performance and make them, class for class, inferior, to shore-based machines. For this reason the Italians have never built carriers, reckoning that long-range bombers with bases on Sardinia, Pantellaria, and the Dodecanese, could cover the whole Mediterranean.

"However," says Major Robertson, "the Fleet Air Arm has recently acquired a specialist fighter, the Fairey Fulmar, which is faster and altogether better than any other ship-borne fighter. Already the Fulmar has been in action, and has shot down a number of Italian reconnaissance machines which were trying to shadow the British fleet. If the Italians can be kept in ignorance of the movements of our warships, their task of getting supply ships across to Libya and the Dodecanese will become more hazardous even than it was before."

'The Red Shield in Action'

Below a photograph of Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth—shown inspecting a row of mobile canteen units with the leader of the Salvation Army, General Carpenter, in England—are these significant words:

"After a year of war, over 2,000,000 enlisted men have used the Red Shield Huts and 30,000 men awaiting enlistment have been lodged, or fed or both. Over 71 service centres, including two hotels, 30 canteens, and 29 other centres with all departments of work in full operation, and 10 hostess homes (for soldiers' wives, relatives or friends) are serving the Canadian Red Shield Service.

Bottlenecks Are Worries For Hun, Too

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Dec. 16 (AP)—Tremendous stimulation of British public morale has resulted from Greek and British victories over the Italian forces.

There are other factors, however, than the smashing blows struck at Italy to account for British confidence in the ultimate outcome of the war. The full fury of Hitler's boasted air power has been tested and proved ineffective to end the war quickly.

Prime Minister Churchill told the people six months ago, when France fell, that the crux of the war lay in Britain's power to "break Hitler's air weapon.' It has not been broken; but its edge has been dulled. It has failed to crack morale, failed to open the way for Nazi invasion; failed to bring a real starvation spectre before British eyes in the war at sea.

From Weak Link to Strong

British skies still are dominated in daylight by the Royal Air Force. Only at night do the heavy blows fall which Hitler said would lay Britain in ruins. Within six months the German attack has been deflected from Britain's weakest flank, the air, to her strongest, the sea. Nazi air-submarine-surface craft assault on sea life lines now holds the graetest menace to Britain.

British hopes of attaining victory years sooner than her leaders had reckoned possibly six months ago are clearly indicated. The late Marquess of Lothian, Ambassador to Washington, in his last message urging increased American help, foresaw possibilities of smashing Germany next year or in 1942. He did not live to learn the full scope of Italian disasters on two war fronts.

There is a double mystery in this war. It involves both German and Italian air power, the prime element on which the Axis mates relied in challenging British sea power.

Italy's boasted air force signally failed her in Greece, Albania and Egypt. Just why is known only in Italy. If London knows, it might have the final answer ot the war's outcome.

What is Bottleneck?

Germany has not only failed to crush Britain through the air, but also to reach the crescendo of air attack her air superiority seemed to make possible. Just why Nazi bombers have not come over Britain in thousands night after night instead of hundreds and why there are lapses between mass attacks is known only in Germany.

Weeks ago, Mr. Churchill told Parliament that approximately 500 planes within a 24-hour period had been the maximum German attack, but might be only a fraction of what would be attained. It has not since been exceeded, even by Berlin war accounting.

London recently knew two full days and nights of bombing surcease in the wake of a great mass night attack. Other cities had like experiences. They have come to expect a day or so of breathing spell after each air blow.

There is obviously some supply or transportation bottleneck limiting full employment of both Italian and German air power. It may be gasoline, or merely the difficulties of organization and supply transportation. The German air attack on Britain is based along 2,000 miles of the German-held continental coastal area of Europe.

A 500-plane daily attack burns up a huge quantity of fuel. If Germany is raiding her war reserve stocks now to supply it, and lack of fuel has grounded Italian planes much needed in Albania and Egypt, Britain's victory hopes are justified.

If it is not lack of fuel hampering Axis air power at both ends, what is it?

Village Buys Guns for A Spitfire

From the Manchester Guardian

There is a letter from the Minister of Aircraft Production gummed to the window of our village post office. It is acknowledgement for a cheque subscribed by the village towards the purchase of fighter aircraft. The letter speaks of the remarkable size of the cheque from so small a community and of its significance as a token of our determination to achieve victory.

We were ourselves rather proud of the sum we sent to Lord Beaverbrook, for it represented something over 10 shillings per head of our population, including children, who in fact constitute more than half the heads Victory, and our determination to further it, is something that we take for granted. It is even a little embarrassing to find this testimonial to our qualities publicly exhibited. For the truth of the matter is that our village fighter fund was the measure of our rising exasperation with the Luftwaffe.

It was the day after the arrival of "The Craters" that the Home Guard, sounding public opinion, proposed, with a fine contempt for practical finance, that the village should buy its own Spitfires (nobody knew why it had to be a Spitfire) after toying with the idea of presenting some monster like a Whitley to the Bomber Command. The W. V. S., having shown most winning ways over the aluminum and a mobile canteen for the Y.M. C.A., were asked to undertake the matter. "And if we can't buy a 'plane", said old Bill Higginbottom, who approached the local organizer of the W. V. S., "we'll surely buy the guns for one." And I think we have.

It has been interesting to observe the hardening of our hearts against Goring's bombers. There was the warm, still night of midsummer when first we heard a strange "umph-umph" in the sky. It was just a little exciting to discover the war overhead, so to speak—a tolerable war, making no more noise than the buzzing of a large bee. Those were the far away days (or, rather, nights) when, truthfully for once, Berlin spoke of its "armed reconnaissances." But late one July night there came, distant but unmistakable, "Crrrrrump". "Crrrrrump", "Crrrrrump". So those were bombs.

It was during the harvest that we first came under fire, from a lavish and singularly wasteful shower of incendiary bombs. The village took that philosophically as being narrowly within the "rules" of this new war. The high-explosives followed—a salvo of six across a field that killed one hen (hit, its owner vowed, by a clod of clay), a more "successful brace that slaughtered several sheep, one that blew a plum tree clean out of its orchard yet hardly disturbed another tree.

All these made alarming noise and small holes. We tried to think of targets the Nazi bomb-aimer imagined he had found. With undue generosity, I think, we conceded him a near miss for the railway. It is true that he got one within half a mile of Sam Barraclough's petrol pump. But we tended more and more to George Pettigrew's opinion — " 'E don't know where 'e be and he durstn't 'tak stuff back wi' 'm".

And then "The Craters" arrived, a pair of outsize holes the village youth is willing to back against any other holes at present scarring the face of England. The Home Guard swear the bombs that produced them were in the 1,000-lb. class. They were unloaded on us by the light of a flare, and mercifully spent their wrath is a field of stubble. But they produced many of the symptoms and acute sensations of an earthquake in the district, and the village, which had tolerated apparent incompetence, decided that its patience was exhausted.

Scots Give Many Millions For the War

From the Edinburgh Scotsman

The final figures for Edinburgh's War Weapons week contribution is £10,234,053 17s, which is equivalent to £25 1s per head of the war-time population of 408,512.

This is a truly remarkable achievement on which the citizens are well entitled to congratulate themselves. It sets up a new record for other cities to emulate, but it will not easily be beaten or even equalled.

Other Scottish cities have been set a magnificent example by the capital, and in this connection Edinburgh will certainly not grudge Glasgow any distinction she may attain.

A particularly satisfactory feature of the figures is that practically a million pounds was contributed by the smaller investor, in National Savings Certificates, Defence Bonds, and deposits in the Edinburgh and Post Office Savings Banks. This is almost two and a half times as much as was contributed by the same class during the War Savings Week in June last, when a special effort was made.

The average weekly savings in Edinburgh in recent months have been between £70,000 and £80,000; so it will be seen how great is the effort which the small investor has made on this occasion. It is striking evidence of public spirit that over a quarter of a million pounds was contributed by way of gifts or loans free of interest. The War Savings Associations made a splendid response during the week.

It is to be hoped—and indeed it is necessary for the successful financing of the war—that no reaction from this special effort should occur, but that everything possible should be done to maintain, and even to increase, the savings devoted to furthering the national war effort. The outstanding success of Edinburgh's Week could not have been achieved without excellent team-work, and high credit is due to its organizers and administrators. It has provided another good advertisement of the efficiency with which the business affairs of Edinburgh are run.

A Study of Prisoners and Why They Commit Crimes

If you had opportunity to talk to a number of the inmates of a mental institution, you would find a large percentage who could and would talk with you quite sanely on many subjects. In fact it is true that the patients of mental institutions have as much brains as those of us outside.

Why are they confined to these institutions or why do they enter these institutions of their own free will?

They are in these mental institutions because they cannot live or behave in a normal manner in their homes, places of employment, or with the public generally.

The treatment of mental cases today is the quiet persistent study of why these individuals have such ideas, such behaviour symptoms and the showing to them of how these ideas came into their minds and how to get rid of them.

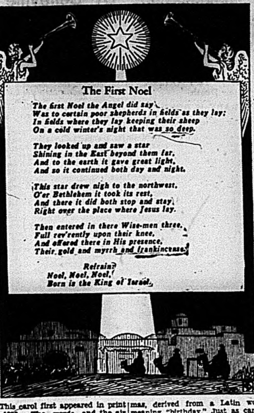
Today, just as these mental patients are studied to find out why they have such behavior ideas, so is there a feeling that prisoners in reformatories, jails, and penitentiaries should be likewise studied and investigated so that the cause, the underlying ideas in their minds that drives them to commit crimes may be found. In other words, these individuals may be criminals but in many cases they are really patients who need treatment.

The Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania has recommended the formation of an organization made up of the members of the Philadelphia County Medical Society and the Philadelphia Bar (law) Association, to study prisoners right in the prisons and jails. An editorial in the American Medical Association Journal states that this joint medicolegal committee recognizes the need for education of physicians studying the criminal, as well as the restoring of the criminal to civil life again.

The committee's plan includes, (a) the creation of fellowships which enables physicians or medical students to devote their whole time for a certain period to the study of criminology, (b) the use of jails and penitentiaries to study prisoners, and (c), tying up these fellowships to some institution of learning which will give thus study the dignity it deserves.

It is not hard to see that not only will prisoners be helped, but there will develop a better understanding between physicians and lawyers when a case is being tried in the court room.

Favorite Christmas Carols



The First Noel

The first Noel the Angel did say
Was to certain poor shepherds in fields as they lay;
In fields where they lay keeping their sheep
On a cold winter's night that was so deep.

They looked up and saw a star
Shining in the East beyond them far,
And to the earth it gave great light,
And so it continued both day and night.

This star drew nigh to the northwest,
O'er Bethlehem it took its rest,
And there it did both stop and stay,
Right over the place where Jesus lay.

Then entered in there Wise-men three,
Full rev'rently upon their knee,
And offered there in His presence,
Their gold and myrrh and frankincense.

Refrain:
Noel, Noel, Noel,
Born is the King of Israel.

This carol first appeared in print in 1833. The words and the air were sung long before that, since the air is a traditional melody. Noel is a French word meaning Christmas, derived from a Latin word meaning "birthday." Just as carols are English songs sung during the Christmas season, so "noels" are French Christmas songs.

SEARCH FOR MISSING FLIERS

Planes are roaring over the country surrounding Camp Borden in an effort to locate two planes lost while on search for a third missing plane. While the search went on word was received that one of the three missing planes had been located and its pilot dead. Leading Aircraftman W. P. Beal, LEFT, and Flying Officer Campbell Fernie are shown here as they were about to join the search.

NAZIS REFUSED PASSAGE

Edward L. Reed, charge d'affaires of the U.S. embassy in Rome until arrival of Alexander C. Kirk, a few days ago, who was refused a transit visa by the German government. Mr. Reed sought permission to pass through Germany in order to take the plane from Stuttgart to Lisbon to catch an American clipper plane for the United States. When Mr. Reed called to see if his visa was forthcoming one of the German ministers told him, "I am sorry to say the German government would prefer that you do not go through Germany."

SIDI BARRANI

Italians Taken by Surprise

In the three months they occupied the region the Italians planted water pipelines along the 70-mile strip of desert and built roads, fortifications and camps. All this was labor lost, for the strip now has been wrested from them by the numerically weaker British forces.

Nibeiwa, 15 miles south of Sidi Barrani, fell in an hour of fighting Monday morning and this was the key to victory. A captured Italian officer told me that the fighting on this circular plateau, taken by surprise, was "the nearest thing to hell ever seen on this earth."

So great was the surprise that Fascist tanks never even got into action. Italian General Pietro Maletti tried to rally his picked forces for a counter-attack but he fell with a bullet in his chest and died soon after the British reached him.

Horses stampeded in the camp, British tanks raced around inside with guns blazing, British artillery was spraying Italian trenches and British infantry dashed in with rifles and machine-guns firing and bayonets flashing.

Surrender Inevitable

Then the British went on to take the east and west forts at Tummar, where stronger resistance, including a counter-attack by 12 tanks, was encountered but overcome. That night the tired British fighters bivouacked in the desert between here and Tummar.

While they rested the fleet shelled Sidi Barrani throughout the night, giving the Italians a preview of what was to come.

With the dawn the British column, made up entirely of English and Scottish regiments—started for Sidi Barrani with tanks leading the way.

Two-thirds of a mile south of the town they came under the fire of Italians entrenched on a ridge. The Fascist forces — two Legions of Blackshirts and a division of Libyans—outnumbered the attacking British about four to one.

R.A.F. Praised

Sidi Barrani was encircled at the time since another unit had cut through to the coast west of the town and another had just taken Maktila on the coast ten miles to the east—but the attacking troops did not know this.

After seven hours of hard fighting in which the British said the Blackshirts fought well and inflicted considerable casualties, the British drove them back and took the ridge at 2 p.m.

"When we got on the ridge we saw the town and the blue sea behind it and this gave us confidence," an officer said.

"But the tanks left us to make a flank attack on the Italians so we had less protection.

"We owe a lot to the R.A.F. They kept enemy planes off us for most of the time.

Dust Storm Assists

"Then a terrible dust storm came up and it was a blessing as the dust made us invisible to the enemy at 200 yards."

Outfought and weary, various Italian detachments began to give in and by nightfall the village was in the hands of the British, though many groups remained to be rounded up.

The final cleanup came Wednesday when a British column marching westward along the coast arrived after having taken Maktila against strong resistance.

Wednesday, Gen. Gallino, Italian Corps Commander for Egypt, who was captured with his staff, asked permission to address his troops and in a pathetic speech thanked his men for their struggle.

PETAIN BARS WAY

zone are closely watched and partly operated by Germany, army railroads and all naval bases and ports in unoccupied France are completely in the hands of Frenchmen.

Ousting of Laval

Advices from Vichy to diplomatic sources here said Petain and his ministers considered the request, made through Pierre Laval before he was ousted as Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister last week, but turned it down.

It was said they looked on the request as an Axis attempt to gain a foothold on the French Mediterranean bases.

Interior Minister Marcel Peyrouton used the word "delicate" to describe the country's position in warning newspapers to be careful in their handling of a swift-moving series of events.

Consultative Assembly

These events included:

1. Announcement from Vichy that Petain intended to establish a consultative assembly to share "certain responsibilities" with him and his ministers.

2. The long-awaited return of the remains of Napoleon Bonaparte's only son from Vienna to Paris which was said by informed sources in Vichy to have been an important factor in the crisis which led to Laval's ouster last Saturday.

Napoleon Son's Body Returned

Dignitaries of France and Germany solemnly accompanied the remains of "L'Aiglon"—the Little Eagle—to Les Invalides in Paris, to lie beside the ashes of his father, placed beneath the great dome of the museum just 100 years ago.

Admiral Jean Darian, French Naval Secretary represented Petain, and received the coffin from Otto Abetz, Adolf Hitler's Ambassador in Paris. The body was returned at Hitler's personal direction and French Ambassador Fernand De Brinon expressed gratitude, terming it the gesture of a great leader.

The French Press, giving prominence to the ceremony today, said Hitler "invited Marshal Petain to attend the solemn ceremony" but "circumstances prevented" the French leader from doing so.

Surprise Says Berlin

Berlin, Dec. 16 (AP)—Until the German government has full information concerning the purpose, intentions and effect of the change in France's Foreign Ministry, the German press will not even carry the news of Vice-Premier Pierre Laval's resignation, authorized sources said today.

They reported that the French Cabinet change came as a surprise and asserted that a special reason for Germany's reserve lay in the fact that France had made a truce with Germany, but that peace had not yet been established.

(Vichy reports Saturday said that Hitler had been informed of the Cabinet change in a personal message from French Chief of State Petain several hours before it was announced publicly and that Berlin had semi-officially approved the selection of Pierre-Etienne Flandin to replace Laval as Foreign Minister.)

France, authorized German sources said, is a country largely occupied by German troops. The change in the Foreign Ministry, they said, may or may not decisively affect German-French relations. They suggested it was useless at this point even to speculate.

CHAIRMAN BLOOM

The questions which await Mr. Roosevelt's decision range from direct financial assistance to a transfer of more destroyers and the implied request for outright naval assistance which the Marquess of Lothian, the British ambassador, made in the speech delivered a few hours before his abrupt death last Thursday.

The President's preoccupation with foreign affairs, in which British aid is an important element, was indicated yesterday by the remark he made in a brief talk to patients at the Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in Warm Springs, Ga., where he stopped en route back here from his Caribbean trip.

He told them he hoped to be back for two weeks next spring "if the world survives," and his words recalled his prophetic utterance on leaving Warm Springs early in 1939, when he said he would be back in the fall if there were no war.

Favors Change in Act

Bloom, advocating accelerated aid to Britain, said specifically that if Britain should desire credit for a stated purpose, he favored a change in the Johnson Act which now bans loans or credits to a nation in default of First Great War debts.

He likewise told newsmen that it might be better, considering world conditions, "to repeal the Neutrality Act and go back to international law." Such action would permit American ships to carry supplies to Britain and thus help ease the burden on the British merchant marine which has lost hundreds of thousands of tons in the war at sea.

Informed officials said that President Roosevelt probably would submit the whole question of further aid to Britain to Congress, discussing it in general terms in his forthcoming message and leaving to legislators the responsibility of deciding on methods. Some quarters, however, were inclined to regard Britain's need for more destroyers and merchant tonnage so urgent that the delay of a month or more might be too long.

Make This Christmas Free From Fire

Bombs will bring death and destruction to many British homes this Christmastide. In many Canadian homes this Christmas, death and destruction may be brought not by bombs but by the celebration of Christmas itself, the most festive season in the democratic world. At Christmas time numerous fire hazards are introduced into homes, stores and public places that do not ordinarily exist. Every year in Canada women and little children lose their lives or are scarred for life from fires starting in Christmas decorations, trees, lighting, etc. This is the warning issued by the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office.

Those persons decorating halls, churches and public places should use particular care in their choice of decorations. Only materials made of metal, glass and asbestos should be used. Packing material and rubbish accumulates much more rapidly at this time and should therefore be disposed of at more frequent intervals. In any case, merchants should guard against obstructing any exit facilities during this season when the shopping crowds are larger than usual.

The Christmas tree itself demands particular attention. It should not be placed near any source of heat, such as radiators, fire places or stoves and should be well-secured against falling. The tree should be so placed that standing or falling, it will not block a doorway or exit and thus prevent the escape of anyone. Lights for the tree should be only of the approved electric type and in no case should candles be used or smoking permitted near any Christmas tree. After a tree is brought into the home it hourly becomes drier and therefore more easily ignited.

The correct choice of toys may mean much to the little ones in the homes. Those made of celluloid may be ignited without coming in actual contact with flame and when once ignited they burn with such rapidity that a child's clothing is nearly always set afire before they can dispose of them.

Accidental ignition of flammable costumes has been the cause of many Christmas tragedies; in fact Santa Claus himself must be very careful not to burn his whiskers.

T. Eaton Employees Get Yuletide Bonus

Regular employees and employees on active service of the T. Eaton Co will receive Christmas bonuses ranging from half-a-week's to two weeks' pay, it was announced last ewek. Employees entering the store, factory and mail order departments were greeted with following notices: "Employees in the store, mail order (including order offices) and factories at rpesent on our staff, together with those on active service will receive Christmas bonuses as follows: "Employees on regular staff, employed since before January 1st, 1940—two weeks' wages.

"Employees on regular staff steadily employed since before July 1st, 1940—one week's wages.

"Employees on regular staff steadily employed since before Nov. 1st, 1940—one-half week's wages.

"Employees in the factories and workrooms on a piecework or hourly rate will be paid this bonus on the basis of their average weekly incomes from 1940. Bonuses will be distributed commencing next week."

The announcement was signed by R. Y. Eaton, president. John David Eaton, a vice-president of the company, when asked for comment, said:

"We are giving this bonus in recognition of the splendid way in which our employees in all our places of business have responded to the extra demands upon them during the past year. Our people have cheerfully put forth the greater efforts required by increased business and have been generous in their voluntary responses to appeals of many kinds for both patriotic and charitable purposes.

It is a great pleasure to us at this time to express in this way our appreciation of their loyal and competent service and to wish them all a Merry Christmas."

Coca-Cola Company Employees Given Month's Pay as Bonus

An extra month's wages have been paid to employees of every department of the Coca-Cola Company of Canada, Limited, continuously on the payroll since January 2, 1940, in appreciation of faithful and loyal services.

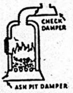
Many men who left the company to join the military services but eligible in other respects were also happy recipients of this special additional compensation. Coming at this time of the year this extra money should do its part to help stimulate holiday trade in this community in many ways.

HEATING HINTS

by James Stewart

I RECENTLY explained how to adjust the Turn Damper of your furnace to reduce Chimney Loss to a minimum, by leaving it as nearly closed as possible. Now the Turn Damper should be left in this position throughout the burning season.

Do not use it to regulate your fire from day to day.



The only time you should ever move the Turn Damper, after finding the ideal position for it, is at the beginning of the very cold season and again at the beginning of the very mild season—to take care of extreme changes in outside temperature.

For daily regulation of the fire—to speed up or slow down the rate at which the fire burns—rely on the Ashpit Damper and Check Damper entirely. (8)

C. G. I. T. Holds Impressive Sunday Vesper Service

Seventy-six members of the city C.G.I.T. and a Cannifton group in their white and blue uniforms took part in an impressive Vesper Service, national in character, at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday at four-thirty. About one hundred and fifty parents and friends of the girls made up the congregation for the inspiring and beautiful service. The theme was "Come Let Us Worship" and the object was to promote in the 'teen age girl a consciousness of her church responsibility especially at the present time, which is the aim of the new national C.G.I.T. Secretary, Miss Muriel W. Jacobson.

The service began with a call to worship, music and carol singing. Some of the carols were old-world in origin, from Poland, Czecho Slovakia and Germany. Miss Katherine Winter told the story in realistic style, bringing a message to her hearers that they will treasure in their hearts. Miss Myrla Goodfellow led the service and the choir added to the impressivenss of the service.

The service took place in the dusk which was pierced with the soft glow of one large candle, representing Christ, the Light of the World. As the service neared its conclusion two girls came forward with candles, lighting these from the centre light and bringing light to the candles of those in the choir. Then they came down the isles, passing their light from girl to girl until all seventy-six candles added their brilliance to that of the central light. For the Recessional the carol was "Silent Night. Holy Night", the girls leaving the church in procession behind the choir, singing, and carrying their light out into the world.

LOVE OF MUSIC BRINGS DEATH

Montreal, Dec. 16—(CP)—A love for music brought death to four-year-old Diana McKenzie Saturday. The child stood on the running board of a parked automobile and poked her head in the window to listen to a radio playing when her feet slipped leaving her head trapped between the window glass and the top of the door. She died instantly, either of a broken neck or by strangulation.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Has Very Little to Spend

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a boy of 17 and just met a girl I like very much. I'd like to take her out, but as my father has been ill for some time. I'm short of money. We have no car and I get no allowance, so I would have no money to spend. The best I can do is walk her from class to class, as we're both in the same high school. If I should ask her for a date, do you think she'd be willing to just go walking with me?

What to do?

Wouldn't walking her from class to class be a little conspicuous and subject you both to a bit of "razzing" unless that happens to be the custom in your high-school?

A Saturday matinee at the movies is not expensive, and you might even earn a little money by delivering parcels from a chain store. Several boys of my acquaintance do rather well at this business. I realize that after school and on Saturdays and holidays would be your only chance of employment. Best wishes to you.

Boy Friend's Faults

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going out with a boy about my age, and I'm in my middle 'teens. We seem to have taken a liking to each other, and enjoy being in each other's company. However, there are a couple of things that bother me.

When he walks he droops his shoulders, which spoils his otherwise splendid appearance. Sometimes I feel as if I'd like to ask him if his head is heavy, but that's out of the question.

Also, when we are out together, he doesn't follow the rule "ladies before gentlemen", but will step into a car ahead of me and pass through a doorway, without stepping aside for me to enter first. I must always follow and feel as if I'm running after him like a dog.

I hope you can help me with these two points.

Helpless

It will require oodles of tact, but if you can manage to convey to the young man who slouches that one of his distinguished appearance should learn to hold his head up, you manage to straighten him out. A little personal vanity has worked miracles from the beginning of time.

As to "ladies first", that will require even more tact. Isn't there someone else of your acquaintance who bolts ahead before his girl friend, and couldn't you call attention to this breach of manners on the part of this other boy?

Flirting Husband Distresses Wife

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 30 years old, and have three boys. We are usually alone, as my husband works in another city. He seems to love me and the boys, but he also likes to flirt with other women. His flirting has already caused the separation of one husband and wife.

He writes that we can soon be together, as he's making plans to move us to his place of business. I really hate to break up this home which I have made here, as I'm not very strong, and I don't know what I may be getting the boys and myself into.

Worried Mother

Can't you get someone to appeal to your husband for the sake of your three boys? Sometimes a man who treats his wife the way you describe will do better for the sake of his children. The most selfish of husbands have been known to turn over new leaves because they did not wish their children to grow up with memories that are humiliating and disgraceful.

Before breaking up I should find out something of the home to which your husband wants to take you.

Nutrition Discussed In Address to Ladies Conservative Club

The December meeting of the Ladies' Conservative Club of Belleville was held in the clubrooms on Friday evening last, with Mrs. Harry Rollins, president, in the chair. After the usual business was taken care of Mrs. R. D. Arnott, convener of programmes, reported that Mr. George Stokes, Federal Member, would speak at the January meeting. It was decided that the annual Turkey Bingo would be held.

After two very interesting readings by Miss Ann Larue, the speaker for the evening, Miss E. Two-Piece Frock and Cap

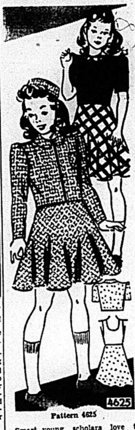
By ANNE ADAMS



Pattern 4625

Smart young scholars love to choose their ensembles for school wear! Here's a colorful three-piece outfit your daughter will take straight to her heart. It's pattern 4625—an Anne Adams design that's easy on the eyes, easy to wear and easy to make. The flaring two-section skirt is stitched onto a bodice top to keep it firmly in place. Either buttons or a zipper fastens the nicely cut long or short-sleeved jacket. The cute little hankie pocket is optional; the collar may be of self-fabric or gay contrast. Don't miss the pert "bell-hop" cap that ties firmly under the chin. If you make the jacket and skirt in contrast, you may let the cap match either piece. The simple style of this outfit will keep your youngster neat and tidy throughout a busy day!

Pattern 4625 is available in girls' sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10 takes 2 1-4 yards 54-inch fabric.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

One Possible Benefit of War

Both in the United States and Canada, the physical examinations of men for army and navy service have developed some significant information. In New York City, for example, one-fourth of the first groups of selective service men examined for induction in the army, were found physically incapable of military service. This figure is all the more impressive when it is taken into account that the obviously unfit such as the blind, crippled, mentally unstable, etc., were not given physical examinations. Also that the examinees probably were preponderantly in the younger of the selected service ages, i.e., 21-25, because of the deferred classifications given married men with dependents.

The reasons for these rejections are worthy of note by every parent. Not because any mother or father is primarily concerned with raising a child to be a soldier, but because the same defects that disqualify a youth for army service obviously hamper him in many other activities.

A study made of the records on one large group of men rejected by the U. S. Army, shows that 23 per cent were eliminated because of bad teeth. Slightly fewer, or 21 per cent, were rejected because of their eyes, the most recurrent defect being myoptic astigmatism. The third commonest cause, responsible for 15 per cent of the total, was inadequate height and weight.

Now all three of these causes are nearly always correctable if the measures are undertaken at the proper time, which is in infancy and childhood. If a mother has the proper diet in her pregnancy, and the child is adequately nourished and its teeth cared for then it usually follows that the child when it grows up has good teeth. Defective eyesight can be largely prevented by proper attention to diet and the correction in the home, the schoolroom and elsewhere of the conditions that produce unusual eyestrain during childhood. And, as pointed out in this column in recent weeks diet in childhood is likewise a decisive factor in height as well as in weight.

Obviously, many mothers and children are undernourished and the children are not safeguarded against the defects arising from malnutrition, because of economic reasons. But it is also true that many children whose parents have the means for a correct diet, are not fed properly due to the misinformation or neglect of their parents. Malnutrition is found by doctors among the children of the well-to-do as well as the poor.

Malnutrition means a deficiency of vitamins more than a lack of calories. Fortunately, there is a great deal more information on vitamins and the deficiency diseases than we had even twenty years ago, and a great many agencies are at work making it available to parents. And with an inventory of our youth to show its need, the probability is that this war will leave us at least one benefit in its wake—more concern all of the time, in peace and war, with proper nutrition of our children.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Courtesy Pays Dividends in Christmas Shopping

In these busy shopping days before Christmas, the stores are gala with festive decorations. But too many of the shoppers, frantically pushing their way about, elbowing one another, giving way to petty ill-temper, snapping ill-naturedly at clerks, are pathetically out of key with the meaningful spirit of the decorations and certainly with the benevolent-looking Santa Clauses. Jangling nerves instead of chiming Christmas bells!

I'm not going to pretend that it isn't trying to mill around in a crowded store. But it's not impossible for us to discover how much better it can be if we will make some effort to preserve our good humor and "mind our manners". It's poor sportsmanship to take advantage of a tired and harried sales-girl by snapping at her, by blaming her for something that isn't in her province to provide, correct or change. It's no wonder we see weary clerks drop their stag-at-bay attitude and turn with relief to the customer who has treated them civilly, with "sweet reasonableness". It's not surprising; it's only human. The really surprising thing is that some people, in their frantic absorption in their own affairs, should completely forget that courtesy begets courtesy. And self-control and courtesy will save you time and wear and tear, and will get you farther along in your shopping accomplishment.

Try to go about your shopping, especially your last minute shopping, with directness, purpose and good will. If it is possible for you, shop in the morning, before the stores are crowded. Take time to think out your shopping problems as much as possible at home instead of on your tired feet in the teeming aisles.

Christmas shopping should really be one of the pleasantest occupations in the world, selecting gifts to be presented on Christmas morning in an atmosphere of shining goodwill. Unhappily we don't see enough good-will walking among the crowded counters. It is as if each forgetting person's stock of good-will is locked in a sealed box marked "Not to be opened till Christmas".

Male Visitor Disposes on Own Coat

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—When a girl answers the door and it is a man caller, should she hold the door open until he enters and then close it, or should she walk ahead and let him close it?

2.—Should she take his hat and coat and hang them up, or just tell him where to put them?

Jane

1.—The girl would hold the door open until her guest enters, and then either he or she closes the door.

2.—The girl should not take the man's hat and coat. She indicates to the man where he is to put his hat and coat, and he follows instruction. She says, "Won't you leave your hat and coat here?" or "Won't you put your hat and coat here in the closet?"

Christmas Greeting Tip

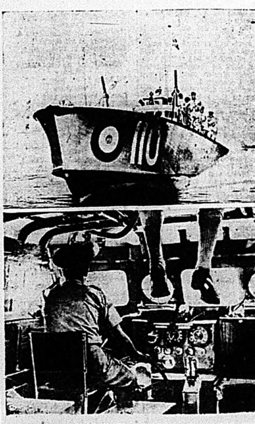
INDIA SERVING, TOO

Native troops of India have flocked to the banner of the British Royal Air Force, lending their abilities to Britain in its fight against Germany. This is a fine character study of an Indian pilot, swallowing a mug of hot coffee after a flight. He wears his turban as he would a pilot's helmet. That and his beard are the only things not modern in his appearance.



A branch of the Royal Air Force doing valuable work all around the coast of England, is the high-speed launch section. The craft are capable of tremendous speeds, are outfitted with radio, medical and life-saving apparatus. Many a British and German airman has been saved by the work of this floating "air force" which speeds to the scene of an air battle to pick up airmen shot down into the water. At the TOP a boat cuts through the water to a wrecked plane. BELOW, a view inside the boat. The legs belong to the officer in command who is on look-out from the top cockppit.

PEEK INSIDE OF A BRITISH PILL BOX

Although grim and forbidding on the outside, the pillboxes that form an almost endless chain around the coast of Great Britain are quite homey inside. Here is a typical interior of one garrisoned by men of the Royal Horse Artillery. The men while away the hours off duty by reading, playing checkers or darts and writing to the folks back home. Little Benny's Note Book

This afternoon ma came home from out somewheres, and I said, Hay ma, do you know that bottle of collone you won for a bridge prize and couldn't get the stopper out of? Well I got it out for you to-day, I said.

Well that's one of the 7 miracles, ma said. I declare that lifts a nightmare from my shoulders, because hardly a day has passed without a fruitless struggle between me and the stopper of that collone bottle. I've tried hot running water and brute force and moral persuasion, and it's been extremely trying on my temper and a constent threat to my fingernales. How in the world did you manage it? I really would like to know for future reference in case there's ever a repetition of similar circumstances, she said.

Well, I happened to be in your room and I noticed the collone bottle and that's what reminded me, so I thought I'd try to get the stopper out for you, for a surprise, I said. So first I tried with my fingers and that hurt too much, so then I tried with a towel, I said, and ma said, Well goodness knows I've tried it that way, but it didn't work.

It didn't work for me either. I said. So then I tried hot water the way I saw you do, but that didn't work, I said, and ma said, Well never mind what didn't work for land sakes, what did work?

Well, do you know that thing on your winow ledge to wind the awning ropes around in summer? I said. Well, I got the idea to use that to take it out with, the same way people use those majiggers to take bottle caps off with, and the whole collone bottle went out the window while I was trying it, and G wizzickers, ma, the stopper came out perfect, in fact that was the only part of the bottle that wasn't broken, I said.

Being the beginning of the sad part.

Sattiday afternoon ma had the bridge game at our house, the first bridge lady that rang the bell being Mrs. Merkle bringing Teddy Merkle with her, and Teddy and I were out throwing a brick to each other to see who dropped it the least, and I said, G, there's a swell picture around at the Little Grand, I wish we could go.

Well hay, why dont we go in and ask our mothers while they're still not doing anything waiting for the other bridge ladies? Teddy said, and I said, The trouble is, my mother thinks I've been going to the movies too much lately.

G, that's the same idea my mother has, that's a trouble, Teddy said, and I said, Well hay, why dont we go in and ask them gradual, I mean ask them for some harder things first.

Wich we went in and did, me saying, Hay ma, I know where they're pulling a store down, and bricks are falling every wich way, and there's big signs all around sayin, Danger, can Teddy and I go and watch them.

Well of all the requests, ma said, and Mrs. Merkle said, With nothing in the papers, but axsidents to childern, they would have to go out of their way to think up some opportunity to delibritly risk their necks.

Both meaning certainly not, and Teddy said to Mrs. Merkle, Well I know where there's a new drug store just opening and they're giving away an ice cream soda free with every purchase, and you're always needing things from the drug store, so will you leave me buy 4 or 5 different purchases if Benny's mother leaves him buy 4 or five?

Do you think I'll have you making yourself deathly sick before your dinner or any other time? Mrs. Merkle said, and ma said, What a gassly thought, what next, I wonder?

The next being us asking them if we could go around to the Little Grand, and they both hurry up said yes to keep us out of mischiff.

Concentration Camps Established in Norway Says Swedish Paper

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Scandinavian wireless Sunday attributed to the newspaper Social Democraten reports that the Norwegian "government" headed by the Nazi traitor, Vidkun Quisling, had officially acknowledged the establishment of concentration camps to "educate" masses of arrested Norwegians.

This, it was stated, was "regarded as Quisling's final attempt to show his Nazi master that he is able to force the Norwegians to accept the Nazi yoke.

"....Nevertheless the distribution and posting of anti-Quisling posters is assuming such proportions that special squads of poster removers are unable to keep pace with the posterers," said the radio.

"It is generally believed that if Quisling is ousted the Nazis will abandon the fiction of a national government and declare a protectorate."

The Scandinavian wireless also distributed a report attributed to the newspaper Pater-National Tidende that "the police force of Copenhagen (capital of occupied Denmark) must be reinforced as a result of disorders in connection with Nazi demonstrations."

Toronto Leafs Stretch Winning Streak to Eight Straight Games By Taking Pair From Chicago

Take Saturday Night's Game by 2-1 and Come From Behind Sunday to Win 4-1

CANADIENS WIN

Montreal Squad Defeats Red Wings 2-1 in Overtime, While Rangers Lick Amerks 6-3

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

On a club whose excellence in all departments has made every man a star, the palm for at least the most improved performance could be awarded today to Walter (Turk) Broda, who is having by far the best of four National Hockey League seasons as custodian of the Toronto Maple Leafs nets.

The thick-set, scrappy native of Brandon, Man., who loves an argument as much as a shutout, long has been noted as a "hot and cold" goaler on a team never renowned for being a defensive unit. It may well be that his brilliant work this season is the integral part of the Leafs' success.

Added Pair of Victories

Toronto added another pair of victories during the week-end to stretch their string to eight successive triumphs. Both were against Chicago and Broda held the Black Hawks to a total of two goals in the home and home series, giving the Leafs a 2-1 triumph in Toronto Saturday night and helping them repeat, 4-1, in Chicago last night.

The twin victories gave the Maple Leafs an eight-point lead over the second-place Detroit Red Wings, who were beaten, 2-1, by Montreal Canadiens in Detroit yesterday afternoon. In the other week-end match, New York Rangers moved closer to fourth position with a 6-3 victory over their intra-city rivals, the Americans.

Broda in Line for Trophy

The two goals yielded to Chicago by Broda made it 24 times this season that opponents' shots have beaten him in 15 games, of which 13 have been victories for the Leafs and the other two losses. Never a Vezina trophy candidate with at least 100 goals scored on him in each of the past three seasons, Broda is first in line for the award this campaign with an average of 1.5 goals a game.

In the Saturday night game before 10,989 fans in Toronto, Broda held the Black Hawks scoreless until late in the third period when Mush March caught the net.

After two scoreless periods, Nick Metz sent Toronto ahead on a solo effort in the final frame. Centre Syl Apps put the Leafs two goals up shortly after.

Large Crowd at Chicago

The Black Hawks opened the scoring in the return match watched by a crowd of 15,879 in Chicago, with Phil Hergesheimer tallying in the first minute of play. Meanwhile, the Leafs tied the game in the second period and won it with a three-goal outburst in the last five minutes.

Gordie Drillon bagged the tying counter midway through the second frame. With less than five minutes remaining in the final period, Sweeney Schriner got the winning counter and Metz added another pair to clinch the verdict.

In the N.H.L.'s first afternoon game at Detroit, the Canadiens spoiled matters for 9,332 Red Wings fans when Tony Demergs gave them a victory with a goal in the last two minutes of overtime. Breaking a 1-1 deadlock, it came on a blazing shot that beat Goalie Johnny Mowers from about 25 feet out.

Bryan Hextall scored three goals to lead the Rangers to the victory over Americans. A crowd of 14,789, the best turnout this season, watched the game which marked the 15th anniversary of the introduction of Major League hockey to New York.

Hershey Bears, New Haven Eagles Improve Positions

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland Barons and Springfield Indians, who both threatened in early season to stage runaway races in the American Hockey League's twin sections, were forced today to share their respective divisional leads with Hershey Bears and New Haven Eagles.

New Haven culminated a winning spurt with two straight victories during the week-end to move into first-place tie in the eastern section with the slumping Indians, who meanwhile lost two matches. In the western division, Hershey won one and lost one to move in with the Barons, who lost their only start.
